REPORT ALLIES AGREE ON PLAN TO POLICE REICH

Fix Zones for U. S., Russia, Britain.

LONDON, March 26 [Sunday].—The London Sunday Observer, which has achieved a reputation for being right more often than wrong on diplomatic news, came out this morning with what purports to be a digest of a plan agreed upon by the United States, Britain, and Russia at Teheran for allied occupation of Germany.

According to this unofficial blueprint, the Russians are to exercise military control of eastern Germany, British forces to hold the north, and the Americans are to garrison the south. In Berlin itself, according to this report, all three powers are to exercise joint control with such unity of policy as may be attained emanating from there.

Danube Marks One Line.

The Observer story said that the principal points in the Teheran agreement about allied zones of control in Germany after the armistice were:

1. The western boundary of the Russian zone of occupation is to run roughly along a right angle formed by the Danube and prolongation of the lower reaches of the river Oder southward.

2. Bavaria, Saxony, and Wuerttemburg would become under the exclusive occupation of United States troops, while western Germany up to the Oder as well as part of central Germany would be occupied exclusively by British forces.

3. Berlin itself would be occupied jointly by the forces of the three great powers.

No Time Limit Fixed.

According to the Observer, the length of occupation was not fixed at the conference. It was said that the mechanics of administration was left to further settlement.

One of the major points of discussion since Teheran, the newspaper said, was the question of which zone shall include Austria. That country, which Hitler absorbed before the war began, is the border between the various zones. Nothing was settled at Teheran about who was to occupy it, but it was recalled that the Moscow conference which preceded occupation issued a declaration at the time promising restoration of Austrian independence.

Seek to Avoid Chaos.

However, it is generally accepted that Austria, like all the other European countries that have been occupied by the axis, will require a period of occupation by the liberating forces to avoid the period of chaos likely to follow the armistice.

According to the Observer, the original plan was that American troops would occupy Austria, but diplomatic discussions since the Teheran conferences have led to general agreement that the administration of Austria shall be taken over temporarily by a mixed British, American, and Russian force.

REVEALS PETAIN WEIGHED PLEA TO FLEE FRANCE

BY TAYLOR HENRY.

[Associated Press Correspondent Just Returned from Internment in Germany.]

New York, March 25 (AP).—Marshal Petain was considering fleeing France to join the Fighting French in North Africa when German soldiers bottled him up in Vichy in November, 1942.

When American troops landed in North Africa, an airplane was kept in readiness by Petain's followers at the Vichy airport, prepared to hop to North Africa with the marshal.

For two harrowing days his pro-American advisers urged Petain to throw in his lot with the allied nations in North Africa. Before he could make up his mind, Nazi troops had occupied the airport and blocked the exits from Vichy.

Eyes Clouded with Tears.

The course the marshal was urged to take was the same that he had made possible for Gen. Henri Giraud.

The marshal's inability to make up his mind was even more tragic, considering the genuine sorrow with which he bowed to Premier Laval's decision to break relations with the United States.

It can now be told that the marshal's eyes were clouded with tears when he bade good-by to the American charge d'affaires, S. Pinckney Tuck.

This was the second time I had seen Petain's lack of decision prevent establishment of a French government in North Africa. In June, 1940, at Bordeaux, as the Germans entered Paris, Petain approved removal of the French government to Africa. All plans were made, some had even been put into operation when Laval intervened and put sufficient pressure on the marshal to change his mind.

Paid Back by Occupation.

Almost as tragic were the results of the marshal's 1942 lack of decision, leading to all the consequences of total occupation which he had hoped to avoid.

Petain has seen his hope of establishing a military type of authoritarian government for the resurrection of France degenerate into burocratic bickering. His plan for a state based on family, agriculture and labor has bogged down.

Every administration in the Vichy government has been jammed with unnecessary officials, friends of those already in the government. Before the war when France had 3 million tons of commercial shipping, the marine ministry numbered three directors of bureaus, two sub-directors and 15 chiefs of bureaus. Today, with no more than 50,000 tons of shipping left, the marine industry employs nine directors, six sub-directors and 39 bureau chiefs.

Efforts to recreate the French family as a basic unit of government have failed in the face of increasing food shortages, the drafting of youth for forced labor in Germany and the splitting of families by young men fleeing to the Fighting French in North Africa or taking to the underground.

Agricultural workers, seeing the Germans take large proportions of the food, are producing as little as they can beyond what is necessary for their own areas.

RUSSIANS TAKE NAZI CITADEL IN UKRAINE BULGE

LONDON, March 26 [Sunday]—(AP).—The Red army advanced to within eight miles of Rumania proper yesterday and erected a 50 mile invasion bridgehead on the Dniester river just across from Cernauti [Czernowitz], Rumania's northern capital in Bukovina, Moscow announced today.

Driving the Germans back toward the Carpathian mountains, the Russians were 18 miles from strategic Cernauti and 17 miles from Hitler's rail backbone—the Bucharest-Lwow railway running thru that city. Loss of the line would split the German eastern front.

In a day of successes extending from old Poland to the Black sea, the Russians also toppled the west Ukraine stronghold of Proskurov, killing thousands of Germans.

Drive Beyond Tarnopol.

Other impressive successes scored included a 20 mile gain south of bypassed Tarnopol in Poland, the severing of a key railway in central Bessarabia, and the overrunning of a German rail escape route 110 miles northwest of Odessa. At the southeast end of the front Russian forces fought into the outskirts of the Black sea port of Nikolaev.

Premier Marshal Stalin announced Proskurov was captured by storm after the Nazis had put up a stubborn battle there for weeks.

Race to Trap Germans.

Proskurov, "a railway junction and powerful strongpoint of German defenses," fell to Marshal Zhukov's 1st Ukraine army and its capture caved in the top of the German salient between it and the Dniester.

Fighting into the outskirts of Kamenets Podolsk, in the southwestern corner of the Ukraine, the Russians moved quickly to try to trap thousands of German troops retreating from fallen Proskurov, 65 miles to the northeast.

The Germans above the Dniester were squeezed into a fast narrowing 2,000 square mile area just above the river and other Russian troops were moving west on both banks of the Dniester to complete the intended trap. Only 40 miles separates the soviet armies driving to nip off the Ukraine bulge.

Berlin Admits Soviet Gains.

Berlin made no attempt to hide the Russian development of the breakthru. "Between Proskurov and Tarnopol," said the German war report, "the soviets further advanced to the south with superior forces. Attacks against both towns were repulsed in heavy fighting."

Wheeling south toward the Danube, some units of Russia's 2d Ukraine army outflanked the besieged rail junction of Balti and another Red army cut a German escape railway and began fighting into Balti, 110 miles northwest of Odessa.

Yank Snubs Eleanor; Wins Title!

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

Washington, D. C., March 25.—A navy air mechanic at a Caribbean outpost now glories in a new title—the man who refused to introduce Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt—according to a letter made public today by Rep. Shafer [R., Mich.].

The man who refused is James W. Ringo, who was a merchant in Augusta, Mich.

In a letter to Rep. Shafer, Ringo told of being chosen from the army and navy men at the outpost to introduce the President's wife there during her Caribbean tour. Ringo said a major described his duties.

"I laughed at him," wrote Ringo, "and told him I would rather be known as the man who refused to introduce her than as the man who introduced her.

"If she wants to do something to lift morale or whatever she calls it, let her keep away from these outposts. We have planes to keep in the air and darn little time for dress parades.

"Better still, turn her plane over to the transport command and help bring home the men with two years or more overseas. Then she would be doing something.

"If it's votes they seek—keep her home."

Ringo said he was writing because he thought the folks back home would get a "kick" out of his new title.

"And you can quote me on that," he added.

So, Rep. Shafer made public Ringo's name and story.

Mother Proud of Him

Mrs. Evelyn Ringo, 6242 Kenwood av., mother of James Ringo, said last night she was proud of her son's stand in refusing to introduce Mrs. Roosevelt.

"I don't favor Mrs. Roosevelt touring the world when my son and thousands of other men need furloughs so badly and can't get them," she said. "Not only that, but there are men working in war plants who can't even get the necessary gasoline to get back and forth to work."

Ringo's wife, Mildred, and two sons, James Joseph, 8, and William Arthur, 7, live in Augusta, Mich. He enlisted in the navy Nov. 6, 1941. At one time, he was a noncommissioned chaplain aboard the destroyer Hamilton. Before enlisting, he operated a clothing store in Augusta.

'Lip Mike' New Sound Marvel to Guide Army

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

In army communications circles, there has been talk lately of a mysterious "Little Schickelgruber." Also of "Lip Mike." Now it may be disclosed that these mysterious entities are one and the same—the new differential microphone [lip mike], or simply United States army microphone model T-45. It was dubbed Schickelgruber because the microphone proper in position on the upper lip gives the wearer a faint resemblance of Hitler.

Here's "Lip Mike."

Little Schickelgruber is more bad news, however, for Hitler, for it improves American front line communications. Using it, a soldier can speak into his microphone while standing in the deafening roar of battle or in a thundering tank, yet all sound except his voice will be shut out.

Amateurs Get Big Idea.

Telephonic engineers long had grappled with the problem of shutting out extraneous sounds. It remained for a couple of radio amateurs to hit upon an idea that led to this notable advance in the technique of speech transmission. Cheyney Beekley of QST, the publication of amateur radio operators, and A. R. Kahn of the Electro-Voice Manufacturing company, microphone manufacturers of South Bend, Ind., had an idea that they developed in coöperation with the army signal corps at Fort Monmouth, N. J., and at Fort Knox, Ky.

The controling principle of the microphone is simple. Weighing less than two ounces, as perfected, it has two small openings, one on inner, or lip side, the other away from the lips. The mike is so made that it will respond only to sounds which enter the two sides with unequal intensity. Sounds entering from both sides with equal intensity cancel out. Thus only the voice of the speaker, entering entirely on one side—from the lips—is reproduced.

Has Post-war Potentialities.

The mike, smaller than a half dollar, is made of nonstrategic materials, is dustproof and waterproof; can be worn under a gas mask or respirator. It straps around the ears. A wired lead plugs into the transmitter.

Post-war potentialities include its use for clear communication from unusually noisy areas, fight arenas, stadiums, train sheds, and subway stations. A variation of the microphone also may help to usher in the day of noise-free telephonic communication, according to the inventors.

SHIELD, SWORD AND FIRE FORM INSIGNIA FOR INVASION GROUP

LONDON, March 25 (AP).—A new shoulder sleeve emblem issued today for military personnel attached to Gen. Eisenhower's western front headquarters is full of symbolism, starting with a shield shaped black background representing the "darkness of Nazi oppression."

There is a crusader's sword across the shield, with "red flames of avenging justice leaping from its hilt," an announcement from supreme headquarters of the allied expeditionary forces said.

Above the sword is a rainbow made up of all the colors of the allies' flags and symbolic of hope. A field of blue over the rainbow represents the coming "peace and tranquility for the enslaved people of Europe."

NAVY TO ARREST MEN WHO IGNORE SALUTE ETIQUET

Rear Adm. Arthur S. Carpender, commandant of the 9th naval district, yesterday ordered the shore patrol to arrest and file charges against all navy officers and men found guilty of laxity in saluting etiquet.

"There has been an increasing tendency on the part of officers and men to disregard the explicit and definite instructions relative to the salute," said part of a letter from the navy bureau of personnel which was quoted by Adm. Carpender in his order. "Rendering of the salute by officers and enlisted men is considered to be one of the fundamental steps in discipline. Failure to carry out the salute leads to other derelictions, is nonmilitary and reacts against the morale of the service."

Officers at the Great Lakes Naval Training station said disregard of the salute has been particularly noticeable in Waukegan recently, and on a lesser scale in the loop.

First Overseas Tribunes Land in British Isles

The first 10,000 copies of the Overseas Tribune—printed especially for distribution to American soldiers in the British Isles—have reached England and are being distributed, a cable from Larry Rue of THE TRIBUNE'S London bureau said yesterday.

The edition, the issue of March 4, was printed in New York from plastic plates prepared in Chicago and sent east by plane. When the edition had been run off, the papers were wrapped in waterproof bundles for shipment by fast boat to England. They were delivered to the army exchange service, which operates post exchanges thruout the world.

Distribution Is Speedy.

Post exchanges now are distributing the weekly newspaper to American soldiers in the British Isles at a price fixed by the exchange service, approximately 3 cents in the British theater of operations. A large deficit incurred in the printing and distribution is made up by THE TRIBUNE.

This method of distribution, which lops days off the time that would be required to circulate the papers by ordinary means, was made possible by the coöperation of Col. Francis B. Kerr, chief of the army exchange service, and Lt. H. O. Bierbaum of the procurement division, AES, in New York.

The big news of the week in the March 4 issue was the classification of Chicago as an acute labor shortage area.

Five Pages of Comics.

The Overseas Tribune stresses features, including five pages of comics, a page of pictures, two pages of sports, and the following regular Tribune columns: In the Wake of the News, Front Views and Profiles, A Line o' Type or Two, Voice of the People, and Friend of the Yanks.

By careful editing of the comics, it is possible to keep Yanks in the British Isles up to date on Dick Tracy, Gasoline Alley, Little Orphan Annie, Smilin' Jack, and Moon Mullins. Another Tribune comic, Terry and the Pirates, appears in Stars and Stripes, the service publication.

The Overseas Tribune now is being printed weekly in Honolulu for distribution thru the mid-Pacific area. Arrangements are pending to publish it for circulation in other theaters of operations.

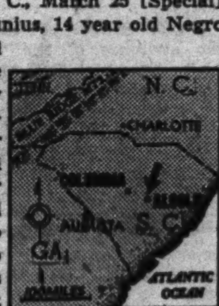
2 Girls Slain; Rush Killer to Safety in Cell

Alcolu, S. C., March 25 [Special].—George Junius, 14 year old Negro, was rushed to the state penitentiary at Columbia under heavy guard today after he admitted beating to death two white girls who left their homes yesterday on bicycles to pick flowers in a woods a mile from this village of 400 persons.



Site of Killings.

The girls were Betty June Binnicker, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sanders Binnicker, and Mary Emma Thames, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben O. Thames. Binnicker and Thames are employes of the Alderman & Sons Lumber company of Alcolu.

Doctors Perform Autopsy.

An autopsy performed on the bodies by Doctors C. R. F. Baker and A. C. Bozard at the Shelley-Brunson funeral home in Sumter this afternoon brought a report that the Binnicker girl had probably been raped before death, Deputy Sheriff H. S. Newman of Clarendon county said.

Both girls had been beaten about the head and shoulders with an iron pipe and both had several skull fractures.

The arrest of Junius came a few hours after a searching party had found the bodies of the girls in a ditch on the edge of the woods, their bicycles beside them. Newman said attention was directed to the Negro by remarks he made to playmates while the hunt for the missing girls was in progress.

Leads Police to Bludgeon.

Newman said Junius admitted killing the girls but denied he had raped them. He led officers to a place in the woods where he had concealed the iron pipe he had used as a bludgeon.

Newman said indignation over the crime was running high thruout the county but that danger of a lynching had been averted by confining Junius in the state prison.

APPOINT THREE BRITISH WOMEN WAC OFFICERS

ALLIED HDQ., SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, March 26 [Sunday]—(AP).—Three women British subjects, all employed by Americans at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters, have been commissioned officers in the American WAC.

They are Beryl Stephenson, secretary to Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney; Elaine Bessemer-Clarke, general headquarters receptionist, and Miss L. E. Mowat, a general officer's secretary.

Miss Bessemer-Clarke, daughter of Norman Brooks, a knight, is a captain. The others are first lieutenants.

An Australian newspaper brought up the question whether the women retain their citizenship when commissioned into American services. Miss Stephenson was born in Scotland, Miss Bessemer-Clarke in Australia, and Miss Mowat in England.

SULLIVAN OUT AS DETECTIVE BUREAU HEAD

Storms Takes Over Post as Chief.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan was demoted to a captaincy and his assistant, Walter G. Storms, was appointed head of the detective bureau in a general order issued yesterday by Police Commissioner Allman which transferred 15 other captains, 14 lieutenants, 5 sergeants, and 21 patrolmen.

Lt. John Warren, who had been acting captain at the Hyde Park station during the suspension of Capt. Walter F. Healy, was named by Allman to succeed Storms as deputy chief of detectives.

The transfers came as an aftermath of the grand jury investigation of syndicated gambling last fall which resulted in the suspension of nine captains.

Confusion Ended.

Eight of the nine suspended captains were ordered restored to duty by Superior Court Judge John C. Lewe on Thursday and when they went back to their former commands on Friday there was confusion. In some of the stations two men were in command. The transfer order straightened out the station rosters.

Chief Storms, a veteran detective, is regarded as one of Chicago's ablest policemen. He has been a protege and close friend of Allman. Sullivan was considered State's Atty. Courtney's representative in the police department's high command. In this connection it was recalled that it was Courtney who brought Allman to tears in the grand jury room last October during the gambling inquiry.

Sullivan worked in close coöperation with the prosecutor's office and spent much time in the criminal courts. He was chief of detectives for nearly 10 years, during all of which time Storms was deputy chief.

When told by long distance telephone that Sullivan had been ousted as head of the detective bureau, Courtney, who is now the Democratic candidate for governor, said: "The police department is Allman's responsibility."

Political Motive Denied.

Courtney and Mayor Kelly, both Democrats, have been politically unfriendly for several years, but recently Kelly said he and his organization would support Courtney for governor. Yesterday the mayor denied that any political consideration brought about the removal of Chief Sullivan.

"Allman told me he was going to make some changes and I told him he was running the department and if he wanted to remove any one to go ahead and do it," the mayor said. "After all, it was Allman who appointed Sullivan chief 10 years ago."

The mayor remarked that some one in a job too long might get stale. He said new blood now and then does any organization good and praised Storms and Warren. The police department's failure to solve the Drake hotel murder of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams had nothing to do with demoting Sullivan, Kelly insisted.

Naughton Put on Case.

Mrs. Williams, wife of a career diplomat, was slain Jan. 19 by a mystery woman, according to her daughter, Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, an eyewitness. The slayer still is being sought.

A month after the murder Commissioner Allman was asked what was being done to find the slayer. He said he would ask Chief Sullivan. A few days later Allman conferred with Mayor Kelly and then assigned Supervising Capt. Michael P. Naughton to the case.

Allman's order transferred from the East Chicago avenue station the captain who has been in charge of the station activities on this murder—Capt. Frank Reynolds, former aid and close friend of State's Atty. Courtney. In addition, Lt. Otto Erlanson, head of the homicide bureau for many years, announced on Friday that he was retiring on a pension.

The transfers of Sullivan and Reynolds, and the retirement of Erlanson, remove from the Drake investigation three of its most active workers.

Sullivan, who had said that his health was never better, remarked after he was told of his demotion that he intended to ask for a furlough instead of going immediately to the Summerdale district.

Sullivan to See Courtney.

"I have no complaint to make," ex-Chief Sullivan said as he left the detective headquarters. It was understood he would confer later with Courtney.

What effect the Sullivan ouster and the switching of the captains' commands will have on gambling was a matter of speculation in the department.

The suspended captains' return to duty had been anticipated. Courtney had said: "Well, we proved that gambling could be stopped because it is stopped." In the Criminal court building, it was said that many of the gambling gangsters who spent the winter away from Chicago have returned and are asking rental information on vacant stores.

Shift Reinstated Captains.

All eight reinstated captains were moved to new posts. The eight, and their assignments, are as follows:

Patrick J. Crotty, Woodlawn to Pekin.

John T. Cartan, Des Plaines to Burnside.

Eugene A. Barry, Shakespeare to Gresham.

U. S. DENOUNCES ARGENTINA FOR CLOSING CABLE

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—The state department charged today that Argentina's action in suspending operations of All-America Cables, Inc., in Buenos Aires for 24 hours "would appear to indicate a complete failure" to appreciate the importance of the communication facilities.

The department said that, on the ground of "apparently trivial violation of the Argentine censorship regulations," all operations of the company were suspended for the 24 hour period expiring tonight at midnight and a fine imposed on the company.

Charges backing the action in Buenos Aires were that on March 8 three cables from Lima, Peru, were mistakenly forwarded by the local office of All-America Cables in Buenos Aires to the censorship official in the office of the United Press, to which the messages were addressed, instead of having received the prior approval of the censorship official in the cable office.

SAILOR SLEEPS, AWAKENS WITH OFFICERS' RANK

When Richard Clemens Schneble went to bed last Monday night at Great Lakes Naval Training station, he was a second class seaman. When he awoke the next morning, he was a lieutenant commander.

Lt. Comdr. Schneble.

This was not a dream. It was a fact announced yesterday by navy public relations officers, who explained that Schneble is a former heart and lung specialist of Dayton, O. He was sworn into the navy while awaiting his commission. He completed his boot training Feb. 22.

Lt. Comdr. Schneble received degrees from the University of Dayton and the St. Louis university school of medicine, besides doing graduate work at Harvard and Columbia universities.

INDEFINITE LIFE CONSIDERED FOR 2 FOOD STAMPS

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—The office of price administration is considering a plan to make red and blue food ration stamps valid for an indefinite period, it was learned tonight.

At the present time, the stamps are validated for a fixed period. Under the contemplated setup, similar to provisions for shoe rationing, the stamps would be good until the OPA announced their cancellation.

Such a step, a spokesman explained, would help merchants by virtually eliminating the last minute buying rush that develops under the fixed period validation system. In addition, housewives would be relieved of keeping track of the various expiration dates.

OFFICE BURGLARS GET $35.

Philip Johnson, an official of Luminous Process, Inc., 81 W. Van Buren st., reported to police yesterday that burglars who jimmied a desk in the office stole $35 and two bottles of whisky.

DON'T FORGET! IT COSTS 3 CENTS FOR LOCAL MAIL

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The 2 billion 300 million dollar third war time tax act begins dipping into the public's pocket today thru increased postal rates. Next Saturday, April 1, excise taxes on many items will be increased.

Effective last midnight, postal rates went up to bring an estimated additional 96 million dollars a year into the federal treasury. Biggest change is an advance from 2 to 3 cents in the charge for local letters. The 3 cent rate for letters going out of town is continued. The domestic air mail rate is increased from 6 to 8 cents an ounce, but the rate on air mail to and from military forces stationed outside the continental United States stays at 6 cents a half ounce.

Parcel Post Charges Up.

Every parcel post package will require at least 1 cent more in postage, the revenue act requiring an increase of 1 cent or 3 per cent, whichever is greater.

Money order rates are increased. Some examples: 1 cent to $2.50, 6 to 10 cents; $10.01 to $20, 13 to 22 cents; $80.01 to $100, 22 to 37 cents.

Registration fees are increased about one-third. These increases range from 5 cents [15 to 20 cents] for an indemnity limit of $5, to 35 cents [$1 to $1.35] for $1,000 indemnity.

Insured and c. o. d. fees are doubled.

Movie Tickets to Cost More.

The increase in taxes next Saturday will affect movie tickets, telephone bills, whisky, and a score of other items. Movie and other general admissions will be taxed at 1 cent for every nickel instead of a penny for each dime, while leases on boxes and seats are to be assessed at 20 per cent instead of 11 per cent. The same increase applies to ticket brokers and to club dues and initiation fees.

The levy on furs, cosmetics, jewelry, and luggage will go from 10 to 20 per cent of the retail price. The tax on electric light bulbs jumps from 5 to 20 per cent of the manufacturers' price.

The tax on charges for local telephone service will increase from 10 to 15 per cent; on toll calls, from 20 to 25 per cent. Telegrams, cablegrams, and radiograms as well as wire leases will be taxed 25 per cent instead of the present 15 per cent.

Travel tickets, now taxed at 10 per cent, go to 15.

On whisky, the tax increase amounts to 75 cents a quart of 100 proof. It will be about 60 cents for the average bottle of lower proof.

Increase in Beer Levy.

The office of price administration has authorized bars to increase the price of individual drinks 1 to 4 cents, depending on the size and proof, but an OPA spokesman in Washington suggested that many would prefer to absorb the increase rather than deal in odd cents.

OPA also authorized a 1 cent increase in the price of an 8 ounce beer. The tax on beer is increased from $7 to $8 a barrel. Wine levies go up from a nickel to $1 a gallon, depending on alcoholic content.

Bowling alleys and billiard parlors must pay $20 a year for each alley or table rather than $10.

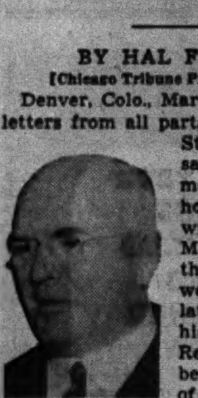
COLORADO G. O. P. VICTORY HAILED BY SERVICE MEN

Letters View It as Omen of New Deal Defeat.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Denver, Colo., March 25.—In 1,550 letters from all parts of the United States, soldiers, sailors, business men, farmers and housewives have written to Dean M. Gillespie in the last two weeks congratulating him upon his election as a Republican member of the house of representatives.



D. M. Gillespie.

Judging from the letters, the election of this Denver business man has been interpreted thruout the country as pointing toward the defeat of President Roosevelt at the polls in November. Some read into the returns a repudiation of Wendell Willkie's policies.

"My opponent could not overcome the handicap of his Democratic sponsorship," Gillespie said today in an interview.

Opponent a War Veteran.

His opponent, in a district heretofore Democratic, was Maj. Carl E. Wuertele, a discharged veteran of the war in the Pacific. Wuertele wore a silver star and two oak leaf clusters.

Soldiers and sailors wrote to Gillespie that they were cheered by the improved prospects of returning to an America of opportunity for individual initiative. Some emphasized that after the war they want to return to jobs in private industry and not to any form of WPA.

"I am hopeful that your election is a straw in the wind marking a swing toward constitutional government," a captain wrote from a New Jersey point of embarkation.

Business Men Impressed.

Business men particularly were impressed by the response to Gillespie's plank urging rapid return to peace time economy and quick adjustment of taxes to restore incentive for venture capital.

"One thing is certain," said John C. Vivian, 56 year old governor, who probably will be a Republican candidate for a second term this fall, "Colorado is going to deliver its six electoral votes for the Republican candidate for President."

Gov. Dewey Given Lead.

Authoritative sources, however, said Gov. Dewey of New York is the present choice in Colorado, with Gen. MacArthur and Gov. Bricker of Ohio tied for second. The state G. O. P. convention will meet here April 26 to select an uninstructed delegation to the national convention June 26 in Chicago.

Gillespie, 59, a machinery and motor truck distributor and a manufacturer of food and petroleum products, is awaiting the official vote canvass next week before reporting in Washington, D. C., to complete the unexpired term of Rep. Lawrence Lewis, who died last December.

STUFFS FURNACE, DIES OF BURNS.

Mrs. Ann Zymanowski, 36, of 2439 N. Washtenaw av., died last night in St. Elizabeth's hospital of burns suffered yesterday. Police said her dress accidentally caught fire as she was stuffing some old bedding into a furnace.

TILDEN R. O. T. C. UNIT TRIUMPHS IN DRILL CONTEST

Lindblom, Lake View Place 2d, 3d.

After a contest so close and hard fought that the judges had to split points into fractions before giving the final ratings, Tilden Technical High school yesterday was adjudged winner in the seventh annual city-wide reserve officers' training corps platoon drill competition. The competition was held in the armory of the 1st regiment, Illinois reserve militia, 1551 N. Kedzie av. The 29 public high schools which have R. O. T. C. units participated.

For its clean and exact precision drill, its spotless uniforms and burnished shoes, and its crisp, electrifying cadence, the Tilden unit amassed 955 points out of a possible 1,000. Lindblom placed second with 919, and Lake View third with 916.714. Austin took fourth place with 916.073, and Lane Technical High school scored 914 points to win fifth place.

868 Highest Year Ago.

In last year's competition no platoon rated above 868. The five winners then were Calumet, Hyde Park, Steinmetz, Schurz, and Harper.

The presentation of the first place trophy was made by Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics in the Chicago high schools, and Mrs. Effie King, past department president of Illinois of the United Spanish War Veterans of America auxiliary. It was accepted on behalf of the Tilden unit by Cadet Capt. William Maplesdon.

Gen. Davis Reviews Units.

Second, third, fourth, and fifth place awards were made by Brig. Gen. John F. Davis, chief of staff of the 6th service command. At the conclusion of the competition the winning platoons passed smartly in review. Music was furnished by the Lake View-Senn combined R. O. T. C. bands.

Scoring in the competition was done by the senior sergeants of each school. They marked every unit except their own.

DEMOCRATIC FEARS OF ELECTION DEFEAT IN OKLAHOMA TOLD

Muskogee, Okla., March 25 [Special].—As an indication of New Deal concern over Tuesday's special election in the second Oklahoma congressional district, E. O. Clark, Republican nominee, today exhibited a letter bearing the frank of Sen. Thomas [D., Okla.] urging federal employes from the district now living in Washington to obtain absentee ballots.

Clark quoted from the letter as follows: "This election is all important, because if the district goes Republican it will give the opposition added confidence that they may carry the state in November. Should the state go Republican in November, then we will certainly have a Republican president and it is unthinkable that a Republican president and a Republican administration would permit Democrats to hold their positions in federal service."

Sen. Thomas tonight declined comment on the letter other than to state that it represented his views. The Democratic nominee is W. G. Stigler. The election is to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Rep. Jack Nichols [D.], who defeated Clark by 388 votes in 1942. In 1940 the district went Democratic by 20,000 votes.

F. D. R. WON'T RUN AGAIN, FORMER NYA HEAD SAYS

Atlanta, Ga., March 25 (AP).—Aubrey Williams, organizing director of the National Farmers' union and frequent White House dinner guest, was quoted by the Atlanta Journal in a copyrighted story tonight as saying he did not believe President Roosevelt would seek a fourth term.

Williams, former head of the national youth administration, said only a few nights ago he left the White House, after dining with the President, "with the distinct impression that he wouldn't run again, altho he didn't say so directly. He looked so tired and worn that I was shocked." The President has had a series of colds recently.

In Carrolton, Ga., to speak in the interests of his union, Williams said President Roosevelt spoke "in glowing terms" of Stalin, a feeling which he said seemed to be shared by Secretary of State Hull.

ARIZONA SPURNS 4TH TERM PLEDGE AT PARTY RALLY

Phoenix, Ariz., March 25 (AP).—Arizona Democrats in convention today praised the accomplishments of President Roosevelt at home and abroad and indorsed "the war and post-war policies of the present national administration," but did not commit themselves to a fourth term.

The 20 delegates who will cast the state's 10 votes at the national convention at Chicago in July will go uninstructed. A proposal that they be pledged to support the nomination of the President was stricken by the resolutions committee.

Sam H. Morris, national committeeman for the last four years, and Mrs. W. P. Stuart, national committeewoman, were reëlected.

TRIBUNE SERVES MILLIONS; HOST TO VAST CROWDS

Chicagoans by the millions made use of Tribune services and attended Tribune sponsored events during 1943. A report made public yesterday by the business survey department of the newspaper tabulated a grand total of 5,773,814 responses from readers.

These included attendance of 2,094,772 at Tribune events and tours, 2,056,898 responses to features in THE TRIBUNE, 846,289 inquiries and services at the public service offices, and 775,855 miscellaneous responses.

During the year the switchboard handled 893,690 calls and the mail cage handled 753,142 pieces of mail, not counting business contacts of the advertising, circulation, auditing, production, and purchasing departments.

War Shows Popular.

Three war shows held in 1943 drew huge crowds to Tribune Tower. Attendance at these were: Air show, 537,684; Navy show, 376,185; Ordnance show, 392,887. The Music Festival drew 90,000, the All-Star football game, 48,000; Golden Gloves, 60,246, and many thousands attended other Tribune sponsored sports events.

Inquiries and services were classified in the report according to men's features, women's features, and general features attracting both men and women.

Among the services to men readers, telephone calls asking: "Who won the game?" topped the list. There were 435,991 such calls on baseball games and 143,000 calls about football. The financial editor received 32,353 inquiries, and the Friend of the Yanks got 33,494.

Thousands Request Patterns.

Leading the list of services to and inquiries from women readers were 217,586 requests for dress patterns and 211,795 requests for needlework patterns. The cooking department handled 39,169 calls.

Among the general editorial features were the following: Health editor, 39,133 responses; metropolitan section news, 56,774; Wake of the News, 31,455; Voice of the People, 17,813; city editor's department, 150,441; foreign news, 76,668.

At the Tribune public service offices, the information bureau handled 462,146 inquiries; the touring bureau aided 40,220, the travel bureau 19,761. Notarial service was provided to 30,776.

The moving picture, "Trees to Tribunes," was viewed by 269,561, and another Tribune movie, "The All American Way," was seen by 76,367.

LANZA REVIEWS RED DRIVES ON 3 UKRAINE FRONTS

Reports Nazis Shorten and Straighten Line.

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

[Regular contributor to the Field Artillery Journal and recognized as an authority on military matters.]

Russia still is the theater of major land operations against the axis. The Russians started their present great offensive in the Ukraine on March 4, when their 1st Ukranian army group, or front as it is called in Russian, struck toward old Poland from the northern part of the Ukraine. During the first week, pushing south and southwest, it advanced as much as 60 miles and entered Tarnopol.

In accordance with their custom of not butting their heads against a stone wall, the 1st army then switched the direction of its attack. On March 18 it commenced a new offensive north of Tarnopol to the west. As in the attack of two weeks earlier, it also made early gains.

Another Force Attacks.

At the south end of the attack sector, Kremenetz [Poland] was taken almost at once. The speed with which it was taken indicates the Germans did not seriously attempt to defend it. At the other end of the offensive, almost 100 miles to the north, the Russians advanced about 30 miles and reached the edge of Kowel [Kovel], according to the Germans.

On March 6, two days after the start of the Russian offensive, the 3d Ukrainian army group attacked across the lower Dneiper river, moving west just north of the Black sea. In 12 days this Russian force advanced 90 miles to the Bug river without dislodging the Germans from Nikolaev and a large bridgehead on the east side of the Bug. The Germans appear to be fighting hard in this sector.

In between the 1st and 3d Ukrainian army groups is the 2d. This one has made extensive advances, reaching into Bessarabia, which has attracted much attention to it. The 2d started its drive March 6, the same day as the 3d. It got over the middle Bug and went on to the Dneister, kept right on, and has secured a deep bridgehead on the Bessarabian side. This army group made 90 miles in 14 days. Much of the gain seems to have been made without serious fighting, in contrasts to the opposition offered the 1st and 3d groups.

Nazis Shortening Lines.

On each side of the 2d there has been a space without any substantial Russian advance. This left two salients in the front. The one on the north centered on Vinnitsa and that on the south around Pervomaisk [or Olviopol]. The Germans have withdrawn from both places and are straightening and shortening their line. This movement is not yet completed.

The Russian front in the Ukraine now forms a huge salient south of the Pinsk [or Pripet] marshes. If the Germans had the power to do it, on which there is no information, the Russians could be greatly endangered by an axis offensive launched north or northeast from the area north of Odessa.

If the Germans do not have forces for an offensive or, having them, do not desire to employ them, pending developments elsewhere, they probably will retire as slowly as possible toward the Carpathian mountains and the Prut or Sereth rivers to the Danube.

How Hungary Could Aid Nazis.

In 1914 and 1915, the Russians tried hard to cross the Carpathians. They failed. These mountains are rough and afford a small force a chance to hold off much larger ones. If the Hungarians fight, it would seem they might defend their country on this line and release German troops for use elsewhere. Hungarians can be good fighters when they want to be. In the same way, the Rumanians might be able to defend the short line from the Carpathians to the Black sea and thereby release more German troops.

Since last August, the Germans have stuck to the policy of not engaging in any major offensives, pending disposal of the western Europe invasion. Since nothing has come to light regarding any recent change in German strategy, it would seem they will continue to hold only against the Russians.

Recent reports as to the Germans taking over in Hungary and Rumania are too incomplete to evaluate. Possibly the Germans deliberately allowed the 2d Ukrainian army group to approach Hungary to wake that country up and get it to defend itself.

U. S. Merchant Ship Sunk by U-Boat in Arabian Sea

$38 A WEEK FOR A SHABBY FLAT, LONDON'S PRICE

Nomads Move from Hotel to Hotel.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 25.—Rents in London are incredible. A landlady seeking to rent an icy, poorly lighted flat in shabby Halfmoon street, demanded $38 a week without batting an eye.

The lack of even exorbitantly priced accommodations, moreover, has created a group of modern nomads who stay a few days in a good hotel, then wander sadly off to stay a few days at another before moving on again.

This is because most of what are laughingly called the good hotels will rent only 25 per cent of their rooms on a permanent basis owing to the large transient demand.

Tipping is another problem which the hotels have tried to solve by adding 15 per cent to the bills, then bannings tips. Most persons tip anyway, since no tipping means poor service.

Only two hotels in London boast showers. They are the Savoy, which newsmen popularized during the 1940 blitz, and an apartment hotel in another part of town which has a long waiting list. One well known hotel has 1,000 rooms without one private bath.

Among the foods which the Yanks cannot really grow fond of are powdered eggs, which turn up at all meals in all sorts of queer but ineffectual disguises, and Brussels sprouts, which pall as a steady diet.

Yorkshire Coal Miners Expected Back Tomorrow

LONDON, March 25 (AP).—J. A. Hall, president of the Yorkshire Mine Workers' association, said today he expected all the 60,000 miners out in the Yorkshire coal fields to be back at work Monday. Another 25,000 are away from the pits in the Doncaster area.

YANKS CAPTURE TOWN IN BURMA; TRAP JAP FORCE

British Fight on Both Sides of Imphal.

NEW DELHI, India, March 25 (AP).—Gen. Frank Merrill's Marauders in north Burma have captured Shaduzup and cut off the retreat of Japanese being pushed southward down the Mogaung valley, but fighting continues in the main Japanese offensive across the border toward Imphal, India, the southeast Asia command announced today.

Adm. Mountbatten's bulletin announced engagements in progress on both sides of the Tamu-Imphal road, with the Japanese making some progress southeast of Imphal, where their closest patrols previously were reported 38 miles from that British base. Allied resistance was increasing.

Stiff fighting was reported on the northeastern approach, where some Japanese units made further progress in the Somra hill tracts near Ukhrul, while one was forced to withdraw.

To the south, where the last reports put the Japanese attackers 30 miles from Imphal, British troops pressed further attacks against Japanese road blocks across the road leading to Tiddim, and one was wiped out. Yesterday's bulletin reported three of these road blocks eliminated.

Merrill's all-American Marauders, together with units of the Chinese 38th division, took Shaduzup, 45 miles northwest of Mogaung on the Myitkyina-Mandalay railway, by a swift "end run" maneuver which cut around the Japanese east flank.

These forces expected to trap an undetermined number of Japanese being pressed down the Mogaung valley in artillery duels and hand to hand fighting by the main Chinese force from Jambu Bum, the dividing line between the Hukawng and Mogaung valleys.

Advance Down Valley.

A bulletin from Gen. Lt. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters said American and Chinese forces were making slow but steady progress down the Mogaung valley against pockets of resistance. The fighting was described as heavy and fluid.

Allied troops were reported pushing ahead on Myitkyina, southward from captured Sumprabum, with British Commando forces of Gurkha and Kachin levies chasing the Japanese who had fired and abandoned Maihtonghka, 13 miles south of Sumprabum.

Another new development was the announcement that two days ago heavy bombers had made their first low-level assault on a section of the "Burma-Siam" railway. This was the first disclosure that the Japanese have linked conquered Burma and occupied Thailand [Siam] with a rail line.

British Capture Hill.

In the Arakan sector to the south, where the British objective is the capture of Akyab, the British announced they had taken an important hill position in the tunnels to the north of the Maungdaw-Buthedaung road.

Large forces of allied fighters and light bombers continued their assaults yesterday on enemy communications, stores, and supply columns thru the entire Burma area. R. A. F. fighters destroyed 25 river craft.

Attack Railroad Yards.

CHUNGKING, China, March 25 (AP).—United States Mitchell bombers on a railroad sweep in northern Indo-China attacked the yards at Vin Thai on Thursday, destroyed two locomotives and 11 freight cars, and damaged three railroad bridges, an American bulletin announced today.

Reports Sweden Rejects Refugee Shipping Plea

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 25 (AP).—Sweden has refused a United States government request that some Swedish shipping be used to evacuate Jewish refugees from Rumanian Black sea ports to Palestine, it was learned today on reliable authority. The proposal was understood to have been turned down on the grounds that Sweden has no shipping available.

JAPS THREATEN RAILROAD THAT SUPPLIES YANKS

British Lines Also Are Menaced.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALLIED HDQ. IN NEW DELHI, India, March 26 [Sunday]. — Advance patrols of the Japanese force which invaded India have been encountered 50 miles from the Assam-Bengal railroad, over which supplies are transported to the forward airfields for air delivery to Gen. Stilwell's Chinese and American forces in North Burma.

May Cut British Supplies.

The Jap chances of blocking the railroad seem slight in view of the size of the force needed for such an operation and the tremendous difficulties of supplying such a force. But if the Japs should solve these problems and successfully block the railroad they would seriously hinder the present American stream of supplies moving northeast for air delivery to China.

Another possibility is that the Jap columns attacking roads leading to Imphal may cut the supply lines of the British-Indian army units facing them in Manipur province. An important road here leads from the Assam-Bengal railroad at Dimapur south thru tortuous hill country into Imphal. Over this road comes some of the British supplies not transported by air.

British Are Confident.

If the Japs could seize the broad, flat plain on which Imphal itself stands they would be only about 400 air miles from Calcutta, the No. 1 military port in India.

The British, however, are confident that none of these grave possibilities will materialize, altho the British military spokesman admitted yesterday that the Jap forces moving into Manipur are the largest Jap concentrations yet used in the Burma theater.

"It always has been possible for the enemy to send raiding columns into these sparsely inhabited mountain tracts if he wanted to do so," said the spokesman. "Such encirclement always is possible in the jungle, but such a maneuver means nothing unless it results in the destruction of the opposing forces. This means that sooner or later the enemy must fight us on our own terms, because we hold the vital points in Manipur and there is no doubt about the outcome of such a clash. We will bump him and give him a bloody nose.

"The situation, of course, will take a time to clear up. The Japs are like so many rats in the undergrowth and it is not easy to destroy them until they choose to come out of their holes and fight. But the enemy soon will find himself in a trap."

BIG SERB FORCE REPORTED READY TO HELP ALLIES

Mahailovitch Officer Seeks More Aid.

LONDON, March 25 (AP). — Maj. Voislav Lukatchevitch, one of the commanders in the Jugo-Slav army, said today that Gen. Draja Mihailovitch has 30,000 troops armed and in the mountains of Serbia ready to strike at a signal from the allies to clear a path for invasion.

The statement coincided with announcement by the Jugo-Slav government in exile that Mihailovitch's Chetniks recently had pressed an offensive to "the very gates" of Belgrade.

"These troops have only limited ammunition and equipment," said the major who is seeking allied aid for Mihailovitch. "That is why they haven't been fighting. We figure it is better to make one big offensive than waste our bullets in smaller actions. We are ready to clear any given area for an allied invasion landing on short notice."

Main Support to Tito.

Both Britain and the United States have been giving their main support in Jugo-Slavia to the men of Marshal Josep [Tito] Broz, Mihailovitch's rival, on the ground they were doing most of the fighting against the Germans.

Mihailovitch's latest offensive carried to the coast of Montenegro about the time that the allies struck in Italy, the major said, but the Jugo-Slav army flank was attacked, he asserted, from the north by Tito's forces.

Accompanied U. S. Mission.

Lukatchevitch minimized the achievements of Tito's forces and claimed that the Partisan leader had fewer than 10,000 soldiers. He contended that many towns which Tito claimed to have captured never existed. Some reports have estimated Tito's forces at 250,000 or more. Lukatchevitch said Mihailovitch has 150,000 more organized men ready for action when equipped.

ROOFS COLLAPSE FROM VESUVIUS' ASHES; 21 KILLED

NAPLES, Italy, March 25 (AP).—Roofs collapsing under the weight of dust and ashes coughed up by Mount Vesuvius have killed 21 persons, allied military government officials announced today, bringing the total number of deaths in the current eruption of 26. The eruption has caused damage unofficially estimated at from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000.

The lava flows had ceased almost entirely, but Prof. Imbro, director of the observatory, declined to speculate when all danger from the eruption would end.

Hurls More Ashes.

The crater began hurling off greater smoke and ashes this afternoon, after a 12 hour lull, and Prof. Imbro told A. M. G. officials that he could "only say that Mount Vesuvius is still abnormal."

Reports to A. M. G. officials told of 12 persons killed in Nocerna, province of Salerno, and nine at Pagani, in the same province. Two children had been killed when an underground cistern, overheated by lava, exploded. Three other persons were killed by falling brimstone at Terzigno, reports to Naples provincial A. M. G. Commissioner Lt. Col. James L. Kincaid said.

Fifteen Houses Unroofed.

The roofs of 15 houses in the region of San Giuseppe Vesuviano, east of Vesuvius, including the village of Terzigno, fell in under the burden of a four inch blanket of ashes, a U. S. army officer said.

Allied authorities were recruiting Italian workers to clear the ash from roofs and streets, and were rushing in food for live stock as well as inhabitants in the devastated area because fields and pastures were under a thick cover of the ashes and dust.

ITALY PICTURED AS LAND OF OLD RUINS, AND NEW

Civilians Wretched, Says Maj. Young.

Southern Italy is described as a land dotted with remarkable ancient ruins and "ghastly modern ones" and peopled by a race enervated from a decade of Mussolini and the war in a letter sent to Dr. Irving S. Cutter, Tribune health editor, by Maj. Richard H. Young of the army medical corps.

Maj. Young, whose home is at 2652 Ewing av., Evanston, and who was a practicing physician in that suburb for many years, opined that Italians would require a generation or two before they "can stand on their own feet."

Kings Called an Expense.

"Kings have been nothing but an added expense," the major wrote, "and Mussolini, aside from leading them to destruction, gave them only a few showy public buildings which add nothing to their economic education."

From the standpoint of topography, southern Italy is beautiful, Maj. Young observed, "but right there beauty stops." Cities, he said, are filthy, and many of them battered almost beyond recognition as cities. The civilians, he wrote, are "wretched with filth and poverty. I have never seen anything like it."

On Northwestern Faculty.

In civilian life Maj. Young, in addition to his private practice, was on the staff of Evanston hospital and was an instructor in internal medicine at the Northwestern university medical school. He also aided Dr. Cutter in the preparation of THE TRIBUNE's health column.

He joined the army in February, 1942, with the Northwestern university and Passavant hospital unit of physicians and surgeons who entered the medical corps in a group.

ZEALAND TROOPS PINNED DOWN BY NAZIS IN CASSINO

Allies Bomb Rail Yards in North Italy.

Third Attack Fails

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

HDQ. OF THE ALLIED ARMIES IN ITALY, March 25.—The third major allied attack on Cassino, Nazi held bastion of the Gustav line, is an utter failure so far. The operation, designed to take the town and Mount Cassino abbey and to open the Liri valley, has stalled.

ALLIED HDQ., Naples, March 25 (AP). — New Zealand troops attempting to drive westward thru Cassino were pinned down in their southern section of the rubbled town today by German parachute troops ordered to hold their positions at all costs.

The New Zealanders and the parachutists were throwing tons of shells at one another, but without effecting much change in the general situation, allied headquarters announced.

The Germans were battling from the Continental hotel, and a fight between tanks and artillery also raged around the Hotel Des Roses.

[Berlin and Rome radios broadcast reports that allied forces have launched strong attacks in the western and northern sectors of Cassino. The broadcasts were not confirmed by allied sources.]

Tunnels Aid Nazis.

Artillery fire which shook the mountainous battle area also reached to positions in the rear as the allies sought to prevent the Germans from strengthening their hold on the Verdun-like Cassino sector. But the Germans were believed to have the advantage of ancient tunnels honeycombing Abbey hill thru which they were reënforcing their front line defenders.

At the Anzio bridgehead the Germans tried to penetrate allied defense positions with tanks and were believed to have lost two near Carroceto and five others west of Cisterna. The Germans kept up a rain of shells on the beachhead and there also were clashes between patrols.

Allied headquarters announced heavy bombers struck at the rail yards at Rimini and Ancona in the north yesterday while medium bombers hit a number of places, including Leghorn.

Allied Liberators ran into at least 16 dog fights in the north and the Germans also flew at least 85 sorties over the beachhead. The operations cost the Germans 19 planes while 11 allied aircraft failed to return.

9 POLICEMEN SLAIN IN PALESTINE; DEATH PENALTY REINVOKED

JERUSALEM, March 25 (AP). — British authorities today reinvoked the death sentence for discharging firearms at persons and throwing or depositing bombs, after nine police officials were killed Thursday by explosions which wrecked or damaged police headquarters in Jerusalem, Jaffa, Tel A Viv and Haifa. Six of the police officials killed were British. Several others were wounded.

Under the Palestine defense order, death sentences also were reintroduced for carrying firearms, ammunition or bombs, interfering with or damaging transport services or water, electrical or telephone services.

The death penalty originally was introduced for these offenses in Palestine June 12, 1936. The maximum penalty was reduced to life imprisonment June 15, 1940.

KAYE BANDSMAN KILLED.

NAZIS IN HOTEL WINDOWS BLOCK ROAD TO ROME

ALLIED HDQ., Naples, March 25 (AP).—Very few hotels in the world have endured the violent days and nights which have fallen upon Cassino's Continental hotel. It now has three fresh German tanks in its lobby and a new contingent of sharpshooters in its windows overlooking Highway Six and the forbidding sides of Monastery hill.

The hotel probably has the worst commercial situation imaginable—on the high road to Rome between the German and allied armies. Only its sturdy, stone construction and the fact that it is somewhat protected in the lee of Monastery hill has saved it from being reduced like most other buildings in Cassino to dust and rubble.

Somehow the hundreds of bombs dropped on Cassino March 15 left four walls of the Continental still standing altho they showed the effects of a great concentration of explosives. The building did not become important until several days after New Zealanders launched an attack. Then the Germans opened up suddenly thru the front windows of the lobby with the heavy guns of two tanks which had been run inside and sharpshooters darted to the openings to fire briefly on the New Zealanders with devastating effect. One sharpshooter, either in the hotel or the immediate vicinity, was reported to have hit 30 men.

Nazis Command Road.

The hotel is the center of a fortresslike area athwart Highway Six where it comes to the bottom of Monastery hill from the east; then turns sharply south to swing around the hill. In its somewhat withdrawn position the hotel permits the Germans to sweep the entire road angle with their guns.

The fighting for the hotel never reached the stage where the Germans and New Zealanders were in the building together. While German tanks were still in the lobby New Zealand tanks did manage to push within 30 yards of the hotel. The two enemy tanks were eventually put out of action and the New Zealanders said the Germans raised a white flag. A fairly large number from the hotel vicinity then surrendered.

But the New Zealanders did not hold the upper hand for long and the Germans worked their way back into the building.

JUGO-SLAV KING PONDERS MOVE TO ASSIST TITO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 25.—King Peter of Jugo-Slavia, who has just returned from a four day honeymoon, said in an interview published in the Daily Express today that he has not decided whether he will support Marshal Josip [Tito] Broz or the present Jugo-Slav government. He explained that it is difficult to know everything that is going on inside Jugo-Slavia at present.

"One thing, tho," he said, "I mean to return to Jugo-Slavia with my wife. Anyone who thinks the fact that we were married in London points against our going back is wrong. Marriage strengthens my position and makes it a more responsible one. It will add weight to my decisions. After all, I am my own master."

He denied that his government was responsible for drawing up a document attacking Tito or that he had been a virtual prisoner of his government.

U. S. WARSHIPS BOMBARD ISLAND IN ADMIRALTIES

Rabaul and Kavieng Are Bombed Again.

ALLIED HDQ., Southwest Pacific, March 26 [Sunday]—(AP).—American destroyers have shelled Pityilu island in the Admiralties, on the northern fringe of Seeadler harbor, which United States soldiers took under control when they captured Lorengau, on Manus island, March 18.

A spokesman at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters reported the shelling, apparently in continuation of the efforts of American land and sea forces to reduce all remaining Japanese defenses in the island group. The Americans now control Los Negros island and the eastern shore of Manus island.

Rabaul Shelled Again.

The attack was described as one in support of the general westward trend of cleanup operations in the Admiralties. The island is northwest of Lorengau. A number of buildings, three launches, a fuel dump, and anti-aircraft positions were destroyed by the bombardment.

A 5 inch Japanese naval gun, one of several destroyed or captured in the invasion of the Admiralties, has been put into service by the Americans.

Bad weather restricted aerial operations around the Bismarck sea area, but some bombers succeeded in hitting enemy supply points at Rabaul, New Britain; Kavieng, New Ireland; Buka and Kahili on Bougainville island in the Solomons, and at Alexishafen, near Madang, on the northeastern New Guinea coast.

Wake Island Bombed.

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—American airmen, flying thru heavy anti-aircraft fire, bombed Wake Island Thursday, hitting fuel storage tanks and barracks. It was the 16th time Wake has been hit from the air since the island was captured by the Japanese early in the war.

The raid was announced by the navy today in a statement which told also of bombing attacks against Ponape and Ant Islands in the Carolines and four atolls in the Marshall Islands.

All of our planes returned safe from the raids, in which 115 tons of bombs were hurled at the Japanese installations.

Rumanian Mobilization of Youths Is Reported

New York, March 25 (AP).—Mobilization of all inspectors, commanders, and youths undergoing premilitary training has been ordered by the Rumanian general staff, the Bucharest radio said today. The broadcast said the youths would assemble at their training centers "to carry out orders of extreme urgency."

Allies Bide Proper Time for Invasion, British Told

LONDON, March 25 (AP).—Europe will be invaded from the west when Hitler's war machine has been "sufficiently reduced" to enable the allies to "close for the kill," Capt. Harold H. Balfour, parliamentary undersecretary of state for air, said in an address at Ramsgate today.

U-Boats Sink 15 Ships in Convoys, Says Berlin

LONDON, March 25 (AP).—A Berlin broadcast asserted today that U-boats have sunk 10 ships, totaling 46,000 tons, and five destroyers and escort vessels from allied convoys in the Mediterranean and North Atlantic. The German claim, without confirmation from allied sources, did not say when the reported sinkings took place.

ORGAN SPEAKS LOW OF LOVE IN BOMBED CHURCH

LONDON, March 25 (AP).—In a famous church bombed in last night's German raid, the organist played softly for a wedding today lest vibration cause further collapse of the edifice.

The main aisle could not be used because 10 feet of it was burned out. Several pews were merely piles of charred wreckage. Debris hung from a hole in the roof. The public was barred from the wedding because the building was unsafe.

Neither R. A. F. Flight Lt. Dudley Hewitt nor his bride, Jennifer N. Hatton, knew of the bombing until greeted by firemen at the church. "Life must go on," said the officiating clergyman.

WEIRD JAP RAID MAKES AN EERIE NIGHT FOR YANKS

Use Sub to Shell Isle; Tricks Don't Work.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LOS NEGROS ISLAND, Admiralty Islands, March 21 [Delayed].—The Japs last night gave Yanks on this island one of the weirdest nights they have yet spent.

First, a group of Japs landed from a barge. One of them crept to an American revetment and from the blackness of the jungle called to a Yank, hailing him by his nickname. Another cut into a telephone and asked for "Mickey."

Then, a Jap submarine's searchlight bathed the island in its glare, machine gun bullets plunked along the beach and shells from a deck gun crashed thru the trees.

Calls Attack 'Freakish.'

Brig. Gen. William Chase said it was the "most freakish attack I've ever heard of."

Shortly after dark, men of the dismounted cavalry troop commanded by Capt. Vann Davis, Eagle Pass, Tex., dug in on the south shore of the island, two miles from the air field, heard the sound of a vessel off shore.

The sound came closer. Then about 200 yards off shore, the men could make out not one ship but two. One was a barge. The other mystified the troops.

Sgt. Russell Shive, York, Pa., stationed on shore, saw men crawling thru shallow water. He fired three times. A man dropped. The sergeant's shots brought tremendous response. From the mystery ship off shore, a powerful searchlight cut across the waters into the jungle growth.

The light raked the shore. And after it came a hail from the ship's heavy machine guns.

The light snapped off. Against the starlit sky, the men could make out the ship's lines. She was a submarine.

Shells Crash into Island.

Capt. Davis called the squadron command and reported the attack. A PT boat was sent out. But the Jap was not thru. The deck crew trained a 3 or 4 inch naval gun on the island. Shells crashed thru the tree tops, high over the cavalry troops' heads.

As the PT boat neared the area the sub vanished. Down shore a siren wailed. A second one, nearer, answered. A few minutes later Lt. Garlon Smith, Fort Worth, Tex., platoon commander, heard some one crawling along outside of the log revetment which ringed his command post.

Then came a voice: "Hey, Smitty, what's cooking?" Smith, known to his men as Smitty, thought it was Capt. Davis and started to answer but cut his words short in his throat. What would Capt. Davis be doing crawling around, and besides, that voice had a Jap hiss. So he lifted his gun and waited for the head to pop over the logs. But instead there was only a swish of the grass as the Jap left.

Japs Cut Into Phone Line.

A second platoon commander, Lt. Malcolm [Mickey] Davis, San Antonio, Tex., also was having his troubles. A Jap cut in on his phone line and asked: "That you, Mickey?" Mickey, his first night in battle after a furlough in Australia, where he recovered from sickness, didn't answer.

Sgt. Norman Elliott, Houston, Tex., manning a machine fun facing the jungle, thought he saw a man's figure near a tree in the middle of a clearing 10 feet away. He fired his pistol. The figure floated behind the tree. But five minutes later it was there again. He fired three shots. The figure vanished again. The sergeant cursed. Soon the figure reappeared. The sergeant could see arms, a body, and legs. He gripped his machine gun, aimed carefully, and pressed the trigger. Bullets poured into the figure. But still it didn't fall. It merely vanished behind the tree.

The night was long for every one on the island, but it was longest for Sgt. Elliott. Thoughts of his unkillable victim haunted him. With the first light of dawn he investigated. There on a vine behind the tree hung a pair of overalls. It all came back to him then. He had washed them the afternoon before and hung them up to dry.

DOOM 5 NEGRO YANKS TO DIE FOR AUSTRALIA RAPE

Convicted on Charge of Red Cross Aid.

TOWNSVILLE, Australia, March 26 [Sunday]—(AP).—Five American Negroes have been convicted and sentenced to death by army court martial for raping a white American Red Cross woman on the outskirts of this Australian city a month ago.

Testimony presented was that the woman, seeking a ride, was picked up by a truck driven by one Negro and carrying the other four. They drove out of town, where the woman was raped by all five. Later she reported to authorities and the Negroes were apprehended.

The court martial sentences are subject to review. Four of the Negroes are American soldiers, the fifth a merchant seaman.

[The Associated Press did not identify the Negroes because their home towns were not available for publication.]

FOGGY NEW DEAL FOREIGN POLICY BREWING STORM

Likely to Become Major Issue in Campaign.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 25.—With President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull clearly on the defensive for their lack of a clearly defined attitude on foreign affairs, the American foreign policy today loomed as the major issue of the 1944 Presidential campaign.

Administration efforts to sidetrack congressional demands for a clear definition of this nation's war and peace aims proved unsuccessful and served merely to spur political criticism of its failure to define American relationships with other world powers.

During the week, Hull issued a 17 point statement of foreign policy, which was dismissed in congress as vague and nebulous. It was formally blessed by Mr. Roosevelt.

Lack Force, Courage.

"Hull's 17 pious incantations lack the moral force of the 10 commandments and the physical courage of Wilson's 14 points," said Rep. Allen [R., Ill.]. "Maybe he should add four more and bring the New Deal foreign policy to adult stature."

Hull followed his statement with a two and a half hour conference yesterday with 24 "freshmen" Republican members of congress. Instead of winning converts, Hull reaped a batch of criticism for the "do nothing" attitude of the state department and White House.

Hull made a heated complaint today that "garbled and inaccurate" accounts were released of his talk with the congressmen. However, he would not say which points in the reports differed from what he actually said.

The Republicans, who attended the Hull seminar, today were virtually unanimous in hitting the administration's failure to be definite.

Policy of Silence.

"Silence is still the settled policy of our state department," said Rep. Luce [R., Conn.].

"I am still not satisfied we have a forceful and vigorous foreign policy," said Rep. Hale [R., Me.].

Hale is the one Rhodes scholar among the 24 Republican freshmen. He is an ardent internationalist and hitherto vigorous supporter of the Roosevelt foreign policy. He was one of the authors of the letter to Hull, calling for an explanation of the foreign policy.

"I hope the future will see the development of a constructive and effective foreign policy," said Rep. Compton [R., Conn.].

Congressional Aid Sought.

State department work on an American version of an international peace organization has progressed to the point where Hull has asked congressional committees to be prepared to sit in soon on conferences to draw up a working plan. His decision to consult legislators on the structure of the organization, formation of which was pledged at the Moscow conference, was disclosed by Chairman Connally [D., Tex.] of the senate foreign relations comittee.

Connally told a reporter Hull suggested the appointment of a consulting subcommittee. It will be named after congress returns from a contemplated Easter recess.

While Connally said he was not advised of details, reports were current that the plan contemplates an international organization similar to the league of nations.

Occupation Zones

According to the London Sunday Observer, Germany would be occupied after the war by the United States, Britain, and Russia, with their zones divided as shown on the map.

5 NAMED BY HULL TO SCAN CULTURE NEEDS IN EUROPE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 25.—Secretary of State Hull named an American delegation tonight to confer in London with representatives of the allied governments in studying means of restoring intellectual and educational resources destroyed by the axis.

Hull appointed as chairman Rep. Fulbright [D., Ark.], former Rhodes scholar and author of the resolution for international coöperation which was rejected by the senate. Other members are Archibald MacLeish, poet, New Deal propagandist, and librarian of congress; John W. Studebaker, United States commissioner of education; Grayson N. Kefauver, dean of the Leland Stanford university school of education, and Ralph E. Turner of the state department.

BRITISH TO RUN CENSORSHIP OF INVASION NEWS

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, March 25.—The censorship thru which reports to American readers on the progress of an invasion of the continent must pass, will be coördinated in London largely by British officials. United States army officers assigned to censorship will work alongside the British.

This has been agreed upon after discussion between Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters and British ministry of information officials.

Headquarters in London.

Adm. George P. Thomson, chief press censor of Britain, and his officers will be stationed in London to clear copy. They have been doing that since the war began.

Adm. Thomson and his officers are largely responsible for developing war time censorship as a strict rule of law and the prevention of its extension to anything beyond the bare necessities of military security.

Relaxes Restrictions.

When Minister of Information Brendan Bracken ordered the censorship extended in April 1942 to cover any material which might cause disharmony among the allies or the dominions, Adm. Thomson and his officers were responsible for liberal execution of the order. After less than a two-year trial Bracken has found his rule a cure worse than the disease for which it was prescribed and has relaxed his order.

British censorship now is back just about to where it was at the outbreak of the war when it applied solely to military information helpful to the enemy.

NEW COMMITTEE ON DEFERMENTS PUT IN OPERATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 26.—Chairman McNutt of the war man power commission today put into operation the new inter-agency committee set up to consider draft deferments for occupationally deferred key men under 26.

As chairman of the inter-agency committee, he requested the principal war agencies to name representatives to the committee. McNutt asked that these representatives report on Wednesday the number of young experts in war activities under their supervision, for whom they will ask deferments.

McNutt emphasized that the intention of the inter-agency committee is to speed up the induction of young men into the army and navy. The total number to be deferred has been estimated at only about 50,000.

CHICAGO NURSE TELLS LIFE ON ITALIAN FRONT

Dug Foxholes, Lacked for Water and Bread.

Nurse Returns

The life of an army nurse back of advancing American lines in Tunisia, Sicily, and Italy was described yesterday by 2d Lt. Marie Pedersen, 27, when she arrived in Chicago from Italy to spend a leave with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Selmer Pedersen, 5231 Wolfram st. She traveled by plane from Italy to the United States.

Lt. Pedersen, who received her training at Lutheran Deaconess hospital, is one of the first nurses to return from the Italian front.

The field hospital with which Lt. Pedersen served landed in Sicily only two days after the invasion and thereafter followed several miles behind attacking American troops.

Nurses Dig Foxholes.

"The first thing we did when we got ashore was pitch our pup tents," the lieutenant said, "and then we dug foxholes. For the first few days, we had only one canteen of water a day for drinking and washing. We ate C rations for a month because we didn't have any bread."

Within sound and sight of American gun fire, nurses of the field hospital unit worked 12 to 14 hours a day and the hospital operated day and night. As soon as patients could be moved, they were evacuated to Africa or to evacuation hospitals, Lt. Pedersen reported. She said infusion of blood plasma had saved many American lives.

Candy carefully saved from Christmas soon was discovered by mice, and Lt. Pedersen once found some salted nuts hidden in her four buckle boots by the rodents. Food, which was "awful" in Sicily, improved greatly in Italy, the nurse said.

Unit Two Months Near Cassino.

The hospital unit moved constantly with allied troops, but was stationed for two months near Cassino while advancement was stopped. Miss Pedersen said the heavy fog, which hung low over the area, aided the enemy in its defense of the region, because the allies were unable to control the air at all times.

YANKEE RAIDERS HAMMER FRENCH RAILWAY CENTER

British Bombers Lace Berlin with Fires.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, March 26 (Sunday)—(AP).—Royal air force heavy bombers roared across the English channel last night to strike again at continental targets. It took the armada an hour to cross the coast. Not all of the planes appeared to be headed in the same direction.

LONDON, March 25 (AP).—American medium Marauder bombers today slashed at the rail city of Hirson in northern France, continuing the air offensive against rail targets. Three Marauders were lost. Hirson, near the Belgian border, is a junction of lines leading to several French ports.

The American assault followed a smash last night in which nearly 1,000 R. A. F. bombers, beating thru the fiercest defense the Germans have thrown about their capital, laced Berlin with fires and ruin. The air armada poured 2,800 tons of explosives on the city and also punched lightly at other Nazi cities at a cost of 73 big planes.

It was the heaviest loss ever sustained over Berlin — presumably most of the bombers fell in battles to or over the city—but the assault lifted to some 35,000 tons the weight of bombs hurled on the Nazi capital since Nov. 18.

112 Planes Downed: Nazis.

The bomb load equaled the record loosed on Berlin by the R. A. F. Feb. 15, but fell short of the all-time mark of 3,360 tons dumped on Frankfurt Wednesday.

More than 1,000 planes were in the night parade. Some hit the Baltic seaport of Kiel and other objectives. The Germans said Leipzig—a favorite diversionary target of previous Berlin raids—and Weimar also were hit and that 112 planes were downed.

An indication that new operations against Germany were under way tonight came from the German radio, which said: "Several nuisance planes are over northwest Germany and are heading toward central Germany."

Depreciates Reports of Havoc.

As the British bombers hammered Berlin, the Germans retaliated with the longest attack on London in more than a year.

Altho British airmen told of causing heavy damage in the Friday night blast at the German capital, a Swedish woman arriving in Stockholm from Berlin said that, contrary to most reports, as much as 40 per cent of the city still is undamaged and there are some areas where a person can drive some distance without noticing much bomb damage.

BAGS 22 NAZIS, SPURNS A REST TO SEEK 5 MORE

A U. S. THUNDERBOLT FIGHTER BASE IN ENGLAND, March 25 (AP).—Capt. Bob Johnson, the leading American ace in this theater with 22 German planes to his credit, has completed his tour of combat flying and is entitled to a rest, but he's going to keep on flying in an effort to better the American record of 26 kills. Johnson, 24, of Lawton, Okla., has received permission to fly 25 more hours.

"Five more planes would suit me fine," he grinned. "But after 25 more flying hours, whether I get the other five or not, I would like to go back home for a visit with my wife, whom I haven't seen in a year and a half."

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker's World War I. record of 26 kills has been tied by Marine Majors Gregory Boyington and Joe Foss in the Pacific theater. Boyington has been missing in action since January.

Trips on a Uniform

Joseph W. Webster, 14, Negro, of Los Angeles, Cal., a pin setter in a bowling alley, wanted a navy uniform so he would not be outdone by his brother, who is in that service. But when Joseph broke into the American military outfitters' store at 14 N. Franklin st. he had to do his grabbing in the dark. After he emerged he found he had changed into a second lieutenant's army uniform. That made no difference, however, and he continued to wear the uniform until a military policeman noticed it was much too large for Joseph and began to ask questions. The youth was turned over to juvenile authorities.

Believe 5 British Officers Killed in Flight to Miami

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—A British embassy attache announced today that two royal air force wing commanders and three WAAF officers are missing and believed killed, after they failed to complete a Charleston, S. C.-Miami, Fla., flight Friday. A member of the embassy staff said Wing Comdr. H. G. Gaubert, air attache to Colombia, and the four officers took off from Charleston yesterday afternoon.

BRITISH SUSPEND AIR MAIL TO 14 EUROPEAN AREAS

LONDON, March 25 (AP).—Civil air mail service between Britain and more than a dozen countries in and near continental Europe has been suspended for operational reasons, the postmaster general announced tonight. The same reason was given last week for a ban on civilian movement in the 700 mile strip of the British coast facing occupied France, the Netherlands, and Belgium.

Both civil and military air mail was suspended to Gibraltar, Portugal, Spain, the Azores, Switzerland, Cape Verde Islands, Madeira, Canary Islands, French and Spanish Morocco, Tangier, Algeria, Tunisia, and Corsica.

Air mail service to prisoners of war and internees in Europe also was suspended, except in Sweden.

U. S. DESTROYERS BATTLE AND SINK SURFACED U-BOAT

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—Destruction of a German submarine by American destroyers in a battle in the Mediterranean lasting more than an hour was announced by the navy tonight.

The submarine fought back with its deck guns after a destroyer threw its searchlight on the surfaced U-boat. But the destroyer opened fire and put the submarine's guns out of action. Another destroyer joined in the attack with guns and depth charges until smoke from the shells began to obscure the target.

"The gunfire was so effective," the navy said, "that the submarine was in dire difficulty, and the destroyer abandoned their plan to ram it." An hour and 20 minutes after the engagement started the submarine went down stern first.

FIVE CONFESSED SPIES GET 5-20 YEARS IN PRISON

Detroit Judge Sentences 3 Women and 2 Men.

Detroit, Mich., March 25 (AP).—Three women and two men who confessed that they conspired to violate the war time espionage act were sentenced in United States District court today to prison terms ranging from five to 20 years.

Grace Buchanan-Dineen.

Grace Buchanan-Dineen, 34, Canadian born cosmopolite described by the federal bureau of investigation as the leader of a group that sought to furnish Germany with information concerning America's war production, was sentenced to 12 years imprisonment.

Others sentenced were Mrs. Theresa Behrens, a native of Jugo-Slavia, 20 years; Mrs. Emma Elise Leonhardt, 5 years; her husband, Carl J. W. Leonhardt, former Detroit bund leader, and Walter J Abt, a research engineer, 10 years each.

Mrs. Behrens Faints.

Mrs. Behrens, who engaged in a long argument with Judge Edward J. Moinet, fainted as he pronounced her sentence.

Mrs. Behrens was German-American secretary of the international center of the Y. W. C. A. in Detroit.

Judge Moinet described Mrs. Behrens as "the heart and soul of the espionage conspiracy in Detroit."

Yet to be sentenced is Countess Marianna von Moltke, formerly of Chicago, wife of a suspended German language instructor at Wayne university, Detroit. The district attorney's office says she has volunteered additional information, and an investigation is still under way.

Worked on Poetry Magazine.

The countess lived in Chicago for several years. She was for a time business manager of Poetry magazine in 1929 and 1930. The Von Moltke family came to America in 1927.

Of the two others indicted by the grand jury here last autumn, Dr. Frederick William Thomas, Detroit obstetrician, was convicted and was sentenced a fortnight ago to 16 years' imprisonment. Charges against Bertrand Stuart Hoffman, former merchant seaman, were dismissed on the ground that he was mentally incompetent. He subsequently was declared sane by a Probate court sanity commission and has been released from custody.

Under the war time espionage act each of the defendants could have been sentenced to death.

General Charges Listed.

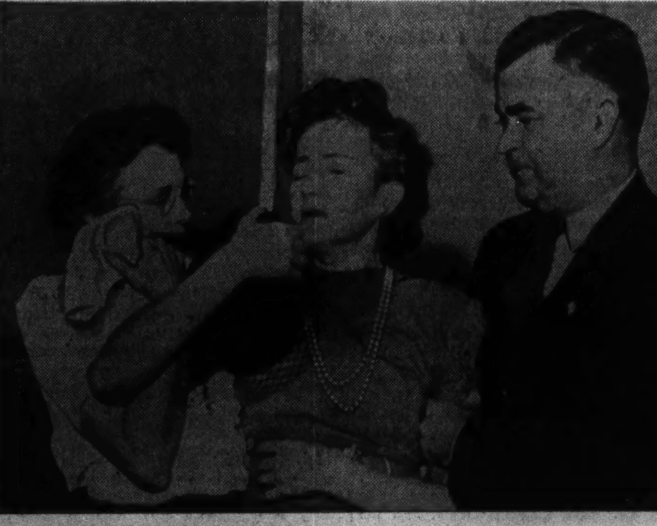
Charges against the five were made public only in general terms, as all pleaded guilty and did not testify, save Miss Buchanan-Dineen. Her activities were disclosed in testimony as a government witness against Dr. Thomas.

According to the FBI, Miss Buchanan-Dineen, self-styled "countess," coöperated with federal agents after her activities were discovered. She testified that Dr. Thomas gave her information concerning explosives plants in Ohio, of planes that were being ferried from Detroit to England, and of Detroit plants that were making war materials.

The indictments named 16 other persons, mostly resident in Switzerland, Sweden, Portugal, and Hungary as co-conspirators but not as defendants.

Testimony in the Thomas trial described the home of Carl and Emma Leonhardt as a meeting place for groups of German sympathizers. Leonhardt, founder of a branch of the Nazi party here in 1933, was a naturalized citizen as was Walter Abt, employed in Detroit plants.

Spy Faints as She Gets 20 Years



[Acme Telephoto.]

Mrs. Theresa Behrens (center) faints in federal courtroom at Detroit as judge sentences her to 20 years in prison for conspiring to violate war time espionage act.

Mrs. Emma Elise Leonhardt, who got five years; husband, Carl (center), and Walter J. Abt, who got 10 years each in spy plot.

STASSEN BOOM GROWS; ELECT 12 MORE DELEGATES

Minneapolis, Minn., March 25 (AP).—Twelve more delegates pledged to vote for Lt. Comdr. Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, for the Republican nomination for President at the national Republican convention in Chicago were named in district conventions today.

Four delegates, two of them instructed for Stassen and two uninstructed, were named at two district conventions a week ago, and two are being named at the 3d district convention in progress here tonight.

At the 2d district convention in Mankato, Gov. Edward J. Thye, who succeeded to the governorship when Stassen resigned to join the navy, declined indorsement as a national convention delegate at large in favor of Dr. R. C. Radabaugh of Hastings.

ARREST 3 PILOTS FOR AIR STUNTS OVER NEW YORK

New York, March 25 (AP).—Three navy ferry command pilots have been arrested for stunting in Wildcat fighter planes over New York yesterday, flying under East river bridges and "buzzing" Manhattan skyscrapers, 3d naval district headquarters announced today.

The men were identified as Ensign Robert W. Elshire, 20, of Omaha, Neb.; Ensign Donald L. Watrous, 22, of Pueblo, Colo., and Ensign Norman D. Satterthwaite, 22, of Tacoma, Wash.

All three have been confined to the limits of the naval air facility, Mercer field, Trenton, N. J., the navy said, and are awaiting disciplinary action.

The three flyers, the announcement said, were sent from Mercer field to the Linden, N. J., plant of General Motors to bring back the fighter planes. Instead of returning directly, the navy said, the three flew over New York City, where their antics created considerable excitement.

PORT OFFICIALS SEIZE MATERIAL OF U. S. WRITERS

Delayed News Stories on Conditions Abroad.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune foreign correspondent who returned to the United States a week ago on the liner Gripsholm after 16 months internment in France and Germany.]

New York customs communications censors deal drastically and inexorably with all printed and photographic matter in the baggage of repatriated American citizens of all categories except those having diplomatic passports. On the dock all persons except diplomats landing from the Gripsholm were stripped of everything printed or written with exception of their visiting cards.

The seized documents, photographs and papers are then taken to 252 7th av., New York, for examination by FBI agents, naval intelligence and military intelligence. The material is supposed to be returned if it is not compromising.

These precautions are taken for two purposes: First, to make a recheck on the activities of the incoming repatriate and assure that he is not a possible spy or agent, and, second, to enable the naval and military intelligence services to acquire more facts about conditions aboard.

Complain of Treatment.

The precautions are doubtless necessary, but newspaper correspondents returning on the Gripsholm complained about being denied access to their notes and documents on landing for several days. The correspondents contended that their efforts to contribute to the war effort exposing conditions abroad were impeded by the authorities.

Some of the correspondents said that, had they been able to consult with the intelligence officers, they could have aided them by calling attention to important publications or documents they may have had, and which might have escaped attention otherwise.

The correspondents had spent 10 days aboard the Gripsholm, on which there were several FBI men and representatives of the state department who might have examined all the correspondents' papers and documents at their leisure. The material had been passed by German authorities without examination.

Seize Irrelevant Material.

From this correspondent the port authorities took an edition of Shakespeare, a set of Ruskin, an autographed letter from Adm. Leahy, the President's chief adviser, bank statements, and correspondence, and other irrelevant material.

Naval intelligence and other examiners courteously sought to give back a portion of the material the next day but kept much that was essential for preparing articles and broadcasts. This correspondent, for instance, made two broadcasts for the office of war information in New York but could not present some facts because of lack of reference papers.

Here was a case where coöperation between the press and the authorities would have been helpful, no correspondent having any objection to showing his material but merely wanting to have access to it himself at the same time.

Pair Vanishes with $3,000 Intended to Buy Whisky

GREEKS TO HAIL ROUT OF ISLAM 122 YEARS AGO

More than 100,000 Chicagoans of Greek descent will observe today the 122d anniversary of their motherland's independence, won when the Greeks threw off the Turkish yoke in 1821. Turkish domination of Greece had existed since 1453.

The celebration will center in Ashland auditorium, 328 Ashland blvd., where the Rt. Rev. Bishop Gerasimos will preside. George Christopoulos, Greek consul in Chicago, also will participate.

ADDRESS H B 77, TRIBUNE

DOWNING OF U. S. AIR TRANSPORTS TOLD BY SAILOR

Blames Smoke for 'Just One of Those Things.'

Memphis, Tenn., March 25 (AP).—A Memphis sailor disclosed today he was one of the navy gunners who shot down 23 United States transport planes last July at Gela, Sicily, and he declared: "No one can blame the navy gunners, for we were just a watch tick from death that night."

Gordon B. Manley.

The sailor, Gordon B. Manley, boatswain's mate second class, was wounded later at Salerno and is in a Philadelphia hospital. Manley wrote an account of the episode to Eldon Roark, a Memphis newspaper columnist, "in defense of the naval gunners."

[Loss of the 23 transports and 410 American paratroopers they carried was announced March 16 by the army, after being kept secret more than eight months. The transports were shot down July 10 by anti-aircraft fire from British and American warships.]

"Hitting Enemy All Day."

"We had invaded the night before and our big guns had been hitting them [the enemy] all day knocking out tanks, shore batteries, railroads, railroad guns, troops, and trucks," Manley's letter said.

"I am speaking now of the warship I was on. I heard later that our big guns alone put more than 26 tons of projectiles over that day. So they were apparently out to get our ship.

"We had several air attacks thru the day. Some time during the afternoon, 35 German bombers came after us. They got one of our cargo ships about 3 p. m. The burning ship exploded, making a mountain of smoke that spread slowly all over the bay, turning day into night.

Warned of U. S. Transports.

"About 7 p. m. my gunnery officer passed word around telling us there would be 200 of our transport planes over about 10 p. m. About 20 minutes before our planes came over, the German bombers came in. The ship was still burning.

"Our destroyers had tried to sink it and made things worse as the oil spread all over the water, burning, making it look as if the whole sea were burning; and, as I say, there was a solid blanket of smoke over most of that part of the coast.

"When the Germans came in, guided by the fire, they dropped the sky full of flares until they spotted us. Then, boy, that is where things really began to happen. I knew there must really be a war on, then. Anyway, bombs were dropping like hail this time, knocking some of the boys off their feet when they burst.

"Right in the middle of all of this, our planes came over, the first we knew they were there.

Sees Plane 30 Feet Off Water.

"My eyes were every place at once. I would glance at the water every second or so, watching for E boats [enemy patrol boats] as this is the time they come to do their dirty work. During one of those glances, I spied a plane that looked as large as the Columbia Tower [in Memphis] about 30 feet above the water, headed right into the side of our ship. All of us that saw it opened up on it. When we shot him down, he was less than 100 feet from the ship.

"There were no paratroops on that one and all of the crew of 10 were saved. Also, our boats picked up many of the troops that bailed out.

"I think I know as much about what happened that night as any one there, as I really had a ringside seat, and that is just exactly how the whole thing happened. No one can blame the navy gunners, for we were just a watch tick from death that night, and were shooting to live to shoot another day.

"Just One of Those Things."

"We were shooting so fast that night that there were rings of fire coming out of the barrels. You can imagine just how we felt the next morning when we found what really had happened. But that is just one of those things that happen in these lovely wars.

"I made it my business when I got back to Africa to talk to some of the pilots. They all seemed to agree that it was the smoke. All of them thought the smoke was a large cloud bank. Most of them went around it. They are the ones who lived to fly another day.

"I also talked with quite a few of the paratroops that went over that night, but, fellow, I sure can't write here what they said about it. In fact, I did not let them know I was there. They put a few questions at me. I told them I was on shore duty at Algiers. They did not blame the navy. They blamed the ones that sent them over us."

HUNT FOR FISCHETTI, FILM CASE WITNESS, ENDS IN KANSAS CITY

Charles Fischetti, 43, reputed Chicago gambler and cousin of Al Capone, who had been sought since last September as a witness in the motion picture extortion trials in New York, was seized yesterday in a hotel in Kansas City, Mo.

Charles Fischetti.

His arrest by federal bureau of investigation agents was disclosed in Chicago by Spencer J. Drayton, Chicago head of the FBI. Fischetti was released on $5,000 bail pending a removal hearing in Kansas City Friday.

In New York Boris Kostelanetz, special assistant United States attorney general, said Fischetti also was sought as a witness in the forthcoming trial on mail fraud charges of Louis Campagna, Paul De Lucia, Phil D'Andrea, Charles Gioe, Francis Maritote, and John Roselli. The six who were sentenced to 10 years on a charge of extorting more than a million dollars from the movie industry face trial for diverting about as much money collected as union dues by a stage employes' union.

AUDITOR LUEDER TO BE OPPOSED BY REP. VICARS

Neither Facing Contest in Primary.

This is the first in a series of articles on candidates for state offices in the April primary.

BY GUY GENTRY.

Arthur C. Lueder, state auditor, who was the first Republican state official to announce his candidacy for reëlection in the 1944 campaign, will face Rep. William Vicars of Pontiac, minority house leader, in the November ballot battle. Both failed to draw primary opposition.

Lueder beat nine other candidates to win the Republican nomination for auditor in 1940 and then went on to win the election with the resurgence of the Republican party to state power. He had been postmaster of Chicago, serving 12 years under four Presidents with a short leave of absence in 1923 when he was the Republican nominee for mayor. He also gained his party's nomination for county treasurer in 1936.

Veteran of War with Spain.

Lueder was born in Elmhurst in 1876. He was graduated at Elmhurst college, where his father was a faculty member for 35 years, and was graduated from the Chicago Law school. He served in the Spanish-American war and returned to enter the real estate business. He has held many offices in state and national realty associations.

Tall, gray haired and urbane in appearance, Lueder seeks relaxation in his flower garden and in fishing when he can take time from his official duties. He is married and has a son, a daughter, and four grandchildren. He lives at 636 Patterson av., Chicago.

Selection of Vicars to fill the state auditor place on the Democratic ticket is tribute to the leadership he gave Democrats in the lower branch of the legislature during the last two sessions.

Vicars was born in Braidwood, the son of a coal miner, Practices Law in Pontiac.

He obtained his education in the Braidwood and Pontiac schools and his law degree from the University of Wisconsin, graduating in 1933. He is a practicing attorney in Pontiac.

He has served as state representative from the 16th district four terms. During the two sessions of his minority leadership he applied himself to study of pending bills. His party leadership was handicapped at times by divergent directions taken by Cook county Democrats from that of their downstate cohorts. Vicars has been a frequent critic of Gov. Green's administration.

Altho he is only 37 years old, Vicars looks more youthful than his years. He is married and has two sons and one daughter.

LEAVE M'ARTHUR INDORSEMENT TO LOCAL LEADERS

Green and Dempsey Give No Advice.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Gen. MacArthur's presence on the Presidential preference ballot in the Illinois primary has posed a delicate question for the Republican organization: To indorse or not to indorse.

John T. Dempsey, Cook county G. O. P. chairman, said yesterday that the 80 ward and township committees in his jurisdiction are deciding the question for themselves. Gov. Green said no advice was given to downstate county chairmen on the subject, but he presumed that each would do as he thinks best.

Indorsement in organization circles means that the sample ballots from headquarters are marked for a candidate.

Ballots Marked in 33d.

"For my own 33d ward I'm having the ballots printed with a marking for MacArthur," Chairman Dempsey said. "Because of Gen. MacArthur's great service to our country, the chance to pay him tribute will help bring out Republican voters."

Dempsey said, however, that if the central G. O. P. organization were to have ballots marked for MacArthur it might be embarrassing when the national convention is held. Separate ward action is a different matter, he said, particularly since there is only nominal opposition on the preference ballot for MacArthur—Riley A. Bender, real estate man.

Frank R. Leonard, committeeman for the 47th, a banner G. O. P. ward, said that he is having his sample ballots left without a cross opposite MacArthur's name. His plan is to have the precinct captains mark them if they wish.

Respect Leanings to Others.

"Those captains know their people and if their precincts are for MacArthur they will insert the markings," Leonard said. "Some precincts may have a decided leaning toward Dewey or Bricker and there the MacArthur indorsement would not be of help."

A particular reason why the unit leaders believe there is no commitment attached to MacArthur sample ballot markings is that his name was entered in the Illinois primary without his signature.

Long Kept Secret

An armored greyhound long kept secret by the army was brought into the open recently with an announcement by the Ford Motor company that it has been in mass production for many months in Ford plants at Chicago and St. Paul.

Combining the speed and maneuverability of an automobile with the punch and armored protection of a light tank, the vehicle is designed for scouting and long range cruising, and bears the title of M-8. It is a six wheeled, seven ton scout car that can travel at high speed over almost any type of terrain and is capable of ascending a 45 degree grade.

Designed to outrun everything that it cannot outshoot, this new weapon is equipped with a 37 mm. anti-tank gun and a .30 caliber machine gun. The four man crew is protected by armor plate, with the driver and his assistant having protected vision thru the use of steel shutters at four vision slots and by indirect vision devices called protectoscopes.

PICK SOCIALIST LABOR'S STATE SLATE TODAY

Delegates to the annual convention of the Socialist Labor party of Illinois will meet at state headquarters, 528 S. Halsted st., today to nominate candidates for state offices. A pre-convention rally and banquet last night was addressed by Nathan Karp of New York, member of the party's national executive committee.

The party, dating back to 1890, has been active in Illinois since 1896. Its principal plank is that capitalism has outlived its usefulness and must be supplanted by another form of government.

Delegates already have been named by mail balloting for the party's national convention, which will be held in New York April 30 and May 1 to 3.

HOUSE 'SETUPS' PREVENT CHOICE IN 27 DISTRICTS

Voters will be denied a choice as to state representatives Nov. 7 in 27 legislative districts out of the 51 in Illinois. The increase of four in the number of "setup" districts over 1942 was shown yesterday in a survey of the action taken by senatorial committees of both parties thruout the state.

In "setup" districts only three persons are nominated for the Illinois house. Since three are to be elected, the nominees get "free rides" in the Nov. 7 election.

Condemned by League.

Usually "setups" are arranged in districts where party strength is lopsided. Sometimes similar arrangements are made where this is not the case, in order to obviate a November fight for a favored candidate, or for other motives not often exposed to daylight.

Figures on "setups" reflect the steady growth in Republican strength. Two-thirds of the "setup" districts find the Democrats nominating only one candidate and the G.O.P. two. In only 9 of the 27 "setups" does the G.O.P. play the minority role.

Following are listed the 1944 "setup" districts, which had contests in 1942:

1st [Chicago]—Republicans chose to nominate only one this time. Rep. Ernest A. Greene, bi-partisan G. O. P. incumbent, charged that this was done as part of an effort to get him out of the legislature. William E. King, 2d ward committeeman, denied the charge.

17th [Chicago] — In nominating one this time, G. O. P. forces in the district reverted to their usual practice, interrupted in 1942 because of special circumstances. Since only three candidates have filed, all are as good as elected: Rep. Andrew A. Euzzino and John D'Arco, Democrats, and Peter C. Granata, former congressman and state representative, a power in the 20th ward.

Democrats Nominate One.

12th—Democrats are nominating one instead of two. This appearance of pessimism is heightened by the fact that only Rep. Charles D. Franz of Freeport has filed for the single nomination.

24th—Here, also, Democrats cut their nominations from two to one, and only the incumbent, Tom M. Garman of Urbana, has filed on the Democratic side.

43d—Rep. A. W. Ray of Avon is here also the only Democrat to file for the single nomination and therefore awaits only the oath of office next January.

48th—Another contrast to Republican activity is offered on the Democratic side, where Rep. Jesse Higgins of Oblong is the sole aspirant for the one nomination, while five G.O.P. candidates are scrambling for two nominations.

Plan Write-In Nomination.

An odd situation is presented in the 38th district. After the deadline for candidates had been passed, with only Rep. Timothy Donnelly of Carlinville filing in the Democratic column, the Democratic senatorial committee went ahead and decreed that two shall be nominated. Presumably some voter will write in the name of a candidate and he will become the second nominee. Republicans will nominate two.

There are two additional contest districts, to be subtracted from the six new added no-contest districts. In the 15th [Chicago] the Democrats will nominate three while the G.O.P. sticks to one in this heavily Democratic community. In the 39th the Democrats will nominate two instead of one, in a reported attempt to beat Rep. Edward G. Hayne [D., Ottawa] in November.

G. O. P. STEPS UP PRIMARY DRIVE FOR LAST WEEKS

Benson Victory Certain, State Leader Says.

Ben L. Berve.

Optimistic because of the reception already accorded to state candidates, Ben L. Berve, Republican state chairman, yesterday announced that mass meetings are being arranged to carry the Republican campaign into every Chicago ward and Cook county suburb in the two weeks remaining before the primary on April 11.

State Sen. Arnold P. Benson, candidate for secretary of state who has been headlining many of the meetings, will continue in the forefront of the Cook county wind-up drive, Berve said. The state chairman declared that, on the basis of surveys downstate and reaction so far in Cook county, Benson's nomination is assured.

Offers 6-Point Program.

In his campaigning Benson has emphasized a six-point program for the secretary of state's office which includes:

1. Streamlining the auto department to provide speedier and better service.
2. Curtailment and simplification of forms and questionnaires.
3. Expansion of state library facilities to aid rural readers.
4. More rigid enforcement of "blue sky" laws to give better protection to the investing public.
5. Mobilization of all departments to coöperate in veteran rehabilitation and employment program.
6. Elimination of all possible burocracy, extravagance, and red tape.

Benson yesterday added a promise that low automobile license numbers would be reissued to the holders upon application and that other low numbers would be issued in the order applications are received.

Stratton Claims Inroads.

State Treasurer William G. Stratton, Benson's opponent in the Republican primary, wound up his downstate campaign Friday with an address among his old friends and neighbors of Lake county. He spent the week-end with his family in Morris and will come to Chicago tomorrow to map a speaking schedule that will cover all of Cook county in the final two weeks of his campaign.

Asserting he had already made inroads on regular Republican strength in Cook county, Stratton announced he had been indorsed by the Women's Republican clubs of Evanston and New Trier township.

1,194 ARMY MEN LOSE LIMBS THRU WAR INJURIES

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—The army divulged thru Rep. Rogers [R., Mass.] today that 1,194 American soldiers have had arms or legs amputated thus far in the war.

Brig. Gen. Fred W. Rankin, chief consultant in surgery, wrote a letter to the congresswoman which she placed in the congressional record, concerning the rumors and giving the latest figures on the amputations.

The 1,194 patients who had major amputations included 68 who lost two limbs. There was "not a single triple amputation nor was there a single quadruple, or so-called 'basket type' of case," the general said.

The figures were up to Thursday, March 16, he said, and were "practically complete, because amputees are evacuated from the combat zones as quickly as their physical condition permits."

"Every man who loses a limb is evacuated to one of these centers and kept there until the wound is healed," said Gen. Rankin. "He is then fitted with a prosthesis and proper disposition of his case is made."

The amputees are treated at five army general hospitals—Lawson, Walter Reed, Percy Jones, McCloskey, and Bushnell.

ARMY HOLDS OUT PROMOTION HOPE TO MEN IN FIELD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 25.—Adjt. Gen. J. A. Ulio held out hope to combat officers today that if they come out of battle alive they will have equal chance for promotion with their swivel chair brothers back home.

Ulio's statement followed threats by several congressmen to ask a congressional investigation of complaints that army officers in bomb proof desk jobs in this country get promotions that those in the field are denied.

Robert E. Acorn, a Washington attorney, wrote Secretary of War Stimson, citing several examples of inequalities. The reply came from Ulio and Acorn made it public today.

Ulio said promotions are governed generally by the activation of new units or loss of personnel in existing units from casualties or other factors. Ulio conceded that this had resulted in a faster promotion rate in this country than overseas, but, he added:

May Be Reversed.

"As the war progresses and the maximum strength of the army is reached, this situation will probably be reversed, in that promotions in this country will virtually cease while the rate of promotions in active combat areas will continue to increase, the increase being dependent upon numerous variables including the rate of casualties, the return of qualified officers to this country as instructors, and for similar purposes."

Acorn commented:

"This would seem to indicate that officers in the field have a chance—if they survive. There, opportunities for advancement apparently depend upon waiting until fellow officers are killed, while the officers who have no risks to take go on getting promotions."

Promotion from Ranks Urged.

Acorn called for commissions for competent enlisted men in combat zones. A man who has proved his worth under fire, Acorn said, makes a better leader than one of no battle experience. He urged that fighting men's morale be strengthened by a policy of no more promotions to men not actually in combat zones.

Here are some of the examples Acorn mentioned in his letter to Stimson:

A pilot of a four motored bomber, killed in the Pacific where he had been a year without rising above the rank of first lieutenant.

A volunteer graduate engineer, overseas nine months but still a second lieutenant while his cousin, drafted from a government clerk's job, is a first lieutenant in Washington.

Two bond salesmen, one a captain in the navy and the other a colonel in the marines—both stationed in the capital—while other regular officers have spent their lives attaining equal rank.

"It would appear," Acorn wrote Stimson, "that if one desires to get promoted in the service, one should not be a fighting man."

OPA Boss Here Will Leave to Study Boston Merger

Rae E. Walters, regional OPA administrator, said yesterday he expects to leave today to study consolidations of regional and metropolitan area offices in New York City and Boston before deciding whether a similar merger will be applied to Chicago. He said that he had made up his mind regarding the proposed Chicago consolidation, but may change it after studying the eastern operations. Walters declined to disclose his tentative decision.

HANNEGAN MUM ON 4TH TERM AS HE BLASTS G. O. P.

Demands Opponents List Their Candidates.

Boston, Mass., March 25 [Special]. —Brushing aside inquiries as to whether President Roosevelt will be a candidate for a fourth term, Chairman Robert E. Hannegan of the Democratic national committee tonight demanded that the Republican party bring its prospective Presidential nominees into the open.

Speaking at a Jackson day banquet, the new boss of Democratic campaign strategy deplored the possibility that the G. O. P. may nominate a man who is not even a candidate in the party primaries.

With obvious reference to Gov. Dewey of New York, he described this man as "smirking and lurking and dodging behind the pretense that he is not a candidate for the Presidency and hence has no obligation to discuss the fundamental problems which lie before the American people."

Dodges 4th Term Query.

Hannegan made his speech after a press conference in which he said he had found a "definite desire" for a Roosevelt fourth term during his current swing around the country. When asked if this meant that the President definitely would be a candidate for re-election, he replied, "I did not say that."

In his speech, however, he referred to Dewey as a "blushing violet," and issued a challenge to the Republican party to take the public into its confidence.

"If the Republican leaders plan to put over such a candidate," he asserted, "then we propose to turn the searchlight of truth so that all may know their plans."

Halleck Has Question.

Hannegan's demand that the Republican party show its hand in advance of any commitments by the Democrats brought a sharp retort in Washington from Rep. Halleck [R., Ind.], chairman of the Republican congressional committee.

"Why doesn't Mr. Hannegan tell the people whether Mr. Roosevelt is going to be a candidate or not?" Halleck asked. "The Democrats must be worrying a lot about whom we are going to nominate because the man we nominate is going to be elected President. Are the Democrats going to have another phony draft with the superintendent of Chicago's sewers building up a lot of pretended enthusiasm?"

BRICKER URGES PROHIBITION OF STRIKES IN WAR

Little Rock, Ark., March 25 (AP).—A new law "should be enacted . . . for . . . the prohibition of strikes in time of war," Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio said tonight in an address.

"The recently suggested national service act is no answer to this problem at this late date," Bricker, a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, asserted. "The strike problem can be solved by fair legislation and by just enactment of the law."

"Labor must be free to work and to organize . . . but in time of war . . . no group or union should be permitted to strike."

Bricker, appearing under the sponsorship of the Arkansas Republican state committee, made two speeches here, went to Hot Springs tonight as a guest of John W. Galbreath, Columbus, O., and will leave for Oklahoma City tomorrow night.

BARKLEY FAILS TO INDICATE HIS 4TH TERM STAND

Charleston, W. Va., March 25 (AP). —Senate Majority Leader Barkley, in a somewhat cryptic statement, declared tonight that "it is unnecessary to emphasize the need for continuity of leadership in the war and in the peace that is to follow."

The Kentucky Democrat did not elaborate, giving no specific indication whether he would support Mr. Roosevelt for a fourth term.

Barkley, whose recent break and reconciliation with the President after the veto of the tax bill was a political sensation, spoke at a Jefferson dinner sponsored by West Virginia Democrats.

TORIES THEN AND NOW.

Joseph Galloway of Pennsylvania was a friend of Benjamin Franklin. He was a sagacious man and it was not wholly because of intellectual inferiority that he missed all of his friend's distinction in the history of his country. The two came to a point of difference where they parted, each in good faith. Franklin's faith was in a new nation and a new political system which he helped to form. Galloway's was in an old order which he could not preserve. Nevertheless he came close to success.

At the secret sessions of the first continental congress in Philadelphia in 1774 he submitted a "Plan for a Proposed Union Between Great Britain and the Colonies." To him the union with Great Britain was natural and should be made more nearly perfect. It existed and should be preserved. Our modern Tories seek a renewal of what has been dissolved. After 170 years they would follow Clarence Streit and return to the Galloway plan.

The Galloway plan would have created an American parliamentary body composed of members selected by the various legislatures. The British parliament would have a veto of American legislation. The American legislature would have a veto of British legislation affecting the colonies. The federal executive would be a president general appointed by the crown. The plan was well thought of by the first continental congress in which many of the distinguished men of the country sat. Galloway failed only by one vote.

The era of political differences with good feeling was about to pass away. The bolder minds conceived a new nation free to promote liberties which had been checked in England. They wanted rights and equalities which had found English class prerogative impenetrable. Independence for such purposes was too startling for the imagination, the sentiments, the conventionality, and even the courage of the Tories then as it seems to be now. It dismayed their social and property sense. They feared their own countrymen. Soon they were reviling them as mannerless, uncouth, socially undesirable, craven, and disorderly.

"Take away those who surround your person," the Rev. Jacob Duche, rector of Christ church and St. Peter's in Philadelphia, wrote to Washington, "how very few there are you can ask to sit at your table!" The war which followed the abandonment of hope of conciliation was a civil war as well as one for independence. Patriots and Tories were more embittered against each other than patriots and the British. Yet great as was the need of British generals for troops, sending the London ministry to Hesse and Brunswick for hired regiments, the English were slow to use the loyalist volunteers who, even when accepted, were not given commands. "The loyal as well as rebellious Americans were 'our colonials,' not equals."

Galloway himself resented the scant consideration his activities received and the discourtesy he encountered. The rewards of loyalty to the crown were cold. Many of the American refugees in London left narratives of their unfortunate situation among indifferent strangers. Some found that they had mistaken their real sentiments as well as their real interests and, reacting to contemptuous opinion, came to celebrate patriots' successes as their own. Adversity abroad was required to change the Tory mind. In America in regions under British control the Tory continued to belittle and disparage the patriots who were fighting thru all difficulties on their way to independence and the establishment of the country of their visions.

The Tory mind does not change. The present day inheritors of 1776 timidity and submissiveness are as fearful of American independence now as the Tories were then. They think it is undesirable and they revile the Americans who demand it. Once they were afraid a sovereignty would be created. Now they are afraid it will be maintained. They have no liking for an independent republic and put no trust in it. They have invented a new kind of a world to prove that the colonial status is a necessity and independence a dangerous fallacy. They do not trust the United States to take care of its own people or deal fairly with others. They have preserved the parasitic habit and the parasitic mind.

AMERICAN REPUBLICS AND CANADA.

Below the 49th parallel April 14 will be celebrated as Pan-American day thruout the western hemisphere, barring only a few vestigial remnants of the dying European colonial system.

Altho the first steps toward the union were taken in 1890, it was not until 40 years later that Dr. S. Gurgel do Amaral, the Brazilian ambassador to the United States, offered the resolution that the 21 American republics which are its members observe April 14 as "a commemorative symbol of the sovereignty of American nations and the voluntary union of all in one continental community."

That union embraces wide diversities. The people represented in it are of three races. They speak four languages of European derivation, besides hundreds of Indian dialects. Their cultures are widely divergent and their economic, political, and industrial development equally so. Yet in spite of these differences they have found common interests, in many respects more powerful and binding than their differences.

They are all, actually or nominally, free men, and they have a continental interest in using that freedom for the development to their mutual benefit of the vast resources they possess. And despite their jealously preserved sovereignties, that have discovered their ability to act with virtual unanimity on continental problems.

The one regrettable absentee from the continental council is the dominion of Canada. Within itself the dominion presents some of the same diversities that occur in the American hemisphere. Both politically and economically there may almost be said to be three Canadas.

Technically, of course, Canada is not a republic, altho its political institutions are in some respects more republican than those of some of the participants in the Pan-American union. Physically and economically it has as much interest in the Pan-American system as has any present member of the union.

Canadian interests in the continental system, moreover, are by no means identical with the interests of the British empire. Sometimes the two will be found in direct conflict, as the wheat and cattle growers of the prairie provinces can testify. Canada is anxious for further industrial development. If the expanded industrial capacity that the war has given Canada is to be converted to peace time use, Canada, like the United States, must look more and more to other American countries for both markets and raw materials.

THE FOOD WE DON'T EAT.

Two carloads of cabbage were dumped into a hole in the ground outside of Chicago because they had spoiled in transit.

It is not unprecedented for produce to arrive at market in unusable condition, which is why a regular inspection service serves railroads and shippers by appraising the suspect products. But in this instance the cabbage did not spoil because of untoward incidents in transit. It spoiled, according to Charles Abbate, president of the local produce merchants' association, because the interstate commerce commission has, in a war time order, limited the amount of ice that can be used to protect shipments.

The nation is in a critical situation in its meat production program, B. B. Brumley, the president of the National Live Stock Producers' association, the leading coöperative marketing organization of stock farmers, said at the association's annual meeting. It is not only in its price roll back in subsidy programs that the OPA has depleted our waning supply of meat. Difficulties of stock feeders have been increased and many of them have been discouraged from continuing their activities by arbitrary price ceilings on feed, which have hamstrung the normal movement of feed from surplus areas to deficit areas, he charged.

Sen. Wherry of Nebraska told the senate that in an effort to purchase a single tractor sold at a farm auction 170 Nebraska farmers had posted $136,000 in earnest money as a required preliminary to bidding on the machinery. Meanwhile, UNRRA is proposing to send 30,000 tractors to countries now occupied by the Germans when they are free, and has started to segregate this equipment from the supply which American farmers need so desperately.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard predicted in Chicago that American farmers again will break production records this year. The secretary is talking thru his hat. He can have no possible means of knowing what our agricultural production is going to be until he knows what this year's weather is going to be. But even with the most favorable weather, it is unlikely that American farms, stripped of man power, denied machinery, and handcuffed and harassed by thousands of regulations and price ceilings, can repeat the prodigies that they have performed in the last two years.

Whenever any attention is called to these handicaps, Mr. Wickard, Mr. Willkie, and other New Deal apologists and smear artists immediately raise the cry that an attempt is being made to make political capital out of the privations that war has forced on the nation. They are anxious to distract attention from the fact that it is not the privations born of the war that are the subject of criticism. It is the scatterbrained controls that the little minds in Washington laid upon the country's food producing industry, behind the smoke screen of war necessity. These controls are not necessary to win the war, but, on the contrary, will be the means of losing it if it can be lost in the field of agricultural production.

ADVICE TO BRITAIN.

[Indianapolis News.]

Thru British agents in this country, part of the British press, and the British propaganda generally, the British government seems to be pretty well committed to support of President Roosevelt for a fourth term. Its defense is that it knows how to gear its war program to his policies and hence its war effort would be upset by a change that would require becoming accustomed to the views and methods of another President.

The British may find, if they persist in this foolhardy course, that they will arouse the resentment of the American people. They tried this scheme often in the early days of the republic. Their meddling in American affairs was one of the main reasons for the War of 1812—the war by which this country both proved its independence and earned the respect which the world reserves for strong countries.

During the Civil war the British sided so openly with the south that their statesmen were accused of plotting to break up the country and make another bid for its reduction to the status of a British colony.

As late as 1888, a British ambassador to this country was sent home for writing a letter to an American voter saying that British interests would be advanced by the reëlection of Cleveland. This officious impertinence was especially resented in Indiana, home of the Republican nominee, Benjamin Harrison.

Americans look to the British prime minister for authentic reports about the progress of the war, and are glad to pay tribute to his leadership, but they draw the line at any British attempt to influence the outcome of American elections.

Test Your Horse Sense

By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. If Doubting Thomas had been an American, he would probably be a native of which state?
   Montana Pennsylvania Missouri California.
2. Which one of these biblical characters had no navel on his abdomen?
   Noah Samson Adam David.
3. Which one of these varieties of tree normally grows the tallest?
   Pear Peach Cherry Plum.
4. A dozen average hen eggs in the shell will weigh approximately 1 lb. 1½ lbs. 2½ lbs. 3 lbs.
5. Lespedeza is a variety of which one of these products? Hay Lettuce Insect Tree.
6. This is a game called "Kate," in which you are to answer the questions below with words ending in "cate." For example, "Which Kate dries things up?" could be answered by the word "desiccate." You deserve one point for each correct answer below.
   [c] Which Kate makes transcripts or copies? ....

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

ANSWERS.

1. Missouri [show me]. 2. Adam, for he had no mother. 3. Pear. 4. 1½ lbs. 5. Hay. 6. [a] Returns affection—Reciprocate. [b] Machinery — Lubricate. [c] Copies — Duplicate. [d] Makes things difficult—Complicate. [e] Distributes—Allocate.

BENEDICT ARNOLD

[Following is the address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune, on the Chicago Theater of the Air, over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK.

In recent weeks, I have been telling you of the great men of the Revolution. Tonight I will tell you of its great villain.

There have been many traitors in history, but none of them lies under the opprobrium that disgraces Benedict Arnold. The reason is threefold. For more than a century, he was the only known traitor of the Revolution. He lived among men of higher character than have been found elsewhere in history and he betrayed the holiest cause that was ever fought for.

It is not generally known that Arnold was twice a deserter. He was. During the French and Indian war, Arnold, while still a boy, enlisted and then deserted from the army of Connecticut. After he grew up, his restlessness of character was demonstrated by his many changes of occupation. At one time, he was an apothecary; at another time, a book seller; then he became an adventurous ship owner trading in contraband. He also was a duelist.

When he led his militia company to Boston in 1775, he was known as a successful, but untrustworthy business man.

Arnold was with Ethan Allen at the capture of Fort Ticonderoga.

During this campaign he obtained the knowledge of Lake Champlain which was to enable him to fight one of the greatest naval campaigns in history.

After the capture of Fort Ticonderoga, Canada was invaded via Lake Champlain and Montreal. The expedition from Maine to Quebec was an afterthought, due largely to quarrels among the troops in the army besieging Boston. Arnold was given command of the expedition. His march thru Maine was characterized by determination, but not by foresight. He lost nearly half his men before he arrived in Canada.

It had been hoped that the French Canadians would rise against the English as soon as an American army came in their midst. They did not rise, and the campaign was lost at the beginning.

Arnold and Montgomery, who had fought their way successfully down the St. Lawrence river, attempted to storm the strong fortifications of Quebec. They were repulsed. Montgomery was killed, Arnold wounded, and carried from the field by that similar character, Aaron Burr.

Arnold stubbornly besieged the fort all winter, but with the coming of British reënforcements in the spring and the outbreak of smallpox in his army—probably introduced into it by the enemy, for such a policy had been advocated by Gen. Jeffrey Amherst—Arnold was compelled to retreat, fighting a series of delaying actions. He was not driven back to Lake Champlain until June, 1776.

The British built a flotilla on the St. Lawrence river and moved it to Lake Champlain in sections. Arnold fought a desperate but hopeless battle at Valcour Island. He fought again at Crown Point in October; then, destroying all of his remaining ships, he retreated overland to Ticonderoga. His skilful and heroic campaign delayed the British an invaluable year, for if Carlton had reached Albany in 1776, while Washington's beaten army was retreating across New Jersey, the British armies would have crushed the Revolution.

Arnold was now the most distinguished Revolutionary general, but, restless and selfish, obtained leave to return home.

Fortune, however, attended him and he was not a man to pass up an opportunity. Gen. Tryon landed a force of 2,000 men with which he burned Revolutionary supplies at Danbury. Arnold, with a quickly assembled force of a few hundred militia, defeated Tryon so decisively that the latter barely escaped to his ships. For this brilliant exploit, Arnold was promoted to the rank of major general.

He was now assigned to the army in northern New York. Fort Stanwix, under siege, was in danger of capture. Arnold hastened to its succor, and the siege was raised. The army that was to have been added to the forces of Gen. Burgoyne, advancing from Ticonderoga, retreated to Canada.

Gen. Burgoyne came into contact with the American army under command of Gen. Gates near Saratoga. He tried to turn its left flank, where Arnold commanded. Arnold repulsed and would probably have destroyed Burgoyne that day if he had been given the reënforcements which he requested and which Gates had available.

Arnold now quarreled with Gates and was relieved from command. However, when Burgoyne again attempted to turn the left flank of the American army, Arnold dashed to the scene of action at Freeman Farm and was the leader in the defeat of this second and fatal repulse of the British, during which he was again severely wounded.

Defeated in front, and with his retreat cut off, Burgoyne's position was hopeless. Gates went thru the motions of demanding an unconditional surrender, but quickly reduced his terms to surrender under parole to return to England. In this act, indeed in the whole campaign, and in many events during his career, Gates' actions were at least open to suspicion. Arnold was now restored to his former seniority among the major generals.

He had saved the Revolution in 1776. In 1777, he set it on the road to victory. The battle of Saratoga not only captured a British army, but made possible the French alliance.

Washington put the hero in command of the city of Philadelphia, filled with disloyal Tories. Here he met and married Peggy Shippen, who had been a great friend of a Maj. Andre during the British occupation and had acted in an amateur theatrical written by him.

For more than a century, Mrs. Arnold was believed the innocent wife of a vicious husband, but Clinton's papers, now in the library of the University of Michigan, show that she was in the conspiracy from the beginning. She may have been the vehicle thru whom Arnold approached Clinton and her friend, Andre.

At that time, and indeed all of the time that the American army was on the defensive, the heights of the Hudson separating the British forces in New York from those in Canada were the key to the war. Arnold's infernal treachery plotted to deliver this post and its garrison to Sir Henry Clinton for an appointment as brigadier general in the British army and a payment of $30,000. He obtained command of this post.

In order to complete the plans for treason, Maj. Andre sailed up the Hudson in the British sloop Vulture, wearing his uniform covered with a rough overcoat, and was taken off by night in a boat supplied by Arnold.

Andre and Arnold prepared their plans all day and Arnold gave Andre a map showing the disposition of his troops. When Andre was ready to return to the sloop, the cowardly captain had dropped down the river.

Learning of this, Arnold told Andre the safest road to the British lines. Andre neglected to follow the road outlined by Arnold and, running into some armed men, betrayed his nationality. He was sentenced to death and hanged.

The officer into whose custody Andre was first taken notified Arnold of the arrest. He received this message while breakfasting with Washington's staff. He excused himself, rode rapidly to the river, where he entered his barge and caused it to row him to the Vulture.

Thus the traitor not only failed to deliver West Point and its army, but did not take even a single private with him. As long as this Republic endures, he will be the symbol of corruption and disgrace.

In the old chapel at West Point are marble tablets graven in gold, with the names of Revolutionary officers whose services will be remembered forever. One of them is blank.

May we all forswear the traitor and follow our patriot forbears.

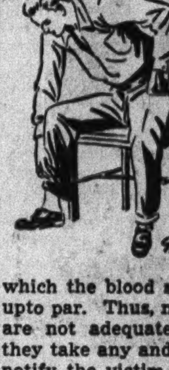
NUMBNESS AND TINGLING OF THE ARMS AND LEGS.



THE long word, acroparesthesia, means abnormal sensations in the extremities. Women, particularly about the time of the menopause [change of life], may experience numbness and tingling of the feet and lower legs.

Inasmuch as the malady rarely affects those who are under 30 years of age, it has been thought of as essentially a circulatory disorder, in which the blood supply is not quite upto par. Thus, muscles and nerves are not adequately nourished and they take any and every occasion to notify the victim of that fact.

When patients are asked what is wrong, they may remark, "My hands feel wooden." One will complain of numbness; another, of tingling; and still another of "pins and needles" in the hands and feet. Some will encounter the symptom only upon awaking. As activity is increased, it will wear away. Others appear to be afflicted chiefly when performing a purposeful act such as driving a car. Now and then pain, which occasionally exhibits itself, will be sufficiently powerful to interfere with sleep.

If the skin is inspected, it may present a mottled appearance. In other words, blanched areas will intermingle with regions of congestion. The peculiar sensation usually starts in the fingers and spreads to the arms. The digits may feel swollen altho, upon examination, they may not be so at all. In a few cases there may be considerable loss of dexterity. For example, a seamstress may find it difficult to carry on her vocation.

There seems to be little doubt that we are dealing with a disease entity, which may be strictly a food deficiency. At any rate, a small number have improved markedly under the administration of vitamin B complex or one of its fractions [pantothenic acid]. There must be other causes and it is not uncommon to spot anemia or a deranged digestive tract which prevents the proper assimilation of a balanced diet.

Fortunately, the ailment does not last forever. While the symptoms may persist for months or even years, practically no instances are reported where the individual is obliged to combat them thruout life. Heat often brings relief. In consequence, these sufferers should shun cold and employ only warm water for bathing. Bedsocks can be worn at night and woolen mittens or gloves during the day. Spectacular cures have been reported thru the injection of female sex hormones. Others respond to good hygiene and better nutrition.

Many a woman has trained herself to ignore the visitation, but to one who is bothered excessively, such counsel may not be helpful. At any rate, a sane philosophy of life aids the establishment of comfort. More prompt return to normal will occur if a recess from routine duties can be arranged for a month or two.

Rest is indicated when the disorder is severe. As one patient explained, "When I do not sew, cross-stitch, or use my hands constantly, they give me no trouble." With many, an attack will come on, remain for a few minutes, and then disappear. Others will observe a minor amount of incapacity for several hours.

But acroparesthesia is not disabling. There is every reason to believe that restoring the general health to normal, with correction of dietary deficiencies, anemia, etc., will bring recovery to a substantial number.

PROWLER.

G. L. writes: My family tells me that I walk around the apartment at night. I am never conscious of waking. What is the matter with me?

REPLY.

The state is akin to hypnosis—in which you have possession of your senses but no recollection of events. Inasmuch as accidents may occur, you should provide some method of waking. An emotional disturbance—for example, anxiety—may be at fault. If the episodes come on frequently, your physician may wish to try the effect of quiet evenings and a sedative such as a bromide.

MIGRAINE AND AGE.

W. C. writes: Isn't it unusual for migraine headaches to continue until the age of 70?

REPLY.

If they begin early in life, symptoms usually abate by middle age. If they start later, they are more likely to persist. Inasmuch as the disorder is a nervous explosion, much will depend upon the maintenance of a substantial physical reserve. This involves rest, diet, elimination, etc.

ALLERGIC PHENOMENON.

O. P. writes: I can mark my skin with my fingers and high welts will raise up and stay there for 15 or 20 minutes. My name or anything else I write can be read easily. What causes this?

REPLY.

This is a well known phenomenon—dermographia [skin writing]. The slight irritation liberates a chemical to which the cuticle makes a hivelike response.

ADHESIONS.

M. O. writes: Can adhesions form without having had an operation?

REPLY.

Yes, from inflammatory processes within the abdomen.

DECLINE OF CHICAGO PAINTING.

Chicago, March 22.—The letter from Lynn Carter, Moline, Ill., commenting on the exhibit of the Chicago artists at the Art institute is timely, on a timely subject. What has happened at the institute to permit the exhibit of such monstrosities as appeared in the exhibit this year?

It has been my privilege and pleasure to attend most of the exhibits in Chicago during the last 25 years, and will say without any reservation that the exhibit this year was very juvenile and as Carter stated shows "a deficiency in the basic fundamentals of true art." My 9 year old son who viewed the exhibit with me remarked several times that "I can make a better painting than that" as he went thru the exhibit. His father fully agreed. Possibly we can push Carter's painting over a little next year when he exhibits and give my son a little room for his work. I hope they both win one of the prizes.

As the standards of the Art institute dropped during the past years, Chicago was privileged to view the annual Hoosier exhibit. This exhibit always measured up to a high standard. Indiana artists seem to have something on the ball when it comes to creating real works of art, the kind you can live with. Is it possible the Hoosiers have mastered the fundamentals of color and expression while their Chicago artist friends have been led down the wrong path? Why not a full jury of prominent Hoosier artists next year? Hoosier art sells as the records will show while we hear the usual complaints of the Chicago exhibitors of "no sale." For some unknown reason the annual Hoosier exhibit in Chicago has been discontinued. Can this exhibit not be revived here so we can have something to look forward to in the field of art each year? I am sure the Hoosier artists will give full coöperation.

HENRY WALLACE SHIRKS HIS JOB.

Alton, Ill., March 20.—Is Vice President Wallace on a one man sit-down strike, or is he just doing his New Deal shopping early? In the first six weeks after congress reconvened Sept. 14, on the occasions when the presiding officer of the senate was called upon to act, Wallace was absent about 70 per cent of the time.

While Home Secretary Herbert Morrison is preaching and recommending a modified form of Fascism for post-war Britain, our home grown Lard Corn Wallace is gallivanting around the country proclaiming that "Americans, whether they like it or not, are destined to accept parts of the soviet system," a system which he believes and says would be a worthy substitute for our constitutional form of government. If that isn't sedition, I don't know the meaning of the word.

Instead of giving his undivided attention to the job for which the American taxpayers are paying him a salary of $15,000 per year, he is attempting in public utterances and in writings to belittle our way of life, our free enterprise system, and our form of government. Wallace was hired to preside over the senate and not as a traveling salesman to peddle his hybrid corn seed or as a traveling trouble maker to incite the forces of alienism, radicalism, and discontent.

INFLATION.

Chicago, March 22.—Henry Ware Allen wrote that "inflation is caused by the issuance of printing press money." Mr. Allen knows better. He knows that inflation is caused by the issuance of any kind of money into the money stream all out of proportion to, or in greater volume than, the increase in the production of goods of a nation.

Inflation used in connection with money means increasing the medium of exchange, that is, the demand claims, without correspondingly increasing the actual physical volume of consumer goods [perishable goods] to be exchanged. If consumer goods and the flow of money increase simultaneously in direct proportions, inflation does not occur, just as a balloon would not become inflated if one kept increasing the size of the envelope as rapidly as gas was forced into it.

If Mr. Allen is sincere in his efforts to avoid inflation, he should urge that production be increased and expanded and that congress prohibit the further issuance of privately created bank credit and recapture its constitutional right and duty of coining all money used in the United States and regulating its value by regulating its volume.

WORN-OUT FLAGS.

Chicago, March 21.—I have been home on leave during the last 10 days and have noticed the shamefully bedraggled appearance of the flags displayed on street corners in the city. I take it for granted that these flags are flown because of patriotic motives, yet it is a disgrace to behold the flag of our country in dirty shreds.

ELEANOR AND "A" CARDS.

Seville, O., March 22.—Now that Eleanor has taken another trip it is interesting to review some of the highlights of her trip to the Pacific area. A few months ago President Roosevelt, in a speech, counseled the people at home to be patient about gasoline rationing and he mentioned that a Flying Fortress consumes 1,110 gallons of gasoline in a mission of 700 miles, which is the equivalent of about 375 A ration units and enough to move a car five times across the continent.

Mrs. Roosevelt made a trip of 26,000 miles and consumed 41,070 gallons, representing, according to her husband's statistics, 130,875 A coupons, and 185 trips in a car across the continent. She took this trip in a great four engined bomber that had been remodeled inside and fitted with seats and bed. This plane was manned by two captains, three master sergeants, and a staff sergeant.

When one of the news correspondents asked a private how he felt about being visited by the President's wife, he replied: "I'd rather be visited by my own."

Fed Up.

WILLKIE AS A HANDICAP.

St. Louis, Mo., March 21.—Your editorial in the Tribune today states very clearly that the maps published in Saturday's edition didn't show the decline of the President standing with the leaders in his own party. The maps also fail to show the extent of the liability of Willkie in the Republican party success in 1940.

If you will compare the vote of Willkie with the votes for governor and senator, state by state, or with the combined votes for congressional representatives in the several states, you will see how far Willkie ran behind the ticket. He was a distinct liability. In districts from one end of the nation to the other a Presidential candidate with any support from the people would have insured a national victory for the Republican party. He pulled down with him many good congressmen who lost by close margins.

I have seen the picture around 52 times, and every time I saw it I never could enjoy myself on account of the booing.

CAMPAIGN ORATORY.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 21.—That phantom of the political parties is back with us again in Wisconsin. He is ranting, wheezing, groaning, and panting as usual, but why not? It is just "campaign oratory," as he admitted after his defeat in 1940. Wendell Willkie is again handing out his old line of bunk.

In his speech before a handful of people at Oshkosh, he made attacks on genuine Republicans, saying that "if the Republicans nominate Dewey, Roosevelt will make mincemeat of him." He does not go on to say that if he is nominated, Roosevelt will make ground dog meat out of him, and second grade at that.

The eyes of the people all over the United States will be on our primary election, April 4. I am sure Mr. Willkie will wake up April 5 a very much disillusioned man.

M. P. Arden.

POLITICAL RUN-AROUND.

Chicago, March 10.—Talk about red tape in city politics! As a good citizen I attempted to report what I and six other girls believed to be an overcharge on taxi cab fare. So far it has cost me seven phone calls and more than an hour's time. Wednesday night coming home late, we called for taxi service from the 95th street Rock Island suburban station to our homes, which are all between Morgan and Racine and 96th and 100th streets. The driver charged us 50c a stop, which would have brought our bill to $2, but upon discovering these high rates, the rest of us all got out on the second stop, walking a few blocks on the dark, deserted streets rather than pay the second dollar for such little service.

Yesterday I phoned the OPA for information on cab fare ceilings and was told they had nothing to do with cab fares. They referred me to the vehicle department at police headquarters, which directed me to the Morgan Park police station. When I phoned there, they told me all I could do was swear out a warrant for the driver. They advised me to call the Gresham station, which has charge of that district.

Shortly thereafter, my mother phoned me at my office and said the police were there for the second time and wanted to know if I had called them. I talked to one of the officers and they left the house. Then the Gresham station phoned me to apologize for having sent their plain clothes officers to my home and saying my name and address had been broadcast over the police radio by mistake and the police car had picked it up and gone to investigate. One officer was very pleasant and suggested that I call the city hall and ask to be connected with some attorneys that handle such affairs.

After getting the wrong department in the city hall, I called again and they told me they couldn't help me, that it was a state matter and to call the Illinois commerce commission. When I did, they said that was a city matter and gave me a number to call, which turned out to be the city vehicle department again. The young lady in charge said she felt I was justified in following the matter thru and said she would look into it for me.

No wonder black markets flourish and people get away with charging exorbitant prices for their goods and services. Folks just get tired of the red tape they get tangled in trying to report such things.

G. K. R.

NO SAUCE FOR THAT GANDER.

Mendota, Ill., April 21.—We print a lot of publications out here and handle the mailing lists for those publishers. Since the enactment of the new postal regulation requiring the placement of postal zone numbers on mail of this character, we have been having quite a lot of chummy correspondence with postmasters all over the United States who think these lists ought to be converted overnight to the new system.

So it was with the typical conformist spirit that I looked all over the internal revenue bureau's forms and correspondence when I made out my income tax a couple of weeks ago, to find out what their Chicago zone number was so I could help the harried postal department by giving them the zone number of Uncle Sam's biggest recipient of mail these days.

And do you know, I just couldn't find that the income tax collector bothered to imprint his postal zone? The zone number idea is a good one and I'm all for it. Too bad Uncle Sam doesn't take to his own ideas a little better.

PAYING TAXES DOESN'T GIVE TITLE.

Elmhurst, Ill., March 17.—Several years ago I took over the tax payments on a small lake front lot. 1. Would the payment of these taxes in time, possibly 20 years, make me the owner of this lot altho no deed was issued to me? 2. Would it be possible for the owner to make a gift of this lot to me upon his death or would it be mine because of lack of any definite bequest?

G. L. W.

1. No.
2. Yes. The gift should be by a quit claim deed.

WAR BONDS PAYABLE TO HEIR.

Chicago, March 17.—1. Will you kindly advise what the inheritance situation would be in cases where war bonds are purchased in husband's name, payable upon his death to his wife. 2. What steps are necessary to have bonds changed and issued in both names?

G. A. N.

1. The Illinois exemption to a surviving spouse is $20,000 worth.
2. There is no other way than to cash the bonds [with an interest loss] and take out new ones.

BANK STOCK LIABILITY.

Louisville, Ky., March 17.—Will a bankruptcy in 1932 for bank stock debt release liability for further assessment now?

GAS AND FLAMES FILL MINE AFTER BLAST; 16 DEAD

Rescuers Barred; Fear Another Explosion.

Shinnston, W. Va., March 25 (AP).—An underground fire generating clouds of poisonous and explosive gases barred the way tonight to the bodies of 16 men who died in a shattering early morning mine blast while they were vainly trying to stop the blaze.

Arrow locates Shinnston, W Va., where blast killed 16.

Fighting the flames which broke out in the No. 4 mine of the Katherine Coal company, the 16 were caught by a terrific explosion that tore up a surface area of half an acre.

Hope for Men Abandoned.

All hope was abandoned for the men and tonight crews began sealing the mine to extinguish the underground blaze. Jesse Redyard, stat mine chief, said it would be five or six weeks before crews could be sent into the mine to recover the bodies.

The death toll had been placed at 15, but John Hogue, mine superintendent, said a recheck had established that 16 had perished in the explosion.

Work crews were equipped to combat the deadly carbon monoxide generated by the fire, but highly explosive methane gas also filled the entryways. Watchers were fearful of another explosion.

Flames 3,800 Feet Down.

The fire broke out late last night 3,800 feet underground in the main entryway of the newly opened mine near here. Seventy-five miners came out before the salvage crew went in.

Shortly before dawn a sheet of flame shot out of the mine shaft—flame so fierce that it charred telephone poles, partially melted steel railroad cars, and burned automobiles 150 feet away.

The blast spewed rock, slate, and other debris over a wide area. Flames licked out of the entry for some time after the blast and smoke still seeped from the opening tonight.

THEATER BANS NEGRO RALLY TO HEAR MRS. F. D. R.

Baltimore, Md., March 25 (AP).—An official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said today the organization had been refused use of the Lyric theater, one of Baltimore's largest, for a meeting May 21 at which Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is to speak.

Mrs. Lillian Jackson, president of the Baltimore branch of the organization, said she had received a letter signed by Frederick R. Huber, director of the Lyric, saying:

"I am instructed by the executive committee to say that the Lyric theater is not available for the date applied for."

THEATER OF AIR STAGES 'FAUST' IN SHORT FORM

Opera's Famous Melodies Delight Audience.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

With the courage and the disregard for convention characteristic of radio, the Chicago Theater of the Air last night went to work on Gounod's "Faust." Scenes were telescoped, the major parts of acts were amputated, and one major character disappeared from the cast. What had been a gentle, lyrical, evening long opera was transformed into a fast-moving and highly theatrical 45 minute production.

If the reactions of the 4,400 persons who were present in Medinah temple accurately reflected those of the millions who heard the performance thru W-G-N and Mutual, then this mode of producing opera undoubtedly has its points. There was loud and sincere applause after all the famous melodies, and the fact that so much of the familiar music of the score had been salvaged seemed to make up for what had been lost in the way of story and authentic flavor.

Applauded for "Jewel Song."

Marion Claire, cast as Marguerite, the village maiden whom Faust wins after he has signed away his soul in return for another fling at youth, was applauded for her singing of the ecstatic "Jewel Song." Bruce Foote, the Valentine of the evening, successfully projected both the nobility and the tenderness of the "Even Bravest Heart."

Altho these artists were thoroly familiar to regular Theater of the Air listeners, Joseph Laderoute, the Faust of the cast, was not. His performance of "All Hail Thou Dwelling" made news not only because of the sweetness of his tone and the fluidity of his line, but also because of the genuine distinction of his style. Here was the authentic flavor of "Faust" suddenly manifesting itself. The song was delicately Gallic, discreetly sentimental, full of quiet charm. It never descended to the merely pretty. There was some more of the "Faust" flavor in the performance of the heady love music which closes the garden scene.

"Soldiers' Chorus" There.

The "Soldiers' Chorus" was there, of course, well sung by the W-G-N ensemble which had been trained by Robert Trendler. The intoxicating youth music of the first two scenes was at least suggested if not played at any great length.

All in all, the production was a delight to those whose love for opera, while genuine, is still temperate. The extraordinary condensation did away with stretches which many listeners find arid, and it suggested a method by which the whole operatic repertory could be adapted to the needs of busy people.

The production was the work of Jack LaFrandre. Henry Weber conducted. The dramatic cast was headed by Laurette Fillbrandt, Everett Clarke, John Barclay, and Norman Gottschalk.

Missing Airman Cables Parents of Safe Return

Lt. Paul R. Packer, 23, navigator on a bomber who was reported missing Feb. 8 on a mission over Germany, has returned to his base in England, he cabled his mother, Mrs. Etta Rose, 5320 Dorchester av., yesterday. Lt. Packer is a graduate of Hyde Park High school and the University of Illinois.

TEEN AGE RAPE CASES SET FOR GRAND JURY QUIZ

State's Atty. Charles G. Seidel of Kane county said yesterday he would ask the grand jury on April 17 to indict three Elgin boys on charges of statutory rape as a result of arrests Friday after an investigation of reported immorality among a group of 18 boys and girls of high school age.

The three boys, who remained in the Kane county jail yesterday, unable to make bonds of $3,500 each, Leroy Myers, 18, of 254 Wellington av.; Charles Abbott, 18, of 368 Seneca st., and Earl McBride, 17, of 813 Dundee av., all of Elgin.

Four girls, 15 and 16 years old, and a boy, 14, will face delinquency charges Tuesday at 10 a. m. before County Judge Olney C. Allen in Geneva. Another girl has been paroled in care of her father, and arrangements are underway to place two more in homes. None of the boys or girls had been attending school regularly.

X WILL OPPOSED BY BENEFICIARY, ATTORNEY SAYS

Miss Charlotte Dyck, secretary to Dr. Nicholas von Schill, medical magazine editor and beneficiary of the $250,000 estate left by Dr. Von Schill under an X-signed will which was ruled invalid Friday in Probate court, had opposed admission of the will, her attorney, William J. Grace, said yesterday.

"She told the state's attorney last July when he was investigating the case that she favored invalidation of the will," Grace said. In an earlier will, properly signed by the editor, Miss Dyck is made trustee of his estate, Grace said. Under its terms she will be able to see that her former employer's wish to establish a free chiropodic clinic is carried out, the attorney asserted. Miss Dyck received a $10,000 bequest under the valid will.

The later document had been signed with an X when the doctor found himself too weak to write his full name. It was invalidated because witnesses had signed it before and after Dr. Von Schill's death.

4 TRUCK DRIVERS ROBBED OF $279 IN AN HOUR BY PAIR

Police were searching the northwest side yesterday for two men who held up four delivery truck drivers and robbed them of a total of $279 between 11:30 a. m. and 12:30 p. m. One of the men remained in a car while his companion, about 40 years old, wearing a tan topcoat, and armed with a revolver, robbed the drivers when they parked to make deliveries.

Carl Bruen, of 3935 Wrightwood av., was robbed of $50 when he stopped at 1045 N. Ridgeway av.; Manuel Cotovsky, of 2716 Hirsch st., was robbed of $64 in front of 3749 Wrightwood av.; Leo Stessen, 5407 N. Linder av., of $140 in front of 2952 N. Springfield av., and Peter Rader, 4312 N. St. Louis av., a beverage truck driver, was robbed of $25 in front of 1117 Lill av. The three other men were driving laundry trucks.

Max Schick, 8819 Hermitage av., a meat truck driver reported that the same pair stopped him in front of 1457 Roscoe st., but were frightened away by passers-by.

"BEAR DOWN, MISTER . . . BEAR DOWN!"

I don't have to look at her . . .

I don't have to watch my ship die . . .

All my life long I'll see her in my mind's eye . . .

And always I'll hear the high, faint roar of planes circling . . . circling . . . circling . . . as their gas runs low and they've nowhere to go and the guys at the sticks look down on their ship and tears spill over the lids of their eyes and they stiffen their lips.

Ever lose your ship, Mister?

Ever lose your mother?

Ever lose your girl?

Your heart cracks and the weight on your back seems to push you under and you think you'll drown but you don't. You carry on. Not for yourself but for the rest of the folks . . . for the family . . . the kids . . . for guys like these swimming around, circling around with night coming on and no ship to come home to and around and below only the empty sea.

But we don't want pity!

We'll come through! . . . We'll find another ship! . . . We'll get back! . . . Because we're free men, born to be on our own . . . brought up to fight on a team or alone . . . trained to live for our country, not to give up and die!

So, bear down, Mister . . . bear down . . .

For every drop of blood they spill . . . for every heart they break . . . for every tear that's shed . . . for every ship that's sunk . . . for every plane it costs . . . for every man of ours who's lost . . . they'll pay with ten of their own!

Bear down, Mister . . . bear down . . .

So the freedom we want . . .

So the futures we want . . .

So the country we want . . .

Will be there when we get back!

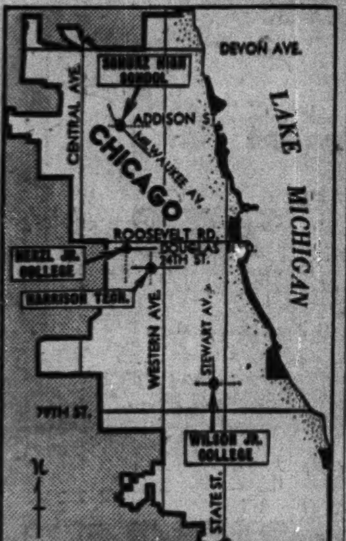
HERZL STUDENTS GO TO WILSON, JOHNSON RULES

Lets Some in Transfer Enter Wright.

The decision to send 544 students of Herzl Junior college, 3711 Douglas blvd., to the Wilson Junior college, 6800 Stewart av., starting tomorrow, stands regardless of protests, Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, announced yesterday.

One partial alternative was offered the students who have been campaigning for transfer to a high school closer to Herzl since the announcement was made the navy would take over Herzl on April 1. Johnson said as many students as wished and who could be accommodated could attend the Wright Junior college branch, located in the Schurz High school building, 3601 Milwaukee av. He estimated half the Herzl students could be accommodated at Wright if their studies could be fitted into the present courses there.



Location of Herzl Junior college; of Wilson Junior college, which Herzl students have been ordered to attend, and of Wright Junior college branch, which some may attend.

No Final Decision, He Says.

"We have not as yet reached a final decision," Johnson said, adding that he was still hopeful of finding a location in a west side high school, but that this would take time, because an architect, principals, and others involved must be consulted. In the meantime Herzl students must attend classes at Wilson college, located some 10 miles from Herzl.

When Herzl students heard of yesterday's decision they planned additional protest meetings to continue their fight to keep the school on the west side. Herzl's enrollment has dropped from more than 1,000 to nearly half that figure, the students ranging in age from 18 to 21 years.

Johnson said enrollment had dropped at Wilson from 2,000 to fewer than 1,000 and that classroom and equipment were available there to move the Herzl student body.

Equipment Problem Told.

While high schools nearer Herzl have space available, Johnson said there were the problems of laboratory and other equipment, all involved in priorities necessary for any plan of adaptation.

Crane Technical High school, favored by some Herzl students, has the necessary room but additional conferences will be needed to determine whether existing classes and schedules there can be rearranged and priority problems solved, Johnson said. He added that other west side high schools, including Harrison Technical High school, also have room and may be more readily adapted to the Herzl students.

He pointed out that while conditions under the Wright branch was operating at Schurz High school were much better than anything available now, school officials had termed that satisfactory only as "an emergency expediency."

"While the primary obligation of the school system is to high school students," Johnson said, "every effort will be made to find an early solution to the problem of the Herzl students."

PASSENGER DIES AS CAR CRASHES INTO A TRAILER

Charles Bishop, 50, of 513 S. 11th av., Maywood, was fatally injured last night when the car in which he was riding crashed into the rear of a parked truck trailer at Madison st. and 2d av., Maywood.

The car's driver, Dr. Arthur Frank, 411 Beloit av., Forest Park, told police he struck the trailer, owned by the Midwest Transfer company, 310 Madison st., Maywood, when he swerved to avoid hitting an oncoming automobile.

Bishop was pinned in the wrecked car for nearly 30 minutes before police could extricate him. He was pronounced dead at Westlake hospital. Dr. Frank received superficial injuries.

John Poustecky, 70, of 2725 S. Springfield av. died in County hospital after he had ben struck by a motor truck as he was crossing Ashland av. at Blue Island av. to change surface line cars. The driver was James Dvorak, 33, of 3150 Morgan st. He was held for the inquest.

Frank Wojewoda, 52, of 1343 Collins av., Joliet, died of injuries received early Tuesday when the car he was driving skidded into another machine at 159th st. and Pulaski rd. in Bremen township. Four other persons were killed in the crash.

Louis Novak, 43, of route 2, Hinsdale, died in County hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Jan. 14 when struck by a hit and run motorist at 52d and Ogden avs., Cicero.

Evansville, Ind., March 25.—Misadventures of 16 year old Al Wittmer, White Sox right hander, who pitched the first three innings against the Detroit Tigers here this afternoon, enabled the Detroiters to beat Chicago, 5 to 3, in the first game of a two game series. It opened the exhibition season for both teams.

Each side had a no-hit pitcher—if only for three inning spans. Dizzy Trout, who pitched the first three innings for the Tigers, did not permit Jimmy Dykes' lads to smack a safe one and Ed Lopat, the stylish lefty who won 19 for Little Rock last season, pitched the fourth, fifth and sixth innings for the Sox without being bruised by a safe one.

Bad Luck Hits Wittmer.

The youthful Wittmer was much better than the summary of things that happened during his tenancy seems to indicate. In the first inning young Al retired the Tigers in order, but at the start of the second Johnny Dickshot stumbled and sprawled under Rudy York's easy fly and the ball plunked for a double. Rudy went to third on an infield out and scored on Red Borom's fly to Ralph Hodgin.

Zeb Eaton and Bob Swift then walked, whereupon Trout arched a single over second, scoring Eaton, and Chuck Hostetler also singled to center, scoring Swift.

Schalk Hits in Fifth.

The first hit by the Sox was an infield single by Leroy Schalk at the start of the fifth inning. Vince Castino tapped to Jim Hresko but in an effort to start a double play the Tiger pitcher made a low throw to second. Both runners were safe. The bases were loaded on a pass to Lopat. Ed Carnett fanned but Skeeter Webb flied to Outlaw, Schalk scoring. Dickshot lined to Borom.

The Sox scored their second and third runs off a fellow named William Kasetchuk, a Russian from Windsor, Canada, recently discharged from the Canadian army. A pass to Tom Turner, a single by Carnett, and a triple by Don Yohe, did the business.

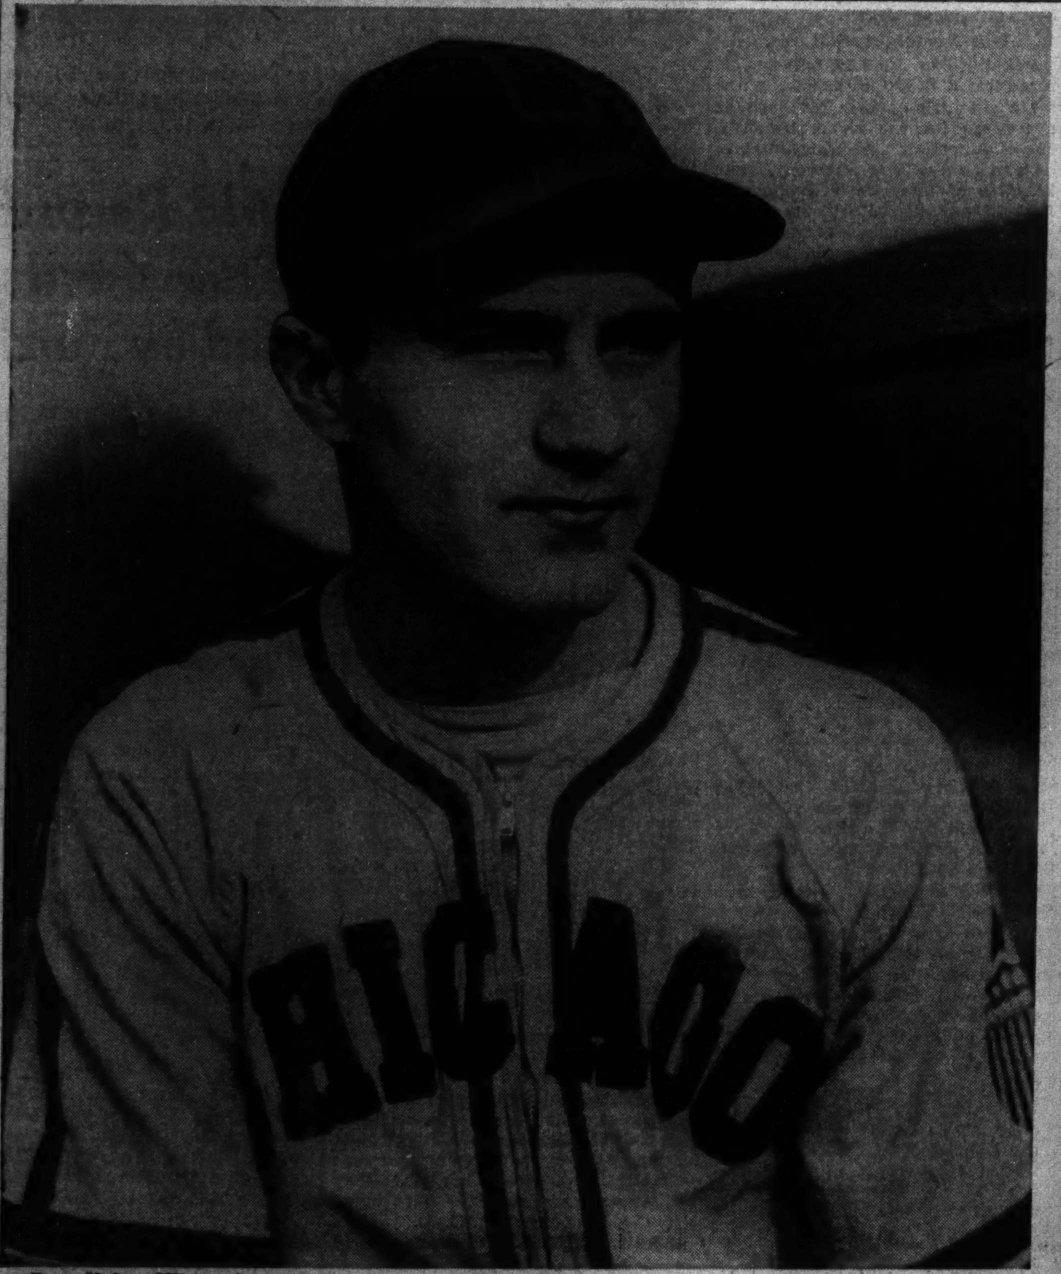
Hopes of Sox Fade.

Myrll Hoag and Carnett walked at the start of the ninth and the Sox had visions of a tie or better. Yohe forced Carnett and Dickshot tapped into a double play.

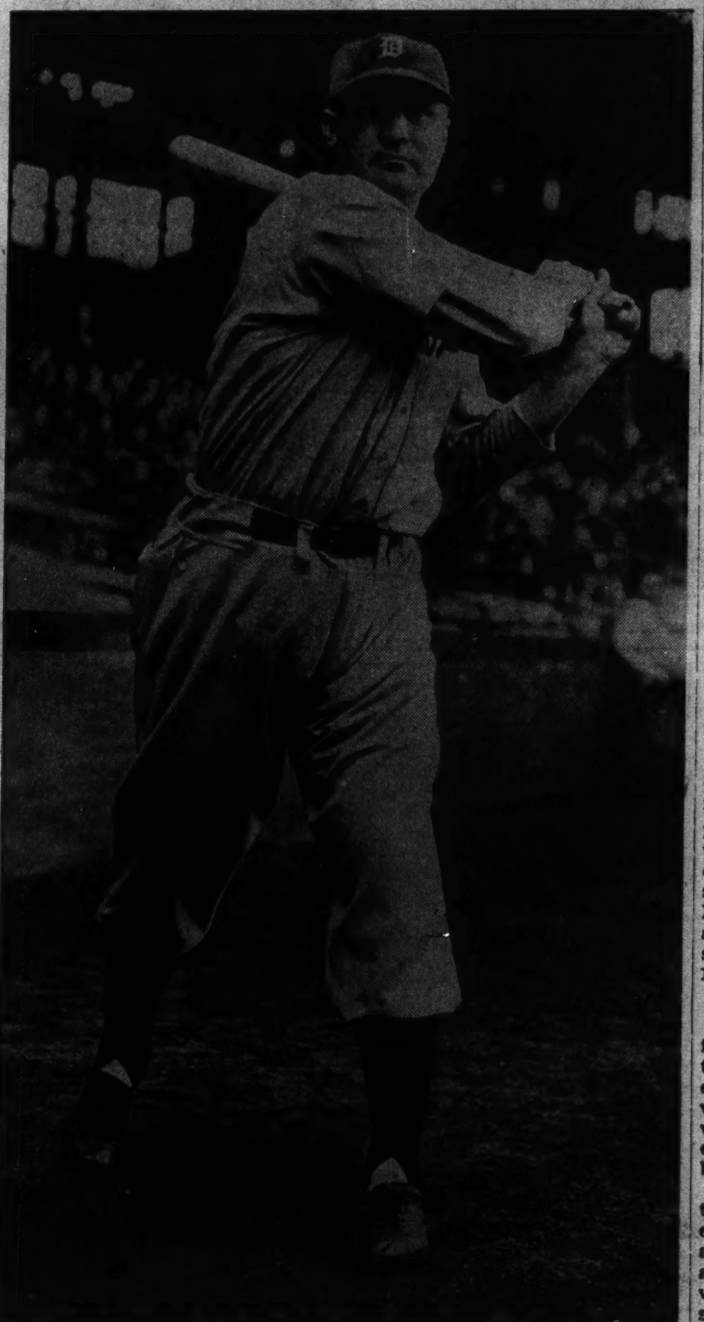
The Sox made four hits in all, one of Hresko and three off Kasetchuck. The Tigers made nine safe ones altogether—those five off Wittmer, none off Lopat, and four off 19 year old Charley Graumann, who pitched the last two innings.

In the game here tomorrow Hal Newhouser, Frank Overmire, and Boom Boom Beck are slated to pitch for the Tigers and Manager Dykes plans to employ Orval Grove, Don Hanski, and Floyd Speer.

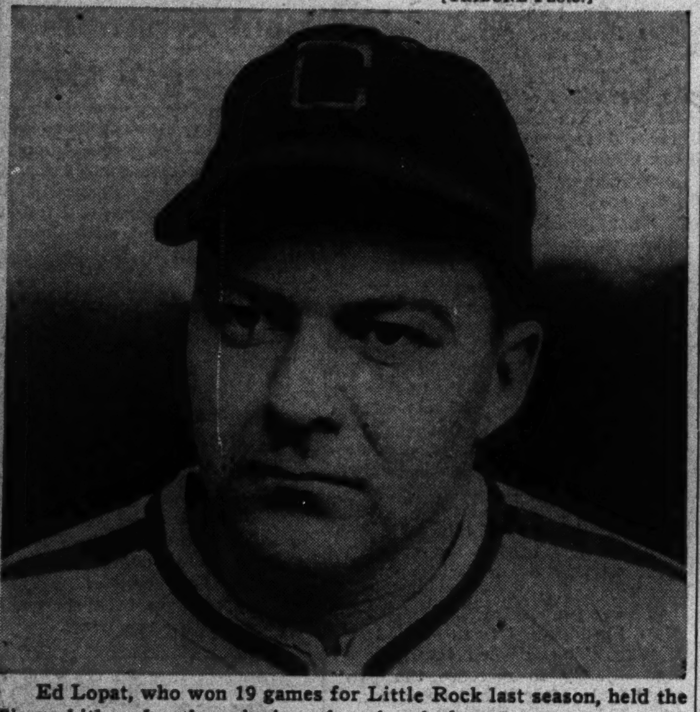
ANOTHER WAR TIME BASEBALL SEASON STARTS



Don Yohe, White Sox infielder, made an auspicious start in yesterday's exhibition with the Tigers in Evansville when he tripled with a pair of teammates on base. The East Chicago athlete's effort was futile, however, as the Tigers won the contest, 5 to 3. The two teams play again today in Evansville.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]



Rudy York, scheduled for army duty later in the year, served notice yesterday that his bat can be of some considerable use to the Tigers in their exhibition season inaugural. He turned in a home run and a double.
[Acme Photo.]



Ed Lopat, who won 19 games for Little Rock last season, held the Tigers hitless for three innings, but they had made enough runs off Wittmer to earn their victory before the White Sox lefty took over. Lopat gave a good account of himself during his labors in the fourth, fifth, and sixth innings.

FORT WAYNE FIVE WINS PRO MEET

The Fort Wayne Zollners, champions of the National Basketball league, added another title in the stadium last night with a ridiculously easy victory over the Brooklyn Eagles, 50 to 33 in the finals of the professional tournament. A crowd of 14,226 watched the game before which the Harlem Globe Trotters of Chicago had taken third place by whipping the New York Rens, 37 to 29.

The title game was a contest only during the first quarter, which ended with the Indiana team in front, 12 to 9. The Hoosiers ran up a 28 to 11 half time lead, holding the Eagles without a field goal in the second quarter. After seven minutes of the third period the Zollners had a 40 to 15 advantage and were ahead, 42 to 21, when the final period started.

Pelkington Leads Hoosiers.

Before the period was over, Fort Wayne started clowning and very considerately allowed Brooklyn to have some scoring fun. John Pelkington, former Manhattan college star, paced Fort Wayne with eight field goals and three free throws. Most of the tall center's goals were clever, one-hand shot under the basket, climaxing dazzling passes.

ARMY REJECTS PHIL WEINTRAUB, GIANT INFIELDER

Phil Weintraub, 36-year-old first baseman for the New York Giants, was rejected for military service yesterday when he failed to pass his pre-induction physical examination. Medical corps officers said Weintraub's rejection was based on an old injury to his left elbow.

Weintraub, a native Chicagoan, came from the Giants training camp at Lakewood, N. J., for the examination.

De Paul Quintet to Battle St. John's Tonight for Title

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 25.—De Paul university, champion of the midwest, meets St. John's of Brooklyn tomorrow night for the national title in the invitational tournament in Madison Square Garden. The Blue Demons, who already have conquered Muhlenberg and Oklahoma Aggies, are favored to win, but the decision undoubtedly will be closely contested.

De Paul has performed sensationally in the Garden. In the second game, altho George Mikan, the elongated center, was eliminated on four personal fouls, De Paul had the drive and skill to whip the Aggies, 41 to 38. Mikan sat on the bench for the final 17 minutes of the game and cheered the efforts of Jack Dean, whose 14 points contributed materially to the victory.

Coach Not Optimistic.

Coach Ray Meyer, the youthful director of the Demons, is not optimistic over tomorrow's game. This should be expected, of course, but Ray also is convinced that his boys have been in Manhattan too long. He thinks they have lost the edge from their sharp attack which carried them thru a most successful season and to a victory over Ohio State, the Western conference champion.

Meyer can be proud of his boys. Co-Captains Mikan and Dick Triptow are juniors. The others—Dean, Ed Kachan, and Gene Stump—are freshmen. But they have been welded, thru the skill of Meyer's coaching, into a unit which is the best collegiate team in the midwest.

St. John's has a fine quintet. It has played inspired basketball, particularly since one of its key men was sent to Dartmouth for additional navy training. But Coach Joe Lapchick, the former New York Celtic, already is satisfied with his team's two victories and actually he does not believe the club can trounce De Paul.

Award for Mikan Likely.

Wade Duyn, the ball handling guard, and Irv Summer, center, are the players on whom De Paul must concentrate its defensive efforts. The Demons still depend on an offense to counterbalance defensive defects. Sixty-eight points against Muhlenberg pointed this attack.

Mikan scored 27 points against Muhlenberg. He was stopped with nine points against Oklahoma Aggies in little more than a half. Tomorrow night he unquestionably will come thru with another brilliant exhibition to win the individual award in this week of basketball in the Garden.

Henry Iba, coach of the Oklahoma A. and M. team, said today that Capt. Floyd Burdette of the United States army and a member of the Aggie basketball squad, would be unable to play against Kentucky tomorrow night in the game deciding third place in the tournament. Iba said Burdette's leave had been canceled.

Canadiens Top Leafs, 2-1; Take Play-off Lead

TORONTO, March 25 (AP).—The Montreal Canadiens took a 2 to 1 edge over the Toronto Maple Leafs in their best four of seven semifinal Stanley cup hockey play-offs tonight by beating the Leafs, 2 to 1. Ray Getliffe scored the winning goal in the third period.

The game was attended by a sellout crowd of 14,505 persons including the Earl of Athlone, governor general of Canada, and his wife, Princess Alice.

Glen Harmon gave the Canadiens a 1 to 0 lead midway thru the first period in which the Canadiens dominated th eplay. Only superb goal tending by Paul Bibeault kept the Leafs in the game.

Boothman Ties Score.

There were nine penalties in the opening period, five being drawn by the Canadiens and four by the Leafs. Both teams played two men short for a time. However, Harmon's goal came when both were at full strength, his shot from outside the defense going into the net off a Toronto player's leg.

In the second period Toronto's George Boothman fired the tying goal at the 8:06 mark after Pratt had set up the play and Bill Durnan had kicked out a shot by Ted Kennedy.

Getliffe whipped home the shot that gave the Canadiens the game half way thru the third period. He was assisted by Phil Watson and Murphy Chamberlain.

Canadiens Halt Leafs.

In the last minute, Coach Clarence [Hap] Day of Toronto pulled Bibeault from the nets and sent six forwards down the ice but they were unable to penetrate the solid defensive barrier thrown up by the league champions.

Bibeault was the outstanding player for the Leafs.

The Stanley cup scoreboard shows the two teams tied, but the Blackhawks and their fervent followers know differently. Sure—it's a victory for their favorites and one for tonight's opponents—the Detroit Red Wings. But the locale has been shifted and the Stanley cup foes are playing in the Stadium, where five times during the regular campaign the Wings were beaten in five appearances.

The pattern of this series is clear going into the third contest. The Hawks must win both if they are to qualify for the finals against the Montreal-Toronto winner. If they only split in tonight's and Tuesday's games on the west side, the advantage will return to the Wings. This would leave the teams with two triumphs each and with two of the three remaining games—if the series goes the full route—to be played in Detroit's Olympia.

See Attendance Record.

If the Hawks sweep the two games in the Stadium they will go to Detroit for next Thursday's fifth game possessed of a 3 to 1 lead. Failing to finish it there, the Hawks would come back home and try for the clincher a week from tonight. Before the battling started, Manager Paul Thompson predicted his team would win in six games if it took one of the two opening games in Detroit.

At 6 o'clock this evening, 5,200 unreserved tickets will go on sale and this is likely to develop into as fierce a battle as the contest between the two teams. The Hawks' management is making no guess on the attendance, but privately wouldn't be surprised if the two year old record crowd of 19,386 is surpassed.

Michigan's 49 Points Win in Purdue Meet

Oberlin	13½

Lafayette, Ind., March 25 [Special].—Claude [Buddy] Young, fleet footed University of Illinois sprinter from Chicago Wendell Phillips High school, supplied most of the record breaking performances, but Michigan's well balanced relay combinations enabled the Wolverines to capture the team championship in the university division of the Purdue relays tonight.

The Big Ten indoor champions, winning three of four relays in the university division, and counting heavily in the hurdles as a result of Elmer Swanson's efforts, piled up a total of 49 points to take the team trophy, while Purdue barely nosed out Illinois for second, by half a point, 23 to 22½. Iowa Pre-Flight, led by Bob Steuber and Madill Gartiser, former Missouri stars, was a good fourth with 18 5-6.

Miami Repeats in College Group.

Miami University of Ohio successfully defended its championship in the college division with 30 points, edging out Western Michigan, which totaled 28. Oberlin was third with 13½ as a result of the winning effort of its one mile relay combination.

Young, who held the crowd's attention thru the evening, contributed two new Purdue relays records as he won both the 60 yard dash and 60 yard low hurdles. He was well out in front in the dash in 6.2 seconds, and barely nosed out Swanson, Michigan's hurdling ace, in the hurdles in 6.9 seconds, a mark which not only established a new Purdue mark, but tied the American indoor record for the distance.

Wiesner Sets Jump Record.

It also was Young's brilliant second leg in the sprint medley that enabled Illinois to break the Michigan monopoly on relays in the University division. Buddy fairly flew around the oval to give Illinois a 20 yard lead, which was enough to assure Capt. Bob Kelley, Big Ten half mile champion, the verdict on the anchor leg.

In addition to Young's two performances, the only other record was contributed by Kenneth Wiesner, of Marquette, who cleared 6 feet 5¼ inches, to outdistance the rest of the field in the high jump.

New York, March 25 (AP).—Aud Brindley went on a 28 point scoring spree tonight to give Dartmouth's Eastern league champions the National Collegiate A. A. Eastern Sectional basketball title with a 60 to 53 triumph over Ohio State's Big Ten court kings in Madison Square Garden.

In qualifying to meet the western winner for the N. C. A. A. title in the Garden next Tuesday, Dartmouth held command the entire route except briefly at the start and midway of the final period. When the Buckeyes moved ahead, 44 to 43, the Indians from New Hampshire brought the crowd of 15,457 to its feet with a drive that carried them to their 17th consecutive triumph and their 20th victory in 21 starts this season.

Brindley Sets Record.

Brindley sent Dartmouth away flying by sinking his first three shots and before the teams left the floor at the half with the eastern five leading, 28 to 22, the lanky center had poured in 16 points. He added five more field goals and two free throws in the second half altho on the bench the first four minutes. Brindley's 13 field goals gave him a new N. C. A. A. record, topping by one the mark set by Hull, of Ohio State, in 1939 and matched by Milo Komenich of Wyoming last year.

After trailing for most of the first half, Ohio State closed within three points several times before they finally got on top with nine and one-half minutes remaining. Then Harry Leggat and Brindley went to work again to leave the mid-westerners in the lurch.

Risen Leads Buckeyes.

Arnold Risen, Ohio State's 6 foot 8 inch center, scored only six points in the first half, but struck for 15 in the last period to lead the Buckeyes with 21. Don Grate, all-Big Ten forward, was held in check with seven.

Temple won third place in the tournament with a 55 to 35 decision over Catholic university.

The first half was a give and take affair with the score tied six times before Temple pulled away to a 24 to 21 lead on the fine shooting of Jim Joyce. Temple, however, completely controled the final period.

UTAH BEATS IOWA STATE

Kansas City, Mo., March 25 (AP).—Utah university defeated Iowa State, co-champion of the Big Six conference, 40 to 31, in the finals of the National Collegiate Athletic association's western sectional basketball tournament tonight.

The Utes, defeated in the first round of the New York invitational tourney by Kentucky, return to Madison Square Garden to meet Dartmouth, eastern champion, in the N. C. A. A. championship game next

The young and skinny Utah team was behind only twice in the contest, trailing 2 to 0 at the start and 26 to 25 at the start of the second half.

Missouri won third place in the tournament by defeating Pepperdine, 61 to 46.

ARMY COMES 1ST, FIGHT GAME 2D FOR SGT. WOODS

He Gets Big Test in Bout with Jack La Motta.

Camp Grant, Ill., March 25 [Special].—When he was 16 years old his father presented Lou Woods with a pair of boxing gloves. That subsequently launched Sgt. Lou Woods on a fistic career from which Camp Grant has been benefiting in the training of medical department soldiers.

Sgt. Woods, now one of the ranking middleweight fighters in the country, is teaching Camp Grant soldiers the art of fighting as a conditioning measure and also conducts classes in hand to hand combat and judo, training that comes in handy on the battle fronts. After his duties are completed for the day, Woods finds time to keep in condition for boxing matches, in or near camp. The 22 year old sergeant is as hard as nails and it takes only light workouts to perfect his timing.

He'll Have Busy Day.

The day of March 31 is going to be a busy one for the Fighting Sergeant from Detroit, Mich. He'll be up early with the rest of the men in his company, go about his duties and after retreat at 5:15 p. m. he will take off to fight Jack Lamotta of New York, the No. 1 civilian middleweight of the world, in Chicago Stadium for 10 rounds that night. Sgt. Lou then will be back in camp before the 7 a. m. reveille the next morning.

With such a program impending, Woods probably will be inclined to finish his business with LaMotta as quickly as possible, for the sooner the New York middleweight hits the canvas, the more sleep Woods will get on his bunk at Camp Grant.

This will be the most important fight for Sgt. Lou, who became a field corporal soon after finishing his basic training as a medical soldier. Later he earned the three stripes of a buck sergeant.

Started Career in 1941.

After receiving those gloves as a Christmas present, Woods, who was born in Kentucky of Scotch-Irish parents, spent two years getting boxing instructions wherever he could. In January of 1941 at the age of 18, Woods entered amateur competition and three times was beaten in the finals of tournaments in which he sought the welterweight crown.

After reaching the finals of the Michigan Golden Gloves tournament at Grand Rapids, Mich., Sgt. Lou decided to turn professional. He made his pro debut in May of 1941 and won 19 battles in a row before he dropped a 10 round decision to Charles Hayes, a Detroit Golden Gloves champion, in his first test at such a distance.

Since then Woods has won 10 successive ring encounters which gives him a record of 29 professional victories in 30 starts to carry against Lamotta in Chicago Stadium the night of March 31. Woods has appeared in Chicago rings nine times, seven in the Marigold Gardens and twice in the Coliseum when that was a sports arena before the army took over that building for training purposes.

CROWN B. B. Y. O. CHAMPIONS IN FINALS TODAY

The three division champions in the 9th annual B'nai B'rith Youth Organization Basketball tournament will be named this afternoon when the finals are played on the St. Philip High school floor, Kedzie av. and Jackson blvd., starting at 1 o'clock.

In addition to the three games, there will also be two contests to decide the A and B division champions in the Aleph Zadik Aleph chapters of the B. B. Y. O. The feature game will be in the senior division in which the Jewish People's Institute quintet clashes with the Hallicrafters.

The junior champion and an all-star team will represent the B. B. Y. O. against the Catholic Youth organization in their annual game Wednesday, March 29, in Lane Tech gym, Addison and Western av., with the first game starting at 8 o'clock. Vic Mann, Crane Tech coach has been chosen as B. B. Y. O. coach, while Charley [Stretch] Murphy will again handle the C. Y. O. squad.

C. Y. O. QUINTETS TO DECIDE 1944 TITLES TODAY

Four Catholic Youth organization basketball champions will be crowned today in Loyola university gymnasium, 6525 Sheridan rd., in finals of the senior, junior, prep, and grammar school divisions.

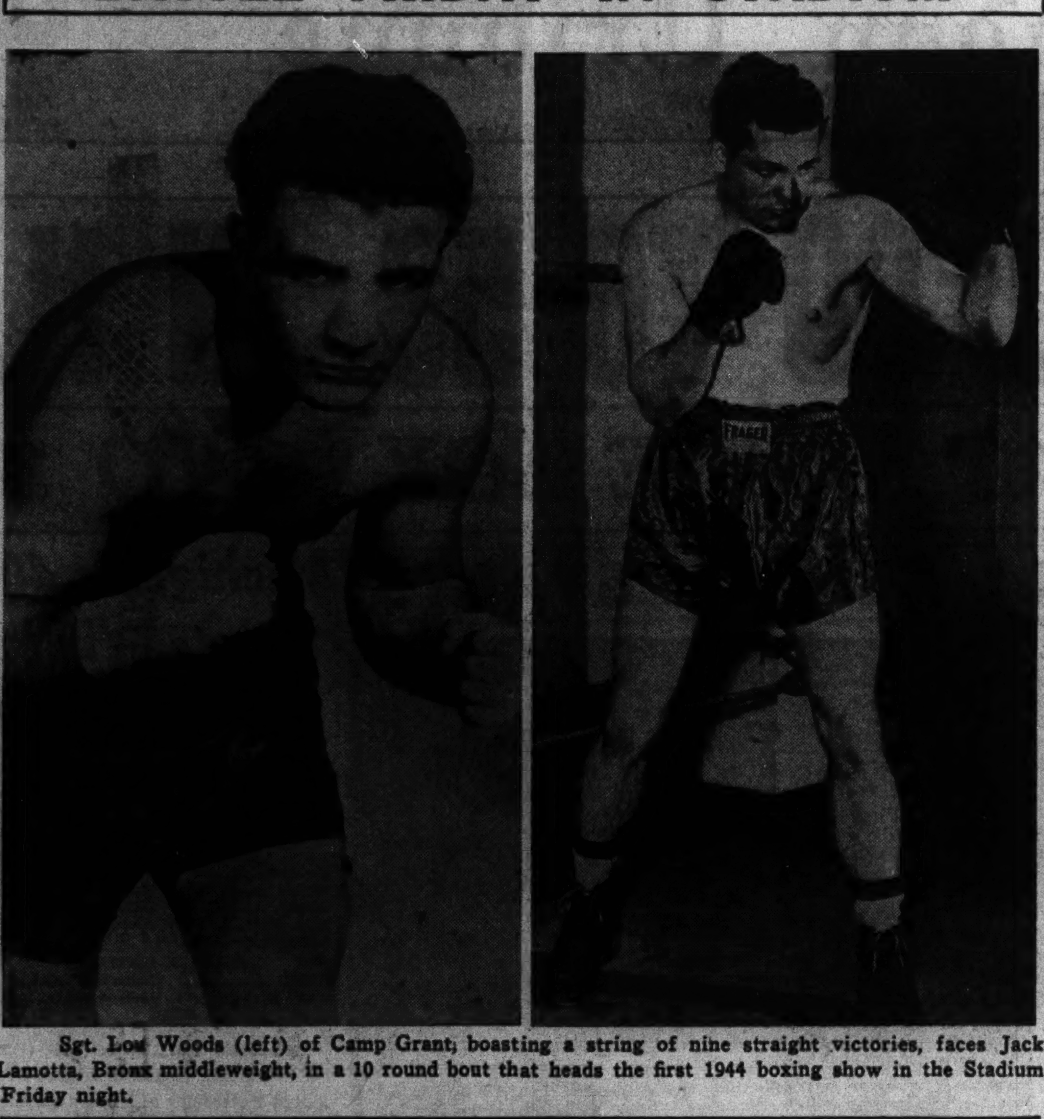
The opening game at 1 p. m. will send St. Mary of Perpetual Help against St. Mary Training school in the grammar school game, followed by the prep final between St. Sabina and St. Mary of Celle. The junior division title will go to the winner of the Our Lady of the Holy Mount and St. Sabina contest and the senior final finds St. Anselm meeting St. Elizabeth.

The C. Y. O. junior champions and an all-star senior team will meet the B'nai B'rith winners Wednesday in the Lane Tech gymnasium.

St. Johns of Forest Park Defeats Chebanse, 44-32

In the semi-finals of the Walther league baseball tournament, St. Johns of Forest Park, defeated Chebanse, Ill., 44 to 32. Bethany won from Immanuel, 44 to 37. In the latter game Bob Schumacher was high point man with 17 for the winners.

BATTLE FRIDAY IN STADIUM



Sgt. Lou Woods (left) of Camp Grant, boasting a string of nine straight victories, faces Jack Lamotta, Bronx middleweight, in a 10 round bout that heads the first 1944 boxing show in the Stadium Friday night.

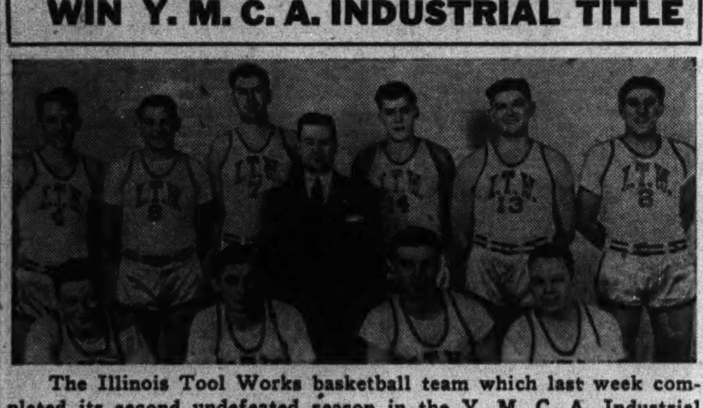
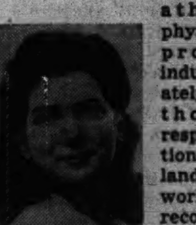
WIN Y. M. C. A. INDUSTRIAL TITLE



The Illinois Tool Works basketball team which last week completed its second undefeated season in the Y. M. C. A. Industrial league, defeating each of the other 17 teams. Front row, left to right, Bob Kotowski, Larry Hope, Tom Boliaris, and Elmer Sahlin. Back row, Marion Podraza, George Jares, Art Gerkin, Manager Lyle Bennett, Bill Sunblad, Norbert Hope, and Pete Oppel.

In view of the major role which the hand that in ordinary times rocks the cradle now is playing in rocking the Japs and Nazis it well may be charged that this department has not given enough space to the part played by women's athletics and physical fitness programs in industry. Fortunately, there are those in more responsible positions in Chicagoland recreational work who have recognized the importance of providing entertainment and health promoting exercise for women in war work and from the homes of industrial workers.



Frances Kaplan.

One of the leading centers of this movement is the recreation division at Columbus park, where Erwin Weiner, recreation supervisor, and his aids are doing a job which has attracted praise from leaders far beyond the limits of the community which it serves. Mention already has been made in this column of Physical Director Jim Kelly's program for war plant workers, guards, and in fact every boy and man from 6 to 60 in the area. Equally active is the women's physical education division, under the leadership of Frances Kaplan and the preschool and artcraft classes, in charge of Marguerite Spellman.

Mother Goes, Too, and Takes the Youngsters with Her.

For two years the Columbus park recreation building at 500 S. Central av. has been the scene of a stepped up war time fitness program for women war workers, housewives, business girls, and children, provisions being made in the preschool division to take care of children as young as 3 years.

Classes for married women and night war workers are held on Monday and Thursday afternoons while the business girls and day time workers get their turn Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Mothers with small children do not have to stay away from the classes because they cannot find any one to stay with the youngsters, for Miss Spellman's preschool and artcraft department takes care of Junior and little Judy while mother is improving her health [not to mention that figure] with tap dancing, calisthenics or team games like volley ball and softball.

Girls of high school age also have their place on the schedule. Each Wednesday evening Miss Kaplan, herself young and vivacious, puts them thru a routine which includes apparatus work, some complicated tap dances, calisthenics, volleyball, and basketball games. After all this is over, the youngsters, far from being fagged out, often beg their teacher to go out with them for a few lines of bowling. That's youth! For mixed groups of boys and girls, Miss Kaplan has social dancing classes for seventh and eighth graders.

In the line of competitive sports, the Columbus park staff has organized softball and volleyball leagues among women workers in neighborhood industries. Plants in the vicinity which are well represented include Illinois Tool, American Phenolic, Victor Gasket, Belden Manufacturing, Chicago Flexible Shaft, Public Service, Brach Candy, and Pheoll. The Brach team at present is leading in the volleyball league.

White Cap Organization Takes Over Club Time for Girls.

Just as the Columbus park setup is an example of community planning for women's war time physical fitness, the plan recently announced by the White Cap company, 1812 N. Central av., shows how individual industries are tackling the same program. This plant has secured exclusive use of the facilities of the Midwest Athletic club, 6 N. Hamlin av., for two hours each Wednesday evening for its girl employees. The schedule will include one hour of competitive games like volleyball, badminton, indoor softball, and basketball, followed by an hour of swimming. All this will cost the White Cap girls exactly nothing, everything being paid for by the company, which recognizes the importance physical fitness plays in top industrial efficiency.

THO there still remain a few items of unfinished business before the season is closed officially, the Illinois Tool Works basketball team last week finished its second undefeated season in that league. The league operates at the Division st., Lincoln-Belmont, and North av.-Larrabee Y's with a membership of 18 teams and Manager Lyle Bennett's I. T. W. quintet defeated each of its 17 rivals.

Illinois Tool is planning a smoker in honor of its basketball champions and also for the plant's No. 1 bowling team. It tentatively has been scheduled for the La Salle hotel Monday evening, April 3.

Illinois Bell Telephone Girls Ready for Volleyball Finals.

Top honors in the nation's largest industrial volleyball league will be decided Wednesday night, when the final games in the Illinois Bell Telephone girls 26 team league will be played in the University of Chicago fieldhouse, 56th st. and University av. Lawndale Office will meet Revenue Accounting for the company championship. Minor title games will be Employment Office vs. Hyde Park in the intermediate class and Kedzie Traffic vs. Spaulding in the novice division.

The Thordarson Flashtrons increased their lead in the Division st. Y. M. C. A. Industrial Bowling league to three games by winning three from International Printing Ink last week while second place Hammond Instruments were losing one of three to Bodine Electric. . . The annual city-wide Y. M. C. A. basketball tournament will be played on the next two Wednesdays and Fridays in the North av., Duncan, and Lincoln-Belmont gyms.

ARLINGTON LISTS 1ST MAJOR STAKE RACE ON JULY 4

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

The first 15 days of racing in the Arlington Park meeting at Washington Park will be highlighted by the famous holiday stake race, the $50,000 added Stars and Stripes handicap, first of five $50,000 added major stakes to be presented during the June 19-Sept. 7 coördinated Arlington-Washington season. The Stars and Stripes will be run on July 4, second day of the five day special meeting sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

The condition book for the first 15 day period will be ready for distribution about April 15, Executive Director Benjamin F. Lindheimer and Racing Secretary Webb A. Everett said yesterday.

List Overnight Features.

Opening day, June 19, will be featured by a $5,000 overnight purse for a six furlong dash designed as a tune-up for the Equipoise Mile, one of America's leading fixtures, to be run on the first Saturday, June 24. Also of importance during the first 15 day period will be a program of grass course stakes and features to be run on Thursdays, value of which will range from $2,500 to $10,000.

Daily overnight features will have a value of between $2,500 and $5,000, while the first stakes of the meeting will be the $10,000 added Hyde Park handicap for 2 year olds. With the exception of the $50,000 American Derby, the Hyde Park is Chicago's oldest racing event, having been established in 1884. It will be run this year on Wednesday, June 21, and is a forerunner to the rich juvenile events, the $25,000 added Arlington and the $25,000 added Washington Park Futurities.

Following the Equipoise Mile will be the $10,000 Princess Doreen stakes of six furlongs for 3 year old fillies scheduled for Wednesday, June 28. The second week of the meeting is pretty much of a filly week as Saturday, July 1, brings the 16th running of the $15,000 added Arlington Lassie stakes for 2 year old fillies, a race which will have an estimated value of $45,000.

In the meantime, interest is being attracted to Jamaica, N. Y., which opens a 25 day meeting on April 8 and has drawn a number of Kentucky Derby eligibles for its Experimental handicap on April 12, a race which will furnish some food for thought for followers of 3 year olds.

Test Derby Eligibles.

Lt. Col. C. V. Whitney's Pukka Gin, current Kentucky Derby favorite at 6 to 1, is scheduled to make his first start of the season in the Experimental, and has been assigned top weight of 126 pounds, the Derby impost. Pukka Gin started 13 times as a 2 year old, won five races, finished second four times, and was unplaced on four occasions. He will be expected to beat several well thought of Derby eligibles.

For instance, there is George D. Widener's Platter, second choice in the winter book on the $75,000 added fixture at Churchill Downs on May 6; Durazna, Miss Keeneland, and Twilight Tear, three of the best fillies of the 1943 season; Occupy, John Marsch's leading 2 year old money winner; Stir Up, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Flamingo stakes winner, and Jezrahel, Weyanoke, Director J. E., Lucky Draw, Gay Bit, Pensive, and Whirlabout, among the better horses named for the Kentucky Derby.

COACHES TO ASK RULES BODY FOR FIVE PERSONALS

New York, March 25 (AP).—The National Association of College Basketball Coaches agreed today that two changes should be made in the rules—[1] that each player be permitted five personal fouls and [2] that something should be done to curb the goal tender, but couldn't agree on how the latter should be accomplished.

The two proposals will be presented to the national rules committee Monday. The coaches voted by a big majority to increase the personal fouls, after it had been pointed out by several that, with the abolishment of the center jump, several minutes of playing time had been added to each game but the number of fouls remained at four.

CRAIG WOOD'S 2D 67 HOLDS LEAD IN DURHAM OPEN

Durham, N. C., March 25 (AP). — Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., after his first individual tournament victory since 1941, the year he won the National Open, shot his second straight 67 today to lead the field after 36 holes of the 72 hole Durham Open.

Wood put together a five under par 32 on the first nine and an even par 35 on the back stretch as he bid for the $1,000 first money in the $5,000 event with a half mark score of 134.

One stroke back were Byron Nelson of Toledo, who added a 67 to his opening 68 for a 135 total, and Jimmy Hines of Amsterdam, N. Y., who had 67—68—135.

Abbott Hall Five Goes to St. Sabina Finals

Tom Fuller, former Stanford basketball star, scored a field goal in the last five seconds to give Abbott Hall Midshipment a 33 to 31 victory over De La Salle High school last night in the semi-finals of the St. Sabina A. A. U. basketball tournament in St. Sabina Community center. Leo High school moved into the finals as it defeated Harry's Owl club, 32 to 26. Tonight's games:

9 p. m.—Championship—Leo High school vs. Abbott Hall Midshipmen.

Tripp Gentile of the Duncan Y. M. C. A. yesterday won the Illinois state Y. M. C. A. handball singles championship by defeating Bob Kendler of Lawson, 21 to 18, 21 to 20, in Class A. Jack De Fraties of Moline captured the Class B title by defeating Murray Haddon of Division, 21 to 12, 21 to 8.

Third place honors in both classes were won by default. Tony Di Orio of Duncan got the Class A position from Art Gabel of Wilson, and Stuart Sherman of Lawson won the Class B spot from Carl Wredling of Aurora. The matches were held at the Lawson Y. M. C. A., where the Central A. A. U. doubles championship tournament begins for a four day run Wednesday.

Merritt, Vorce Bout Headlines Marigold Card

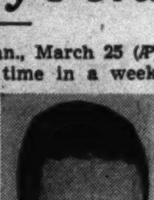
Dan Merritt, 1938 Chicagoland Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, who scored a second round knockout over Jimmy Reeves in his last Chicago appearance, will return for a 10 round bout with Johnny Vorce of Detroit in Marigold Gardens tomorrow.

The conquest of Reeves was one of four victories Merritt scored in this city last year. Other victims were Gilbert Stromquist, Austin, Tex.; Eddie Sarkesian, Detroit, and Lem Franklin, Cleveland. The latter was knocked out in the first round in Wrigley field last Aug. 9.

Isadore Miner, former Catholic Youth organization welterweight, who followed up a knockout he scored over Bill Parsons by being stopped himself by Sgt. Lou Woods and Doll Rafferty, will seek to make amends at the expense of Frankie Abrams of Detroit in a six round secondary feature tomorrow.

World Record at 100 Yards Tied by Ford

New Haven, Conn., March 25 (AP).—For the second time in a week, Alan Ford, Yale's great swimmer, raced the 100 yard free style in world's record time of 49.7 seconds tonight as he became the National Collegiate A. A.'s first triple champion since 1936.



Alan Ford.

Ford won his specialty by nearly six yards, with Mert Church of Michigan providing what opposition there was. The Eli's ace was off with the gun, picked up a yard at the 25 yard turn, doubled it at the half way mark and high pressured the final lap.

The performance of the 20 year old Ford won for him the American Swimming Coaches association's award at the best college swimmer of the year and sparked Yale to the team crown after a hard fought battle with the University of Michigan, 39 to 38 points.

Third Triple Winner.

By winning the century, 50 yard free style, and 150 yard backstroke, the latter two last night, Yale's ace equalled the triple scored by Jack Medica of the University of Washington in 1936 and by Al Schwartz of Northwestern in 1930.

Earlier today, Ford breezed in the victor in the 100 yard free style trials in 0:51.2, which was a new N. C. A. A. standard, but pales compared with tonight's spectacular feat.

Ford, a navy trainee, won the 50 yard free style and 150 yard backstroke crowns last night.

Nakama Beats Rogers.

In a thrilling renewal of their previous night's battle, Keo Nakama, Ohio State's captain from Hawaii, won the 440 yard free style by a touch from Gene Rogers, 6 foot 2 inch Columbia navy trainee, in 4:47, successfully defending the title, his second of the meet. Nakama won the 1,500 meter yesterday.

Carl Paulson of Brown won the 200 yard breast stroke in 2:28.3 by four feet over Norman Zheutlin of Princeton.

The final team standings: Yale, 39; Michigan, 38; United States Naval academy, and Ohio State, last year's champions, 24 each; Columbia, 22; United States Military academy, 14; Williams, 7; Rochester and Brown, 6 each; Cornell, 5; Bowdoin, Princeton and Penn State, 4 each; Minnesota, 3 and R. P. I., 2.

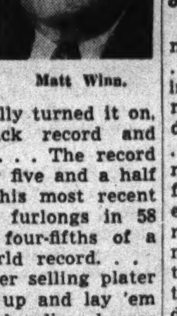
BREEZING ALONG

CHARLES S. HOWARD, owner of the great Seabiscuit, has a 5 year old bay gelding that's getting rave notices from the railbirds at the Hippodrome de las Americas track in Mexico City. . . . The pony's name is Struttin' Sam. . . . Struttin' Sam is a son of Whichone and his dam is Vanity. . . . He may not be another Seabiscuit, but he sure likes to run but fast. . . . He has scored four victories in five starts this season. . . . In two of the races he really turned it on, equalling one track record and breaking another. . . . The record he equaled was for five and a half furlongs. . . . In his most recent effort he ran five furlongs in 58 seconds flat, only four-fifths of a second off the world record. . . Marriage, the former selling plater who can pick 'em up and lay 'em down with the best handicap horses in the business, will be pointed next for the Tropical Park handicap. . . . The race is worth $10,000, and will be held April 8. . . . Trainer R. A. Coward says the horse pulled up in good fashion after his spectacular victory in the Coral Gables handicap last week. . . . "He's like wine," says Coward, "he keeps improving with age."



Matt Winn.

It Was a Long Hike and Bob Walked All the Way.

Matt J. Winn, president of Churchill Downs who was in town the other day, was telling friends of the time Bob Smith, trainer of Cavalcade, 1934 Kentucky Derby winner, had to walk back to Louisville after the running of the big race. . . . After the race, Bob went to the barn to see if his horse cooled out properly. . . . Meanwhile a fellow trainer, who was to drive Bob back to town, misunderstood and left. . . . Smith tried thumbing his way back. . . . Finally a car stopped. . . . "I'm Bob Smith," he explained. . . . "I just won the Derby with Cavalcade." . . . The fellow in the car sneered: "Yeah, and I'm Cavalcade." . . . With that he slammed the door and Bob walked back on groaning dogs.

Bay Meadows is enjoying its most successful meeting in history. . . . The mutuel handle on opening day was $626,030, about $400,000 more than it handled on the first day of the spring meeting last year. . . . Alsab will be shipped to Belmont Park on April 1. . . . The former $700 yearling which has earned $349,815 in purses has been nominated for all of the big stake races for which he is eligible at the eastern tracks. . . . Man o' War will be 27 years old Wednesday. . . . "Big Red," one of the greatest thorobreds ever to race on the American turf, was foaled March 29, 1917. . . . The Metropolitan Jockey club, which opens the New York season April 8 with a 25 day meeting at Jamaica, will put on the most valuable program in its history. . . . The purse distribution for the first 13 days of its meeting will be $269,600.

HAMMOND HIGH CAPTURES MEET AT NOTRE DAME

South Bend, Ind., March 25 [Special].—Hammond High school, winning the final relay event, nosed out Fort Wayne North Side, state scholastic track champions for the last two years, 53 to 51½, to win the invitational high school indoor track meet staged in the Notre Dame gymnasium here today.

Elkhart finished third with 29 points; South Bend Central fourth with 27¼; Mishawaka fifth with 17, and South Bend John Adams last with 7.

Humphrey Is Hero.

North Side led Hammond, 45½ to 43, with only the half mile relay remaining to be run. It appeared that North Side would win the meet with the final lap of the relay coming up as the state champions' team boasted a huge lead. However, Richard Humphrey, Hammond's fleet anchor man, cut loose with a blazing burst of speed to win the event and meet for Hammond.

Individual scoring honors were won by North Side's Ashley Hawk, who has dominated the distance races in state competition for the last three years. He continued his domination today in winning both the mile and half mile runs to become the only double winner of the meet. He also anchored North Side's winning mile relay quartet.

Team Well Balanced.

Hammond's balance of power resulted in the Wildcats' triumph. The summaries:

60 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Bill Edwards [Mishawaka]; Charles Gordon [Elkhart], second; Jim Foster [Elkhart], third; Don Barnbrook [South Bend John Adams], fourth. Time, 8.2 seconds.

WILSON VISIONS CUBS' STARTING LINEUP ALREADY

Eddie Schuster, Johnson Likely Regulars.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

French Lick, Ind., March 25.—Maybe it's a bit early, after only six days of spring drill, but Manager James Wilson of the Cubs already started to have visions of what his regular 1944 lineup may look like come opening day, April 18.

Cy Slapnicka.

At this stage Jim may be putting too much faith in some of the untested minor leaguers present, but one of the pleasing features of managing a ball club is that a manager always can change his mind overnight without any snippy questions being asked.

Pitching Is Question Mark.

There is a big question mark, however, even tho eight of the positions might work out well enough to exceed even the most sanguine expectations. The question is pitching, which easily could turn out satisfactorily, and then again could just as easily be as drab as it was last season. If the defense is improved, however, and Wilson is aiming at that, the pitchers naturally are going to look that much better.

It is reasonable to believe that Phil Cavarretta, Don Johnson, and Eddie Schuster will make up three-fourths of the infield. Third is questionable, and may remain so until such time as Pete Elko, Tony York, and Peanuts Lowrey can present their respective arguments.

Best Keystone Combination.

York ordinarily is a shortstop, a position far more difficult than third, and Lowrey, altho an outfielder, has had experience at Stan Hack's former corner. The gents who have seen Schuster and Johnson operate in the minors are already claiming they'll prove the National league's best keystone combination defensively.

Bill Nicholson, who hasn't reported as yet, appears set for right field and after all the preliminaries have been disposed of it would occasion no surprise if Ival Goodman, the one-time Red, should start in left.

Being a finished player, Goodman naturally knows both offensive and defensive tricks. He started late as a Cub last season but before the finish was showing some of the style that made him invaluable to the Reds before he was overtaken by a series of ailments.

Pafko, Sauer Bid for Job.

Leading choices for center field, in the event Lowrey is transferred to third base, are Andy Pafko from Los Angeles and Ed Sauer, the Nashville purchase. Both can get around in the outfield without difficulty but their chief attractions for the boss are the respective .358 and .368 batting averages compiled last season. Sauer's fielding wasn't exactly classy in the few games he played as a Cub last fall and he admits the real Sauer wasn't operating. He thinks he may have been bothered in his judgment of batted balls by the double deck grandstand background.

The pitching possibilities are anybody's guess because of so many candidates who were not steady last season. These include Paul Derringer, Paul Erickson, and Ed Hanyzewski, altho the latter still looks like a natural, as does Les Fleming.

Slapnicka Joins Scout Staff.

He'd have ordered another six inning game if he had had any properly rested pitchers, but will put on such an affair tomorrow as a sort of dress rehearsal for the spring's initial exhibition with the Reds here Tuesday.

The Cubs announced today that the coaching staff had been enlarged by the addition of Cy Slapnicka who is credited with discovery of a number of stars topped by Bob Feller.

Slapnicka, who, as a pitcher, had trials with Cleveland, Pittsburgh, and the Cubs and is best known for his term as general manager of the Cleveland Indians. He resigned from that job in 1942. He will do his scouting in Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, and the Dakotas.

USES 4 PLAYERS, LOSES, 24-22, IN GRAMMAR MEET

Using four players, the entire squad available, St. Helen was beaten, 24 to 22, yesterday by St. Thomas Aquinas in the annual grammar school basketball tournament sponsored by St. Philip High school.

St. Helen was leading, 19 to 16, shortly after the start of the last period but could not hold it.

The meet will be resumed tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Scores:

Third Round.

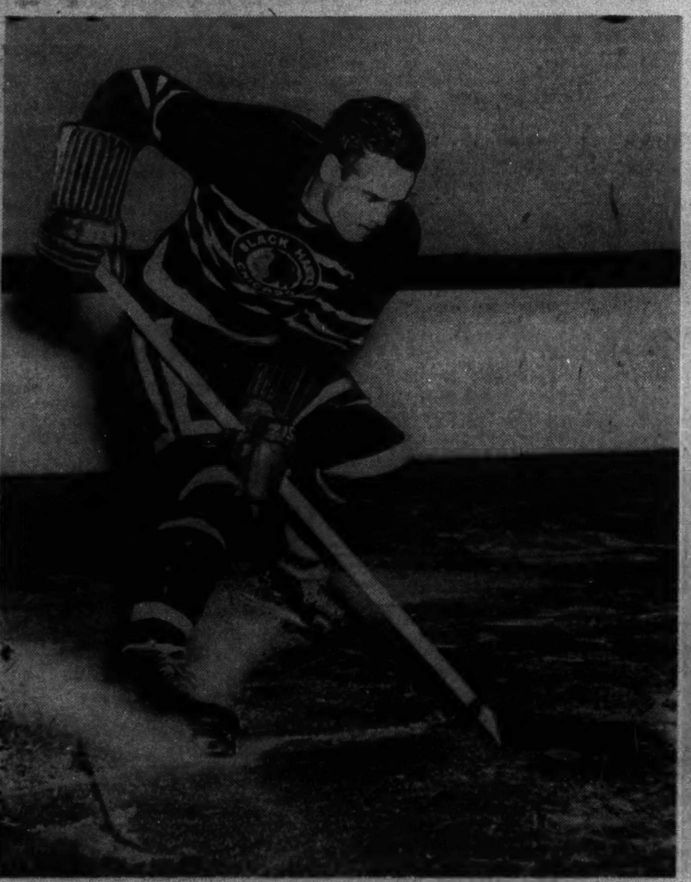
St. Hyacinth, 22; St. Raphael, 20. St. Lucy, 21; St. Barbara, 20. St. Thomas Aquinas, 24; St. Helen, 22. Blessed Sacrament, 29; St. Nicholas P., 16. O. L. Sorrows, 23; St. Eulalia [Maywood], 21. St. Alphonsus, 28; St. Gall, 13.

TWO MAN PIN TOURNAMENT TO OPEN ON MAY 16

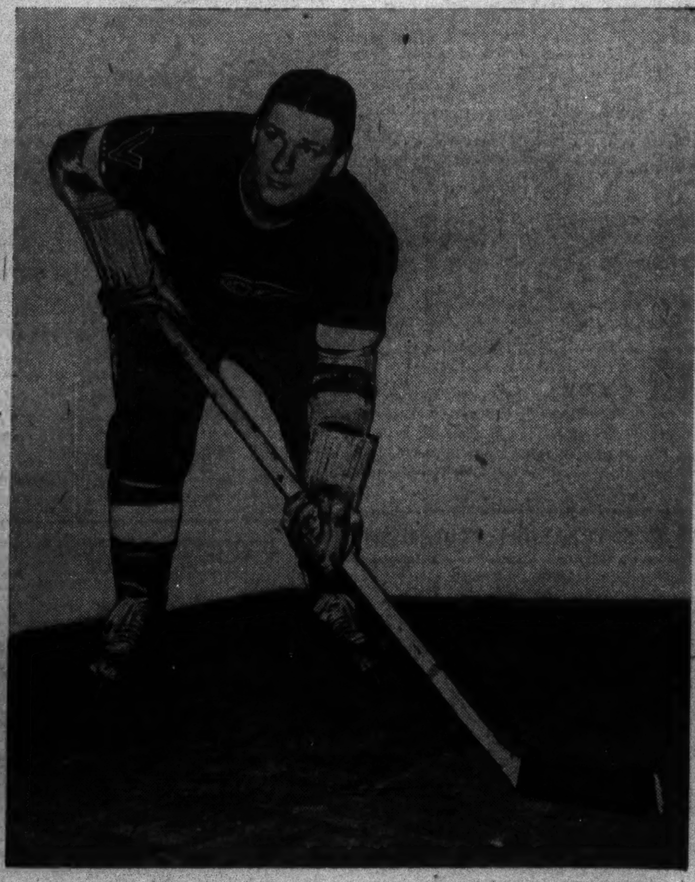
The national two man bowling championship, won last year by Nelson Burton and Frank Mataya, will be decided in a tournament to be held in the Auditorium Service Center alleys May 16 thru May 21, Louis P. Petersen of the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America announced today.

The field will be limited to 36 doubles teams, each having a combined average of 400 or better in sanctioned league competition.

ALL WANT A SECOND VICTORY IN STANLEY CUP PLAY-OFFS



Cully Dahlstrom, veteran Chicago Blackhawk center, isn't slated to start tonight's Stanley cup match in the Stadium against the Detroit Red Wings, but he'll see plenty of action.



Detroit's chances for a triumph hinge on the ability of Carl Liscombe, high scoring winger, to break away, something he hasn't accomplished in the play-offs to date.

Goalie Mike Karakas checked the Red Wings in the opening game, 2 to 1, victory, but ran into trouble in the second meeting. He hopes to repeat his first night's performance.

ATHLETICS WIN, 8 TO 3; SIMMONS IS BATTING STAR

Frederick, Md., March 25 (AP).—Gathering strength as they rolled along, the Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Curtis Bay Coast Guard nine in their first exhibition game, 8 to 3, here today.

The veteran Al Simmons, not on the active player list but dreaming of a comeback, was the batting hero. His seventh inning single broke a 3 to 3 tie and he drove across another run with a double in the eighth. He scored twice himself.

Three rookies—Fred Peeler, Jack McGillen, and Carl Scheib—twirled for the Athletics, with Scheib getting credit for the victory.

The Coast Guards, managed by Dick Porter, had a half dozen former major league players in their lineup. Score:

		R.	H.	E.
Phila'phia [AL]	001 020 32*—8		11	1

Batteries—Kerr, Ronay, Peterson, and Tabecheck, Brewer, Reeves; Peeler, McGillen, Scheib, and Hayes, Parrise.

MUNCRIEF PASSES TEST.

Cape Girardeau, Mo., March 25 (AP).—Outfielder Al Zarilla notified the St. Louis Browns today he was leaving Los Angeles immediately for training camp, while from San Antonio came word Pitcher Bob Muncrief passed his pre-induction examination.

Manager Luke Sewell, with only 16 players of the Browns' roster of 34 in camp, plans to use Catcher Joe Schultz in left field and Pitcher Virgil Brown in right field in tomorrow's exhibition game with Toledo of the American association. Frank Demaree, the only outfielder in camp, may not be able to start in center field because he pulled a back muscle in batting practice.

REDS' REGULARS WIN.

Bloomington, Ind., March 25 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds put on an intra-squad ball game today, with the Regulars winning, 3 to 1, in seven shivering innings.

The game gave Manager Bill McKechnie his first competitive look at rookies like Buck Fausett, who played third for the Regulars, and Tony Criscola in center field. Kermit Wahl, third baseman for the Indiana university team, played his position for the Yannigans and made something of an impression. He is under contract to the Reds.

INDIANS BANK ON KLIEMAN.

Lafayette, Ind., March 25 (AP).—Ed Klieman, right hand pitcher who won 23 games for Baltimore last season, is virtually certain to draw a starting assignment early in the Cleveland Indians' 1944 schedule.

Manager Lou Boudreau is on the alert for a rookie hurler to use as a starter without risking the ball game.

Vernon Kennedy and Joe Heving apparently are rounding into condition, but two other veterans, Al Smith and Mel Harder, still are limbering their arms gingerly. Allie Reynolds, who recently underwent a tonsillectomy, probably will not be called for full game duty until well after the season starts.

CARDINALS TO PLAY TODAY.

Cairo, Ill., March 25 (AP).—Muscular stiffness slowed the St. Louis Cardinals today as they limbered up for tomorrow's scheduled exhibition game with the 4th ferrying command, Memphis, Tenn.

Martin Marion, expecting to be called soon for limited army service, immediately began working out at shortstop with Ora Burnett, his likely successor.

NORTHEY COMES TO TERMS.

Wilmington, Del., March 25 (AP).—Ron Northey, the husky outfielder, came to terms today as the Philadelphia Blue Jays staged their first outdoor drill of the spring training season.

GORSICA ENDS HOLDOUT.

Beckley, W. Va., March 25 (AP).—Johnny Gorsica, big right hand hurler for the Detroit Tigers, dropped from the hold-out ranks tonight and said he would report to the American league club's training camp at Evansville, Ind., Monday.

Gorsica earlier refused to sign a contract calling for $5,000 and indicated he would be happier if the Tigers traded him.

Caravan Eyes 2d Victory in Stadium Game

Mount Carmel's all-city basketball title game with South Shore in the Chicago Stadium on April 8 will be a novel experience for John Tracy of the Catholic league entry as coach of one of the competing teams. And this seems unusual since Mount Carmel had both its junior and senior teams in last year's inaugural benefit double header.

John Tracy.

This, however, is Tracy's first year in the south side school, John coming from St. Ignatius High school on the west side to replace Johnny Jordan at Mount Carmel last fall. Which explains Mount Carmel's defense of the senior title in the second annual double header being his first appearance as coach of a finalist.

Attended Loyola Academy.

John spent his high school days in Loyola academy on the north side, where he starred in basketball and football under the late Lennie Sachs before graduating in 1927. A year later he entered Xavier university in Cincinnati, then known as St. Xavier college, where he immediately became one of the school's leading athletes.

As a sophomore he was captain of the basketball team, an honor he likewise held as a senior. A regular guard, Tracy was named on the Ohio conference all-star team his junior and senior years. In all he won seven monograms, playing one year as end in football and three years as left fielder on the baseball team.

His first stop after college was at St. John's High school in Toledo as coach of basketball and baseball. Since St. John's had not won a basketball game for the three previous years, John's .667 record was nothing short of phenomenal for the school's supporters. He stayed there three years, during which time his teams defeated all opponents in the league at least once.

Returned to Chicago.

John returned to Chicago in the fall of 1936 to coach St. Ignatius. The Jesuit school, one of the oldest in the city, had won a good share of Catholic league titles prior to that time, so his victory in the 1938 south section senior basketball race and feat of winning the north section crown the following year was very much in order for the alumni's pleasure.

At that time, the National Interscholastic basketball tournament at Loyola was the goal of all Catholic high school teams. As the city's runner-up, St. Ignatius automatically received one of the two Chicago bids and well upheld the league's reputation of being one of the strongest in the nation. His 1938 team lost out in the quarter-finals while the 1939 squad won third place honors after suffering an overtime loss in the semi-finals.

Boast Unbeaten Record.

All of which brings the Tracy athletic record up to date. His Caravan team this year is one of the state's two undefeated groups, state champion Taylorville being the other. The south siders have won 26 games, which, added to seven victories carried over from last season, give them 33 straight.

The April 8 contest will be the final game for Tracy's first seven players. Inasmuch as the players defeated South Shore, 51 to 36, in the first game of the practice season, Carmel hopes to end the season in a similar fashion. However, two of South Shore's main cogs, Forward Paul Schnackenberg, who won all-star honors in the state tournament, and center Jack Harr did not play for the city league champions, while Center George Benigni saw action for only one quarter for Mount Carmel.

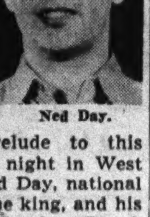
Don Heap Named Athletic Officer at Norfolk Base

Bloomington, Ill., March 25 [Special].—Lt. Don Heap, who resigned the post of athletic director at Illinois Wesleyan university two years ago to enter the armed service, is now athletic officer at the naval air station in Norfolk, Va. His Wesleyan football teams won two championships in the three years he coached in the Illinois college conference.

SPOTTING THE PINS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

As HAS been broadly hinted in several press releases, the national two-man match bowling championship tournament, under the sponsorship of the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America, in general, and of Louis P. Peterson, chairman of the group's exhibition committee, in particular, will be run off on the lanes of the Auditorium service men's center on May 19, 20, and 21.



Ned Day.

A quite fitting prelude to this spectacle began last night in West Allis, Wis. where Ned Day, national individual match game king, and his youthful protege, Rudy Pugel, opened their challenge match against Nelson Burton and Frank Mataya, St. Louis, who will compete in the above-mentioned tournament. The lads bowled seven games last night, continue with seven more this afternoon and still another seven tonight. They will then move to St. Louis where they'll roll the second 21 games of their 42-game match in the Heidel Bowling Center, April 1 and 2.

It ought to be good, what with Day having just returned from an extensive field trip on which he maintained a 222 plus average on constantly changing and totally unfamiliar lanes.

Close Entry List for Hochstadter's Junior Tournament Tonight.

All four—Burton, Mataya, Day and Pugel—are seeded into the finals of the tournament, incidentally, so this match is indeed a preview.

With just a few openings left to hit his record breaking goal of 2,560 entries, Barney Hochstadter today is issuing that final call for his rich junior classic, today being the deadline. The event will start in the Archer-35th Recreation April 15 and will run almost without interruption thru May 21. It's eight games across 16 alleys with a $1,000 top prize, in addition to a diamond medal, and a total prize list of $25,600.

CHATTER—Eddie Williams, veteran golf professional at the Bryn Mawr Country club, captained the Northtown Recreation team which recently shot a 1,199 game in the Northwest Traveling league. Scores: Williams, 267; Carl Anderson, 245; Louis Fratini, 247; Herman Goranson, 229, and Dr. Robert Brown, 211. Anderson had a railroad in the 10th frame and Fratini an error in the same inning. . . . Add to the kids who show promise the name of Tony Vickey Jr. of the Bowlium. He's got a sweeper that carries 'em in either pocket. . . . A note from Sammy Weinstein, Chicago's Tenpin Tattler, reveals that he has been transferred from Farragut, Idaho, to the naval air station at Alameda, Cal., where he likes it. Sammy sends along an item of interest to Chicagoans that he has received a V-mail letter from Lloyd Strouse, one of Chicago's top notch bowlers until he entered the navy a little over a year ago. Lloyd was in the first World war too. He's back in this one as a chief petty officer. He's been in the South Pacific, has had malaria, been hospitalized, is now recovered and looking around for some more action. . . . Milwaukee still leads in the B. V. L. drive with $10,877. Chicago is second with $8,965. . . . Eli Whitney of the A. B. C. reports that two 7-10s, two 5-7-10s and one 4-6-7-10s have been turned in recently. . . . There's a bowling room on down Cuba way. The government's official sports body, Fedacion Nacional de Bolos de Cuba, now has 10 establishments with 30 lanes each in operation with 30 more under construction. . . . Hank Marino, the Old Master of Milwaukee, is leading the parade for high three game series for the current season with his 832 which included two perfect games. The all-time record, however, still belongs to Allie Brandt of Lockport, N. Y., with his 886.

Tommy Moran Wins Legion Tourney with 700 in Singles.

Tommy Moran of the Daniel Gibbons Post won the Cook county American Legion tournament at Dearborn-Jackson Recreation with an even 700. Bill Hoar and Jim Clarke captured the doubles with 1,277. Frank Ives took top honors in the all-events with 1,896 and the winning team was the Square Post No. 1 team with 3,032.

Hawks, Wings Play Third Cup Game Tonight

in the opener at Detroit and it paid dividends. They let the Wings wear themselves out by racing up and down the ice, with the Hawks continually checking their drives and batting the puck right back. When the Wings finally scored in the second period, they went into a defensive shell, but in the third period, the Hawks, fresher than their opponents, made two quick goals to erase the 1 to 0 lead.

Wings Changed Tactics.

Detroit made no such mistake in the second game, setting a fast pace thruout and doing a great job of bottling up Doug Bentley. He seldom got in the open. In the games here, it will be the Hawks who will set the pace.

The rival goalies, Detroit's youthful Connie Dion and Chicago's veteran Mike Karakas, have done fine work in the nets. Two of the five Red Wing goals scored on Mike have been on the flukey side, while one of the three Chicago goals was no fault of Dion.

Falks Battle Vikings Today in Cup Soccer

BY OFFSIDE.

Defeated a year ago in the National Open semi-finals when their long winning streak was snapped by the Milwaukee Falks, the Vikings will seek revenge and a berth in the National Open soccer finals this afternoon at 2:30 in Winnemac park stadium when they clash with that same Falk team.

The victor in today's match will battle the Morgan Strassers, of the Pittsburgh district, for the Open Western soccer title on a date to be set by association officials.

Hansas to Face Hakoahs.

Today's program will open at 12:30 in a match between the Hansas, who hope to meet the Falks next Sunday in Milwaukee in the National Amateur Western semi-finals, and the Hakoah Centers.

The Vikings, who captured the State Peel cup title a week ago by beating the Spartas, have a much stronger lineup than last year and entertain hopes of defeating the Falks.

Several changes are anticipated in the Vikings' lineup, sending Horace James into action as goalie in place of Manager Jock Johanasen, and there is also some doubt as to whether Ernie Kuehl, who was injured last Sunday, will be able to play. Capt. Ova Flodin, who may be playing his final soccer game until the end of the war since he was recently reclassified 1-A; Andy Hritz, and Jimmy McDermott are certain starters in the middle line.

TALL TALES WILL BE IN ORDER AS FISHERMEN MEET

BY BOB BECKER.

The open season for tall fishing yarns and indoor discussions of plans to improve America's fishing waters and all of America's outdoor resources will get under way this week in Chicago when the Izaak Walton League of America holds its 22d annual meeting in the La Salle hotel starting Thursday and continuing for three days. State conservation officials, representatives of the United States Fish and Wildlife service and sportsmen and anglers from all over the country will come to Chicago for the sessions of this convention which has the provocative theme of "Action Please!"

This convention comes just a few weeks ahead of the official opening of pike fishing in the middle west, for Wisconsin permits angling for wall-eyed pike and white bass in the Wolf, Fox [Kenosha county], and Rock rivers only starting April 15. This is the earliest fishing available for wall-eyes in that state.

Outdoor Fans Invited.

All outdoor fans are invited to attend the Walton league sessions, some of which promise plenty of fireworks this year, especially those which will take up plans being considered by government agencies for the post-war period. Kenneth A. Reid, executive director of the league, announces that practically all of the sessions next Friday will be devoted to problems of natural resource management which threaten to make over the face of America to such an extent that returning soldiers and sailors may not recognize the land they have been fighting for.

"If somebody doesn't do something definite to curb the mania for building big dams anywhere and everywhere without regard for public values and water, a few million men who are on the far away fighting fronts are going to be hopping mad," says Reid in pointing out how federal agencies are not coordinated in their planning for the utilization of water in our rivers and lakes. The executive director of the league adds that the time has come to awaken the nation and congress to the "menace of pork barrel dams for the sake of building a dam."

Engineers on Program.

Friday afternoon the league will hear TVA bureau of reclamation, army engineer corps, and soil conservation service representatives on their post-war plans which will be followed by a discussion period. One of the basic criticisms, of the way water is being used by various government bureaus, is that nowhere in the federal government is there any coördinated water policy in the interests of the whole American public.

The Izaak Walton meeting comes just about the time local fly fishermen have a yen to flick their flies at crappies and bluegills in northern Illinois, and also precedes the first big migration of anglers into Wisconsin for early season pike and pickerel fishing.

If a fisherman confines his rod and reel activity to the Rock and Wolf rivers he can catch both of these species starting April 15.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 25.—Chicago's 1944 Golden Gloves champions are ready for Monday night's intercity struggle against New York's best in Madison Square Garden. The invaders, who whipped the easterners in Chicago Stadium last March, 14 to 2, will finish their boxing exercises today in New York in Stillman's 8th av. gymnasium. Tomorrow Co-Coaches Izzy Kline and Freddie Caserio will send them on a final jaunt thru Central park, after which they'll take it easy until Monday's examination and weighing ceremonies in the New York Daily News building.

It's quite a civic responsibility which this third war time Chicago squad will carry into the Garden ring Monday evening. They are the possessors of a record which finds them having won nine, lost four, and tied three in the previous 16 years of inter-city punching. They will be out to uphold the best traditions of such venerable New York-Chicago feuds as those between the Giants and Cubs, the Yankees and White Sox, and the Rangers and Blackhawks.

New York Eyes Victory.

New York, still smarting from the aforesaid 14 to 2 thumping of last year, is out to sweep all 16 bouts Monday night. Three of the easterners, Bantamweight Bill Hernandez of Puerto Rico, and a pair of New Yorkers—Lightweight Max Grothe and Light Heavyweight Herb Kroeten—are particularly anxious to get down to business for they were members of the losing team last year.

On the other hand, there is the situation of Hy Bronstein, New York's middleweight champion. Soldier Bronstein last year was stationed in Kansas, and contributed a winning point to Chicago's 14 to 2 total. Hy has since been shifted, and Monday is expected to come out against Chicago's 160 pound boss, Collins Brown of the Catholic Youth organization. Bronstein last year was a willing, if wild swinging, fighter, but in the interim, according to Scout Kline of the Chicago team, has developed more accuracy in his punching, notably in his body thrusts.

Series Full of Thrills.

Since the first intercity bouts were held in Chicago's Coliseum in 1928, when the two squads argued to an 8 to 8 draw, the series has been chock full of thrills. The Chicago preponderance of victories would seem to indicate that they have enjoyed an overwhelming superiority, but a year by year breakdown of the 17 year old vendetta reveals that our boys' advantage was hard earned.

Following the inaugural tie, New York went into the lead with a convincing 11 to 5 decision. Chicago retorted with two successive triumphs, 10 to 6 and 13 to 3, the latter being the most decisive margin of the series until last year. New York won two of the next three years' sessions, bringing the score for the first seven years to three victories and a tie for each.

Started Streak in 1935.

Came 1935, and the eastern visitors to the Stadium of that year appeared headed for another victory, winning five of the first eight bouts. Then followed the most dramatic competition of the annual battle. Eight members of the Chicago squad—Elwood McReynolds, King Wyatt, Charles Wozniak, Dave Clark, Joe Bauer, Clinton Bridges, Lorenzo Pack, and Otis Thomas—swept the remainder of the program for an 11 to 5 triumph.

Chicago thereafter was not defeated until 1942 in the Garden, when the two New York heavyweights, Jimmy Carollo and Bob Ramsey, won their fights after the score had been tied, 7 to 7. This produced the fifth 9 to 7 decision of the set. Prior to the New York victory in 1942, the Chicagoans twice were restrained to 8 to 8 ties.

STOCKS UNEVEN IN NARROW AND SLOW TRADING

Scattered Rails, Specials Show Strength.

New York, March 25 (AP).—A few rails and specialties showed strength today as a losing stock market week closed with prices mixed. Many leaders were unsuccessful in surmounting further profit cashing.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was unchanged at 52.6, but on the week was down 0.5, the most substantial six day fall since early February. Transfers totaled 447,730 shares, the smallest total since March 4. Only 698 issues appeared.

Peaks for 1944 were set by Park & Tilford, an outstanding climber during the week on expectations of a whisky dividend; Kansas City Southern, Texas Gulf Producing, Philip Morris, and Glenn Martin. Losers included United States Steel, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Sears Roebuck, Westinghouse Electric, and Anaconda.

On the Curb Colt's Patent Fire Arms added a loss of ¾ to its sharp tumble of Friday on the first omission of a dividend since 1917.

RAIL BONDS ADVANCE.

New York, March 25 (AP).—Advances among rails were well distributed in today's bond market and the Associated Press carrier average rose to a new high for the year. Gains from fractions to 2 points were posted by Atlanta and Birmingham 4s, Chicago and Eastern Illinois incomes, Florida East Coast 5s, Kansas City Fort Scott 4s, Lehigh Valley 5s, and various loans of Missouri Pacific, New Haven, and Frisco. Transactions totaled $5,985,700 against $5,832,000 last Saturday.

CHICAGO LIST EXTENDS DIP.

The decline in prices on the Chicago Stock exchange was extended yesterday. Transactions totaled 26,000 shares. Chicago corporation accounted for most of the volume and closed at a new 1944 peak of 6⅝, up ⅛. Other active stocks included La Salle Extension university, up ⅜; Hupp Motor Car, down ⅛, and General Finance corporation, up ⅛. Two other issues closed at new highs: North West Utilities 7 per cent prior lien at 118, up 2, and Signode Steel Strapping at 15½, up ¼.

73 War Orders Awarded to 53 Chicago Firms

Chicago's war contracts were increased $6,291,000 last week, Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, said yesterday. Seventy-three new contracts were awarded to 53 companies. Most of the awards were for foodstuffs or construction of war facilities.

CORPORATION REPORTS.

Sound accounting practices are followed generally by corporations in which there is a wide public ownership. There is, however, a confusing lack of uniformity in the manner in which corporations present their earnings and balance sheet data to stockholders.

Most companies currently are reporting net income after deducting substantial sums as reserves against contingencies, post-war adjustments, and inventory losses. Other firms, however, report their net income before allowing for extraordinary reserves.

A similar lack of uniformity is found in corporate balance sheets, particularly in the treatment of current assets and liabilities. For example, accrued federal income taxes are now the major item in current liabilities of many corporations, but the method of presenting this item varies, with important effects on the ratio of current assets to current liabilities.

In some cases United States treasury tax notes accumulated to pay the tax liability are shown as current assets, and in other reports the notes are deducted from the tax liability and only the net figure, if any, is shown as a current liability.

General Electric, for example, uses the latter method. The 1943 year-end balance sheet showed net accrued income taxes of 32 million dollars after deducting 174 millions of treasury tax notes, and the ratio of current assets to current liabilities was 2 to 1. If the notes were not deducted, but were included with current assets, the current ratio would be 1½ to 1.

When reserves for "contingencies" and losses or costs which may never be incurred are deducted from earnings, the result may be an understatement of the true profits. If, in a future year of poor business, the corporation uses the reserve to offset operating or other losses, earnings for that period actually may be overstated.

The treasury department recognizes charges for depreciation and obsolescence as proper deductions for income tax purposes, but does not allow deductions for such vague things as "contingencies."

The professional securities analyst reduces all corporation reports to a standardized basis in order to obtain more accurate comparative results from year to year or between companies. The individual stockholder often is not sufficiently well versed in accounting to do this for himself.

Chicago Industrial Pay Rolls Increase 23 Pct. in February

Chicago industrial pay rolls last month reached an index figure of 300.9, based on the February 1935-'39 average as 100, the Illinois department of labor's monthly report disclosed yesterday. This was a 23 per cent gain over the February, 1943, pay roll index figure.

The business survey department of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in its monthly statistical compilation reported yesterday that most other business indices were higher last month, extending gains almost unbroken since the beginning of the war program. An exception was department store sales, which decreased 21 per cent.

Fares collected by the Chicago Surface lines last month totaled 66,160,557, the gain of 0.9 per cent falling below increases reported by the two other mass transportation systems.

The first three figures in the following tables represent index numbers; others are given in dollars or units as indicated:

BILL FOR MAKING GASOLINE FROM SHALE APPROVED

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—Senate and house conferees cleared the way today for passage of legislation to authorize appropriation of 30 million dollars to the bureau of mines for development of synthetic motor and aviation fuels from coal and oil shale. It was agreed the department of agriculture would retain jurisdiction over its work on motor fuels from farm products.

The legislation would authorize the bureau of mines to construct and operate demonstration plants looking to the production of synthetic liquid fuels. The bureau already has conducted experiments in a small plant at Pittsburgh, Pa.

Crude Petroleum Stocks Show Decrease for Week

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—The bureau of mines reported today that stocks of domestic and foreign crude petroleum totaled 236,119,000 barrels on March 18, a decrease of 629,000 barrels for the week. Domestic crude decreased 224,000 barrels; foreign crude decreased 405,000. Daily average production was 4,385,000 barrels, an increase of 4,000. Runs to stills averaged 4,437,000, an increase of 50,000.

UNITED BUSINESS SERVICE

100 OUTSTANDING STOCKS

A Special Statistical Study by one of the Country's Leading Financial Advisory Services

WHAT are the best stocks to buy to participate in the present Bull Market? Which attractive issues are selling below their current asset value—which have best postwar prospects—which have paid dividends for more than 40 years? Are there still bargain opportunities in stocks selling below $10 a share? UNITED BUSINESS SERVICE is just issuing its Second Annual Selection of 100 Outstanding Stocks, selected by the same tested methods that proved so strikingly successful last year.

100 Stocks selected from 2,211 Listed Issues

These 100 stocks, selected after extensive research from 2,211 listed Stock Exchange and Curb issues, represent outstanding values in five classifications:

20 Stocks Selling Below Net Current Assets. One of these, in a prosperous industry, is currently earning around $5 a share, has $22 in quick assets, yet sells at 18.

20 Growth Stocks With New Products. Like Motors, Chemicals and Radio after the last war, these issues have possibilities of becoming future market leaders.

20 Dividend-Payers For Over 40 Years. Investment for backlog funds, yielding from 4% to 8%. Nine have paid dividends for over 60 years.

20 Preferreds With Large Back Dividends. Current earnings make payments of accumulations possible. These preferreds have back dividends up to $90 a share.

20 Low-Priced Stocks Selling Below $10. Actively traded issues of progressively managed concerns with prospects for sizeable market appreciation.

Previous Report Highly Profitable

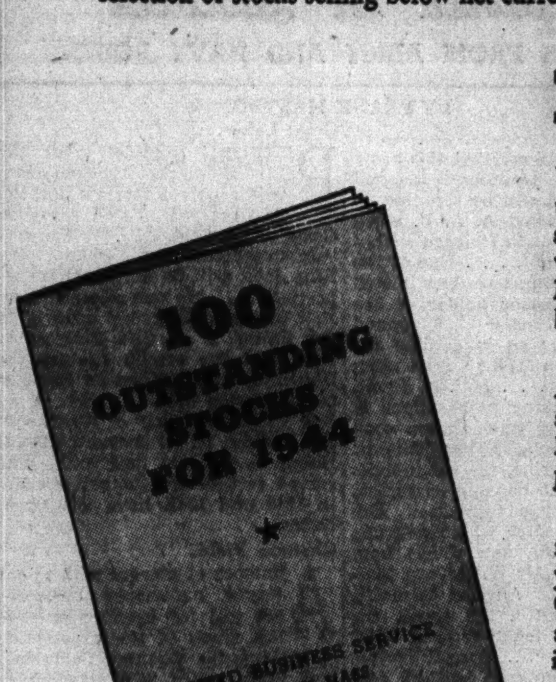
A YEAR ago in February, UNITED Service issued its similar report on 100 Outstanding Stocks. The average gain on these issues in the past 13 months to date is 29%, or more than 2½ times the rise in the Dow-Jones Industrials in the same period. Last year's selection of stocks selling below net current assets showed a gain of 52%. The long term growth stocks rose 13%. The conservative 40-year dividend payers rose 16%. Preferreds with back dividends gained 36%, while the volatile low-priced stocks appreciated 48%. There are many factors in the present market that should make for substantially higher prices in carefully selected issues.

New Selections Now Ready

Wide opportunities for investment profits exist in today's markets. Unlike many of the Bull Markets of the past the current advance has been of a highly selective nature with divergent trends as between war stocks and peace issues. There are many securities still selling at comparatively low levels—securities with excellent postwar prospects—that currently yield generous dividend returns. Each phase of a Bull Market brings new stocks into prominence. Many of the best gains will be made by issues that have not been outstanding in the past 12 months.

As a guide to these opportunities you will want to receive our new 100-Stock Report to be issued April 1. It has been prepared by the same expert staff, using the same tested methods, as the highly successful Report of a year ago. In preparing this new Report our Staff has selected the issues in five leading market groups which, on the basis of financial position, management record, earning power and postwar prospects, appear to be in the best position to benefit from the next important advance.

How high prices will rise in the present Bull Market no one can say. But it is clear that powerful forces are still at work on the side of higher prices. Stocks are still at low levels compared with prewar years. Income return is generous in comparison with the low yields offered by other investments today. Other bullish factors of growing importance include huge accumulations of surplus funds, more conservative domestic political trends, favorable war developments, taxes at their approximate peak, rising inflation pressure, and excellent prospects for postwar business.



United Business and Investment Service, backed by a 24-year record of success, serves the largest clientele of any investment advisory service in the country today.

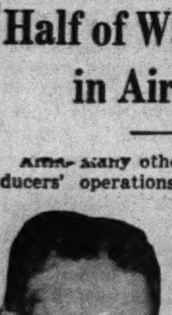
PLANE MAKERS ASKED TO LIFT OUTPUT 50 PCT.

Half of War Budget in Aircraft.



Glenn L. Martin.

Altho many other war goods producers' operations have been curtailed, the aircraft industry has the assignment of increasing its production this year 50 per cent over 1943, Glenn L. Martin, president of Glenn L. Martin company, said yesterday in his annual report to stockholders.

No other industry has received a similar order, he said. Emphasizing its vital role in war, Martin asserted, "The aircraft industry has been assigned one-half of the war budget for 1944."

If the Martin company succeeds in raising its output by half this year and dollar volume increases correspondingly, its business would approach the billion dollar mark, he said. Its 1943 business, the report disclosed, totaled $632,163,870, after refunding $18,131,148 to the government. For 1942 the volume was $337,556,000; and for 1941, $67,237,689.

Profit Nearly Doubled.

Profit last year was $12,437,583, equal to $11.15 a share, against $6,658,809, or $6.01 a share, in 1942. The 1943 profit was determined after reserving 7 million dollars for contingencies, compared with 3 million the year before. Federal and state income taxes took $59,136,117, after crediting a post-war refund of $6,229,500. Even after this deduction the taxes were equal to 76 per cent of the $77,989,981 profit from operations.

Looking beyond victory, the report said "there are no practical limits to the size" of flying ships that can be built for over ocean transport. The navy has ordered 20 more of the Mars, world's largest flying boat, which, the report said, is rated the most efficient and economical airplane yet built. They are to be completed by the end of 1945.

Designs for Super-Mars, "winged vessels far beyond the size of present craft," will be ready at the end of the war, it added. This would be a 300,000 pound ship with a capacity for 250 passengers and baggage. Other designs have been prepared for giant land planes, to be loaded directly from motor trucks driven into the body over a power controled ramp at the tail.

Tax Free Reserve Needed.

In preparation for post-war problems, Martin said, "There is a distinct need, in the aircraft industry because of its extreme expansion to meet war needs, for a tax free reserve from current earnings. The need is recognized in many governmental offices, and relieving legislation may be developed in 1944."

Describing the military performance of various company planes, Martin said that in a series of 6,700 B-26 Marauder medium bomber flights, only 21 of the planes were lost, less than 3-10 of 1 per cent, and that their record for target smashing was "remarkable and outstanding."

Of the Martin working force at the year-end, 35 per cent were women. Selective service last year took 8,366 men from the company's Baltimore, Md., plant, alone.

Oil Expansion Planned.

North American Car corporation is planning to expand its oil and gas production activities during 1944, William M. Spencer, chairman, said in the company's annual report to stockholders. Agreements already have been reached for drilling operations in several oil producing states, he said. Last April the stockholders voted to amend the articles of incorporation so that the company's right to engage directly in the ownership and operation of oil properties would be clarified.

The 1943 profit, as reported earlier, was $793,697, equal to $4.50 a common share, compared with $638,817, or $3.42 a share, in 1942. Last year's earnings before deducting incomes taxes included $205,405 on the sale of oil and gas leases and wells and $316,585 on the sale of railway cars. The total profit was shown after reserving $120,000 for contingencies.

Use U.S. Plane as Air Liner, Is British Plan

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 25.—One British firm is planning to enter the post-war race for international air routes with American built Liberator bombers converted into commercial transports.

On the basis of a small scale model and an estimate, this firm believes the Liberator could be converted into a 40 passenger luxury liner. Work has not been carried beyond the planning phase and cannot proceed without official approval, which has not yet been given.

New Fuselage Proposed.

Under the plan the plane would consist of a Liberator wing and other components with a new and larger fuselage to carry a big pay load. Such a plane would have a 3,000 mile range and would emerge from conversion as a low wing instead of a high wing monoplane.

The designer explained his purpose in planning to convert these bombers would be to get Britain into post-war aviation rapidly instead of having to wait four or five years until new commercial types are developed.

The British consider themselves at a competitive disadvantage in comparison with the United States because they have not developed a successful four engined transport such as the American C-54 [D-C 4, Douglas Skymaster military transport plane]. The four engined Avro-York, a commercial version of the Lancaster bomber, has not satisfied every one in the industry. It has flown the Atlantic but is said to have a pay load insufficient for economical operation on long over water hops.

Conversion Already Started.

Liberator bombers already are being converted into passenger and cargo planes for use by the British Overseas Airways corporation on the trans-Atlantic route. As converted the Liberators carry 16 to 20 passengers plus cargo. It has been explained they are rebuilt from bombers so shot up as to be unfit for further military use.

The British Overseas Airways corporation is government controled and subsidized and operates all Britain's foreign air lines. It was formed before the war when Imperial Airways and British Airways found themselves unable to compete with American, Dutch, and other privately owned transport lines. The government stepped in, merged the existing services into B. O. A. C, and placed control under the air ministry.

NWLB DECIDES SOME BONUSES CONSTITUTE INCREASES IN WAGES

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—The national war labor board ruled today that bonus earnings not related to increased productivity of the individual worker at the American Tool Works, Cincinnati, may be figured as pay increases under the Little Steel formula.

The board thus rejected an appeal from the same finding of the Cleveland regional board taken by the United Electrical Radio, and Machine Workers, CIO. The regional board had found increased hourly earnings of workers at the Cincinnati plant, resulting from a plant-wide "defense bonus" plan in operation since January, 1941, were indistinguishable from an out-and-out wage increase.

Plant personnel had increased from 900 in 1941 to about 1,600 in 1943, the regional board learned. Because the bonus plan is based on plant-wide output, individual productivity would increase simply thru the increased working force and without individual effort, the board held. It did allow a 5 cent an hour increase to workers when the bonus plan did not net at least that amount above base rates, which it found to be 5 cents below the "sound and tested rates" in the Cincinnati area.

WIEBOLDT FUND PAYS OUT 3.7 MILLIONS IN 22 YEARS' EXISTENCE

The Wieboldt Foundation has appropriated $3,734,828 for charitable and philanthropic purposes in the 22 years of its existence, or substantially all its net income, Werner A. Wieboldt, president, said yesterday in his annual report for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, 1943.

The fiscal year's net income was $269,322. Appropriations to charitable agencies totaled $217,825, or 35 per cent more than in the preceding year. The 1943 appropriations included $30,000 for the Community and War fund and $20,000 for the Red Cross.

"'It can be reasonably assumed that a part of most of our contributions are in some way connected with the war," said Wieboldt.

The foundation's assets at the end of the fiscal year were carried at $5,021,446, comprising chiefly real estate and Wieboldt Stores, Inc., stock holdings.

UNIFORM GRADES TERMED THREAT TO U. S. SYSTEM

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—Rep. Halleck [R., Ind.] charged today that efforts are being made "to force standardized grading thru congress as the first step in an organized plan to undermine the social and economic system under which this nation has grown great." If "doctoring" of the economic system is necessary, it should be postponed until after the war "and then achieved thru constitutional methods," he said.

"This insidious campaign to destroy the benefits of our system of brand names and trade marks is a threat to the quality of everything we eat, everything we wear, and everything going into the home."

Halleck's principal objection to standardized grading was that "it constitutes a danger to American democracy, since it threatens to rob the consumer of the right and the ability to buy, with confidence and satisfaction, his rightful share of this world's goods."

ODT TO EXPLAIN FARM PRODUCTS TRUCKING PLANS

The office of defense transportation program for the movement of farm products to market and supplies to farms by motor truck this year will be explained in a series of nine regional meetings of ODT and war food administration representatives this month. The meetings will begin in Salt Lake City, tomorrow, and end in Chicago on April 26 and 27.

Robert A. Hicks, chief, ODT farm vehicle section, who will be in charge of the conferences, said their principal purposes are to be explain the national farm transportation situation and to arrange local programs for the movement of this year's crops.

Chicago Bank Clearings Decline to 482 Million

Chicago bank clearings last week aggregated $482,900,000, compared with $513,900,000 in the preceding week and $445,500,000 a year ago, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The figures:

	Clearings.	Balances.

CIO Attacks Pay Increases of Steel Chiefs

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—The United Steelworkers [CIO], seeking to supplant the Little Steel formula and gain a 17 cents an hour pay increase, today assailed salaries of steel executives, which they said had risen as high as 134.8 per cent above pre-war earnings.

D. J. McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the union, told a war labor board panel the average steel company top flight executive receives $133,043 a year.

Quoting figures of the securities and exchange commission, he said steel companies representing 86.6 per cent of the industry paid out $10,571,263 in 1942 to all officers and directors. The union contended this was an average increase of 36.2 per cent over the $7,760,550 average annual amount paid in the 1936-'39 period.

U. S. Steel Salaries Drop.

United States Steel corporation, however, paid 13.6 per cent less to its executives in 1942 than in the average pre-war years 1936-'39—$875,746 compared to $1,014,384. The 18 other companies showed an increase in salaries to officials, up to 122.8 per cent for Rustless Iron and Steel corporation, the union official testified.

Individually, the highest paid executives of the 19 firms received comparable increases in 1942 over the 1936-'39 period, McDonald said, with the exception of E. M. Voorhees, chairman of the finance committee of United States Steel, and Arthur Roeder, president of Colorado Fuel and Iron corporation, whose salaries took a drop of 17.2 and 13.9 per cent, respectively.

The others increased from 1 per cent to 134.8 per cent, the latter boost credited to T. E. Millsop, president of Weirton Steel, a subsidiary of National Steel corporation, whose earnings rose from a $74,715 pre-war average to $175,400 in 1942, the union leader said.

Argues Living Costs Gain.

McDonald argued that the cost of living has increased 43.5 per cent since Jan. 1, 1941, in contrast to the 15 per cent wage increase allowed to cover it under the Little Steel formula.

"Specifically in the steel industry, the wage adjustment can be made without any increase in steel prices. The increased earnings that the steel workers would enjoy will not have any inflationary impact, provided that real controls regarding inflation were exercised, namely, thru rigid price control, over-all democratic rationing, elimination of black markets, and a just tax program to siphon off extortionate profits and excessive high incomes."

The hearings will resume Tuesday. Lawyers for the 94 steel companies involved will present their arguments beginning April 11.

POTATO SALES BELOW 'FLOOR' PRICES BANNED

Washington, D. C., March 25 [Special].—The Commodity Credit corporation has instructed all its distributors not to sell potatoes to the army, navy, or other buyer at less than support prices plus freight. Only exceptions are potatoes shipped by boat from a seaport or to deficient areas on specific instructions from CCC or to beet factories for processing.

Last year's record crop created a surplus which WFA has been attempting to move into consumer channels by designating potatoes a victory food special. Army and navy buyers are said to have made some purchases at prices below the support prices WFA promised growers.

DALLAS FOUNDRY FIRM ACQUIRED BY RED BANK OIL

New York, March 25 (AP).—The Red Bank Oil company of Dallas, Tex., thru its wholly owned subsidiary, the Federal Steel Products corporation, has purchased the Dedman Foundry and Machine company at Dallas for $600,000, the company announced today. Red Bank acquired the foundry to prepare to enter the industrial development of the Houston and Dallas territories.

The parent company said it had purchased equipment to expand facilities of the two subsidiary organizations "to meet increased demands of these territories.

INT. HARVESTER ALTERS METHOD OF OPERATIONS

Six Divisions Will Be Autonomous.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Grouping of various activities of the 535 million dollar International Harvester company into autonomous divisions—similar to the General Motors corporation structure—has been mostly completed, it was learned yesterday. The change marks a departure in Harvester operations because hitherto complete authority over the company's varied operations was vested in a small group of executives.

The responsibility for the success of the various divisions is given to divisional general managers and their staffs. The top executives, mostly Harvester vice presidents, retain authority over matters of company policy and are available for advice.

Organization Made to Order.

Altho the divisional operations are similar to the organizational outlines of General Motors, Chrysler corporation, Borg-Warner corporation, and other companies with divisional construction, the pattern for the Harvester system has been cut to the company's individual needs.

Harvester has six divisions compared with General Motors' 40, Chrysler's 19, and Borg-Warner's 21, but the number may be expanded as conditions warrant. The Harvester divisions are:

1. Farm implements—including harvesting machines, tillage, planting, seeding, and other equipment, but not including farm tractors.
2. Farm tractors—wheel borne vehicles of many types.
3. Motor trucks.
4. Steel—the Wisconsin Steel works at South Chicago, coal mines, iron ore mines, and two lake ore carriers.
5. Industrial power—including crawler type tractors and stationary engines.
6. Fiber and twine.

War Accelerates Change.

Authority over all activities of the company imposed a large responsibility on the small group of top executives and decentralization had been discussed for some time. The war emphasized the need, and within recent months divisions were set up to handle related products.

Harvester officials believe the new system will provide flexibility in operation which will be invaluable in the post-war period when all companies will have to move quickly to meet competition.

Each of the new divisions has a general manager. Under him are manufacturing, engineering, supply, and inventory managers and a controler.

The steel, truck, and industrial power divisions each has its own sales manager. Sales of the other three are to be handled thru a company general line sales department, because the sales volume for each of the divisions taken alone may not warrant separate dealerships in each town and city, whereas taken together there are sufficient products to make possible strong dealerships. Another reason is that many farm implements are made to be used only with a particular tractor.

Predict Stronger Staff.

Harvester executives believe decentralization will open new opportunities for promotion within the company and will help to develop a strong executive staff. One difference between the General Motors-Chrysler and Harvester situations is that Harvester division heads will not compete with each other as do the general managers of Chevrolet and Pontiac and Dodge and De Soto.

Russia Gets Large Supplies of Foods Grown in Illinois

Russia was the destination of 57.1 per cent of all food purchased in the United States under lend-lease during January, the war food administration announced yesterday. About 38.7 per cent was destined for Great Britain, 2.7 per cent for North Africa, and 1.5 per cent for Greece, West Africa, and China combined.

Midwest farmers and food processors provided a large portion of the lend-lease food supplies, E. O. Pollock, midwest regional director of food distribution, WFA, said in disclosing figures on purchases in 11 midwest states.

Illinois Share Large.

Illinois supplied 36,256,264 pounds of the 150,865,968 pounds of pork purchased in the region; 4,132,122 pounds of 7,401,843 pounds of beef, and 4,129,328 of the 11,937,658 pounds of lamb and mutton, he said.

Nine million pounds of the 144,580,000 of enriched wheat flour, mostly for Russian use, were purchased in Illinois. The state furnished all of the 7,696,680 pounds of cornstarch bought in the midwest region.

Illinois sent 31,479,600 of the 100,635,116 pounds of lard and 7,575,000 of the 16,967,000 pounds of oleomargarine purchased in the region. About 750,000 pounds of the 2,587,500 pounds of American cheese were taken from this state. There were 2,344,500 out of 9,686,694 pounds of dried whole eggs, equivalent to seven million out of 30 million shell eggs, obtained in Illinois. The government bought 187,500 pounds of the 375,000 pounds of soluble coffee in Illinois.

All of the 6,000 pounds of toilet soap purchased in the midwest came from Illinois.

Expects Food Gain

New York, March 25 (AP).—Civilian food supplies for the next few months will probably be larger than in the same period last year, Paul S. Willis, president of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, predicted today. He added, however, that food supplies for all of 1944 are expected to be about the same as in 1943.

Grains Extend Rise; Some at Ceiling Levels

Grain prices advanced moderately on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday as wet weather delayed marketing of corn and the feed grain shortage failed to improve.

May wheat and oats held at ceiling prices to ⅛ cent a bushel lower as longs cashed profits and reinstated with purchases of deferred deliveries. May barley was ⅛ cent higher to touch the ceiling price of $1.28 for the second consecutive day.

New crop wheat deliveries gained ½ to ⅝ cent. Oats finished ¼ to ⅜ cent higher and rye was ⅛ to ⅝ cent higher. Barley advanced 1 to 1⅝ cents and closed at the top.

Supply Far Too Small.

Altho 50,000 bushels of cash corn were purchased for deferred delivery to the market, this is far under industrial requirements. Brokers expect the visible supply to show a decrease of 1 million bushels or more in tomorrow's statement and reduce the total to around 17 million bushels, the lowest it has been at this time of the year since 1937.

Wet soil conditions have delayed seeding of oats and other small grains to such an extent brokers believe farmers will be forced to revise their acreage plans and plant corn or other crops.

The outlook for the winter wheat crop continues to improve. One Chicago statistician has estimated the condition of the crop on April 1 will indicate a yield of 580 million bushels. This compares with 527 million bushels forecast by the department of agriculture on Dec. 1 and 530 million bushels harvested last year.

Feed Grain Shipments Light.

Movement of feed grains to market last week was the smallest in several months. Twelve leading markets received 2¾ million bushels of corn or less than essential industries require for one week. This showed a decrease of 1,200,000 bushels from the previous week and 1,800,000 bushels compared with the same week last year. Since the crop year opened Oct. 1, receipts have been 167 million bushels, compared with 201 million bushels in the 1942-'43 crop year.

Frank S. Whiting, vice president and director of the American Furniture Mart Building company, has been appointed chief of the furniture section of the war production board's consumer durable goods division. The appointment is on a dollar a year basis.

William D. Beck, former district manager of the car service division, American Railway association, who retired March 1 after 56 years in the transportation industry, will be honored at a testimonial luncheon given by Chicago transportation men in the Palmer House April 6.

PULPWOOD MILL RECEIPTS DURING FEBRUARY CLIMB

New York, March 25 (AP).—Mill receipts of domestic pulpwood showed a slight increase in February, the war activities committee of the pulpwood consuming industries reported today.

Deliveries of pulpwood to mills totaled 1,312,000 cords, an 8 per cent increase over January's 1,216,128 cords and 24 per cent above the 1,055,000 in February last year. Canadian imports of 152,000 cords brought over-all mill receipts in the United States to 1,464,000 cords.

SLOAN ADVISES EARLY PLAN ON CIVILIAN GOODS

Need Improvement, He Asserts.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr.

Altho winning the war must be the prime objective of industry, it is essential that development work on the design of new civilian products and the redesign of existing ones be started as soon as man power and materials can be released for experimental work, Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors corporation, said yesterday in a statement released in advance of the annual report to stockholders.

"While the basis of the first post-war automotive production must be existing models, it is important, not only in motor cars but in all industrial products, that every effort should be put forth to make available to the public advanced designs at the earliest time practicable," Sloan said.

Planning Termed Essential.

Proper and intelligent planning for reconversion constitutes an essential policy in the nation's long range thinking, he asserted. Management has the responsibility of planning for reconversion and the post-war period to meet the urgent need for providing jobs for veterans and workers released from war plants.

"Delays in converting plants to civilian production will cause unnecessary unemployment and importantly retard the restoration of the peace time economy," Sloan said. "It is extremely important that the time of reconversion be held to a minimum."

Dual Operation Suggested.

He said that should the war in Europe end before that in the Pacific it may be necessary to reconvert on a basis of dual operations. Under such operations, production for the Pacific campaigns and for civilian use would be carried on at the same time. Curtailment of war production after the end of European hostilities would require that manufacturing facilities no longer neded for the war shift to civilian production, otherwise unemployment would increase rapidly.

Sloan said it would be helpful to future planning if the government would establish policies and outline procedures as soon as possible with respect to the disposition of plants operated but not owned by General Motors. It would then be possible to determine to what extent, if any, these plants can be integrated into the corporation's post-war expansion plans.

Transfer of Third Liberty Ship to China Announced

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—The war shipping administration today announced the transfer of another Liberty ship to the government of China, the third to be so allocated. Altho the Chinese government will manage the vessel and furnish its crew, it will charter the ship to the WSA.

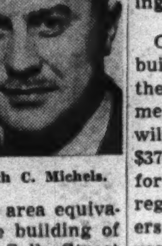
NAVY REQUESTS RENT STUDY BY REALTY BOARD

BY AL CHASE.

[Real Estate Editor.]



Hugh C. Michels.

Seeking possible consolidation and greater utilization of the 350,000 square feet of loop floor space under lease by the navy, the Chicago Real Estate board has begun, at the request of the 9th naval district, a study of leases held by the navy on downtown office space, it was announced yesterday. About 30 leases, covering a floor area equivalent to a modern office building of the size of the One La Salle Street building, will be scrutinized by the commercial property committee, headed by Hugh C. Michels, a director of the realty board.

Leases Expire June 30.

Under naval regulations all leases made by the navy expire on June 30 of each year and then are subject to renewal. A recent order from the navy department in Washington, D. C., requires that before leases are entered into or renewed, it be determined that no other navy establishment in the vicinity has space which can be shared. The order also specifies that a certification must be supplied from the local real estate board that present and proposed rentals are just and reasonable.

To carry out this new naval regulation the directors of the realty board appointed the new commercial property committee. Under Michels are the following realtors: William Conlon, John C. Fischer, John C. Goodall, Arthur Hall, John Hooker, Arch Jennings, Frank O'Brien, George Quinn, and Louis Sudler.

Subcommittees Appointed.

Subcommittees of three members each are being appointed by Michels to study each individual lease. The first group—Arthur Hall of Hall & Ellis, Leo J. Sheridan of L. J. Sheridan & Co., and president of the national and city building managers' associations, and William Doughty of Aldis & Co.—is reviewing leases in the Board of Trade building.

The navy has approximately 105,000 square feet of space under lease in this building, by far the largest area it occupies in the loop. About 70,000 square feet of this total is being studied at this time.

"Most of the navy leases here were made at the outset of the war, when it was a matter of urgency to get departments under way," said Michels. "The current review by the Chicago Real Estate board will be the first time these leases have been subjected to scrutiny by a group of such experts who are donating their services to the government.

Other Cities Making Surveys.

"About 38 other cities thruout the country are conducting similar surveys under the direction of local real estate boards. We understand that in several cases these studies already have effected economies for the navy."

Michels explained that if rentals are higher than they should be, based on accommodation furnished, the committee will recommend a reduction. If they are too low, the committee will suggest an increase.

"The navy's action in regard to reëxamination of leases may establish a precedent for other war agencies, occupying hundreds of thousands of square feet in office buildings here and elsewhere, which might result in considerable savings," Michels said.

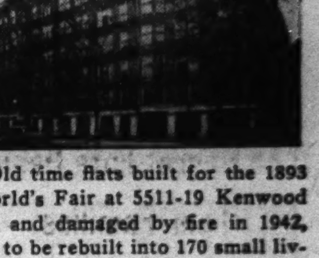
To Rebuild Old Timer



Old time flats built for the 1893 World's Fair at 5511-19 Kenwood av., and damaged by fire in 1942, are to be rebuilt into 170 small living units for war workers.

One of the largest and oldest flat buildings in the Hyde Park district, the six story Kenwood Garden apartments, at 5511-19 Kenwood avenue, will be remodeled at a cost of $372,000 into 170 residential units for war workers, Charles Collins, regional director of the Home Owners Loan corporation, announced yesterday. Completion is expected Oct. 1.

War housing center received the application from the owner, 5519 Kenwood, Inc., and forwarded it to HOLC which leased it for seven years at an annual rental of $750. HOLC will furnish $197,000. The corporation, of which Alex T. Spare is president, will supply $175,000 secured thru a mortgage negotiated with Irvin Jacobs & Co. Charles Wheeler Nicol is architect. McKey & Poague, Inc., was broker in the recent purchase of the property and also negotiated the conversion program with HOLC.

The remodeled flats, ranging in size from 1½ to 5 rooms, will rent at from $30 to $57.50. Rental includes gas and electricity. The general contract was awarded to Morris Perlman, Inc., who started work yesterday.

TERM POST-WAR BUILDING MAJOR SOURCE OF JOBS

Private building construction activities will provide the largest source of employment opportunities when peace comes, the Chicago Building congress asserted yesterday in a preliminary report by its post-war program committee. Public works projects should be considered as a reservoir of building construction jobs to be used only as the general interests of the community may require, it declared.

The report urged every section of the building construction industry to join in the adoption and organization of a work-pile plan, designed to make an inventory of all possible repair, remodeling, and new construction for initiation in the immediate post-war period by private individuals, firms, corporations, and institutions.

Elmer C. Jensen, former president of the building congress, is chairman of the post-war program committee.

2 PRISON LIFERS REVEAL THINGS THEY'VE MISSED

Both Regret Fate Denied Them Families.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Charles Hanson and Guy Van Tassell, then 35 and 34 respectively, entered the Illinois state penitentiary in 1907 to begin serving life sentences for murder. They are there now—white haired and in their seventies.

In the world outside the prison the horse and buggy have given way to the automobile and the music box to the phonograph and radio. The airplane has ceased to be a curiosity. As the slow years went by there were changes even in prison life. For one thing, there was a move from the old penitentiary in Joliet to the new one at Stateville.

Prisoners Nearly 37 Years.

One day last week these men who have been nearly 37 years in prison—who have followed the course of the first World war and the great depression and the second World war from their cells and workshops within the walls—talked frankly to a reporter about their regrets for the things they have missed.

"I consider my life a failure," Hanson said. He, like Van Tassell, had never married, and regret for the wife and children he might have had tinged his voice when he said that family life was the thing that he was most sorry to have missed.

He conceded that he had escaped a lot of trouble, too, by spending half his life in prison. "It sort of balances out," he said, unconvinced.

If he ever gets out of prison he will try to get a job as machinist and go straight. He has not given up hope and his case is pending before the parole board.

Regrets Sorrow for Mother.

Van Tassell regrets that he never had the chance to make amends to his mother for her sufferings. "Even if I had got out 20 years ago I would have tried to make up to her for the sorrow I had caused her," he said. The chance will never come now. His mother died in 1934 after a 17 year illness. "If a man ever had a fine mother, I did," he said. Now that she is dead Van Tassell neither writes nor receives letters.

He regrets that he never had a family or a chance to engage in business. He believes that he might have been successful. He is thinking of applying for a parole hearing and if he is ever released he is confident that he can make a living as a shirt cutter. He learned the trade in prison.

Both Had Records.

Both men were living in Indianapolis in 1906. In November of that year they came to Chicago and participated in a shooting affray at 63d st. and South Park av., in which a policeman, Luke Fitzpatrick, was killed. Both had bad records. Hanson had served time in Indiana, Ohio, Iowa, Tennessee, and Texas; Van Tassell in Indiana and Tennessee.

Hanson's record since his imprisonment in Illinois has been a colorful one—at least in its early part. He tried to escape in 1909, 1914, and 1916, and finally succeeded in 1924. Eleven months later he was arrested on a burglary charge in Hammond, Ind., and returned to the prison. Since 1925 his troubles have been only minor ones.

Van Tassell tried to escape in 1916 and again in 1921. Then he gave his word that he would behave and has kept it. His record is clean for the last 23 years.

Radio Brightens Lives.

Both men remember the days when refractory prisoners were compelled to wear the ball and chain, and when they worked under the old contract labor system. They agreed that things have changed greatly for the better. For one thing, radio has come along to brighten prison existence. Hanson listens to the news commentators because of his interest in current events [he also reads four newspapers]. Van Tassell likes Bob Hope and Bing Crosby as well as the newscasters.

Hanson works in the bake shop and Van Tassell in the hospital and both like their jobs. Van Tassell, a baseball enthusiast, coaches the prison team. However, they do not pretend that their lives are enviable ones.

"Prison is tough under any conditions," Van Tassell said.

Both talked well and fluently and showed the results of much reading. They smiled often. Their minds are clear and quick, their general health good.

Spend Half Their Lives in Prison

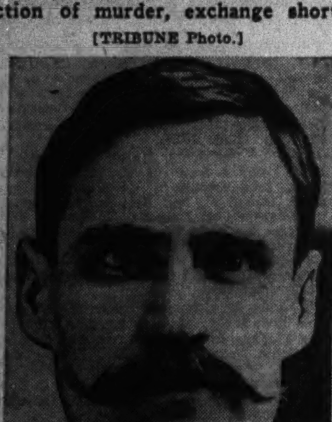
Hanson appeared like this when he entered prison.



Van Tassell had this sweeping mustache when he began life term.

DISCRIMINATION IN WAR JOBS LAID TO SOME UNIONS

Most important war industries now employ Negroes and members of other minority groups, but certain labor unions practice "some of the worst forms of discrimination," Elmer W. Henderson, regional director of the President's committee on fair employment practice, said yesterday at a regional committee conference in the Morrison hotel. He said that during the six months ended March 18, his Chicago regional office, covering eight midwestern states, handled 464 complaints of discrimination in industry, with the majority from Negroes, but several from Jewish workers, aliens, Japanese-Americans, and various religious sects.

Chester W. Hepler, director of the war man power commission's placement division, and Austin H. Scott, consultant in the WMC's bureau of man power utilization, told the conference that the policy of their agency has been that full employment of minority groups is necessary to achieve war production goals.

Lt. Col. A. H. Brawner, chief of the labor branch of the 6th service command, predicted increased employment of minority groups as the man power shortage becomes more acute.

SIX FLEE $1,700 FIRE.

Fire started by an overheated boiler pipe routed six persons from their homes in a two story frame building at 3420 N. Marshfield av. yesterday. The damage was $1,700.

JURORS TO STUDY COUNTERFEITING OF GAS COUPONS

The federal investigation of gasoline ration coupon counterfeiting and its ramifications in the Chicago area has reached the stage where prosecutors are ready to start presenting evidence to the grand jury, it was reported in the United States courthouse yesterday.

William J. McCormack, assistant United States attorney who has been working with investigators of the office of price administration and the United States secret service under its Chicago chief, Thomas J. Callaghan, indicated that the grand jury would begin consideration of coupon counterfeiting this week.

Counterfeiters Sought.

The investigation, it was disclosed, has been intensified in an effort to find the actual counterfeiters—printers or lithographers—who have engaged in printing the fraudulent coupons.

The grand jury inquiry, however, apparently will be directed toward prosecution of filling station operators on charges of possession or transfer of counterfeit coupons in violation of OPA regulations.

Persons convicted on this charge are subject to a sentence of two years in prison or a $10,000 fine, or both.

Operators Are Only Suspects.

McCormack disclosed that operators themselves are the only suspects linked with the counterfeiters thus far. He added that it has been "relatively easy" for OPA investigators and secret service agents to mark them as violators because of the efficiency of a coupon inspection system in the banks.

Agents believe they will eventually trace down the printers of the counterfeit coupons from the samples turned in by dealers. McCormack commented that the station operators who deal in counterfeit coupons would prove "the biggest losers." In addition to facing prosecution, he said, their supplies of gasoline will be reduced by the number of counterfeit coupons traced back to them.

Legion Post to Hear Talk by Illinois Labor Leader

Reuben G. Soderstrom, president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, will address the Advertising Men's American Legion post, No. 38, in Hotel Sherman tomorrow noon on post-war problems, and labor's contribution to the war.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

C. J. K. writes: "My employer advises me that because I am 25 years of age the probabilities are that I shall not be deferred again even tho my work is in an essential industry. I am a graduate engineer, but I have not made application for a commission in the navy because one of my eyes is 11/20. I have been told that this defect would keep me from being an officer."

ANSWER: You have been misinformed because recently the requirements for the navy radar training were modified. Graduate engineers up to 35 years of age with a visual acuity of 10/20 in each eye, correctible to 20/20, may be considered for commissions even tho they may have defective color perception. It is suggested, as long as it has been indicated you will be made available for service, that you take preliminary steps and file an application with the naval office of officer procurement. Persons who are to be liable for service in the near future will find the new navy leaflet of requirements for appointment as commissioned or warrant officers helpful in estimating their acceptability for navy service. It may be had by sending us a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

K. M. H. writes: "I have heard that it is the policy of some boards in this area [Hales Corners, Wis.] to reclassify all young men under 26 now in II-C into 1-A, regardless of their qualifying for this classification, and that they have no right of appeal when so reclassified."

ANSWER: Probably this local board is only following directions given in section 622.25 of the regulations requiring the immediate review of all II-C classifications. If a registrant is producing a minimum of 16 war units of essential production by his own direct, personal efforts he is entitled to be retained in II-C. If the local board classifies such a registrant in 1-A he should file an appeal within 10 days of the mailing of the classification notice. Another step is for him to consult the county United States department of agriculture war labor board and have that agency assist in filing the appeal. Men under 26 in essential agricultural activity were specifically exempted from the order banning deferments under 26.

J. E. V. asks: "Can a young man who is overseas and becomes of age this spring vote in the fall elections? He, of course, never registered."

ANSWER: Yes, he can vote even tho he never has been registered, provided he is a citizen, 21 years of age or older, and he or his family considers him a "legal" resident of the state—that is, he or his family lived in the state one year, in the county 90 days, and in the precinct for 30 days.

Note: The central office branch of the veterans' administration, which has just been opened at 610 S. Canal st., does not interview veterans or their dependents about pension or compensation claims. The function of the office is merely to adjudicate claims forwarded from Hines and other regular veterans' facilities in this area. Personal contacts with veterans and their dependents, covering physical examinations, insurance matters, hospital and out-patient treatment, and vocational training, are made only at Hines.

WARNS TAVERNS NOT TO GO ABOVE NEW OPA PRICES

Tavern operators will not be allowed to charge more than the specific increase in drink prices permitted by the office of price administration to cover new federal excise taxes on alcoholic beverages which go into effect April 1, Alex Elson, regional OPA attorney, said yesterday. He called attention to the fact that taverns thruout the region are covered by the restaurant regulation which requires that their prices must not exceed those charged during the base period of April 4 to 10, 1943, and that these prices must be posted in the tavern.

In Washington last night the OPA decided that bartenders can't reduce the size of drinks to absorb the tax increase.

"The lame attempt by some tavern owners to justify a nickel increase in drink prices to absorb a 1 or 2 cent raise created by higher taxes by the plea that customers don't like pennies doesn't impress the OPA," Elso said.

Elson warned that ceiling price violators are subject to treble damage suits from customers, suspension proceedings, civil enforcement actions, and criminal penalties.

WAR MOTHER FOUND WOUNDED.

Mrs. Mildred Rozich, 55, a widow, was found suffering from wounds in her throat and abdomen yesterday in her home at 10747 Calhoun av. The wounds had been inflicted with a razor. Her son John, 20, said she had been grieving over two other sons who are with the marine corps in the South Pacific.

18,000 FAMILIES ON WAITING LIST FOR TELEPHONES

More than 18 thousand families in Chicago are waiting for telephones to be installed in their homes, and for most of them the wait will be a long one, an official of the Illinois Bell Telephone company said yesterday. Only as a subscriber gives up his phone can one of the 18,289 get service by having the "disconnect" installed in his home. And with telephones getting scarce as steaks, home owners who have them aren't giving them up unless they have to.

Putting telephones on a "waiting list" is a war novelty. It was never done until in 1942 when the war production board ordered such action. Every applicant is listed consecutively and phones are doled out in order as fast as they are disconnected—which isn't very fast, phone officials said.

War Workers Lack Service.

Ironically, war workers living in new "war homes" are hardest hit by Chicago's war time regulations of WPB affecting the manufacture of telephone facilities. Several thousand of these new residences have electric refrigerators, modern stoves, modern heating, and other new household conveniences—but they lack a phone.

"Scores of new homes have been built in areas where there are neither cables nor wires for telephone service," an official said. "War restrictions prevent the construction of either cables or wires for civilian use—everything of that nature is for combat use. So, all we can do is wait until restrictions are lifted."

Another bottleneck in the phone blockade is the switchboard. No new ones can be built for civilian use.

None Made for Civilians.

No phones have been manufactured for civilian use since November, 1942, it was said. But last year the phone company took out of storage 64,400 old "upright" phones that had been superceded by the more modern "hand sets" and put them back into service. This helped for some time in caring for the normal growth.

Despite all the war restrictions and handicaps the Illinois Bell Telephone company reported that its total operations in Chicago are slowly growing. This month's total of 1,153,184 phones in operation compares with 1,116,492 in March of last year.

KELLY RESTATES HIS OPPOSITION TO FRANK M'KAY

Convention Delegates to Decide Issue.

Lansing, Mich., March 25 [Special].—Gov. Harry F. Kelly today again expressed belief that Frank D. McKay, Grand Rapids, should be replaced at Republican national committeeman in intersts of party unity. It was his first comment since the Republicans county conventions last Monday.

Kelly was asked about a charge made by Henry D. Shelden, Detroit, chairman of an anti-McKay precinct organization, that the governor had thrown his weight at the Wayne county [Detroit] convention to forces presumably friendly to McKay. Shelden said so-called "Independents," under Kelly domination, had aligned themselves with forces of Edward N. Barnard, McKay ally, in controlling the Wayne county convention and picking a delegation to the state convention presumably friendly to McKay.

Not at Convention.

The governor, a Detroit resident until elected to his present office, said he was not at the convention and had no part in its activities. He said he has not receded, however, from his pre-convention advice to county chairmen that a change in the national committeeman appeared advisable.

John A. Wagner, Battle Creek, a leader in the effort to oust McKay, expressed confidence that support in his drive would be forthcoming from Wayne county. He hinted, and other capitol politicians offered confirmation, that the Wayne county delegation to the state convention in Detroit April 20 will not be under McKay rule.

Choice of Convention Delegates.

Michigan's 41 delegates to the national convention will make the choice of national committeeman. It was emphasized by Wagner that Gov. Kelly probably will pick the seven delegates at large, undoubtedly including himself and Senators Ferguson, an avowed foe of McKay, and Vandenberg, who has not declared himself but who is counted by Wagner as a member of the anti-McKay element.

Wagner said he believed "nearly 30" of the delegates would oppose McKay's reëlection.

Wagner said the anti-McKay forces would make much of the fact that the Kent county [Grand Rapids] convention, admittedly McKay dominated, had refused to adopt a resolution endorsing Gov. Kelly's administration, an action taken in virtually all other county conventions.

Asked for Unity.

He said this reflected the true nature of McKay's position rather than his statement of a week ago calling for "Republican unity."

There have been many refutations from anti-McKay sources of the national committeeman's contention that the effort to oust him constituted an attempt to deliver the Michigan delegation at the national convention to Wendell Willkie.

IOWAN, 2 OTHER FLYERS KILLED IN BOMBER CRASH

NEGROES RALLY TODAY AGAINST CAPITOL ATTACK

Pastors of Chicago Negro churches will lead a citizens protest meeting at 3:30 p. m. today in the Liberty Baptist church, 56 E. 46th st., with the avowed purpose of demanding disciplinary action against the congessional doorkeeper who assaulted Edgar G. Brown, Chicago Negro leader, in the capitol grounds in Washington, D. C., last Wednesday.

Brown, back in Chicago, is confined to his room in the Pershing hotel. His physician has consented to his appearance for a half hour at today's meeting. The Rev. J. L. Horace, president of the Illinois Baptist convention, and the Rev. A. E. Williams, pastor of Carey Temple A. M. E. church, will be the speakers.

Nearly 200 Negro ministers are pledged to include in their services this morning a plea for concerted action by Chicago Negroes to demand the discharge of the doorkeeper, Randlett T. Lawrence, of Monthalia, Tex. Friends of Brown said institution of legal action would await his complete recovery.

Tax on Juke Boxes Faces Fight in Court Tomorrow

An amended complaint attacking the city's ordinance providing for a $50 a year tax on juke boxes as discriminatory and oppressive will be filed tomorrow in the Circuit court, in behalf of five plaintiffs, Atty. Joseph B. Fleming, said yesterday. Judge Julius H. Miner on March 15 sustained the city's right to tax the boxes when he denied a temporary injunction sought by proprietors of two confectionery stores, a tavern, and juke box distributors, to prohibit enforcement of the ordinance.

Wisconsin

Owner Moving South MUST SELL

The most beautiful and practical group of dairy farms in Southern Wisconsin [Nippersink Farms, 1 mile north of Genoa City, just over Wisconsin line], consisting of 1,091 acres separated into five complete but adjoining farms.

These farms may be purchased separately or together; and each one is fully equipped with all necessary modern buildings, livestock, and machinery and has its own individual manager and help. Each farm is now on a going basis, with a large milk check, etc., ready for a new owner to step in and take over, and consists of:

[1] 380 acres, with 340 tillable; 9 room modern house, 2 modern dairy barns with 110 steel stanchions and 8 steel pens, milk house with capacity for 51 cans and large wash room, 42 ft. horse barn and garage, 42 ft. hog house, 100 ft. combination hog house and machine shed and 20 individual hog houses, 28 ft. chicken house, 52 ft. machine shed, new 50 ft. modern corn crib and granary with elevator, 116 ft. hay barn, 3 large silos with 500 ton capacity, and new farm office. All buildings excellent condition, newly painted in attractive white-blue combination.

[2] 240 acres, with 195 tillable, balance wooded pasture, 2 houses, 2 dairy barns with 60 stanchions and pens for young stock, milk house, 60 ft. hog house and corn crib, chicken house, 2 garages, 42 ft. machine shed and shop, and 3 silos.

[3] 250 acres, with 135 tillable and 85 already drained ready for cultivation this year, 8 room remodeled house, 60 stanchion dairy barn, milk house, hog house, chicken house, machine shed, and silo.

[4] 101 acres, with 85 tillable, balance wooded pasture, 4 room cottage with furnace, 26 stanchion dairy barn, milk house, silo, chicken house, machine shed, and corn crib.

[5] 120 acres, with 85 tillable, balance wooded pasture, completely remodeled house, dairy barn, horse barn, and machine shed, and silo.

Each of these farms has a complete set of buildings, all in first class condition; also the proper number of head of very high grade livestock and a full set of machinery in first class condition, some new.

INVENTIONS AND IDEAS

Have you an invention, patented or patentable?

Have you an idea that merits development?

We are a large, highly rated manufacturing concern equipped to manufacture almost anything of metal or plastic.

At present we are engaged 100% in war work, but are in the market for inventions or ideas that can help the war effort or have post-war possibilities.

If your invention or idea appeals to us we will make you a cash or royalty offer.

We should like to hear from concerns forced by priorities to discontinue manufacture. If the articles you have manufactured appeal to us we will buy your patents, tools and dies.

We should also like to hear from distributors and manufacturers' agents who wish to make a worthwhile post-war connection.

We intend to branch out in new fields and are interested in the following lines: Radio and Television, Automobile Accessories, Aircraft Devices, Toys and Games, Electrical and Mechanical Devices, Household Items, Novelty Items, Automatic Dispensers, Hardware Specialties, Air-Conditioning, Plastics, Chemicals, Cosmetics.

Whether your invention is patented or unpatented, your rights will be scrupulously respected.

NEW FIELDS FOR YOU TO EXPLORE!

The Surgical Dressings Industry offers splendid opportunities to men and boys without previous skill or experience. We need trainees for various machine tending and feeding occupations and for service jobs. The work is comparatively simple—only a minimum amount of time is required for training. We pay you while you learn.

ADHESIVE DEPT.
We need men to learn various phases of adhesive preparation and the production of tapes. A busy department in war and peace times.

LIGATURE DEPT.
An unusual opportunity for a man to train in the production and sterilization of sutures.

SHIPPING DEPT.
Men and boys to train in order filling, packing, and shipping. Opportunities to get a broad view of our business and ultimately advance into skilled and technical work.

Buffalo Bill

The Story of a Reputation That Ran Away with a Man

By DELOS AVERY

BUFFALO BILL—Col. William Frederick Cody—was a man who got lost in his own reputation. In the end the tangled web of fact and fiction that wove itself about him became so hopelessly scrambled that he himself could not always be sure of what was true and what was false.

Just as Homer's Odysseus started out as a flesh-and-blood man and was turned into an incredible legend by "a liar with lyre," so Buffalo Bill, who was also flesh and blood, was engulfed in a sea of wild and contradictory tales, many of them utterly impossible, written not by one liar but by many. And all these liars loved him, and all of them vied with each other in gilding and elaborating the legend. They created for him the amazing reputation in which he had to live whether he liked it or not.

For a while he struggled to free himself so that he could live his own life, but that privilege was withheld. He surrendered, made money, became internationally famous, even went on the stage—which he loathed, because it meant posing before "a lot of people with spyglasses."

• • •

The world premiere of Cody as a play actor took place in Chicago at Nixon's theater on the night of Dec. 16, 1872. Cody played Cody in "a new sensational drama" entitled "The Scouts of the Prairie," written by Elmo Z. C. Judson under the pen name of Ned Buntline. Critics agreed it was terrible. Said one:

"It is reported that Buntline wrote it in four hours, but it is difficult to understand how any one could take so long to write so bad a play."

Linda Darnell as she appears in the role of Dawn Starlight in "Buffalo Bill."

The first-night audience, however, yelled with delight. And Cody, who never wanted to be an actor, was doomed to remain one for the rest of his long life.

It must be admitted that the critics were a bit unfair in their condemnation of the play—for they never heard it, Cody and the rest of the company having forgotten their lines. The famous hero of the plains, splendidly arrayed in his buckskins and sombrero, his long wavy hair, lustrous under the stage lamps, caressing his shoulders, just stood there mumbling foolishly. And Buntline, frustrated and frantic, whispered desperately in the wings:

"Send on the Indians!"

That saved the show. Imitation Indians, who had been hired to bite the dust and die for 25 cents a death in the first act, had to die again in the second and die yet again thereafter whenever the action lagged. The more they died the happier the audience, and if the actors got no extra pay for the extra dying it's a shame.

Cody's wife had a third row seat, and when he spotted her he hailed her with:

"O, Mamma, I'm certainly a bad actor!"

The joy of the spectators over this ad-libbing was so riotous that the line was retained permanently, and Mrs. Cody had to sit thru the show every night whether she liked it or not, which she did not.

It was the year after the great Chicago fire, and Nixon's was a makeshift theater with canvas stretched above its walls instead of a roof, but an open sky would have pleased Cody better, for he liked the feel of a fresh wind, and he liked an ample acreage for his riding and roping and shooting.

• • •

What persuaded him to accept—temporarily—the stifling discomfort of an inclosed stage was a meeting earlier that year with James Gordon Bennett, owner of the New York Herald. Bennett was one of a group of "dude millionaires" who had visited the west for the adventure of buffalo hunting, with Cody as their guide. He invited Cody to be his guest in New York and supplied him liberally with

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

The Monster Abdicates!

(Copyright: 1944: The Chicago Tribune.)

MAKING FUN of such a gruesome business as murder has made a fortune for Boris Karloff.

Four years ago Karloff suddenly realized that his homicidal hobbies weren't paying off as lucratively or fast as he would like. After that spine-chilling Frankenstein monster, as a mummy, a ghoul, Bluebeard, and other fiendish characters, he found himself demoted to lesser monstrosities in double-billed horror pictures.

Then along came an offer to appear in a New York play. He had never done one on the Broadway stage, and he, the terror of countless film fans, found the thought frightened him. Besides, it was a play that kidded insanity and murder—a very touchy subject. But after settling for a nice, juicy piece of the play, plus a goodly salary, he lost his fear and took off.

Today, after three years of "Arsenic and Old Lace"—which is still packing them in in New York and on the road—Karloff is back for more pictures.

He's sharing starring honors with Susanna Foster and Turhan Bey in Universal's technicolor musical drama "The Climax," which George Waggner is producing and directing.

"Launching a stage play is a big gamble," says Karloff. "But after reading the 'Arsenic' script it struck me as one of the finest plays written in recent years—also new, making merry with insanity and murder. But if the play flopped I had a picture meal ticket to return to in Hollywood."

• • •

Karloff put $6,000 in the play and got that investment back in three weeks. He's still collecting fat dividends. Bankers should be so lucky these days.

"So far three other men have played Jonathan in 'Arsenic and Old Lace,'" Karloff continued. "While I was doing it in New York, Eric von Stroheim was doing it in Chicago. Then I had to come to Hollywood to fulfill my picture commitment, and my company came to the coast. For 66 weeks after that I toured the country."

He's done more than 1,400 performances. As 12 men are murdered in each performance, he's had a hand in more than 16,800 "homicides."

"To gross $35,000 in nine performances during a seven day week on the road was average. Besides regular theaters, we played in movie houses, large auditoriums seating 6,000. In all the play has grossed more than $2,000,000."

In the face of all this, Karloff felt he was staying off the screen too long. There must be some Scotch in his family's background somewhere.

Lon Chaney, to whom Karloff abdicates as a monster.

So he works one against the other. While the name he built up in pictures drew patrons into the theaters to see "Arsenic," he realized those same thousands might want to see him again in pictures. See how it works? Another good picture would help build up another audience for any new play that he might appear in.

• • •

And this future play is practically written. It's again being done by Lindsay and Crouse, and will be produced by them. After Karloff does "Destiny," a second picture for Universal, he has this play to look forward to. "Destiny" will include Frankenstein, the wolf man, ape man, etc. Sounds to me like the horror picture to end all horrors.

"However," Karloff chuckles, "I won't play a monster. I'm to be a scientist. I'll leave those tortuous makeups to younger bloods like Lon Chaney."

In "The Climax" he appears as himself, with his own gray hair—and a trim gray mustache added.

Instead of a fiend, he's a soft-spoken physician of the Royal opera, who commits only one murder. In this lone homicide he kills an opera singer with whom he is deeply in love. The audience realizes that he hates to do it. (O, yeah? If the jumping jive generation gets together and does away with a couple of hefty tra-la-la girls, will the jury blame it on "The Climax"? How often I've heard even grown people exclaim, "If I could only silence that voice!" But that expression comes mostly from husbands of prima donnas.)

Later Karloff tries the same crime on Susanna Foster, but overpowering love beats him at his own game. It's a jumble of mixed but violent emotions.

Karloff was born Charles Edward Pratt in Dulwich, England. His father was in the British Indian civil service, which was to have been his career also.

He acquired that suave and gentlemanly poise at Merchant Taylor's school in London, at Uppingham, and King's College of Consular Service. He was to enter the consulate at Hongkong.

But in 1909 Pratt—now Karloff—arrived in Canada, where he farmed for six months, and later, after his father's death, worked with a pick and shovel, as a real estate salesman, then as an electrician.

In 1912 Karloff palmed himself off as an English actor, joined the Ray Brandon Players in Kamloops, B. C., toured Canada, and gained a following as a suave villain.

Two years later, with $800, Karloff reached Chicago, but failed to find a stage door open. He tried to join the British army, was rejected, and finally hired out as a stock actor, playing 106 different shows in 53 weeks.

When the flu epidemic struck in 1918, Karloff found himself stranded in Los Angeles. For months he piled sacks at a flour mill and loaded freight cars before he hired out as an extra at Universal. Extras led to bits, while Karloff drove a truck between picture jobs.

Disappointed, Karloff went back to the stage for several years, and finally won attention in "The Criminal Code" when it played here.

• • •

He played the same role, a convict, in the film for Columbia, after which Universal signed him. He played more bits. I remember him in a picture I'd like to forget—I have forgotten the title—in which I played Lew Ayres' mother. I had done away with his father, and Myrna Loy, who up to that time had only played sirens, got the leading lady role. Karloff played a nice guy—so you can see the whole thing was cock-eyed!

It was James Whale who put Karloff into "Frankenstein" and kept him there for years, even tho he's been killed off time and time again. But that's another story.

When his contract expired after the Frankenstein pictures Karloff made a couple of trips to England and found himself back at Columbia, when "Arsenic and Old Lace" came his way.

Now he's back where he started in pictures—at Universal—but with a weekly pay check three times fatter than when he left here four years ago.

Karloff's a man in the millions. Who says crime doesn't pay?

Now that he's made money on the stage, too, Karloff is back for more horror films—but no more monsters. Here he is the killer in "The Climax," at left with Susanna Foster, and right with June Vincent.

The real Karloff, a quiet Englishman who loves dogs and gardens.

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I enjoy your column very much but never got the courage to write. I would appreciate it if you would tell me who played the part of Chicken in "Guadalcanal Diary." Do you think you could print a picture of him for me? Thanking you in advance, I remain

MARGARET MOLYNEUX.

Richard Jaeckel

Dear Margaret: You make me feel like a lady wolf or sumpin'—talking about the courage it takes to write to me. And I so nice, telling you that Chicken's real name is Richard Jaeckel and that he's with Twentieth Century-Fox! This answer will, I hope, be read by the many fans who have wanted to know about Richard. AND—here's his very latest picture. Welcome, I'm sure!

Dear Miss Tinée: I would be very happy if you would tell me where I could write to Dinah Shore, Teresa Wright, and Gary Cooper. Thank you. I enjoy your column very much, and, since you like them more than orchids, carnations to you and your column (white ones, too). GENEVA.

Dear Geneva: Thanks for the flowers—they're lovely! Dinah Shore is with Warner Brothers, Burbank, Cal.; Teresa Wright, RKO, 780 Gower st., Hollywood, and Gary Cooper with Paramount, Hollywood. You're welcome.

Dear Miss Tinée:

APROPOS OF "BOMBER'S MOON"

Of all reviews, with "news and views,"
Mae Tinée's rank first;
Humor, wisdom, wit—all must admit
Who for the movies thirst.

In her critiques she plainly speaks,
Nor confuses us (the humble)
With language grown too, too high-flown,
So it makes the lowly grumble.

In point of fact, so little's lacked
That we often wonder
Why her resources, as time on courses,
Never let her blunder.

Her "Good Morning" leads ne'er to "corning,"
But prefaces delight;
"Kind," "acting," "sets"—she ne'er forgets,
To set the reader right!

But today, alack! my brains I rack
And gnaw Hitlerian rug;
All else is plain, but I pore in vain
O'er: "REGAL 9 PT. SLUG"!
ELOISE.

Dear Eloise: Your poetry is lov-aly, and gnaw no longer—rug! The type the piece was set in is called "Regal 9 Pt. Slug."

SINCERITY BEGINS AT HOME

By MAUREEN DALY

(Author of "Seventeenth Summer.")

YOU CAN'T always tell a gal by the way she acts on a date. Take the interesting case of Miss A., for instance—as neat a bit of date bait as ever walked out of a high school. She was all a fellow could ask for, with a few added attractions, such as long blonde hair, a pleasant line of chatter, and a smile that would really melt you, just thrown in for good measure. In fact, this doll was so strictly wonderful that you couldn't tell the difference between her and Lana Turner at 30 paces on a clear day. There wasn't a boy in her class who didn't like her more than somewhat, and a few of them even worked up the courage to tell her about it.

• • •

In fact, to all outward appearances she was an ideal girl, charming, good-natured, and loads of fun. She was such a good sport that any average Jackson could count on her to make an evening interesting. If her date wanted to walk her to a movie on a Friday night she'd just give him that out-of-this-world smile and jog right along. If he had 70 cents between him and next week-end she could spend an evening over a coke in the drug store and make him think she loved it. And if a Joe Blow turned up late for a date she'd be waiting, all smiles and sunshine. There never was a girl so thoughtful and obliging!

You could always count on her to stay after school to work on committees, to put in extra time on the school paper, or even to volunteer to wash dishes after the home economics club tea—a rare chicken indeed. She was the kind of pleasing pigeon who wrote long, newsy letters to eight different service men each week, telling them about the old gang and how much she missed each one of them; letters that left the boys dreaming about home and how wonderful this particular sweet stuff would be to come home to. Of course all this charm and super-personality came out when she was in school, with other girls, or on dates, and she had a lot of smooth characters fooled into thinking she was right out of this atmosphere!

But that was because these Jills and Jacksons never saw the gal at home! They never saw her in action. They were never around when she slipped out of that sweetness-and-light pose she saved especially to impress strangers, new fellows in class, and visiting service men. They never heard her when she pulled a long face and then refused to help with the supper dishes nor when she shouted at her younger sister to take off her pink pull-over sweater before she threw something!

No one would have believed you if you'd told him that she lay in bed reading movie magazines till 11 o'clock on Saturday mornings and then went right to the movies with the girls after lunch without even tidying up her bedroom or hanging up her own pajamas. She never had time to help at home. The poor honey chile just knocked herself out being charming with outsiders and had no zest left to be patient and good-natured after school hours. Her thoughts just weren't stacked that way. She knew how to win friends and influence people — as long as they were outside her family.

In fact, she had gone thru the same song and dance so long that a bad disposition was just routine with her whenever she was around the house. And her family liked her so well, just from habit, too, that they let her get away with it!

• • •

But then, one Friday night, came the pay-off! It happened that young Angel Face had had several dates with a smooth Joe for whom she had developed a slight glow. And tonight's date was to be special. Her mother had been working all week long on a new blue wool dress and was just putting in the last stitches at 5 minutes to 7. But 7 o'clock was the zero hour, and, because she thought it wouldn't be finished in time, honey chile went into a pout, crying a little and ranting loudly against the inefficiency of mothers in general. In the meantime her date, who had arrived early, was sitting in the living room, and before any one could warn the gal he had heard the worst! He knew a little sweetness can go a long way, but he never thought his little sweetness would go this far! And, being a polite, ever-lovin' family man himself, he was slightly disgusted.

She promptly turned on the personality and made with the pearly teeth, but her smiles didn't fool him any more. From that night onward this gal began to move into the beginning-of-the-end department as far as dating popularity was concerned. Boys didn't think she was quite so wonderful any more. They no longer fell for her good sport act, because they knew that a girl who isn't a good sport both at home and with other friends doesn't have the makings of a sincere friend. So the 20-20 little squab with the bad disposition ended up as a gone gosling. And that ends that.

Of course the gal in this story is purely fictitious, and if there is any resemblance to any characters, living and in high school, that is strictly unfortunate. Better wise up before it's too late.

Boys know that girls who are sincere friends are good sports at home as well as with them.

Self-Starting Wheels

Rubber fins on self-starting tires of air liner start to open as landing wheels are lowered. (Wide World photos.)

By FRANK STURDY

TIRES are an increasingly important factor in cost and maintenance as aircraft grow in size and weight, and land and take off at higher speeds. The wheels of an air liner are not turning as they touch the ground in landing at a speed of 70 or 80 miles an hour. Considerable rubber is scraped from the tire treads before the wheels attain a speed of rotation equal to the plane's speed on the runway.

• • •

Experiments have been made for some years with methods of getting plane wheels to begin rotation in the air in the pre-landing glide. The B. F. Goodrich company has announced a successful pre-rotating tire, utilizing flexible rubber flaps in the side walls. Flaps point forward, are caught in the rush of air, causing the tire to spin, then fold back on the side wall in the manner of a hinge as they reach top position in the wheel revolution.

Vaned tires of this type have made twice as many landings as conventional tires of the same size in air line service, according to James S. Pedler, manager of the Goodrich aeronautical division.

The average life of a standard tire in service on Transcontinental and Western Airlines Douglas DC-3 air liners is 1,000 hours of flight, involving about 666 landings, Ralph L. Ellinger, T.W.A. chief engineer, reports. After 1,000 hours each tire is retreaded. A tire costs $130. Landing shocks, taxiing, and turning are responsible for most of the wear. The average travel on the ground for each landing probably does not exceed four miles.

Close-up of flaps that catch air and start wheels rotating.

T.W.A. experimented with vaned tires by placing one of that type and one conventional tire on the same plane. After the same number of service hours both tires were worn too smooth for further service, but the wear on the vaned tire was slightly less.

The air line plans to test small electric motors installed in the brake drums of landing gear wheels as a means of starting pre-landing rotation. DC-3s have a gross weight of 25,000 pounds. Flying Fortresses and Liberator bombers gross around 60,000 pounds, a weight that will be exceeded by passenger air liners after the war.

THE LEADING LADIES

HELENA MODJESKA (1844-1909).

BARRYMORES and Drews of a century have swung thru the theatrical heavens in immortal company. Of the four superb actresses portrayed here, Maude Adams was leading lady to John Drew, uncle of John Barrymore, for six seasons in the '90s. Barrymore's father, Maurice, was leading man of the others. . . . Polish-born Modjeska, for years one of the foremost players of the American theater, retired formally in 1905. . . . Lily Langtry (Lady de Bathe, "the Jersey Lily") was in her heyday the world's most famous beauty. She was celebrated for wit and charm and was a devoted friend of Britain's Edward VII. . . . Mrs. Fiske, first starred when she was 17, won renown as one of the finest emotional actresses and comediennes in the history of the American stage. . . . Maude Adams made her debut when she was [illegible], achieved her greatest triumph in "Peter Pan"; retired in 1918, appearing again only briefly in "The Merchant of Venice" during the 1931-'32 season.

That Barrymore Haircut!

This sidelight on the personality of John Barrymore is a selection from "GOOD NIGHT, SWEET PRINCE."

By GENE FOWLER

(Copyright, 1943, 1944, by Gene Fowler. Published by arrangement with the Viking Press, Inc.)

ONE DAY Jack was prevailed upon to have his hair cut, so that his duke of Gloucester wig might fit properly. He usually patronized the Hotel Knickerbocker barber shop, where the scissorsmen were familiar with his "quirk" of allowing no razor-edging of his neck or ear locks. Today he hurriedly found a chair in a nearer Broadway shop, sat in it, gave a few short instructions, then fell to mouthing his Margaret Carrington exercises.

The stout barber, who had the soft garrulity of a life insurance agent, tried to interest his customer in spring training news of the baseball clubs. Jack courteously indicated that he would appreciate "some silence, and very little of that."

He returned to his vowel-making, a circumstance which caused the barbers and manicurists to exchange glances. Was the gentleman a little nuts?

The stout barber endeavored to swerve Jack's mind from the antique hair style. Barrymore held his exercises in abeyance. "If you please, don't edge my hair at all. I believe I told you when I came in that I didn't want a razor within a million miles of my neck."

"But the kinda way you ast me to cut it," the barber insisted, "is all out of style. Do you want it should look like a Dolly Varden?"

Jack was trying to focus on his elocutionary chore. "Styles don't bother me," he offered. "Just cut it as I asked."

• • •

The barber indicated with his comb a lathered customer in an adjoining chair. "I'll leave it up to Mr. Marcus here. He's with the Burns Brothers Coal concern. Let Mr. Marcus here take a gander at you and——"

Barrymore endeavored to keep an even temper. "I'm sure Mr. Marcus is a man of refined tastes, but if you don't mind——"

The barber broke in on this observation, as if trying to shame Barrymore into a modern haircut. "Yeah, I know, but is it treating them right to let your wife or girl see your hair grow neck-sloppy——"

"I haven't a wife, thank God!" Barrymore exclaimed. "I'm effeminate!"

This news disturbed the barber's moral sensibilities. He spoke with the sad modulations of a groaning sofa: "Of course you're just only kidding, mister. But I'm not kidding when I claim you should ought to try a feather edge." His tones rose persuasively: "Just let me scrape off some of that there fuzz a little bit—"

The exasperated Barrymore sprang from the chair. He popped the barber on the chin. He sent him sprawling at the foot of Mr. Marcus' chair. Jack tore off the apron, snatched his coat from the rack, dropped a dollar on the cashier's counter, then hastened to the street, trying the while to apply the Margaret Carrington technique to his curses.

Some time after this outburst Barrymore said to his attorney, "Why do I always get into trouble?"

He asked this question while his lawyer was drawing up a paper so that Jack might escape a court suit for damages by paying a hundred dollars to the stout barber.

"GOOD NIGHT, SWEET PRINCE" appears daily in The Tribune. Don't miss tomorrow's installment of this No. 1 best seller!

"NEW MOON" SHINES AGAIN

"New Moon" will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air Saturday, April 1, on W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 p. m. (C.W.T.), starring Marion Claire.

By ALBERT GOLDBERG

"NEW MOON" was one of the major successes of the New York season of 1928. It opened at the Imperial theater on Sept. 19 and ran for 509 performances. The operetta was the work of experts—its music by Sigmund Romberg, who already had behind him such popular scores as "The Student Prince," "My Maryland," and the long string of "Passing Shows." The book was by Oscar Hammerstein II., who was nearly 10 years along on the road that was to lead to "Oklahoma!"; the male lead was delegated to Robert Halliday, who two years earlier had scored in another Romberg-Hammerstein collaboration, "The Desert Song."

Robert Halliday

Halliday was a Scotsman who had served a long apprenticeship to his trade in vaudeville and touring companies both in England and the United States and had previously been heard on Broadway in "Topsy and Eva," "Tip-Toes," "Dew Drop Inn," and other musicals. His vis-a-vis was Evelyn Herbert, who became Mrs. Halliday. Miss Herbert was a Philadelphia girl, had a fling at grand opera before devoting her talents to operetta. Miss Herbert's gifts were of a sort to have attracted the attention of no less a personage than the great tenor Enrico Caruso, and that unforgotten idol was reported to have financed her education and to have coached her in operatic roles. Her debut was made with the Chicago Opera company as Mimi in "La Boheme" at the Auditorium theater in 1920, and later in the same year she repeated this performance with the company at the Lexington theater in New York. Two years later she was a member of "Roxy's Gang" at the Capitol theater, and went on from there to roles in "The Stepping Stones," "The Love Song," "Princess Flavia," and "My Maryland." Also highly praised in the original "New Moon" production was the tenor William O'Neal.

For background and plot of "New Moon" the authors harked back to the autobiography of Robert Brisson, a French aristocrat of the 18th century, who for good reasons drifted to the settlement of New Orleans. In the libretto Brisson becomes a bondman or indentured servant to Monsieur Beaunoir, and is in love with his master's daughter, Marianne. Robert is sought by Parisian police. The long arm of the constabulary discovers him and a return to Paris is begun. But on the same boat Marianne is concealed, there is a mutiny, the party lands on a desert isle, the bondmen come into power, a new republic is founded, and of course, after some argument, Marianne agrees to marry Robert.

Why the Petroleum Industry foresees full employment after the War

After Victory, returning veterans and former war workers will look to industry for jobs and security. The achievement of the Petroleum Industry gives promise to their hopes:

1. New super-fuels, developed for fighting planes presage a new age of transportation . . . with improved engines to drive automobiles, trucks, tractors with greater economy . . . and air travel for all . . .

2. New products, such as synthetic rubber, developed as wartime expedients have extended petroleum's uses . . . enlarged its plants . . .

3. New petroleum-chemicals, unlocked for warfare by shuffling atoms and molecules, will in turn unlock a multitude of new materials for peacetime uses . . .

Men will be needed not only in the Petroleum Industry itself but also in other industries influenced by these developments: men to produce petroleum and its new products . . . men to sell and distribute them. Men to make and service oil burners, planes and motor cars . . . men to make the steel, glass, tires and all other materials that will be needed.

BUY MORE WAR BONDS to do today's job...to provide tomorrow's jobs better chance of a peace job for him?

Why NICKEL is so Important in Both War and Peace

Today Nickel's job is to help speed the materials of war, including Petroleum products. From the raw crude in the well to the flash of high-octane fuel in the engine of the fighting plane, Nickel aids the Petroleum Industry. Its metallurgical problems are being solved with high-strength Nickel steels, Nickel cast irons and high-Nickel alloys that resist corrosion and heat.

But one happy day Nickel will be turned again to its original peacetime purpose: improving metals to improve the products that serve men and provide jobs. When that time comes Nickel will serve industry in rebuilding and replenishing a war-torn world and aid in the developments of the future.

Manufacturers with problems involving metals are invited to consult the International Nickel Technical Staff.*

GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATER Presents Joel McCrea AS "BUFFALO BILL"

1 William F. Cody (Joel McCrea), who has earned the nickname Buffalo Bill by his work as hunter for Fort Clark, is introduced to Newspaper Man Ned Buntline (Thomas Mitchell) by Louisa Frederici (Maureen O'Hara). Cody saved her life and her senator father's the previous night.

2 Louisa discovers an Indian girl, Dawn Starlight (Linda Darnell), wearing one of her dresses. The girl had wanted to look beautiful so Cody would pay attention to her.

3 Indian trouble results in Cody's capture. He is released by a friendly brave. By this time Louisa and Cody have fallen deeply in love and are married. But Louisa soon tires of the west and returns east.

4 During an attack on the fort by Cheyenne Indians Dawn Starlight is killed. Cody goes east and at a banquet in his honor looses a bombshell by blaming the whites for misunderstanding the Indians. He is the target of a smear campaign. Despondent he finds work in a shooting gallery.

5 There Louisa finds him. She realizes his greatness and repents her hasty move. Together with Buntline they work out a plan to give the east a picture of the west, and the Buffalo Bill show is born. (THE END)

A Reputation That Ran Away with a Man

expense money. Cody went, pausing long enough in Chicago to be fitted with the first full dress suit he ever wore. And he had a time. One night he saw Booth play "Julius Caesar," and the next evening he occupied a box at the Bowery theater to see himself played by an actor named Studley. The play was called "Buffalo Bill, the King of the Bordermen," and it was based on one of the hundreds of Buffalo Bill stories written as "dime novels" by Ned Buntline.

The climax of the show was a scene in which Cody, surrounded by Indians thirsty for his blood, saved himself—tho not for long—by hiding in a hollow log. This fooled the Indians, but when their campfire needed fresh fuel the log with Cody inside was added to the blaze. Cody met this dire emergency by thrusting out one arm and tossing his well filled powder horn into the flames. The explosion scattered the Indians in all directions, but Cody, protected by the log that contained him, escaped unharmed.

The real Cody, leaning forward from his box to inspect the action, was instantly recognized by the audience and had to take a bow. Not only that, but the manager offered to fire Studley and pay Cody $500 a week to play the part himself. Cody declined, but a seed had been planted, and it grew.

Buntline himself, who in his novels had invented more Buffalo Bill adventures than 20 Codys could have lived thru, helped to nurse the seedling idea along until it bloomed. It was Buntline's thought that a wild west show with real wild west characters to enact it would have a vast drawing power, and he proved himself right.

For the Chicago show he enlisted not only Cody but a character known as Texas Jack, whose real name was J. B. Omohundro. Another famous plainsman, Wild Bill Hickok, was later added to the cast, but Hickok made trouble and did not last long. Audiences loved him, but the management did not.

Cody's greatest showmanship, however, reached its zenith not in any theater but out of doors. And Chicago's brightest memory of that goes back to the spring of 1893, the opening of the first world's fair, of which Cody was not a part but an adjunct. Richard J. Walsh, perhaps the most reliable of the biographers, describes the opening day, April 3:

"Sheets of spring rain made a morass of the arena. . . . Cody spurred his horse thru the mire. Before the covered grandstand he swept off the white sombrero and, as if defying the elements, shook the hair that hung, draggled, on his shoulders. That long hair was touched with gray, he was a little stout, he was 47 years old, but he was more majestic than ever. And in the greeting which he roared to the throng there was a new and stirring phrase—'Ladies and gentlemen, permit me to introduce to you a Congress of Rough Riders of the World!'

"No longer was his show simply an echo of the once wild west. True, Chief Standing Bear got off the train at Chicago wearing a bonnet of 200 eagle feathers. . . . Kicking Bear was there with Rain-in-the-Face. . . . There were old Rocky Bear, Young-Man-Afraid-of-His-Horse, young Jack Red Cloud. . . . But Indians and cowboys and Mexicans were not all. In the parade were Cossacks, gauchos, Arabs, German uhlans, French chasseurs, British lancers, and American cavalrymen. Four hundred mounted men in the arena at once, 600 in the entire company, or, as the advertisments said, 'More ladies, gentlemen, and beasts than ever seen in one exhibition.'"

The fair management had refused space within its own grounds for the Cody show because it was considered "too undignified." But Cody obtained a 14 acre site opposite the main entrance, built stands to hold 18,000 people, and opened a month ahead of the fair.

Everything that Cody did on the stage, everything he presented in his outdoor spectacles with which he toured the world, everything that was written about him in more than 300 big and little books, found believers. The first believers, it may be guessed, were the boys who hid their libraries of nickel and dime romances in haymows. But those boys grew up and continued to believe. The stories must be true, they felt, because Buffalo Bill looked like the fabulous hero he was portrayed to be.

One of the many biographies, written by Frank Winch and bearing as a token of authenticity a flyleaf personal letter from Cody to the author, starts its first chapter with the following remarkable vignette of boyhood:

"Mother, I've just killed my first Indian," gleefully shouted a bright-faced, rosy-cheeked lad of 11, with eyes glistening as they fondly ranged over the rifle he carried. Putting the gun away, the youngster ran to his mother, kissed her, and took both hands in his.

"It was pretty exciting, too, mother," the lad continued.

"Willie, you must be careful."

That was little Willie Cody. His father had died from an old knife wound and the boy appointed himself head of the family, seeking a job with a firm of overland freight contractors.

"I can ride, shoot, and herd cattle," he told the boss. "I'm willing to do anything honest so that I can take care of my mother and sisters."

He got the job and on his first journey across the Kansas plains the Indians attacked. Willie was first to see them and first to shoot one.

"By thunder, you're a dandy!" cried the wagon master, according to the Winch biography. "We owe our lives to you."

Willie's next job was riding for the pony express, a man's job if there ever was one, but Willie spurned the idea that he was too young. The boss said warningly:

"The work is too hard and dangerous. Nerves of steel and a quick enough eye along the pistol barrel don't come in youngsters of your age."

Winch tells what happened next:

"In a twinkling Cody's revolver flashed from its holster; a cowboy 20 feet away was striking a match to light his pipe. A sharp report, and the astounded cowboy gazed at the stub end of the match held in his fingers. The other end lay on the ground."

Again Willie got the job, and apparently he was not even advised to be a bit more conservative about endangering cowboys.

• • •

A few years later he married a prairie flower by the name of Louisa Frederici, and there are at least three conflicting stories about what happened at their first meeting. Her own account is that he was introduced properly, but she didn't like his attitude and therefore slapped his face. Another is that he saved her from a runaway horse when her bridle rein broke. But Walsh prefers the Buntline version.

Buntline described Louisa as "a young girl, not over 16, very beautiful, with great dreamy eyes, hair hanging in loose manes all over her white shoulders. . . . On her arm hung a satchel of books, for she was a school girl." She finds herself surrounded by rough soldiers, one of whom tries to kiss her. But——

"Coward! I'll die before I submit to this insult," cried the brave girl.

The coarse wretch laughed and bent his shaggy head down as he threw his rude arms about her slender waist. . . . But before he could again bend his hot, sensual face toward her pure lips, a horse and rider came rushing down the street with the speed of a winged bird.

It was Buffalo Bill on his wild Powder Face, and he dashed into and over the crowd as if they were only bags of down in his way.

With one blow of his clenched hand he dashed the bulky miscreant to the earth; with the other arm he encircled the waist of the lovely girl, and lifting her to his saddle-bow, gave the word "on" to his noble horse, and dashed thru and over the crowd before a hand could be raised to check him . . .

"O, sir, you are so brave and so good! . . . I would have died before they should kiss me," cried the lovely girl.

And he married her in St. Louis on March 6, 1866, when he was 20 years old. She was 23. "The bridal journey," recalls Cody's sister, "was a trip to Leavenworth on a Missouri steamer."

Another episode in which a choice of versions awaits the reader who shops around among the biographers is the reaction of Cody when, still a stripling, he witnessed the stabbing of his father (who had been making a speech against slavery). The boy erroneously thought his father was dead. Buntline has Willie Cody courageously addressing the man with the knife, and all his pals, thus:

"You, Jake M'Kandlas, have murdered my father. And you, base cowards, who saw him do the dark deed, spoke no word to restrain him. I am only little Bill, his son, but as God in heaven hears me now, I will kill every father's son of you before the beard grows on my face."

Cody's autobiography, however, not only fails to identify the assailant as M'Kandlas, but dismisses the whole incident in a paragraph indicating that the man was an employe of his uncle. Says Cody:

"My uncle of course discharged

Do you wonder what vitamins you ought to take . . . or how much of each?

Here in one small, convenient capsule are

ALL THE ESTABLISHED VITAMINS

No need to take several tablets or capsules to get your daily quota of vitamins. And no puzzling over vitamin names and claims. Just remember this simple 3-letter word . . . B-A-X. BAX supplies in one tiny capsule a full day's minimum requirement of all the vitamins authorities have established as needed.

BAX contains A, D, B_1, C, B_2(G) and B_6, Calcium Pantothenate, Niacin. Notice that these include valuable factors missing in many other products, but which can make a lot of difference to you.

Nearly everybody needs Vitamins— even more so since rationing

To enjoy living to the fullest, to look and feel your best, don't risk depriving yourself of vitamins. Many vitamin foods are much scarcer, so make sure you get plenty of these life-enriching elements.

And remember, don't confuse BAX, the *Complete Vitamin Capsule, with products containing merely a few vitamins. BAX not only supplies the known important B-complex factors, but other vitamins just as valuable.

YOU'LL LIKE VITAMINS IN CAPSULES

BAX Vitamins are sealed in individual gelatine capsules. It would cost us less to use pills or tablets, but capsules have many advantages to you. For example, complete protection against oxidation and possible impairment of vitamin strength; also eliminates the need for sugar, varnish, wax or other coatings. And so pleasant and easy to swallow.

Compare the economy of BAX ...15 days' full supply only 73¢

Many other products require you to take 2 to 3 tablets or capsules a day—so you have to buy up to 45 tablets to compare with only 15 BAX capsules. BAX goes three times farther. So don't be misled by the "number" of tablets. Check on the number of days' supply. And, of course, make sure you get all your vitamins. Just get BAX at your druggist's.

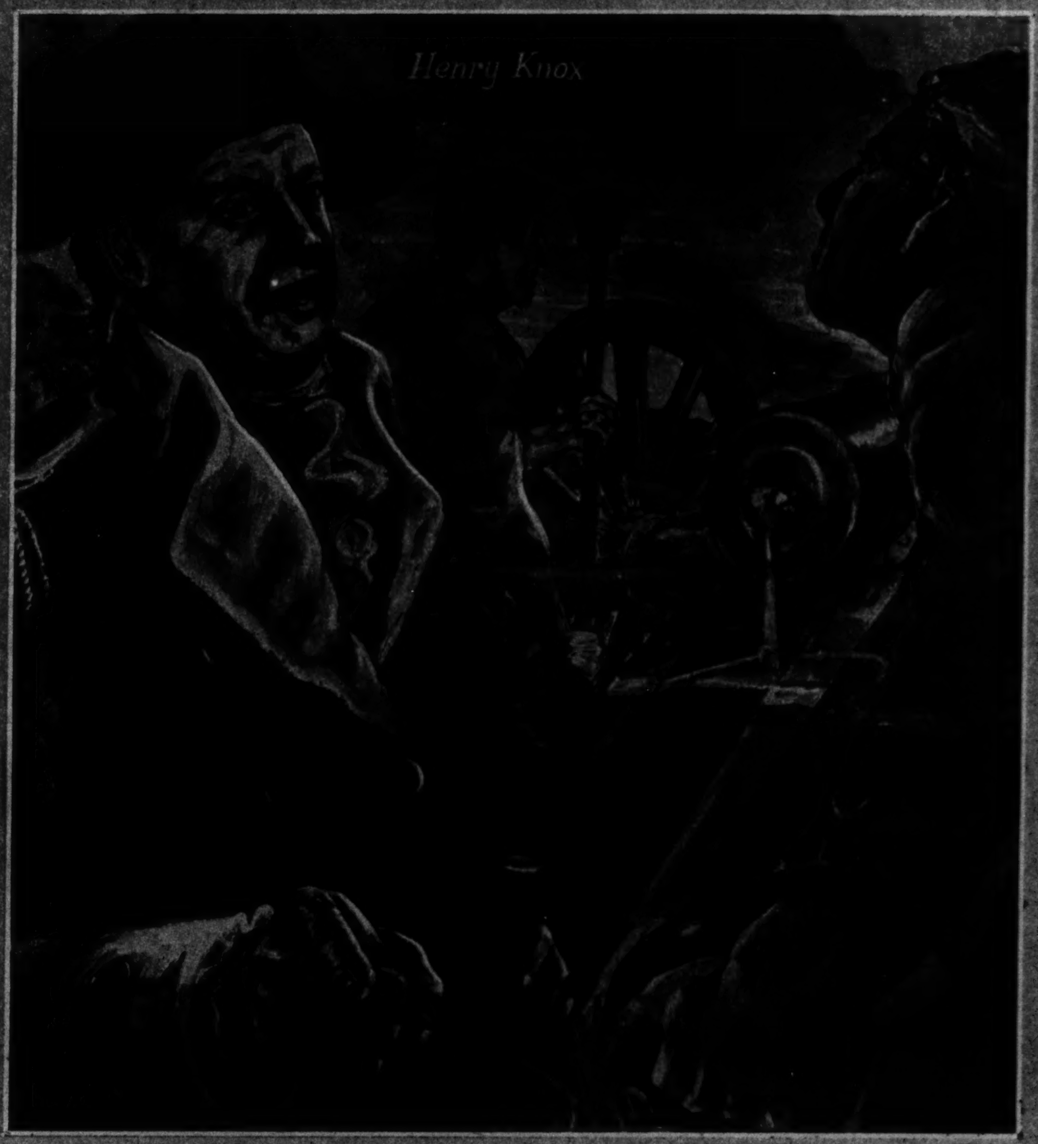
ROMANTIC FIGURES of AMERICAN HISTORY



The dramatic illustration above, by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Varnak, is another of the series appearing currently in this section with biographical sketches. Watch for this feature every Sunday.

IN THE Revolutionary war Washington placed great reliance on his artillery, even tho it was difficult for him to find a sufficient number of cannon with which to cope with the enemy. He was fortunate, nevertheless, in having as his chief artillery officer a man as capable and dependable as Henry Knox.

Born in Boston, Mass., on July 25, 1750, Knox was compelled to leave school at the age of 12 to earn a living for his widowed mother and himself. At 21 he opened his own book shop in Boston. This brought him a fair income and allowed him sufficient time from his duties to take part in military affairs, in which he was deeply interested.

At the outbreak of the revolution he offered his services to Gen. Artemus Ward, and on Nov. 17, 1775, he was commissioned a colonel and placed in command of the artillery of the American army besieging Boston. At his own suggestion he went to Fort Ticonderoga and brought back to Boston a number of pieces of British artillery that had been captured there. These cannon and others, placed upon Dorchester Heights, forced the British to evacuate Boston.

Knox took part in the battles around New York, played an important role in the surprise attack on Trenton, and was conspicuous at the battle of Princeton. For his services at Trenton he was elevated to brigadier general and made chief of artillery of the American army. He took an active part in the campaigns of the autumn of 1777, seeing service at Brandywine and Germantown. At the battle of Monmouth, June 28, 1778, he commanded his artillery so well that Washington said, "No artillery could have been better served than ours."

Knox in 1779 made the first move for the founding of the military academy at West Point. The following year he sat on the court martial that tried Maj. John Andre, the go-between of Benedict Arnold and the British General Clinton. At Yorktown Knox directed his cannon so expertly that Washington declared, "The resources of his genius supplied the deficit of means."

Knox was commissioned a major general shortly after the surrender at Yorktown. After the war he commanded West Point for a number of months. In 1783 he organized the Society of Cincinnati, and was its first secretary.

• • •

He resigned from the army in January, 1784, and in the following year accepted an election by congress to the post of secretary of war. When the new government was formed under the Constitution he was retained in the cabinet as the head of the war department, a position which he held until Dec. 28, 1794. In 1798, during the diplomatic crisis with France, Knox was appointed a major general by President John Adams. He died Oct. 25, 1806.

FLOODS O' SUDS FOR DISHES AND DUDS

"I'm a lady of leisure on wash-day afternoons, thanks to Super Suds' EXTRA SUDS!"

"The bigger and heavier your wash, the more time you save having MORE SUDS and LONGER-LASTING SUDS," says Mrs. Dorothy Fulcomer

"THE BOYS, David and Jim, are crazy about making model airplanes, and their favorite place to do it is in the basement. Well, I don't have to tell you what coal dust and such do to clothes! That's why new, sudsier Super Suds comes in so extra handy. More suds and longer-lasting suds take most of the drudgery out of washing... make my heavy wash seem loads lighter. For instance, I don't have to do nearly so much rubbing on the boys' shirt collars and cuffs... a big saving in time and work right there!'

"I'm proud of my white linens"

"Super Suds' EXTRA, SPUNKY SUDS not only save work, they also get things snow-white, without rubbing or without using anything strong. It sure helps preserve the beauty of table linens and makes 'em wear longer! Super Suds' gentleness is mighty welcome to my hands too."

"IT WAS AN EYE-OPENER TO SEE WHAT LITTLE SUDS MY OLD SOAP GAVE. THEY DIDN'T LAST, EITHER."

"HERE ARE LAVISH, RICH SUDS I GOT FROM NEW SUPER SUDS... THEY LASTED AND LASTED."

"NO BIG UNDISSOLVED STUFF HERE... ALL OF SUPER SUDS SEEMS TO MAKE SUDS... A BIG SOAP SAVING!"

Make the easy "milk-bottle suds test"

Shake up a teaspoon of your old wash-day soap and a glass of water—even hard or cool water—in a milk-bottle. Do the same with Super Suds in another milk-bottle. See if you don't get more suds, longer-lasting suds, from Super Suds.

Happy Endings for HAM!

CRISCO MAKES THE LAST MEALS FROM A HAM TASTE AS GOOD AS THE FIRST !

COOK WITH CRISCO! No other shortening does so much to make rationed meals EXCITING and DIGESTIBLE!

Ham left over? Want to make every point-thrifty scrap exciting to eat? Easy to digest? It's easy! Cook with Crisco and see.

It's True! Crisco does more than any other shortening. It has a cooking secret all its own! It gives you lighter, more tender cakes. A sure way to get flaky, tender pie crust every time! And with Crisco, no need to worry about digestions! Even Crisco fried foods are so digestible children may eat 'em!

Begin Today! Make light, flaky biscuit for those Ham Rolls with Crisco. Fry those Cornmeal Slices in Crisco and you'll know they're digestible. Any time a recipe calls for shortening—reach for pure, all-vegetable Crisco and be sure!

HAM ROLLS WITH TOMATO SAUCE

2 cups flour
3 tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
⅓ cup Crisco
⅔ cup milk
1½ cups ground cooked ham
⅔ tbsp. tomato juice or milk
Salt—pepper

Sift dry ingredients together. Cut in Crisco. (Count on pure, digestible Crisco for mouth-melting biscuit you know will be easy to digest!) Add milk to form soft dough. Roll out in a rectangle on floured board. Moisten meat with tomato juice (or milk). Season to taste. Spread over dough. Roll up like jelly roll; cut slices one inch thick. Brush with milk and place cut side down on "Criscoed" baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (425°F.) 15-20 min. or until browned. Serve with Tomato Sauce. All Measurements Level. Serves 4-6.

CREAMED HAM, DIXIE STYLE

3 tbsps. Crisco
3 tbsps. flour
1½ cups milk
Few drops onion juice
1 cup diced cooked ham
1 cup diced cooked celery
½ cup chopped peanuts
Salt and pepper

Melt Crisco; blend in flour; stir in milk gradually; cook till thickened. Add onion juice, ham, celery and peanuts. Season to taste. Serve with FRIED CORNMEAL SLICES: Slice molded cornmeal mush; dip in flour and fry in digestible Crisco till golden brown. Crisco-fried foods turn out crisp and light—so digestible children may eat them! All Measurements Level. Serves 4-6.

CREOLE HAM AND FRIED NOODLES

2 tbsps. Crisco
½ cup coarsely chopped onion
½ cup sliced celery
1½ cups coarsely chopped cooked ham
2 cups cooked dried lima beans
3 cups cooked tomatoes
1 tsp. salt
1 small package noodles

Melt Crisco in heavy frying pan. Fry onion, celery, ham and beans till lightly browned. Add tomatoes and salt and cook 15 min., stirring occasionally. Serve with FRIED NOODLES: Boil noodles; drain well and fry in hot digestible Crisco till delicately browned. It's a joy to fry with Crisco. There's no heavy smoke or smell. No "off-taste" to easy-digesting Crisco fried foods! All Measurements Level. Serves 4-6.

Dry, Dry Again?

(Tribune Studio photos.)

Young women whose skins are inclined to scale and feel rather taut are on the right track for preserving their complexions when they use a light emollient cream after the nightly facial cleaning.

By LOUISE DOOLEY

IT BEHOOVES any member of the dry-skinned clan, no matter how young she may be or feel, to get busy with a lubricating cream and to use it every day, giving it an extra workout during the trying winter months.

It's common knowledge that a dry skin is fertile ground for fine lines and wrinkles, and it's just as well to know that lubrication with emollient creams is the chief aid in combating the condition. However, we're quite certain that too few women whose skins are inclined to dryness are willing to admit they need the precautionary treatment that will help prevent their looking old before their time. Perhaps it's partly due to wishful thinking. Or perhaps they're the procrastinators who are always intending to get started but keep putting the starting date off until tomorrow or the day after that—endlessly. They're the ones who are apt to be a bit hurt when they discover their faces wearing a few furrows, to think that they weren't given a sporting chance to fight them off.

Heavy, rich creams or oils are beauty's handmaiden for the older woman whose skin is lacking in natural oils.

Wishing and intentions won't correct the condition. But faithful massage with creams and oils that will make up for the lack of natural oil can do a fancy bit in maintaining the smooth finish and fine texture of the skin.

There isn't any particular trick to applying the creams; they should be used more generously than sparingly and applied in light upward and outward strokes. The skin should not be pulled, nor should it be vigorously kneaded and stretched. Use a gentle, light touch always, patting lightly or holding the fingers firmly against the flesh, and even pinch yourself a bit, but use a featherlike touch always.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

THE CLASS of 218 which was graduated on Feb. 21 from the Illinois Institute of Technology had for all its four years in school husbanded its financial resources, simplified its social activities, and concentrated in every way on plans for one big, memorable commencement party. It had one. The senior farewell, held shortly before graduation in the Terrace Casino of the Morrison hotel, was one of the most brilliant parties of the war years and one of the most unusual.

It was informal. By a special student vote about two years ago formals were abandoned for the duration by the men and women students of I. I. T. Tho not a dressy dance in the prewar sense, it had tremendous sparkle as a party.

The entire casino, with tables set cabaret style in tiers that slope down to a semicircular combination stage and dance floor at one end of the huge room, was the seniors' private night club for the evening. The party began and ended with dancing, with an exciting melange of entertainment sandwiched in between. A floor show, a kaleidoscope of puppetry, magic, dancing, and wit, ran smoothly for more than an hour. Then more dancing, and the annual senior skit during which faculty members were fondly ribbed, and one, John J. Schommer, who gave the brief farewell address, was given a watch by the departing students.

Following this the 10 outstanding seniors as selected by the student annual, Integral, were presented to the graduates and their guests. Among the 10 was Michel Coccia, social chairman of this class since its formation and the man largely responsible for the perfection of the senior farewell dance. Coccia, who wound up his college career as an apprentice seaman in the institute's V-12 unit, is a mechanical engineer.

Being men of the world now instead of schoolboys who must turn in early to be up and at their books next day, the seniors lavishly arranged for music until 4 in the morning. When the party ended at daybreak it had added up to a great climax of life in college.

The 218 graduates—mostly civil, industrial, chemical, mechanical, or fire protection engineers—got their degrees at midterm by virtue of acceleration. Normally they would have finished in June. Now all of them with the exception of those who enlisted in the navy and finished their schooling in the V-12 unit go immediately into the war industries.

Buffalo Bill

the ruffian from his employ. The man afterward became a noted desperado, and was quite conspicuous in the Kansas war."

Much of the fancy eloquence attributed to Cody on various occasions is from the prolific pen of Buntline, who once boasted that he had written a 610 page book in 62 hours. He has Cody addressing a man who has killed a woman. (Sorry, but the record is obscure as to her identity and the circumstances.) Cody is quoted thus:

"You woman-killing fiend, Mercy is a name not fit for your lips. . . . Murderer! One day you shall answer to me for the death of her who lies there."

Other writers and ghost writers have the same Cody using language as ponderous as a professor's. Imagine Buffalo Bill using his pistol hand to pen such prose as the following (in the autobiography):

". . . It is with some feeling of embarrassment and trepidation that I trench so far upon the borders of apparent vanity as to classify myself with such distinguished characters [Daniel Boone, Kit Carson etc.] in the great work of redeeming to civilization the territory lying west of the Mississippi valley. Nor would I make so bold a display of self-complacency or venture to obtrude myself so prominently before the world's audience, where critics are more prompt to cavil than my readers may be disposed to applaud, but for the fact that many requests have been made for the story of my life written by my own hand."

His sister, Helen Cody Wetmore, who was one of his biographers, seems to believe that he really wrote the book he signed. This is the way she describes "my brother's first literary venture":

"His school days were few," she says, and "he could use a rifle better than a pen. It is no great wonder that the first sketch Will wrote for publication was destitute of punctuation and short of capitals in many places. . . . 'Life is too short,' said he, 'to make big letters when small ones will do; and as for punctuation, if my readers don't know enough to take their breath without those little marks, they'll have to lose it, that's all.' But in spite of his jesting, it was characteristic of him that when he undertook anything he wished to do it well. He now had leisure for study, and he used it to such good advantage that he was soon able to send to the publishers a clean manuscript, grammatical, and well spelled, capitalized, and punctuated."

Mrs. Wetmore is eloquent, too, in telling of Cody's "fearless patriotism," which led him to enlist in the Union army in the Civil war. But this is what Cody says about it:

"I had no idea of doing anything of the kind. But one day, after being under the influence of bad whisky, I awoke to find myself a soldier in the 7th Kansas."

• • •

To separate from the jungle of legend some reliable recordings of fact about Cody, it is safest, no doubt, to trust the unadorned brevity of the encyclopedia.

There you learn that Cody was born in 1846 in Scott county, Ia. He did ride for the "pony express" while he was still in his teens, and afterward became a scout and guide for the United States army. His enlistment in the Kansas 7th cavalry took place in 1863, when he was 17. After the war he had a contract to kill buffalo on the plains and thus supply meat for the Kansas Pacific railroad—and the encyclopedia says this was the origin of the sobriquet Buffalo Bill, altho there are other tales about that.

In 1868 he again joined the army as scout and guide, serving in the campaign against the Sioux and Cheyennes, in which at the battle of Indian creek he killed Chief Yellow Hand in single combat. There are many conflicting versions of that fight and if all were true Yellow Hand must have died a number of deaths.

Once in 1872 Cody was elected to the Nebraska legislature, in which he was so obscure that most of his activities have been forgotten. He did answer a few roll calls, but had no taste and professed no talent for "lawmaking."

The beginning of his greatest fame was in 1883 when he organized his great spectacle, the "Wild West Show," which a few years later toured Europe. He died in Denver, Colo., in 1917, and his wife (whom he had once tried in vain to divorce) was at his bedside. His tomb is an excavation from solid rock on Lookout mountain, a few miles from Denver.

Dogs are not strictly meat-eating animals!

Your dog needs a nutritionally adequate diet for robust heath—just as you do. Friskies is a complete, scientifically blended dog food. It contains 19 essentials of proper, adequate nutrition, including meat and bone meal.

And these ingredients—minerals, proteins, carbohydrates and essential vitamins—are compressed into the solid Friskies Cubes designed for your dog's natural appetite and digestion.

HOW TO INTRODUCE YOUR DOG TO FRISKIES

First, give your dog just a few cubes of Friskies from your hand.

Next, mix a few Friskies Cubes with your dog's accustomed food.

And finally, increase amount of Friskies in successive feedings, meanwhile reducing the amount of his former food, until he's on a Friskies diet. (See package for correct amount.)

Your dog will eat Friskies eagerly, if you follow these rules. If now and then he does not eat Friskies readily, remove his dish and try later. Remember your dog must be trained to sound eating habits.

ELYSE KNOX

● Elyse Knox got into the movies on assignment. Modeling for a famous New York agency, she was given a job to do in a movie fashion short, and the inevitable happened. Hollywood took notice and signed her to a contract. She's had leading roles in a lot of pictures, including "Hi Ya, Sailor" and "So's Your Uncle."

Elyse was born in Hartford, Conn., on Dec. 14, 1918. She was prominent in high school activities there and upon graduation went to New York to earn her way thru fashion designing school. It was while modeling for a living that she got her Hollywood assignment.

Elyse was married to Paul Hesse, one of the movie capital's leading photographers. She's 5 feet 3 inches tall, weighs 110 pounds. She is continuing her art studies and likes riding, swimming, and tennis.

Picnic or No, Deviled Eggs Are Good!

By MARY MEADE

DEVILED EGGS aren't just for summer picnics. They may be served warm on toast, with a sauce, for lunch or supper. In this form they take the place of meat in a meal.

Cook an egg for every person, and when they are done, shell under running cold water. Cut in halves lengthwise, scoop out the yolks, and mash or sieve them. Mix yolks of six hard-cooked eggs with ½ teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon salt, and 1 teaspoon vinegar and blend well. Fill centers of egg whites and place deviled egg halves in pairs on toast. Cover with a hot sauce and serve at once. This onion sauce is good:

ONION SAUCE

Melt 2 tablespoons bacon drippings in the top of a double boiler. Add ¼ cup minced onion and cook slightly, but do not brown. Add 3 tablespoons flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, and blend. Gradually add 1½ cups milk, stirring constantly. Cook over hot water until smooth and thick, stirring occasionally. Serve on deviled eggs.

Deviled eggs aren't just for picnics; they're good hot with a sauce, too.

A cheese sauce or an onion sauce with a small amount of grated cheese included is also suitable for serving over eggs prepared in this manner. Tomato sauce is another possibility. Fried or broiled tomato slices offer flavor and color contrast if the eggs are served with onion or cheese sauce.

For a meal with meat, but not much meat, try Scotch pancakes. Rolled oats stretch the meat supply and add interesting texture. Use left-over pork, beef, or veal, or lamb roast. Grind it and combine 2 cups of the ground meat with 2 cups oatmeal, 2 slightly beaten eggs, salt and pepper to taste. Add any other seasonings you like, such as sage or chili powder, minced parsley, catchup, mustard. Drop the mixture by tablespoonfuls into a hot skillet containing a small amount of bacon drippings and fry until golden brown on both sides. Turn with a broad spatula or pancake turner. These meat cakes may be served with or without a sauce or gravy. Mustard, catchup, or horseradish, or a sauce flavored with any of them, would be suitable. Add to the menu baked potatoes, scalloped cabbage, carrot, pickle, and peanut salad. Baked apples would make a fine dessert.

Presto
SELF RISING CAKE FLOUR
BLEACHED
Manufactured by The BEST FOODS, Inc., NEW YORK, N. Y., U
"It's self-rising"
You can use Presto with your favorite recipes, but remember BAKING POWDER AND SALT ARE ALREADY "MARRIED" IN PRESTO

THE "marriage" we mean is the wedding of flour, baking powder and salt—in Presto Cake Flour.

The "marriage" lines read like this: First we measure out exactly the right amount of soft, winter-wheat cake flour. Then we add the right amount of the right kind of baking powder and salt.

Then comes the blending—the mixing—the "marrying," so thoroughly done that a hundred siftings in your own kitchen wouldn't do the job as well.

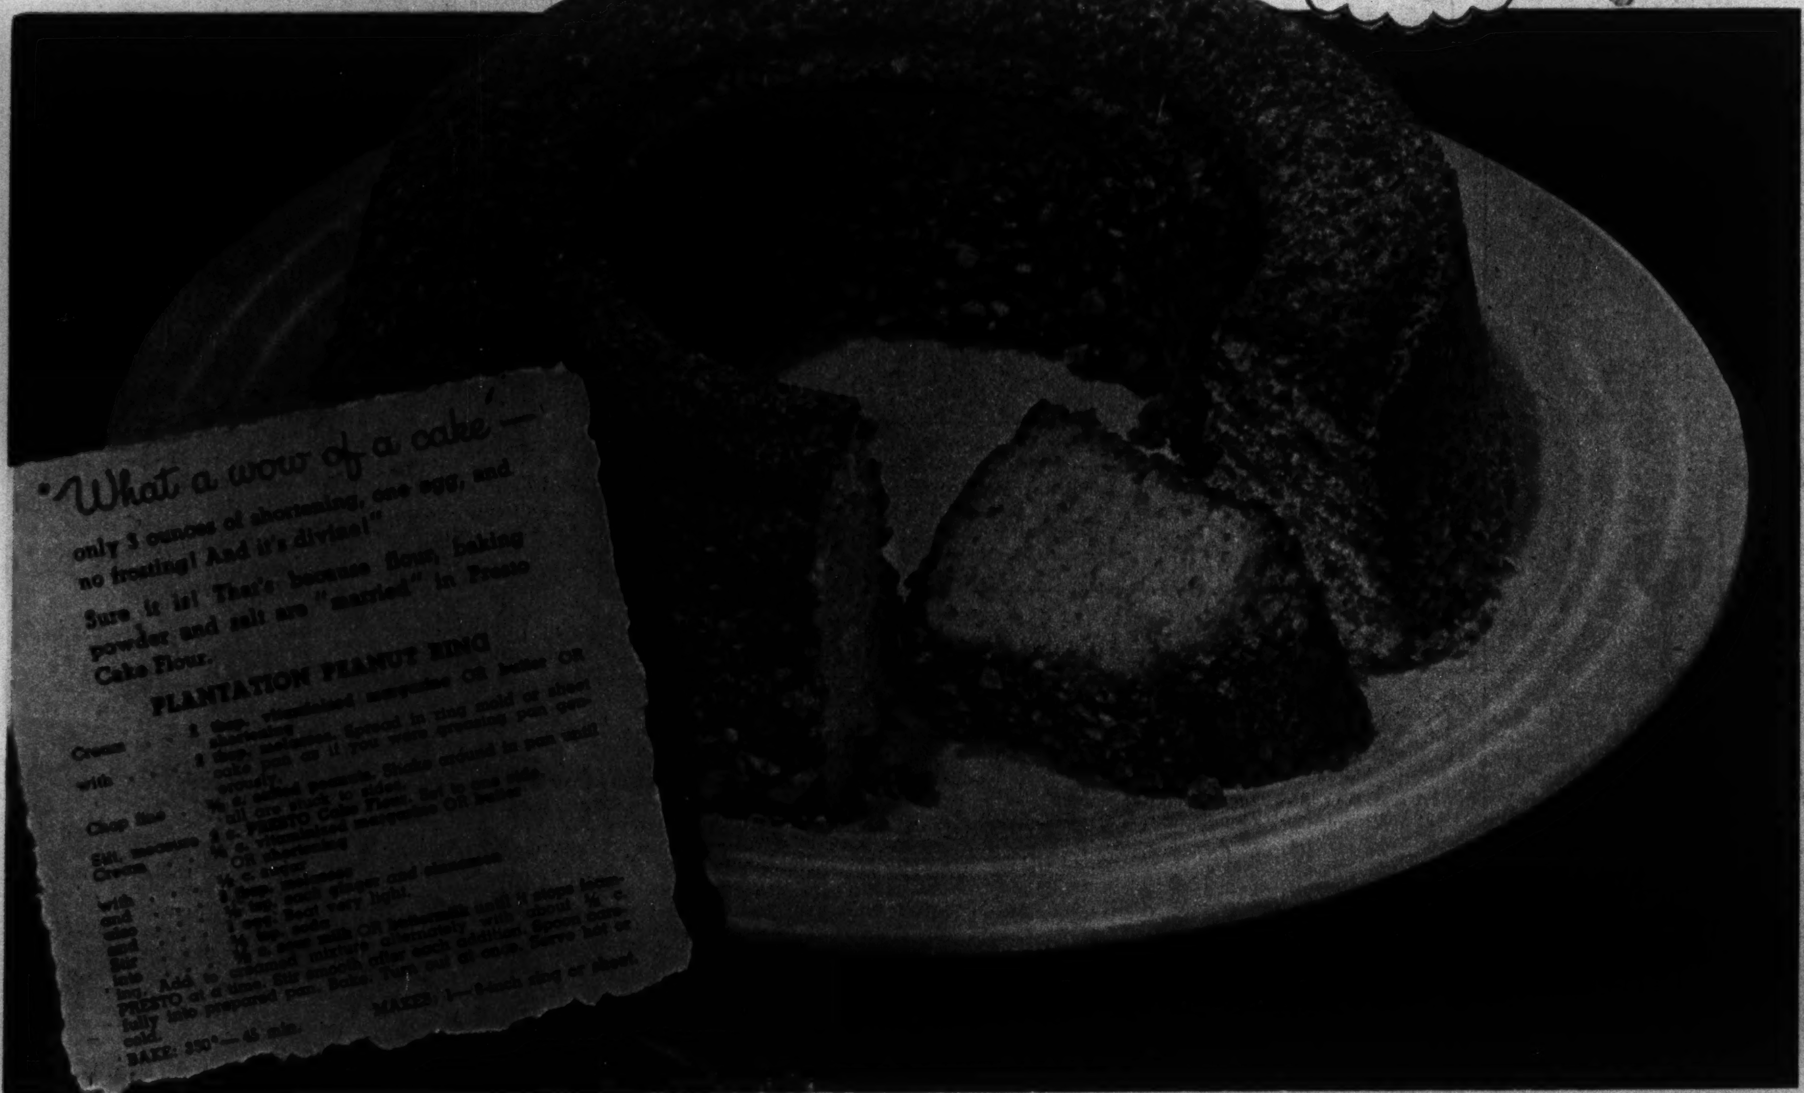
Every single one of these steps means less work for you. Together they mean quicker, easier baking. And they mean surer baking, too.

Layer cakes, dumplings, rolls, pastries—better in every way!

Presto waffles and Presto biscuits are things to dream about! Presto pancakes, pastries, gingerbread and cookies are all eye-openers, too! Presto makes all of them quick and easy to bake.

Try the consumer-tested recipes on the big blue Presto package to start with. You never tasted better baking!

A Product of THE BEST FOODS, INC.



"What a wow of a cake"—only 3 ounces of shortening, one egg, and no frosting! And it's divine!"

Sure it is! That's because flour, baking powder and salt are "married" in Presto Cake Flour.

"OLD FARM" FRANKFURTERS

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER

This boxer, owned by Warren A. Peterson, is a champion, named Yaboo of Tulgey Wood. It has won obedience titles as well as bench show championship.

ONE OF THE most frequent comments among dog owners is: "We have a wonderful dog at home, and my husband and I love it dearly. But there is one thing that the dog does which distresses us." And then follows a description of the pet's behavior, which in nine cases out of 10 involves training or control.

A good example of such a situation is this true story: A business man-sportsman and his wife own a beautifully bred retriever. The dog is handsome, affectionate, and smart. It is trained well for hunting, too. The dog was sent to a kennel for obedience training to make it easy to handle at home and on the street.

• • •

One would think that here is the perfect "dog in the home" situation, because the dog has been trained. Yet the opposite is true, because of the way the dog is handled during the day. Altho she loves the dog, the wife is a little afraid of it. When some one comes to the door the dog becomes very aggressive, and she isn't sure of what to do. The dog is being spoiled by the wife; it knows it need give no heed to her orders and will not listen to her commands, altho it is perfect in obedience when the husband is at home.

The wife should spend some time in a training school to learn from a professional dog trainer how to command respect from the pet so it will respond to her orders. A rehearsal period several times a week with a trainer near-by to direct her handling of the dog will do the trick. She never will have any control over the dog until she gets it to respect her and consider her a duly qualified boss.

As soon as the dog listens to her commands and understands that when she gives an order it must be obeyed, its super-guard dog complex can be curbed. A dog that is not obedient barges to the front door and rushes around and may threaten the caller.

This minor problem is similar to the one which we hear many times each month—the case of a lovable, smart family pet (usually a medium-sized breed) which goes into a frenzy when the bell rings. This dog doesn't threaten the caller, but it does rush around, bark, and skid on the rugs until the home is in an uproar.

There is nothing wrong with this dog that a little obedience training can't cure, because this is simply a question of manners, based on the dog's obedience. Get control of this dog thru obedience and you can stop it by the use of the word "no" or "quiet."

• • •

Our dogs bark once or twice when some one knocks or the bell rings or when some one passes close to the house windows. We want them to do that, and we encourage it. But after that warning, no more useless noise or mad rushing about. They have done their duty as alert watchdogs.

Several deaf people have asked us why trainers cannot teach dogs to bark a little when a bell rings and take the person to the door where a caller is. Of course there are dogs which have learned to render this service to the deaf. Others could be taught the routine. But this type of home service by a dog is entirely different from the behavior of some noisy, untrained pets which make trouble because the owner has failed to train the dog.

Altho the schnauzer wasn't introduced into this country until about 1924, it was known in Europe more than 200 years ago. There are three varieties, the giant, standard, and miniature. This schnauzer, named Tana, is shown with its owner, Eleanor Powell, motion picture actress.

Know Your Horses

STANDARDBRED

Strictly American is the breed of horses known as the Standardbred. It is these horses that one sees in harness races, hitched to sulkies and performing as trotters and pacers.

Altho they have numerous Thorobreds in their ancestry, they are heavier in proportion to their height than Thorobreds and do not reveal such high quality of blood lines, the head, ears, and bone especially being of coarser type. The average Standardbred is from 15 to 16 hands in height and weighs, when in racing condition, between 1,000 and 1,200 pounds.

• • •

It was in 1788 that a gray Thorobred stallion, Messenger, was imported from England. Some time about then or later an English trotting horse, Bellfounder, was brought to this country. Hambletonian, a famous stallion which is considered the founder of the Standardbred type, was descended from both Messenger and Bellfounder. Hambletonian was foaled in 1849.

Early in the 19th century trotting races began to attract attention in this country. In the first of these races, however, the horses were ridden rather than driven. Early trotters and pacers were slow in comparison with horses of today. The breed designated as the Standardbred was not given an official standard until 1879.

In the first authentic instance of fast trotting in America a horse named Yankee in 1806 covered a mile at Harlem, N. Y., in 2 minutes 59 seconds. Not until 1845 was a mile trotted under 2½ minutes. In 1859 Flora Temple made a mile record of 2:19¾, and in 1874 Goldsmith Maid lowered the mark to 2:14. The first 2:05 trotter was Nancy Hanks, which in 1892 made a record of 2:04, pulling the first pneumatic-tired sulky. In 1903 Lou Dillon trotted a mile in 1:58½, and in 1922 Peter Manning reduced the mile trotting record to 1:56¾. In the meantime, in 1915, Directum I. had paced a mile in 1:56¾. Dan Patch, another famous pacer, as early as 1906 had covered a mile in 1:55¼, but his mark was not allowed, owing to the fact that he was favored with artificial assistance.

A horse named Greyhound holds the world's trotting record for a mile. At Lexington, Ky., on Sept. 29, 1938, this animal set a mark of 1:55¼. The day before, and on the same track, the stallion Billy Direct paced a mile in 1:55 for a new record.

The trot is a diagonal gait, with the front and hind legs on opposite sides moving in unison. In the pace the front and hind legs on the same side move at the same time.

The most important harness races are held annually at Goshen, N. Y., altho each year sees hundreds of harness race meetings in this country and Canada. A great majority of these are held in connection with state, county, or agricultural fairs.

Yes! Softer, Smoother Skin with just One Cake of Camay

Mrs. John Parkinson,
OF NEW YORK CITY

"I call the Camay Mild-Soap Diet a miracle-worker," says Mrs. Parkinson. "My skin's so much softer, smoother." Try the beauty care of lovely Camay brides—a soft, glowing complexion may bring romance into your life.

Exciting new Skin Tests prove Camay is Really Mild.

Glorious! The softer, sweeter appeal that comes to your skin with just one cake of Camay—when you change from improper care to regular mild cleansing—when you go on the Camay Mild-Soap Diet. Skin specialists tested this care on over 100 complexions. And most complexions simply bloomed—noticeably softer, fresher, clearer—with the first cake of Camay.

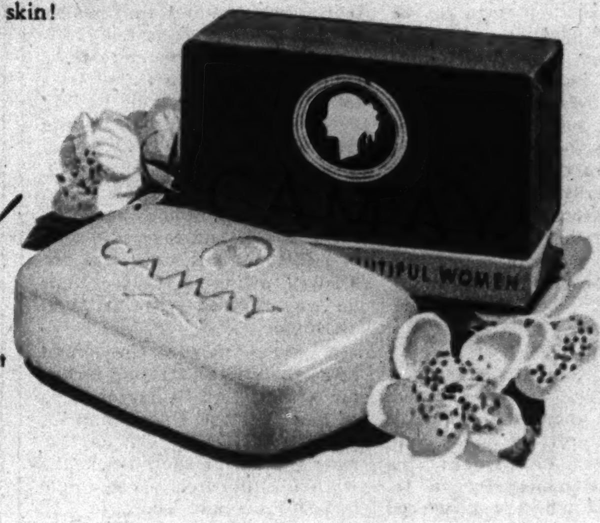
These tests proved Camay's mildness ... proved it can benefit the skin. "Camay is really mild," said the specialists, "it cleansed without irritation." No wonder the Camay Mild-Soap Diet brings such striking improvement to complexions. So get Camay... see how one cake can bring new, softer charm to your skin.

Go on the Camay Mild-Soap Diet

Simply cream Camay over face—forehead, nose, chin. Feel how this mild lather seems to soften your skin. Now—rinse warm. Give oily skins an extra C-O-L-D splash!

Simple, isn't it?—but see how Camay's mild care, night and morning, makes skin really glow! Your very first cake means lovelier skin!

Treasure your Camay!



Precious materials go into making Camay . . . so make each cake l-a-s-t for 2 or 3 weeks! Use just enough Camay to work up a good lather. And keep your soap dish dry—wet dishes waste soap. Tuck Camay slivers in a terry cloth mit — for bath or shower!

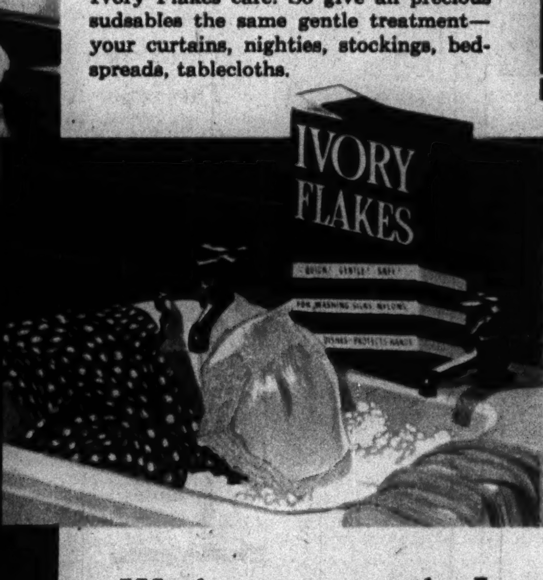
TWICE the Wear with Ivory Flakes Care!"

"GOSH I'M LUCKY," beams Mrs. Edward McMahon, Manhattan War Bride. "At this point my Army husband is stationed nearby! What a break! He actually gets home every night! Our little apartment's so gay and cosy now that I've finished the slipcovers. Made them myself because nice things are hard to find these days. That goes double for clothes. Glad I've heard about twice the wear with Ivory Flakes care!"

"DON'T TREAT THINGS ROUGHLY with the wrong kind of soap. Change to gentle care with pure, mild Ivory Flakes," urges Mrs. McMahon. Dozens of wash tests on housecoats, undies, girdles, sweaters prove hard-to-replace washables give as much as twice the wear with Ivory Flakes care. So give all precious sudsables the same gentle treatment—your curtains, nighties, stockings, bedspreads, tablecloths.



"MAKE IVORY FLAKES LAST LONGER, TOO! I'll wager you're wasting soap without realizing it," suggests Mrs. McMahon. "Soaps use vital war materials, so go easy on 'em. Be sure you measure Ivory Flakes in a cup or glass and add carefully to lukewarm water. Then swish. You'll get a mountain of frothy suds from even a small amount of Ivory Flakes (the flake form of baby's mild Ivory)."

Wash tests prove the Ivory Flakes way

The inside story of Constipation

Do your intestines work like a clock?

Do you know about "bulk" laxatives?

What about "roughage," oils, seeds, chemicals?

Write for a physician's interesting, revealing report, "The Inside Story of Constipation." See Free offer below.

Especially if you're reducing

If you are on a reducing diet you may not eat all the "bulk" you should have and constipation may result. Many physicians believe in adding laxative bulk to such diets with SARAKA.

This is SARAKA. Try it tonight!

One teaspoonful of these tiny granules has the bulk-producing ability of twenty teaspoonfuls of bran! And Saraka bulk is more than bulk alone—it is fortified with a gentle laxative ingredient. Saraka is sold by druggists everywhere. Caution, use only as directed.

"Precious little!... but I'll make it fight for freedom!"

THE BIG THINGS women are doing with little bits of food these days! Left-overs... small amounts that didn't look like much ... now turn up in "wartime specials"—delicious, attractive, patriotic dishes.

"It makes me so proud of American women!" Kate Smith says. "Practically overnight they've formed new food habits . . . learned more ways to conserve, to cut waste, to do with less . . . so there'll be more to share with our fighting men, our allies, and our neighbors.

"I hope the Jell-O and Jell-O Pudding recipes I've been giving you are helpful to you in your own special job of making food fight for freedom. Here are two new ones—and something more besides—the offer of a brand-new recipe booklet, 'Bright Spots for Wartime Meals'."

Send for this booklet of "wartime specials"!

You'll find this booklet full of rationwise ideas. There are dozens of grand recipes worked out for cooks who need ideas for different, attractive ways to use up every bit of food. For your copy of "Bright Spots for Wartime Meals," send 6¢ in stamps to General Foods, Dept. F.T.M. 3-44, Battle Creek, Mich. (Offer expires Oct. 1, 1944. Good only in U. S. A.)

JELL-O
JELL-O PUDDINGS

PIQUANT HAM MOLD

- 1 package Lemon Jell-O
- 1½ cups hot water
- 3 tablespoons vinegar
- Dash of salt
- 1 teaspoon scraped onion
- ⅓ cup chopped sweet pickles
- 1½ tablespoons diced pimiento
- ⅓ cup mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons milk or water
- 1 cup ground cooked ham, firmly packed
- ½ cup diced celery
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Dissolve Jell-O in hot water. Add vinegar, salt, and onion. Measure 1 cup and add 1½ tablespoons cold water. Chill. When slightly thickened, add pickles and pimiento. Turn into ring mold. Chill until firm.

Chill and whip remaining Jell-O as directed on package. Combine mayonnaise and milk and fold into whipped mixture. Add remaining ingredients. Turn onto firm Jell-O. Chill until firm. Unmold. Garnish with celery curls, escarole and pimiento strips, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

What makes Jell-O taste better?

That exclusive "locked-in" goodness! There's no wartime let-down in Jell-O's superior quality and flavor!

STRAWBERRY • RASPBERRY • CHERRY • ORANGE • LEMON • LIME

BANANA PUDDING

- 1 recipe Jell-O Butterscotch or Vanilla Pudding
- 1 egg white
- 1 large or 2 small ripe bananas, diced

Prepare pudding as directed on package. Beat egg white until just stiff enough to hold up in moist peaks. Fold hot pudding mixture gradually into egg white. Fold in banana. Cool, stirring occasionally. Turn into sherbet glasses. Chill. Garnish with banana slices and maraschino cherry, if desired. Serve plain or with cream. Makes 5 or 6 servings.

What makes Jell-O Puddings taste better?

Those richer, deeper, old-time flavors! Wartime has made no difference in the deliciousness of Jell-O Puddings!

CHOCOLATE • VANILLA • BUTTERSCOTCH

How to get your fair share ... Jell-O and Jell-O Puddings go off your grocer's shelves awfully fast these days. Everybody seems to want them—and of course the supplies are limited by sugar rationing. But every effort is being made to distribute the supply fairly. Ask your grocer to save your share for you! Jell-O and Jell-O Puddings are products of General Foods.

Give Tampax a chance to prove itself

Two minutes of use worth an hour's talk in a case like this

All Tampax asks of any woman is a chance to prove itself. Millions of women have been "good sports" and have given this newcomer that chance. Often it took a bit of courage . . . the "internal absorption" idea for monthly sanitary protection does sound like quite a departure from external pads, pins and belts . . . But it's mainly a matter of getting used to it. Tampax was originated by a doctor and you do not feel it when in place. It causes no odor or chafing. Just pure surgical cotton in a dainty applicator—neat insertion, easy disposal. Smooth-fitting costumes may be worn, for Tampax causes no wrinkling or bulging. Introductory box 20¢ at drug and notion counters in 3 absorbencies: Regular, Super, Junior. Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

Tetanus Toxoid

miracle serum that defeats creeping death–lockjaw!

"I like this man's army, you understand—but I'm one of those allergic guys whose stomach gets upset after taking 'shots.' So when my turn came to take Tetanus Toxoid, I kicked plenty about having to take still another new 'shot.' Probably because I was the last guy that day, the Doc, a kindly-looking Captain, just ignored my beefing and said: 'I want to tell you a story—about Tetanus.' So I squatted, and he began talking:"

'Back in '17, as a youngster in the A.E.F., I saw my first case of tetanus, or "lockjaw." The victim had probably been infected a week before. Already his jaw had become fixed, rigid. As the tetanus poison spread, his body was wrenched into frequent spasms that literally lifted him off the hospital cot. Next his arms and legs became paralyzed. Finally the muscles controlling his breathing were attacked, and the poor devil watched his own muscles slowly choke the breath from his body.

'Tetanus never attacks the mind, so despite the drugs I gave him, his brain was wide-awake most of the time. Terror-stricken, he watched death slowly creep upon him, finally take him by suffocation'..."When the Doc finished his story, I held out my right arm. 'Thanks for the story, Captain!' I said. 'And thanks for making this inoculation compulsory. This one sure makes my chances of coming back plenty brighter!' ◆ And look, folks...could any guy have a finer girl to fight for...and come home to?"

What is
TETANUS TOXOID?

Tetanus Toxoid is simply tetanus poison stripped of its poisonous qualities, but retaining all its power to build resistance against tetanus in the human body. Injected into the blood stream, it causes the cells to produce an antidote to tetanus poison, which is known as antitoxin. That is the miracle of Tetanus Toxoid...it stimulates the body to manufacture its own tetanus antidote!

A drab colored fluid, Tetanus Toxoid Serum has a colorful record in World War II. Thanks to it, not a single one of our boys has died from Tetanus thus far, and only seven cases of Tetanus have been reported since Pearl Harbor! Remember, this same Tetanus is the germ that killed more than 90% of its victims by slow torture, prior to World War I.

Today, through Medical Corps insistence, Tetanus Toxoid is a compulsory inoculation for every man and woman in the U. S. Army, Navy, and Marine Corps. Three spaced "shots" are given in this country, a fourth upon entering a theatre of war, and renewal doses every four months thereafter. To build up antitoxin in his body far above the usual level, a wounded man is given an emergency "boosting" dose of Toxoid.

And this wonder Toxoid is fighting Tetanus to a standstill—has proved 100% effective in thwarting Lockjaw's Creeping Death! This means that your son, your sweetheart, your husband in our Fighting Forces now has unfailing protection against the terrors of Tetanus.

A SALUTE FROM BAYER ASPIRIN TO THE HEROIC PERSONNEL OF THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENTS
OF THE UNITED STATES ARMED FORCES

Another Brilliant Medical Victory

Just as Tetanus Toxoid has been victorious over lethal lockjaw, so has Aspirin achieved a great triumph over pain. Whenever men of medicine fight pain, Bayer Aspirin is known and trusted for its sure, rapid relief.

Through doctor's advice and through the privilege of choosing by brand name—freely and with an open mind—the product they prefer, the American people have used more Bayer Aspirin in their homes for the swift, dependable relief of headache, neuritic and neuralgic pain than any other analgesic. So for relief that's reliable and also swift, ask for Bayer Aspirin by its full name. And be sure the tablets you buy are stamped "BAYER"—the famous name in Aspirin.

FROM THE THOUSAND WINDOW BAKERIES OF LOOSE-WILES BISCUIT COMPANY

Are you getting your "3 SQUARES" a day and still in danger of VITAMIN DEFICIENCY?

BREAKFAST
LUNCH DINNER

3 OUT OF 4 PEOPLE ARE LIVING ON "DANGER DIETS" THAT CAN LEAD TO NERVOUS IRRITABILITY, FATIGUE FREQUENT COLDS AND GENERAL RUN-DOWN CONDITION

Are You feeling buoyant, vigorous, in the full bloom of health as Nature intended you to feel?

Or Are You run-down and below par because the foods you eat every day do not supply the vitamins you need for good health? Vitamin losses in foods are serious. This can cause a direct threat to your physical well-being and to every member of your family. No matter how careful you are in your selection of foods, it is very difficult to give your family meals that insure them against vitamin deficiencies that can lead to ill health.

For Example, Northwestern University School of Medicine found that the 3 "sturdy" looking meals shown above caused mild vitamin deficiencies because they lacked important vitamins in amounts essential for full vigor and health.

Then, what can you do to keep your family safe from Vitamin Deficiency and its consequences?

The Answer is simple. Take a single ONE-A-DAY (brand) MULTIPLE Vitamin Capsule daily in addition to your regular meals. Give one to each member of your family. Each Capsule contains full basic daily requirements of all vitamins where requirements are known, plus three other B-Complex vitamins.

The Cost is low. *60 day supply, only $2.00 or 3⅓c per day. A 24 day supply for only $1.00.

SOIL DEPLETION
Inefficient crop rotation, poor fertilization and soil erosion yield crops low in minerals and vitamins.

STORAGE
Foods held in storage lose vitamins due to exposure to light, air, high temperatures, etc.

HIGH TEMPERATURES
High cooking temperatures or boiling in an open pan can cause serious vitamin losses.

SELECTION
Loss of Vitamins through poor selection of foods is a problem even experts find difficult to solve.

COOKING VEGETABLES
Many vitamins are poured down the sink in cooking waters. This is especially true of the B-Vitamins and Vitamin C.

FAULTY EATING HABITS
The practice of eating foods low in vitamins such as the sandwich-and-soft-drink habit causes vitamin deficiencies.

BACK THE ATTACK—BUY WAR BONDS. Defoe workers take more than 10% of their pay in War Bonds

The Toughest Man in the World to Please

THE "hard-to-please" attitude of the Defoe shipbuilder is not a war measure. It's a life-long Defoe tradition. Harry J. Defoe—who founded the yard nearly forty years ago—and his crew are old hands at building sea-going vessels. They know that even peace-time ships that go down to sea must be built to withstand battering that no land-bound structure receives.

Today this experience is paying extra dividends to the Navy in the form of sound construction, added protection for crews, and lower manufacturing costs. The fleet built for the Navy in the Defoe yards since Pearl Harbor numbers more than 65 fighting ships. And now a squadron of LCI (L) Landing Barges is taking form on the production line. These ocean-going invasion vessels are the spearhead of America's growing offensive. In making them, we pledge your sons all our skill and experience, all the Defoe tradition of safe, sound, deep-sea shipbuilding.

When Peace returns, Defoe's advanced manufacturing technique and skilled craftsmanship will provide quality products of greater value and lower cost for all Americans to enjoy.

Winds of gale-like ferocity, waves mountain-high, salt spray freezing on men and ships—that's the beating the North Atlantic Convoy Units take to get convoys through. It's there that Chap Stick has done yeoman duty in helping to prevent the lips of these gallant men from cracking, bleeding, chapping.

While on shore leave, they told of the wonders of Chap Stick. As a result, millions who suffered lip soreness and discomfort made the same wonderful discovery as our Navy men: that Chap Stick effectively guards against lip roughness, scaliness and weather-soreness. This is why:

Chap Stick is made especially for the protection and care of the lips. Contains a combination of medical ingredients which act 3 ways at the same time to quickly—1. Smooth roughness. 2. Soothe feverish soreness. 3. Promote healing. That is why lips feel and look better so fast this way.

Don't suffer even minor lip discomforts unnecessarily. Use Chap Stick before exposure to sun, wind, weather. It's invisible. Has so successfully given prompt relief for over 50 years that it's now the largest-selling lip protective. Get Fleet's Chap Stick today. Only 25¢ at drug counters. Look for the name Fleet's. If it isn't Fleet's—it isn't genuine Chap Stick. Chap Stick Co., Lynchburg, Va.

If you're a War Worker and your lips are subjected to unaccustomed grime, dust, extreme heat or biting cold, Chap Stick's soft, protective film will guard your lips against painful lip conditions.

Why lips need protection! Lips are vulnerable to weather. Have no means of self-protection as cross section diagram clearly shows. (1) Inner mouth membrane extends outward as a mobile fold to form (2) the free margin of the lip. Delicate outer skin (3) lacks sebaceous glands to lubricate and protect lips. Glands start here (4) below lip membrane.

Over the Mighty Andes, where the Panagra Affiliate Company of Pan American World Airways flies, travellers encounter dry, crisp air. As a courtesy and to prevent the possibility of chapped lips, Panagra provides all passengers with Chap Stick.

THEY'LL NEVER SEND ME TO THE CHAIR — NEVER! I'LL FOOL 'EM, YET!
Chester Gould
HE'S VIOLENT WITH RAGE. BUT I THINK WE'VE SAVED HIS LIFE.
WHAT HAPPENED TO OUR ACTOR FRIEND, VITAMIN FLINTHEART?
I DON'T KNOW! INCIDENTALLY, IF YOU HAD USED THAT MACHINE GUN ON THE MAN HE POINTED OUT, AN INNOCENT BOY WOULD HAVE DIED.
I COULD SEE INSTANTLY, THE MAN HE POINTED TO WAS NOT FLATTOP, BUT FORTUNATELY, YOU DID SPOT FLATTOP— AND SAVED MY LIFE!
MEANWHILE, LET US LOOK IN ON VITAMIN IN ANOTHER PART OF TOWN.
TO THINK THAT I MIGHT HAVE BEEN THE CAUSE OF AN INNOCENT BOY BEING SHOT DOWN.
I SAID TO THE DETECTIVE, "THAT'S HIM!" HOW WAS I TO KNOW THAT THE ARCH VILLAIN, FLATTOP, HAD GIVEN THE LAD HIS WIG?
OH, WHAT NEEDLESS MISCHIEF AND DESPAIR MY CARELESSNESS MIGHT HAVE WROUGHT! I WILL RETURN TO THE POLICE TO REASSURE THEM.
JUST A MINUTE, BROTHER, YOU HAVEN'T PAID FOR THOSE DRINKS
SIR! DO YOU THINK FOR ONE MINUTE THAT VITAMIN FLINTHEART—
HOLY SMOKE! LOOK HOW THE HAIR COMES OUT OF THAT COAT.
I'LL THANK YOU TO KEEP ANY REMARKS ABOUT MY PERSONAL EFFECTS TO YOURSELF! HOW MUCH DO I OWE YOU?
TWO DOLLARS AND THIRTY CENTS.
ONE THING I CAN'T FIGURE OUT, PAT. WHAT HAPPENED TO FLATTOP'S GUN?
HUH?
LET'S SEE?? TWO DOLLARS AND THIRTY CENTS. H'M??— WH-?? WHAT'S THIS??
YEEE! A GUN! A LETHAL WEAPON!
I GET IT, BROTHER! OKAY, DON'T SHOOT. I'LL GIVE YOU EVERYTHING I'VE GOT.
NOW, I REMEMBER, TRACY. DURING THE EXCITEMENT AFTER FLATTOP WAS SHOT I PICKED UP HIS GUN IN A HANDKERCHIEF AND GAVE IT TO THAT ACTOR, VITAMIN, TO HOLD.
VITAMIN?

SINCE THE FRONT BEAT US TO RIDGEVILLE-- HOW ABOUT PINEKNOT-- IT'S 100 MILES AWAY, BUT WE HAVE ENOUGH GAS TO MAKE IT BACK THERE--
NO, THE RIDGEVILLE TOWER OPERATOR SAYS TH' WEATHER HAS SOCKED IN THERE, TOO--
THE NEAREST AIRPORT IS 200 MILES AWAY AND WE HAVEN'T ENOUGH GAS TO GO THAT FAR, WAGON-WHEELS--
GULP, AH RECKON THIS MEANS A FORCED LANDING ON SOMEBODY'S FARM-- LAND? DON'T YOU KNOW THAT THIS IS THE ROUGHEST SECTION OF TH' BIG SMOKIES?
WAL, THEN AH RECKON WE'LL HAFTA BAIL OUT!
WAIT A MINUTE. THAT LITTLE AIR WAC AT TH' RIDGEVILLE TOWER IS CALLING AGAIN--
BUT NO-- WE CAN'T DO THAT, MAJOR! YORE LEG AIN'T WELL ENOUGH FOR A PARACHUTE JUMP--

Ginger Rogers TELLS HOW "LADY IN THE DARK" WAS MADE THE MOST SENSATIONAL PICTURE EVER PRODUCED IN Technicolor!

"Lady in the Dark"

A Paramount Picture

My luckiest day! When Mitch Leisen told me that of all the girls in Hollywood, I'd been chosen as the star of "Lady In The Dark" . . . based on the stage sensation everyone's been talking about!

Here I am as the cameras turn, making up my mind between the men in my life—In the office I love Ray Milland, in the evenings it's Warner Baxter—and in odd moments I'm crazy about Jon Hall.

I'm a circus queen, too—in the greatest circus ever—with seventy-nine clowns, fancy riders and everything else that would make anybody just want to run away and join it!

I get put in the lions' cage, and 187 real live Easter eggs with eyes and noses and mouths all make faces at me . . . but I don't care . . . my mink gown makes me the best dressed Lady alive!

Then I sing the famous "Saga of Jenny" dressed in a ravishing all mink gown . . . and when Jon Hall comes riding in on his beautiful big white horse, he falls in love with me just as everybody else does!

Dancing deliriously in the clouds . . . In all that splendor and color and glory, and on a set it took months to prepare—I scarcely recognize that gorgeously stunning girl as myself!

This is my wedding day—and you can imagine what a spectacular celebration that must be—with hundreds of singing and dancing attendants—and a cake over 35 feet high!

Here I am going "eenie meenie minie moe"—deciding which man I love best! The story of how I made up my mind makes "Lady In The Dark" the most exciting love story I've ever been in or ever heard of.

The TEENIE WEENIES

BY WM. DONAHEY

THAT GINKY AGAIN

WHILE serving time for having broken into the Teenie Weenie shoe house Ginky found that the pint glass fruit jar, which served the Teenie Weenies for a jail, was a very comfortable place to live.

"This," Ginky said to himself, "is a very nice way to live. I'll just get put in jail again and then I won't have to live in any old hole and I won't have to hunt my food."

Ginky asked the Teenie Weenies to put him back in jail, and when they refused he threw a stone thru one of the Teenie Weenie town hall windows, hoping that would make the little people arrest him, but the Teenie Weenies saw thru the lazy mouse's scheme. The Policeman had to keep the jail tightly locked in order to keep Ginky out, but one night the determined mouse pried open the Teenie Weenie padlock with a hairpin—he broke into a jail, which was a most unusual thing to do.

"You'll have to get out of here," the Policeman told Ginky when he discovered the mouse snoring in the jail bed.

"But I've arrested myself and I belong in jail," Ginky argued. "I want to be in jail."

"You can't be kept in jail by just wanting to," the Policeman pointed out. "This jail isn't a boarding house. It's a place to keep criminals. You're not a criminal. You're just a lazy, no-account mouse who wants to be supported. No sir, you can't stay in this jail unless you've committed a crime."

"Well, I could commit plenty of crimes," Ginky argued, "but I'd hate to do that, and so I thought it would be best to keep me in jail so I couldn't commit them."

"No, you'll have to get out of this jail," said the Policeman, and he signaled several of the Teenie Weenies to grab him.

Now Ginky was determined to stay in jail and he put up a terrible fight. After considerable pushing and pulling and nearly tearing the jail door from the metal fruit jar top, the mouse was finally dragged out of the jail.

"I'll be back here!" screamed Ginky. "I'll commit so many crimes you'll have to keep me in jail for life."

"O!" said the General. "Well, maybe we had better turn you over to Tompkins the cat."

"NO! NO!" cried Ginky. "I'll be good."

RECIPE

ORANGE SAUCE ON AUNT JEMIMAS!

A tested, taste-applauded idea for a nourishing new main dish . . . or as a dessert surprise! You'll be serving it often!

ORANGE SAUCE FOR 5

¾ cup sugar	⅓ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons cornstarch	1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ teaspoon salt	4 teaspoons lemon juice
1⅓ cups water	1 tablespoon butter

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add water. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Then place in double boiler and cook 15 minutes. Stir in other ingredients, and serve hot over Aunt Jemima pancakes. It's a delicious combination! (Tip: If you're serving 'em for dessert, make your Aunt Jemimas in the tiny, 2 inch dessert size.)

Good anytime—'specially for lunch and supper!

ARMY AIR FORCES

In a briefing room somewhere in England, Navigators, Bombardiers and Pilots of the U. S. Army 8th Air Force plan new tactics for daylight bombing missions over Germany.

The AAF "mousetrap" starts off with a feint (A) at Nazi bases in France. This sucks Luftwaffe fighters away from Lowlands airfields (B) in time for AAF heavy bombers (C) to cut for Wilhelmshaven.

Marauder medium bombers, aided by fighters, hand the Nazi bases at Tricqueville and St. Andre-de-l'Eure a terrific pasting. The Luftwaffe fighters, fooled by American football tactics, leave their own fields in Holland and Belgium to intercept.

With Luftwaffe fighter opposition "taken out", 550 Liberators and Flying Fortresses—escorted by 450 P-47 Thunderbolts and P-38 Lightnings with belly-tanks—blast Wilhelmshaven with 1,200 tons of bombs.

As the mass attack returns (A) and German fighters get back to their fields for refueling (B), more Marauders (C) hit them there. The "Mousetrap" is sprung!

FIGHT FOR G.O.P. CONVENTION SEATS

WOMAN G.O.P. CANDIDATE HITS ONE WORLDERS

Mrs. Griesel Seeks Church's Seat.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Two races for congressional nominations in north side districts possess unusual features that have aroused much interest among both Democratic and Republican voters.

Mrs. Griesel.

In the big 10th district Congressman Ralph E. Church, a political veteran, has a woman opponent, Mrs. Florence Hoban Griesel, a sturdy proponent of old fashioned American Republicanism who is making an active campaign.

Church's friends feel that he is in no danger, while Mrs. Griesel's supporters say that her nationalist philosophy suits the heavy G. O. P. district perfectly and gives her a chance to win.

In Politics Many Years.

The congressman, who lives at 300 Church street, Evanston, is a lawyer who has degrees from the University of Michigan and Northwestern university. He was admitted to the bar in 1909. During the first World war he volunteered for military service. He was elected a state legislator in the 6th district in 1916, and after his honorable discharge from service was reëlected.

Church continued in the state office until he was elected to congress in 1934. He was a congressman until 1940, when he made an unsuccessful race for the United States senate. He was renominated and reëlected as representative in 1942.

Church is married and the father of three children, one of whom, Ralph E. Jr., is a naval officer.

Mrs. Griesel Is Nationalist.

Mrs. Griesel, whose home is at 3454 Lincoln avenue, has criticized church for his vote on the Fulbright resolution and the 1⅓ billion dollar UNRRA bill for foreign rehabilitation. She has suggested that a woman's party, with Rep. Jessie Sumner as Presidential candidate, might be a good thing—and one sure to win. She is unalterably opposed to any form of internationalism and any candidate who isn't extremely nationalist. She hates "smearers."

"When people call me a Nazi for upholding the constitution of the United States, I feel like giving them a punch on the nose," she said. "I haven't given one yet, but. . ."

Dewey to Be Nominated.

In the 9th district Congressman Charles E. Dewey, incumbent Republican, has no primary opposition. There are three Democrats running—Alexander J. Resa, an assistant corporation counsel, who has organization help; Monte Randall and Frederick F. March. Randall was recently discharged from the army after he suffered a broken leg in a training camp and March, a north side realty owner and manager, is campaigning for a national lottery.

Randall's program calls for an extension rather than a reduction in government controls. Resa says that he is no radical.

"I believe that the United States has the best form of government on earth," he asserted, "and the best economic setup of any nation. I think that business should be free, but that there should be some regulation. That regulation should not and need not be hurtful."

Favors World Control.

He said that he believed in the United States joining other nations in trying to establish and maintain peace.

"Either such an organization will be effective or it won't," he said. "We ought to try it once before we give up the idea. If it fails then the only way is isolation."

In the 7th district, which touches parts of the north side, four Republicans and two Democrats are making the race for congress. The G. O. P. seekers are Charles H. Garland, mayor of Des Plaines, Alfred P. Haake, George T. Foster and Justus Mozart. The Democrats are William W. Link and Stanley T. Gross. Link has organization support.

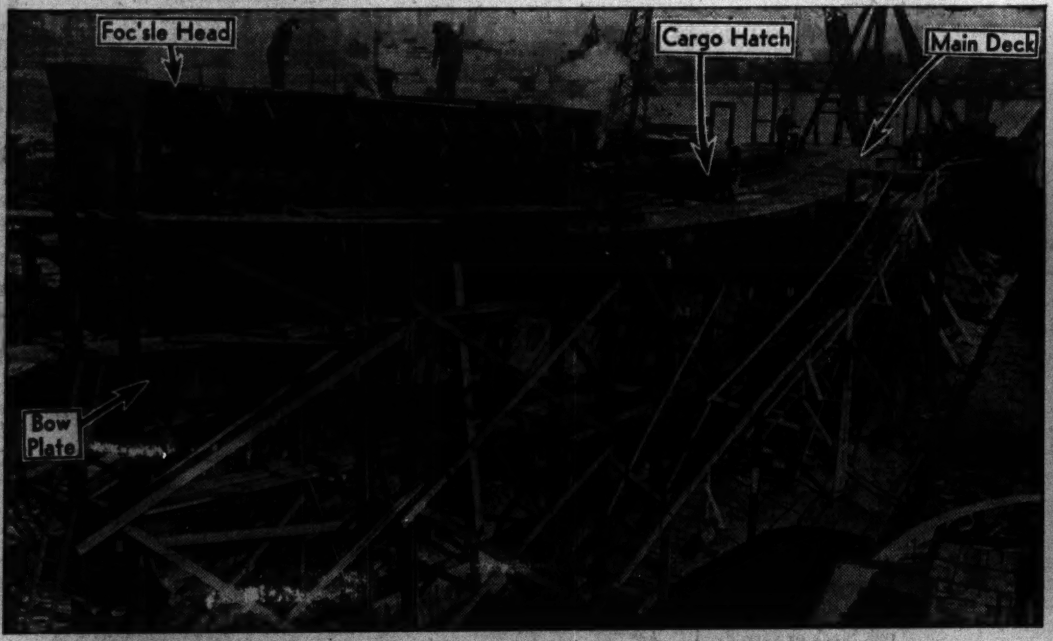
JEWISH YOUTHS WILL PROTEST BRITISH ACTION

More than 1,000 children attending 23 schools affiliated with the Board of Jewish Education will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Thorne hall, Northwestern university, to express their protest against Great Britain's attempt to close Palestine to Jewish refugees.

The object of the protest, the Chamberlain white paper, goes into effect March 31. Rabbi Felix Levy and Rabbi Morris Teller will participate in this afternoon's program.

It is expected that a resolution will be addressed to President Roosevelt urging him to use his office in the fight for abrogation of the British regulation.

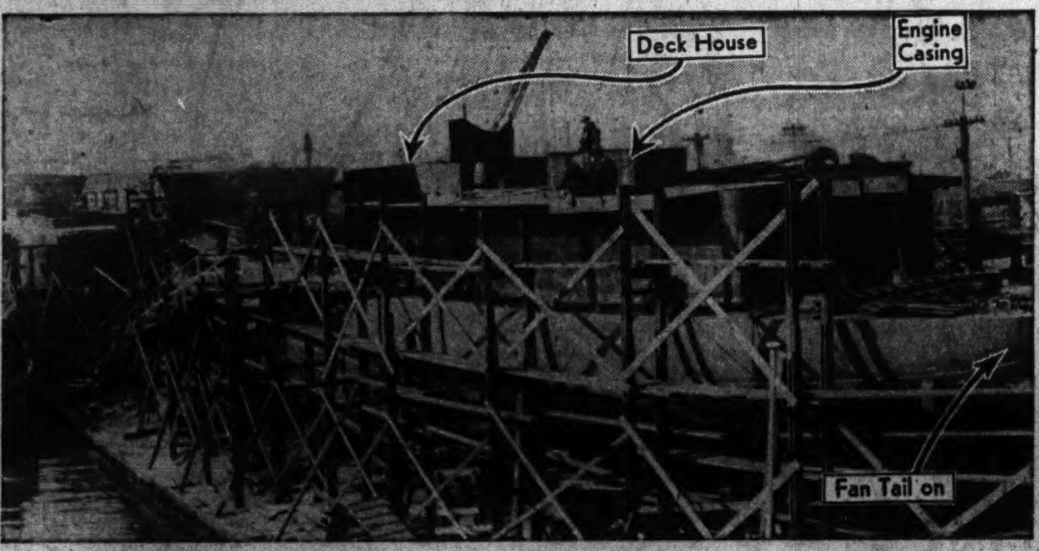
Calumet Shipyard Sends Its First Big Craft Down the Ways for the Army



With 75 per cent of the shell plating on, the bow plate in place, the cargo hatches in and the main deck on, the foc'sle head is being built on this 176 foot ocean going ship which the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company, 9367 Harbor av., is constructing for the United States army transportation corps.

Fan Tail (Upside Down)

James Jonkus, 17 W. 119th st., a weld chipper, cleans the welding on the fantail, which is prefabricated in the shipyard and swung by crane onto the stern of the ship, where it is welded into place. The fantail generally is swung into place before the deck house is erected.



All sides of the deck house are erected as units and a deck laid on top after the fantail is on. The square in the top center of the deck house is the engine casing, thru which engines will be lowered by crane into the inside of the ship. A plate will go over the top of the casing, and a smokestack will come thru, so that if new engines are needed the top plate must come off and the stack must be removed.

In this picture the deck house has been completed and the bridge, pilot house, and other superstructure are in place. At this stage of construction the ship is about 75 per cent completed and in two weeks will be ready for launching. Only the propellors and rudder remain to be put in place before the launching is held.

[Tribune photos by Julius Gantier.]

Wire Trigger
Cribbing
Ways

In another 15 minutes the cribbing and blocks will be out and tension on the trigger wires will be increased by jacks. As the cribbing and blocks are removed a painter paints parts of the ship that never have been painted. The timbers hanging from the side of the vessel are removed, every one leaves the ship, and it will soon slide down the ways into the water.

As Whistles Blow

Whistles blow, employes whistle and yell as the ship, now 75 per cent completed, hits the water. Practically all work at the shipyard stops as employes knock off for a few minutes to witness a launching. Several score of guests generally are present at such times.

COMMISSION 11 R.O.T.C. CADETS AT CEREMONY

Commissions were awarded 11 cadets of the R. O. T. C. in a recent ceremony at which Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics, presided.

Gordon C. McKeague, 17 year old senior at Hyde Park High school, was commissioned cadet colonel and top officer of the Chicago public high school reserve officers training corps. The corps includes 29 school units and 10,500 members. McKeague is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert I. McKeague, 6816 Merrill av.

CELLIST TO PLAY ON FT. SHERIDAN SHOW SATURDAY

Two concert engagements will be kept today at Fort Sheridan, by Ennio Bolognini, cellist.

At 2 p. m. he and his piano accompanist will go thru the hospital wards and at 3 p. m. he will appear before the soldiers and their guests in the post gymnasium. Mr. Bolognini is first cellist for the Chicago symphony orchestra and has been featured on many of the radio networks.

In addition to Mr. Bolognini's program, a full hour's revue will be presented by the soldiers and the WACs of the post, featuring the 344th army service forces band.

N. U. ALUMNI PLAN CONCERT APRIL 21; NAVY MEN TO SING

Mrs. George Haight of Evanston is general chairman of arrangements for the concert to be given Friday, April 21 under auspices of the Northwestern University Associate Alumnae and the Alumni association in Cahn auditorium of Sott hall. Edward Davies, Chicago baritone, will be soloist at the concert, and the navy V-12 chorus and the Woman's Glee club of the university will sing. The choruses are directed by Prof. George Howerton of the university school of music. Members of Mrs. Haight's committee are Richard Quirk, Paul Young, Miss Virgina Wells, Mrs. Ralph Strader, Mrs. George Paddock, H. L. Wessling, Mrs. H. E. Mueller, Mrs. Stuart Fox, and Mrs. Arthur Larkin.

Mrs. George Haight.

Winnetka Garden Clubs to Hear Soil Specialist

The four garden clubs of Winnetka will sponsor a war garden meeting at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the Winnetka Community house. The program will include Dr. J. F. Fonder, specialist on soil chemistry, plant physiology, and fertilizers, who will discuss "Feeding and Protecting Your Garden in War Time," and a motion picture, "The Farm Garden." Mrs. Will J. Kelley, chairman of the combined garden groups, will preside.

JUDGE BARBER HEADS MOTOR CLUB COUNCIL

Judge James G. Barber of Evanston has been named chairman of the North Shore Area council of the Chicago Motor club, succeeding Harry Delano. The new secretary is Percy Baines of the Lower North Shore Community council.

The North Area council is composed of business and civic leaders of the north side and suburbs, who meet monthly to discuss safety and traffic problems of this area.

Among recent projects of the council was a plan, which has been submitted to Ald. Frank Keenan [49th], for eliminating traffic hazards on Bryn Mawr av. from Broadway to Sheridan rd. A morning and evening parking prohibition, on alternate sides of the street has been recommended where double parking causes traffic congestion during rush hours.

North side business men and civic representatives who attended a recent council meeting were: Harry W. Delano, North Shore Business Builders association; Percy Baines, Lower North Shore Community council ;James G. Barber, Evanston; H. S. Delman, Meyers publications, George S. Hewitt, Lake View Co-op club; Fred G. Koehler, Ravenswood Improvement association; Frank Reuhlmann, North Ravenswood Improvement association, and Helen M. Sewell, North End Woman's club.

Winnetka Club to Have Children's Style Show

The Winnetka Woman's club will hold a dessert luncheon and children's fashion parade at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday in the clubhouse. Funds raised at the luncheon will be turned over to the Illinois Children's home and Aid society.

TUXIS SOCIETY RALLIES TODAY IN LAKE VIEW

Approximately 250 members of Tuxis, a high school Sunday evening society, will attend a rally at 3:30 p. m. today in Lake View Presbyterian church, 716 Addison st., to develop a Westminster fellowship program for Presbyterian young young people. All parts of the Chicago area will be represented.

Speakers will include Ben Andrews, field director for the board of Christian education in the synod of Indiana; Dr. J. Walter Malone, vice president of McCormick Theological seminary; the Rev. George Ossentjuk, pastor of Christ Presbyterian church; the Rev. Ruben J. Torrey, repatriate missionary from China; Miss Gail Frank, director of religious education at the Glencoe Union church, and the Rev. Isaac Beckes, director of young people's work for the International Council of Religious Education.

Following the afternoon program dinner will be served by the women's society of the church, of which Mrs. Gracia Weppner is president. The Rev. John Magill is pastor of Lake View Presbyterian church.

REVIVE ALUMNI DAY FOR GRADS OF N. U. JUNE 10

Observance of Alumni day will be resumed at Northwestern university, after lapse of a year. The meeting of the old grads will be held Saturday, June 10, in the meadow in front of Deering library. A special feature will be a contest to select the best paragraphs from letters of alumni members in service.

Eddy S. Brandt of Evanston, a graduate of the class of 1905, is general chairman of the alumni committee. Committee members from Evanston include Ralph Mabbs, Willian Nott, Kenneth Reeling, Mrs. O. B. Roberts, Joseph Rose, Mrs. I. A. Smothers, Mrs. Arthur Swanson, and William A. Swanson.

Other members are Richard Quirk and Oliver Nichols, Wilmette; James Leahy, Glenview; Nathan Sharp and J. F. Quigg of Highland Park.

Church Chapel Speaker.

Dr. Edmund D. Soper will give the second in a series of chapel talks, at the high school fellowship chapel service in the First Methodist church, Evanston, at 9:30 a. m. today.

LIST 5 SUMMER CAMP PERIODS AT ROGERS PARK

Five camping periods to be held this year at Camp Rogers Park, have been announced by Harry G. Hansen, executive secretary of the Rogers Park Y. M. C. A., who again will serve as camp director.

Beginning with the June 25 session, the boys' period will be June 25 thru July 5; July 5 to July 15; July 15 thru July 29.

The girls' camping trips will be under direction of Miss Katherine Hough, girls' work secretary of the North Avenue Y. M. C. A. and Mrs. Genevieve Dallke, the Rogers Park Y. M. C. A. girls' work secretary. The first girls' period will be from July 30 to Aug. 9, and the second period begins Aug. 9 and ends Aug. 19.

Victory Players to Present Drama in Kimball Hall

The play "Nine Girls" will be presented by the Chicago Victory players at 8:30 o'clock tonight in Lufkin hall of the Kimball building. The all-girl cast includes Edith Di Orio and Helen Ayres, Lauri Schutt-Nelson has directed the production.

PRO-AMERICA THEME OF MOST IN APRIL VOTE

No-Contest Slate for Democrats.

Voting in Chicago on April 11 for delegates to represent the city's 10 congressional districts in the Democratic national convention will be strictly a matter of form.

There are 20 delegates to be chosen in the districts and there are exactly 20 names on the party list. So tightly knit is the Kelly organization that only the party wheel horses are designated to represent the city's millions of citizens when the convention goes into session.

G. O. P. Has Contests.

In contrast the Republican delegate ballot shows a battle in seven districts, the exceptions being the 5th, 8th, and 9th, where organization candidates will go in without any opposition.

Where there are fights, the independent seekers for seats at the convention are nearly all interested in a stronger and more rigid recognition of constitutional safeguards for American liberties; in other words, a return to "real Republicanism." International sentiment among the delegates is markedly absent.

All Opposed to Willkie.

There is not, so far as the G. O. P. leadership is aware, a single proponent of Wendell L. Willkie for President. There are many aspirants who are not hesitant in expressions of dislike for him and the things he represents. The same is true in downstate districts.

As an example of the general feeling, the National League of Independent Voters, which campaigns for constitutional republicanism, has endorsed five delegate candidates on the ground that the regular choices are not sufficiently representative of its views. They are James O. Koontz in the 3d district, Henry James Shelton and Walter J. Pacanowski in the 4th, Mrs. Frances S. Conlon in the 6th, and Mrs. Martha M. Krysiak in the 7th.

Lively Contest in 11th.

Perhaps the liveliest contest in the metropolitan area is in the 11th district, made up of Will, Du Page, Kane and McHenry counties. There Frank H. Reid of Aurora, who was a delegate to the 1940 convention, Alfred Johnson of St. Charles, and Frank P. Lyman of Crete are running against the organization candidates, Win G. Knoch of Naperville and Charles M. Burgess of Aurora.

In the convention of 1940 Reid jumped to the Willkie bandwagon on the second ballot, even before it became apparent that the vehicle had a band. It is now reported that Reid favors MacArthur rather than Willkie. Lyman, a chemist, says he is and will remain unpledged to any candidate.

Five Candidates in 1st.

In the 1st district, which includes the loop, as well as a considerable territory to the south, Hobart E. Neff and M. C. Atkins, with Republican organization support, are opposed by three other candidates.

One of them, who is regarded as having an excellent chance to win, is George Hellman, who was a delegate in 1940 and was opposed to Willkie. It is reported he hasn't changed on that point. Roscoe Conkling Simmons, noted orator, and former Ald. Louis B. Anderson are also running in the 1st.

Simmons said that he was running as a "straight Republican" and believed his experience as a delegate in past conventions justified his making the race. He described himself as not only an America Firster, but also an "America Only-er."

Kemper and Pope Candidates.

In the 10th district there are four candidates. Those approved by the regular organization are James S. Kemper of Winnetka and Henry Pope Jr. of Glencoe. Kemper was a delegate in 1940 and voted on the first, third, and suceeding ballots for Willkie. He is reported now to be inimical to the Willkie candidacy.

Albert I. Appleton of Evanston and Carl U. Johanson of 4513 N. Damen av. are the other candidates. Johanson said last week that he wanted it made clear that he is opposed to Willkie and favors a "return to the constitution."

G. O. P. Choices Listed.

Republican delegate candidates in the loop and north side districts, with regular support indicated by asterisks, are:

ROSS AND PEACE HITTING HARD IN 42D WARD RACE

Republican Committee Post at Stake.

BY LEE SHASSERE.

The "roaring 42d ward," political battleground for half a century, is again in the throes of one of its bitter Republican committeeman fights with Acting Committeeman Paul C. Ross striving to offset the challenges of Charles E. Peace, veteran political leader.

Again last week the fight was highlighted by charges and counter-accusations with Peace maintaining a full schedule and Ross taking only a little time out to receive his pre-induction physical examination.

Charges Bipartisan Deals.

At a meeting of the 42d ward regular Republican organization, Ross' election was urged by Robert L. Hunter, former president of the Better Government association, now chairman of the state civil service commission.

"When I became president of the BGA in 1940, we conducted a survey of Chicago wards which showed bi-partisan political dealings in the 42d," said Hunter. "Charles E. Peace, then ward committeeman, had so manipulated and traded away the Republican party in the ward that it had become an adjunct of the Democratic organization.

"The BGA made a concentrated effort in 1940 to defeat Peace and we succeeded. If the BGA is consistent, and I believe that it will be, it will again urge the defeat of Peace. Residents of the 42d ward now have an opportunity to get behind Ross and assure themselves of real Republican representation, free of any Democratic influence."

Charges Change of Name.

In a blistering political talk, Peace charged that Ross' real name is Ross P. Ceffalio and that in 1936 and again in 1942, he sought public office in the ward under the name of Ceffalio only to be defeated both times. Peace also has questioned Ross' ward residence, pointing out that the law requires a committeeman candidate to be a bona fide ward resident.

"In 1936 when Ross was a committeeman candidate under the name of Caffalio, he gave his voting address as 817 Townsend st., but left there soon after his defeat," Peace charged. "In 1942, when he ran for state representative under the name of Ceffalio, he checked in at the Knickerbocker hotel in the ward shortly before the primary. He left soon after being defeated. Recently, he established his voting address in the ward at 20 E. Delaware pl. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ceffalio, live at 3516 N. Clark st., in the 4th ward. Ross is registered at his draft board from a Hudson av. address.

Peace further charged that Ross has the backing of William John Granata and Peter C. Granata, west side political leaders, who, Peace declared, desire to elect Ross so they can take over the 42d ward.

Battle in 47th Ward.

In the 47th ward Republican Committeeman Frank R. Leonard informed his opponent, Ald. Frank O. Hilburn, that he would accept his debate challenge.

"I will accept with the understanding that Hilburn will explain to the public his past political stand which stamps him as a Democrat," asserted Leonard.

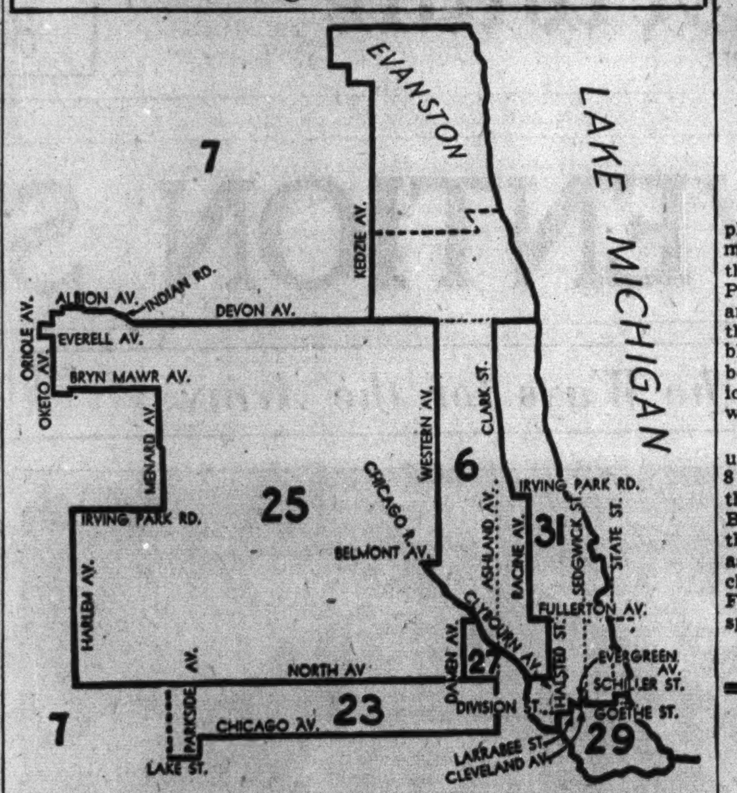
In the 50th ward the three-way Republican fight between Committeeman Jens M. Jensen, John L. Coffield Sr., and Henry C. Doehne is providing voters with plenty of fireworks.

Second Try of Doehne.

Doehne, who is in the motor oil business, has charged that Jensen lacks leadership. This is Doehne's second bid for the committeemanship. He was defeated in 1940 after making a determined fight. He was also defeated in 1942 when he ran for state representative in the 6th district.

Coffield is in the advertising and printing business. He is a former president of the Young Republicans of the 50th ward, and has been a G. O. P. precinct captain. In talks last week he charged that Jensen has been lax in his ward duties. Eight years ago the 50th was a banner Republican ward but has now slipped to sixth place in city voting strength under Jensen's rule, Coffield charged.

North Legislative Districts



Legislative districts in which north and northwest side voters will ballot in the April 11 election are outlined in the above map. The 7th district includes all townships outside Chicago which are not a part of the 6th, 19th, or 23d districts. Lake, McHenry, and Boone counties comprise the 8th district, while Kane and Kendall counties comprise the 14th district. Not shown is a part of the 1st district in which north siders living between the Chicago river and Roosevelt rd. will vote.

'OLD' QUIZ KIDS TO BATTLE WITH A CRADLE CREW

Military Services Call More Radio Stars.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Five alumni of the Quiz Kids and five mere moppets will engage in a brain battle over WLS—Blue at 6:30 tonight. The graduates who are coming back to their alma mater are Jack Lucal, 17, senior at Oak Park High; Van Dyke Tiers, 17, a student at the University of Chicago; Jack Beckman, 17, who is working; Joan Bishop, 17, who has been doing USO Camp shows and Cynthia Cline, 18, a student at Northwestern.

The cradle crew they will meet: Sparky Fischman, 4; Pat Conlon, 6; Bunnie Duskin, 6; Joel Kupperman, 7, and his sister Harriet, 9.

More and more the requirements of the military services are making themselves felt on network programs. Red Skelton, Norris Goff [Abner of Lum and Abner], Nelson Olmsted, and Ralph Edwards of Truth or Consequences all have passed their physicals. Among those who are in 1-A are Dennis Day, Jack Benny's tenor; Bob Crosby, Harry James, Percy Faith, and Sammy Kaye, all radio orchestra leaders, and Ed Prentiss who plays Capt. Midnight.

Chet Lauck [Lum] plans to carry on without Goff; John Nesbitt will take over the Harry James periods with his Passing Parade show. Replacement for Skelton and Edwards are reported likely so that their shows can continue.

Eddie Cantor and Ed [Archie] Gardner are reported looking for sponsors. . . There is a report that when Jack Benny leaves his present sponsor at the end of this season that Ed Wynn will be the replacement. Benny will keep that 6 p. m. spot, however. . . William Powell and Deanna Durbin are being teamed for a summer radio series. Dick Todd, radio singer, will soon start on an overseas tour. . . You Can Write a Song, featuring Lew Brown and Fred Koots, songsmiths, is in the audition stage. . . Gracie Fields probably will be back on the air with a 30 minute show.

Jeanne Cagney Guest on W-G-N Show Today

Jeanne Cagney, sister of Screen Star Jimmy Cagney, will visit the Green Valley, U. S. A. show to be aired over W-G-N-Mutual at 4 p. m. today. Miss Cagney enacted the role of Jimmy's sister in the film, "Yankee Doodle Dandy," and has appeared in several radio dramatizations and Broadway plays.

WAR GARDENERS TO GET HINTS ON BIGGER YIELDS

North side war gardeners will have the opportunity of perfecting their methods and increasing their yields of fresh vegetables this year by joining training groups now being formed thruout the city. Classes will start Monday, April 3.

The park district, the board of education, and the war garden department of the OCD are combining to set up a series of neighborhood centers. These will be established when 20 persons have registered. The state board of vocational education will provide instructors, who will direct the activities of neighborhood units. The entire training group setup is made possible thru the federal war training program.

Registrants in the courses must be at least 17 years old. They may be beginners in gardening or those persons with some experience, who wish to improve their methods. The courses will include layout and planning of gardens, the preparation of soil, planting, cultivation and care, and other methods, including the harvesting of crops.

All courses extend for 10 weeks with sessions of two hours each, on succeeding Monday evenings. It is planned to begin the courses Monday, April 3.

Persons living on the north side interested in the project may sign up at any of the following parks: Chase park, 4701 N. Ashland av.; Indian Boundary park, 2500 Lunt av.; Green Briar park, 2650 Peterson av.; Welles park, 4430 N. Oakley av.; Hamlin park, Wellington and Hoyne avs.; Paul Revere park, 2509 Irving Park rd., and Lincoln park conservatory at the foot of Fullerton av.

ANNUAL FLOWER SHOW OPENS IN LOOP TOMORROW

North Side Clubs Enter Variety of Exhibits.

Many north side residents will take part in the annual flower show, "Fashions in Flowers," of the Garden Club of Illinois to be held on the second floor of Marshall Field & Co. tomorrow thru April 8. The exhibit will include planted gardens as well as many classes of flower arrangements.

Two lectures, on horticultural subjects, will be given each day during the two weeks with the exception of Saturdays and of Good Friday. Tours, conducted by garden club members, will start from the guest lounge in the galleries on the second floor at 10 a. m., 1 p. m., 3 p. m. and 4 p. m.

Three north side clubs will have exhibits of planted gardens. The Lake Forest Garden club, of which Mrs. Albert D. Farwell is president and Mrs. Ralph Milman, chairman, will have the Chinese garden. The Evanston Junior League Garden club will have the garden walk. Mrs. Chester N. Goltra is president, and Mrs. Robert L. Scott Jr., chairman. Another exhibitor in this group will be the Winnetka Garden club. President is Mrs. Hal C. Kimbrough, and chairman, Mrs. A. B. Bradley.

Wilmette Plans Period Table.

A period table will be arranged by the Wilmette Garden club, of which Mrs. Harvey A. Bush is president and Mrs. Harvey L. Storch, chairman.

Among the dinner table displays will be four by north side organizations: Glenview Garden club, Mrs. J. Hale Hunt, president, Mrs. Paul Beda, chairman; Kenilworth Garden club, Mrs. Harry Williams, president; Mrs. Frank Barrett, chairman; North Shore Garden club, Mrs. Felix Simon, president, Mrs. Harry Oppenheimer and Mrs. Frederick Livingston, chairmen, and the garden department of the Winnetka Woman's club, Mrs. W. G. Kelley, president, Mrs. Dean Hole, chairman.

Three luncheon table arrangements will be by north side groups: The Garden Club of Evanston, Mrs. Johnston Bowman, president, Mrs. Charles S. Kelley, chairman; the Lake Bluff Garden club, Mrs. William Harvey, president, and the Little Garden Club of Evanston, Mrs. Harold Ashton, president, Mrs. Frank Booth, chairman.

Mexican Table Arranged.

The Garden Guild of Highland Park, of which Mrs. H. Standen Vanderhie is president, will have a Mexican table in the exhibit. Mrs. Ralph Cleary and Mrs. Hugh Wilson are chairmen. A breakfast table will be set by the Ravinia Garden club. Chairmen are Mrs. M. G. Kettner and Mrs. S. D. Grace. Mrs. Hugh Riddle is president.

Incidental tables will be decorated by the Winnetka Garden guild, of which Mrs. Lee S. Fletcher is president and Mrs. Philip Coyle, chairman, and by the North Shore Garden club.

Flower arrangements in glass will be contributed by the Woodley Garden club, Mrs. Louis F. McCauley, president, and Mrs. Paul Armstrong, chairman, and by the Garden guild of Highland Park, the North Shore Garden club, the Winnetka Garden guild and the garden department of the Winnetka Woman's club.

Plan Breakfast Trays.

The Northfielders, with Mrs. Louis Goodkind Jr., president, and Mrs. Bolton Sullivan and Mrs. Herbert Nelson, chairmen, and the Wilmette Garden club will arrange breakfast trays. Pairs of vases suitable for the altar will be by the Northfielders, the Ravinia Garden club and the garden department of the Winnetka Woman's club.

Two north side clubs will have an exhibit of home decorations. They are the Kenilworth Clippers, Mrs. Harvey Scribner, president, and Mrs. Thilo Best, chairman, and the Kenilworth Home and Garden club, Mrs. Peter Barton, president, and Mrs. Clemens A. Storch, chairman.

Small arrangements will be by the Little Travelers Garden Club of Evanston, Mrs. Roy L. David, president, and Mrs. Wilbur S. Smith, chairman, and by many other north side garden clubs.

Lectures by North Siders.

Among the north siders who will give lectures are Mrs. Albert D. Farwell, Mrs. George I. Martin, Mrs. George S. Parker, Mrs. Bert S. McDonald, Mrs. Arthur F. Durand, Mrs. J. Wilson McAllister and Mrs. Herbert Reed.

North side members of the general committee for the flower show are Mrs. J. Wilson McAllister of Kenilworth and Mrs. Edward C. Haase of Winnetka. Judges include Mrs. Stanley D. Grace, Highland Park; Mrs. Haase; Mrs. M. G. Kettner, Highland Park; Mrs. Leon M. Hamburger, Winnetka; Mrs. McAllister; Mrs. Waldo Gundlach, Winnetka, and Mrs. B. F. Stein, Waukegan.

Winnetka Garden Clubs to Hear Soil Specialist

The four garden clubs of Winnetka will sponsor a war garden meeting at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the Winnetka Community house. The program will include Dr. J. F. Fonder, specialist on soil chemistry, plant physiology, and fertilizers, who will discuss "Feeding and Protecting Your Garden in War Time," and a motion picture, "The Farm Garden." Mrs. Will J. Kelley, chairman of the combined garden groups, will preside.

MRS. WILLIAM H. POLK.

Lurena Whidden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Whidden, 1608 Forest av., Evanston, was married recently to William Harris Polk, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Polk, Madison, Wis. The ceremony took place at the First Congregational church in Evanston, followed by a reception in the bride's home.

SAYRE STUDENTS COLLECT PAPER ON DAILY BASIS

Pupils of the Harriet E. Sayre school, 1820 N. Newland av., did an outstanding job of waste paper collecting in the school contest for $1,000 in prizes recently awarded by the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association. Rather than limit their collection to one day a week, pupils who gathered more than a "one day's" load of waste paper could bring it to school any day of the week.

Student participation in the drive has shown unusual results, said Miss P. M. Morse, Sayre principal, who reported that in a recent week's collection two sixth grade pupils brought in, jointly, a total of 1,682 pounds of waste paper. They were Edward Quartetti who collected 1,054 pounds and Dona Leiser whose total was 628 pounds.

Total collection for the sixth grade room was 4,411 pounds for that week, or an average of 141 pounds per pupil. Even the first and second graders are bringing in "amazing" collections of waste paper each week, the principal said.

CALUMET YARDS SLIDE SHIP DOWN WAYS FOR ARMY

The dock master—the one man who can't make a mistake in building and launching a ship—stands tense, watching, as the men at the jacks increase the tension on the trigger wires, two cables which are the sole support of hundreds of tons of steel.

Suddenly his arm flashes down. Two carpenters simultaneously swing razor sharp axes against the thick manila ropes joining the trigger wires, and another ship goes sliding down the ways into the water at the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company, 9367 Harbor av.

First of a Series

The ship which the company launched recently was the first of a series of 176 foot vessels it is building for the United States army transportation corps for use around islands with small, shallow harbors in which larger ships cannot operate.

Pictures carried in today's Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE show the progress of construction from the time the ship was 25 per cent completed until it hit the water, when it was 75 per cent completed. Two months ago the Metropolitan section carried pictures showing the construction of the ship up to the 25 per cent mark, when the vessel was "in frame" and shell plates were being welded on.

As construction progresses, all deck plates are welded on except at the stern. The bow plate, a 22 foot curved piece of steel, is swung on to the bow and welded into place. Steel ribs which forms the lines of the foc'sle head are welded on, deck plates welded on top and shell plates on the sides.

Weld Fantail On.

The fantail at the stern is meanwhile prefabricated in the ship yard. When the two cargo holds, the foc'sle head and shell plates have been completed, the fantail is swung into place by a heavy crane and welded to the body of the ship.

The deckhouse goes up just aft of the No. 2 cargo hold, and generally is built before the fantail is swung into place. The sides, front, and rear are put up as units, but partitions inside are put in singly.

Bridge for Officers.

The bridge deck is laid on plates which stick up above the level of the bulk deck at the front of the deckhouse. From the bridge deck officers direct the course of the ship thru communication with the pilot house behind him. Just back of the pilot house, which has a row of windows in front and other on the sides, are the radio room and charthouse.

John Servais, 10426 Ewing av., dockmaster and veteran of 15 years with the company, describes himself as the man who can't afford to make a mistake. His is the job of readying the ways, the butter boards down which the ship will slide, cribbing, jacks, and trigger wires.

"A machinist, a welder, an electrician, any one can make a mistake but me," says Servais. "Any one else can do the job over again if he doesn't like his work, but I only get once chance and it has to be right the first time."

Work at the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company is pretty much at a temporary standstill when a launching takes place. Workmen line the decks and superstructure of other ships, the office staff turns out in force, and a number of visitors are always present.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 27

All pruning of trees, shrubs, and vines should be finished before the sap starts to rise. If the gardener is at a loss as to how to prune, he always can remove dead branches or correct branches that rub together. The surplus wood should be removed.

If there are dead plants in the hedge row it may be necessary to cut back the whole row to promote a uniform growth. Large, overgrown shrubs look bad and seldom furnish the maximum of flowers due to an excess of old wood. Such plants should be given a major operation to promote new wood to produce the best flowers.

Tuesday, March 28

Gardeners who are fortunate enough to have a hotbed should begin sowing some of the vegetable seeds for early planting, such as tomatoes, eggplant, pepper, and early cabbage. The seed will germinate rapidly and care must be taken that the frame is aired every good day to prevent the seedlings from damping off, a fungus disease that frequently kills a batch of seedlings in a single night.

Use care when watering and give fresh air. Thick sowing will bring thick seedlings and these grow so close together that extra care must be taken or they will become spindly, weak, and unsatisfactory.

Wednesday, March 29

With the coming of warm days the gardener is prone to begin gardening operations immediately, but it is best to wait until the ground is in suitable condition. Wait until the soil crumbles when squeezed by the hand or when it can be easily broken up with the spade.

Wet soil is impossible for working. Save seed by careful sowing. Sow thinly and save a lot of work. Do not undertake more than can be successfully accomplished or the garden will be poor and the crops meager.

Thursday, March 30

Paint the trellises and arbors before the plants begin to grow. Vines are usually heavy and must have substantial support if they present the best appearance. Vines are among the finest of plant materials and more should be planted.

Examine the mulching material that protects the strawberry bed and perennial borders to see that the crowns of the plants are not too heavily covered. But do not remove all the material; leave it in place to prevent late freezing and possible injury.

Friday, March 31

Turn over the compost heap and mix all parts thoroly to hasten decomposition. Start a new pile with the coarser portions of the mulching materials when it becomes necessary to rake it off the beds. Square the sides and leave the top depressed to catch rain water that falls.

Keeping the heap moist hastens decay. Examine the perennials and firm the soil around them. Wood ashes that have been saved during the winter should be scattered over the vegetable garden plot and borders. Chicken manure, hog manure, and sheep manure should be used sparingly, for it is very strong but effective.

Saturday, April 1

Plant sweet peas, for they thrive in early spring and summer. Hardy nursery stock can be moved as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Do not overplant shrubs. If the soil is poor replace it with good, fresh soil, for by giving the shrubs the best possible conditions in which to grow infinitely better results will be obtained.

TRIBUNE ARTIST DODGES SHELLS TO SKETCH WAR

Marine Moves Up, Finds Sheahan at Front.

After more than a year of training in the United States and at Pacific outposts, Staff Sgt. Ward Walker, former CHICAGO TRIBUNE reporter, now a marine corps combat correspondent, has moved, with many other Chicagoland marines, into front line action against the Japs.

Sgt. Walker's orders to move up came from Lt. Charles E. Walker, 425 Franklin blvd., at a Southwest Pacific base. In company with seven other marines including Corp. Donald E. Wiley of Aurora, he went by plane to an advanced army base.

Disappointed by the ill luck that left him behind was Sgt. Tom Carson, 5427 Hyde Park blvd., combat photographer, who bade the eight-man detail good-by before they breakfasted on bacon and eggs. As the plane swept out over the Pacific, Corp. Wiley's query, "Wonder when we'll have real aggs again?" brought the crack, "The only fresh eggs we'll get will be bomber-layed."

Poker—A New Way.

Clipped of their wings, the party of marines traveled the second leg of their journey to the front on the decks of an old gray tramp freighter. Pinochle, bridge, and pay day poker—pay when you get caught—occupied the time for many, but Pvt. Charles Silzer, 3916 S. Wells st., a graduate of Englewood High school, spent his time fishing. He didn't catch anything but sagely remarked, "It isn't what you catch, it's what you might have caught. Look at that." "That" was a vicious looking shark.

News of recent Chicago happenings were at a premium on deck, Sgt. Walker reported, and as Pvt. Robert Erhart, 4254 Hazel av., joined the other Chicagoans aboard, the city's reputation as the best liberty town in the world was broadcast to soldiers and marines.

Band Keeps Guns at Hand.

Not typical of the previous weeks' action on the island battleground was the scene that greeted the landing marines at Cape Gloucester. Near the beach, their tommy guns within easy reach, was the outfit's band warming up on the "William Tell Overture." Playing a stellar saxophone was Corp. Philip Ziff, 5511 Gladys av.

Tales of Gary Sheahan, Tribune staff artist then doing a series of sketches in the South Pacific, are legend on New Britain, Walker reported. One marine tells of working his way cautiously up to the infantrymen during a tank drive on the Jap held airport. The troops followed the tanks as they blasted a path thru the pillboxes.

"Bullets were whining close," said the marine. "The smoke cleared a little and there, striding along between two tanks, sketching as he went, was Sheahan. He stuck with 'em right to the finish. Gray hair and all."

With America's Fighters

Lt. Etter.

Rollin Etter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adala Etter, 7628 Bosworth av., has been commissioned a lieutenant in the air corps at Foster field, Tex. A cadet captain during his training, Lt. Etter was selected honor cadet in his class in military subjects.

Now assigned to duty at San Miguel, Cal., Lt. Kenneth C. Thorsness, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel G. Thorsness, 2440 Lake View av., spent a furlough with his parents recently. Lt. Thorsness is a graduate of the University of Illinois, where he served as vice president of his fraternity, Delta Phi.

Sgt. Theodore J. Deligiamia, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Deligiamia, 4816 Berteau av., was home on leave recently, from his post at Indiantown, Pa.

A medal as a rifle sharpshooter has been won at Fort Knox, Ky., by Sgt. Adolph S. Paynok, 4700 N. Campbell av. Sgt. Paynok has been assigned as an instructor and supervisor of the cooks and bakers school at the fort.

Serving at an advanced air depot in England John M. Wyle of Highland Park has been promoted to first lieutenant. Since his induction Lt. Wyle has been in more than 20 countries. He has been in service since 1942.

Sgt. George F. Lee.

Sgt. George F. Lee, son of Mrs. George P. Lee Sr., 4720 N. Beacon st., has been assigned to Peterson field, Col., for training as an aerial engineer, and gunner.

Promotion of Richmond R. Fowler, 112 E. Superior st., from first lieutenant to captain has been announced in England by the 9th air force headquarters.

From the air transport command in India comes the word that Harry T. Kenny, son of Mrs. Agnes Kenney, 1410 Thorndale av., has been advanced to the rank of lieutenant. He entered the army in January, 1943, and reported to the China-Burma-India theater six months later.

The two sons of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Richards, 6145 Winthrop av., are in the South Pacific theater. John H. Richards has recently been commissioned a lieutenant in Australia and his brother, William K. Richards, is a chief specialist in the navy. Both boys are graduates of Senn High school.

A break in army duties was given Pvt. William Geist, when he was assigned to the British national film studios, where he appeared in the "The Golden Road," a picture based upon American aviation engineers in England. Pvt. Geist's home is 2414 Fargo av.

The tank destroyer replacement training center at North Camp Hood, Tex., announces the promotion of Frederick W. Hart, 1043 Rush st., to technician 5th grade.

SOLDIERS WANT CHURCH ERECTED IN SPITE OF WAR

The effect that religion has on men in the overseas forces was movingly demonstrated recently in a letter received by Mrs. A. E. Ellingson, 5118 Newcastle av., from her brother, Corp. David Peterson, 26, and his buddy, Pvt. Boyd Poole, 21, now stationed in Honolulu, Hawaii.

The letter was inspired by one sent to Corp. Peterson by Mrs. Ellingson, wherein she described the situation within her church, the Norwood Heights Evangelical Congregational church. Needing a new edifice, the congregation was divided as to whether it was right or wrong to embark on a building project during war time.

The soldiers had definite opinions on what should be done. So definite, in fact, that they pooled their resources, and sent a draft for $45 for the church's building fund.

He Was Indignant.

The letter, written by Pvt. Poole, arrived a few days before their contribution, and read, in part: "I read David's letter in which you wrote the particulars concerning the church. The part about it being a sin to build in war time attracted my attention, and also my indignation. God's house should come first, before war, shelter, food, or any personal comfort. A man's soul is immortal, and he receives food and blessing for his soul at the house of God. Man's body is only the house that the soul lives in in this world.

"What the world needs is influence for God everywhere, because in Second Chronicles, 7:14, we read 'If my people shall humble themselves and pray, seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sins and will heal their lambs.' God is greater and bigger than any nation, and all power and glory belong to Him.

They Think It's a Sin.

"David and I are both overseas, and both think it is a sin to put war ahead of building a church. The first fruits belong to God, and after the tithes are paid into the storehouse, then and then only should other items be considered."

A few days later the letter with the $45 contribution arrived, coupled with a note from the men apologizing because they could not contribute more. The proposed church is now in the blueprint stage, waiting for clearance and a priority assignment in Washington.

Not Their First Time.

This is not the first time Corp. Peterson and Pvt. Poole have voiced their opinion on the debt people owe their churches. Some months ago they sent a check for $25 to Corp. Peterson's church, the Evanston Covenant Mission church, with which to start a fund for purchasing an organ.

Before entering the service, Corp. Peterson was an interior decorator in Evanston. He knew nothing of the Norwood community, for his sister moved there after he had left for the service. In Evanston his activities in the church were only moderate. Pvt. Poole is the son of a Baptist minister living in California.

INVALID ACTRESS FINDS HAPPINESS HELPING OTHERS

Goes to See Protege in High School Play.

BY MARGARET FAXON.

This is the story of the beginning of a career, and the end of a career. A famous actress, Miss Adrienne Kroell, is one of the patients in an Evanston nursing home. She played as leading lady with John Barrymore and other notables on the stage and in moving pictures. [She has scrapbooks full of pictures and praise of her work.] Now she is bedridden, but, as she lies in her especially made couch she is playing the hardest role she ever played—that of a happy woman.

You can't say that she is always smiling, because that would make her seem inane, but her expression is so serene that, as one visitor put it, "She seems to have conquered everything." In her search for a cure she has traveled far and wide.

One of the Mayos said to her, "You have arthritis everywhere but on your mind, Miss Kroell. Don't get it on your mind." So when you ask her how she is she always says, "Fine," and you feel that she is inwardly happy.

She never speaks of her aches and pains unless it be very quietly to the nurse who tends her. Self-disciplined, she has put herself on a schedule so that she will need the minimum of attention.

Sits in Chair Occasionally.

Now and then she is lifted out of bed by an apparatus which she and her brother invented, and is swung into a large chair where she sits for an hour or two. This is done only once or twice a week, as it requires the help of two nurses, and is very painful to the patient. Mostly she is in her bed, half reclining.

Mrs. Sturgis, who owns the home, is a woman with a kind heart. It is not enough for her that the patients are warm, and well fed, and medically attended, but she must try to make them happy, too. She has a daughter, Ann, who is 17 and a senior in high school. Ann was given the leading part in the senior play, "Stage Door." Seventeen was the age when Miss Kroell made her debut in musical comedy, the beginning of 20 years of theatrical success. So she was much interested in Ann's dramatic work.

A Wish Come True.

The young girl rehearsed her part at the actress' bedside. "O, if I could only see you do it," Miss Kroell said one day, wistfully. And then the plan began to form. They would take her to high school in an ambulance on the opening night, carry the stretcher down to the front row, and make it into a chair where she could sit thru the evening.

"Then you will know whether or not I can be an actress," said Ann.

They carefully made their preparations as to what she would wear and what medicine she would take to ward off too severe pain. Nothing must happen to prevent her going!

At last the great day arrived. Ann was letter perfect, and her dresses were ready. Miss Kroell had coached her in the big scenes and the director at high school agreed with the interpretation.

Other Patients Excited.

The ambulance was to arrive at 8, and the other patients were all in a dither, excited, and regretful that they could not go, too. But, after all, you had to be a great actress to have such favors conferred upon you. They understood. Miss Kroell had to find out if Ann could be an actress.

Most of the other people in the home were old folks, and they loved Ann, as she came breezing thru the hall. They knew all about her dates, and how she got along in her studies. She was, collectively, their grandchild, and they scolded her about her galoshes.

Every one was waiting for the evening to come, and then about noon it began to snow.

"It won't last long. Such big flakes. It never does," the folks said, and peered out. "It will stop in an hour or two."

Year's Worst Blizzard.

All afternoon it snowed, and a strong wind arose. It was the worst blizzard of the year. Buses stopped running and automobiles were stalled along the street in front of the home. The walks were covered with great drifts.

"Now you can't go," the old folks said mournfully. But Miss Kroell only smiled.

At 7 o'clock the nurses put on her most beautiful robe, and over it an evening coat. Promptly at 8 the men brought in the stretcher, placed her carefully upon it, and carried her out into the stormy night.

"We never took any one to a play before in our ambulance," they said.

"Don't cover my face. Let me feel the wind, and the snow, and the cold. I love it! Ten years since I've been out in the evening."

Thru Laughter and Tears.

So she went to the play and laughed and cried thru the three acts.

"Very, very good for a high school performance," she said. "Ann is definitely talented. She must go to dramatic school next year. Perhaps to the Pasadena playhouse."

The next day she told the rest of them all about it, the story of the play, what the setting was like, and how well Ann did her part.

"I feel so much better. It just made me young again."

ASSEMBLYSLATE MAKERS LAUNCH ACTIVE CANVASS

Seekers of Senatorial Committee Posts Listed.

Senatorial committeemen candidates have launched active campaigns designed not only to present their qualifications to voters but also to acquaint many with the single function which committeemen perform.

The senatorial committee consists of three persons elected by each district party at the state primary, which will be held this year on April 11. The committee determines the number of candidates the party in the district will nominate at the primary to run for state representative in the general election. If, by reason of death, resignation or disqualification there is a vacancy among the nominees, this is filled by senatorial committee action.

Usually Nominate One or Two.

The committee may decide to nominate one, two, and very rarely three candidates. The decision to nominate three is a real test of party strength for only three representatives from each district are elected at the general election in November.

In 1942, in Chicago's 27th district on the near west side, the Democrats appraised their vote getting ability and decided to "shoot the works." They called for three candidates to be nominated, while the Republicans decided on only one. In the November election the Democrats made a clean sweep, winning all three offices.

Election Sometimes Formality.

The primary party ballot instructs voters on the number of house of representatives candidates to be nominated. Should one party committee decide upon two and the other party on only one, then the fall election is a mere formality.

The Democrats have again called for three nominees in the 27th, and similar action has also been taken in the 15th.

Following are the candidates for senatorial committeeman in the north section of Cook county. In the 1st, 6th, 7th, and 25th districts Democratic candidates have no opposition and are assured of election as only three candidates have filed. The asterisk [*] indicates incumbents.

GOODMAN CALLS FOR RETURN TO SIMPLER LAWS

BY LEE SHASSERE.

Today's most needed law is one that will give citizens greater protection from men in public office, Ralph Lee Goodman, Republican candidate for the house of representatives nomination in the 31st district, declared last week in a 48th ward campaign speech.

"Somebody always comes up with sailing what he termed the "endless batch of needless laws."

Says Laws Cause Confusion.

"The confusion of the businessman, the worker, and the housewife, comes from too many laws, rules, edicts, overlapping bureaus and governmental agencies. The more we get away from the simple laws of our forefathers, the farther we become removed from the true American way of life," he declared.

Goodman, who lives at 528 Belmont av., is a member of the Chicago Crime commission, and is a businessman and civic leader. He was the second high vote getter on the Republican county ticket in 1942 as the candidate for clerk of the Criminal court. He bears the indorsement of Committeeman Richard Donnellan of the 44th ward.

Atty. George Walter Johnson, also a Republican house candidate in the 31st, has the indorsement of the 48th ward regular Republican organization and has outlined a five plank platform which includes:

1. Post-war public works calling for such projects as the elimination of the "bottle neck" at Sheridan rd. and Foster av.; 2. Full discussion of employer-employe problems; 3. A program designed to return women now in war plants to domestic pursuits after the war; 4. Adequate provisions for returning veterans, and 5. Complete appraisal of the Chicago park situation.

Johnson resides at 5419 N. Glenwood av. He is a Northwestern university graduate and served in World War I.

Rep. George A. Williston [R.], of 1245 Early av., who is seeking reelection, has many indorsements. He is the incumbent committeeman in the 49th ward and is seeking his sixth term in the house.

Williston first served in the legislature for three terms more than 20 years ago. He was 49th ward alderman from 1930 to 1936, and was elected state representative again in 1940 and 1942. He is in the insurance and bond business.

Other Republican candidates for the two party house nominations are Milton S. Robins, 5046 Glenwood av., an insurance broker; Carl Emil Liedberg, 846 Buckingham pl., and Harry W. Prafke, 1151 Addison st., who is in the retail drug business and is a former president of the Chicago Retail Druggists association. Prafke was an aldermanic candidate in the 46th ward in 1943.

Three Democrats have filed for the two party nominations. They are Rep. Pierce L. Shannon, 915 Buena av.; William J. Mullaley, 2345 N. Geneva ter., and William B. Greene, 5101 Sedgwick st.

Rep. Edward P. Saltiel [R.] is unopposed for the district senate nomination in the 31st, a seat left vacant by the death of Sen. Milton D. Smith. The Democratic candidate, Albert L. Schwartz, is also unopposed for the nomination.

PLAN SUMMER CURB PICKUP OF WASTE PAPER

System to Make Up Loss When Schools Close.

Planning three months ahead, the Chicago waste paper salvage committee has decided upon city-wide curb pickups to supplant salvage systems of Chicago public and parochial schools when these institutions close for summer vacations. Chicago schools, at present, are accounting for 1,000 tons of waste paper a week for use in the manufacturing of war material, said John R. Robinson, representative of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association sponsoring the waste paper campaign.

The loss of school collections during the summer months presented a serious problem to salvage officials, said Robinson. They selected the city-wide pick-up system as the most efficient way of gathering scrap paper during the expected slack. Advocating the efficiency of that system, William L. McFetridge, general chairman of the salvage committee, said:

"We are working along the line of handling the situation thru the already established agencies of waste paper salvage.

Change New York Plan.

"In New York the city authorities used city trucks to pick up the paper from pavements, then sold it direct to the mills, eliminating the collection agencies and paper stock grading companies. Thru these regular agencies the entire amount of normal waste paper salvage is obtained, and it is only fair that we take the pick up men, shops, and dealers into consideration when planning city-wide curb pickups.

McFetridge pointed out that New York, as a result of eliminating the shops, peddlers, and dealers, was able to gather only 708 tons of waste paper in a city-wide curb pickup, as against the 2,733 tons gathered last Jan. 15 in Chicago's first city-wide pickup.

Divide City in Eight Sections.

Details of the curb pickup system call for division of the city into eight sections, with collections to be taken in two adjoining sections each Saturday. These divisions, worked out by Albert H. Meisterheim of the salvage committee, list district 1 and 2 as the area from Fullerton pkwy. to Howard st.; districts 3 and 4, from Fullerton to Madison st.; districts 5 and 6, south from Madison to 63d st.; and districts 7 and 8, south of 63d to the southern city limits, 127th st. Each district will reach completely across the city, east and west.

Volunteer trucks will not be called upon to make the pickups, as was done in former city-wide curb pickups, salvage officials said. Peddlers, shops, and dealers in each section will be assigned their own territory, and confined to that territory for each pickup. Paper will be taken direct to railroad cars by shop owners and dealers, where it will be weighed and loaded. Proceeds will be given Chicago service men's centers.

Telephone Pickup Agency.

In addition to city-wide pickups, special stress will be placed on the war production board's telephone exchange pickup agency, State 8787, during the summer months, said J. E. Marcus, director of the Chicago waste paper campaign committee. Householders accumulating 50 pounds or more of waste paper are asked to telephone that agency giving their address, and a truck will call for the paper within 24 hours.

ANNUAL CONCERT OF OLD ST. PETER'S CHOIR NEXT SUNDAY

The annual sacred concert of the mixed choir of Old St. Peter's church, Polk and Clark sts., will be given at the church next Sunday at 4:30 p. m. under the direction of Vivian Abell, organist and director.

Vivian Abell.

The choir, which sings every Sunday during the noon mass, is composed of members from all parts of Chicago, who have had experience in operatic and liturgical singing.

Soloists and choristers will render compositions by Palestrina, Vittoria, Mozart, Verdi, Gounod, Tschensnokoff, and others, with the added feature of orchestral accompaniment.

FIGHT FOR G. O. P. CONVENTION SEATS

REPORT G. O. P. SWING GAINS ON SOUTH SIDE

Congress Aspirants Hit New Deal.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Republican candidates for congressional nominations in two south side districts, the 1st and 2d, reported last week that dislike for the Roosevelt regime was growing and that chances for G. O. P. victories in the fall were better than good.

Two issues—foreign policies and racial discrimination — have had great influence on voters' thinking, it was said, with treatment of discharged service men and complicated taxes as other factors making for Democratic unpopularity.

In the big 2d, which includes all the territory inside the city limits south of 43d st. and east of State st., the nation's present foreign policies were excoriated by Thomas J. Downs, who has the regular Republican support for the privilege of running against William A. Rowan, incumbent Democrat, in the November election.

"The Roosevelt burocrats in the state department have no foreign policy," Downs declared in his speeches. "We know that winning the war is the big task now, but the burocrats take time out to criticize the Republican party for a demand that any foreign tieups be made only on terms that will protect the sovereignty of our country.

Upholds Mackinac Declaration.

"Churchill believes in protection of England's sovereignty just as Stalin believes in protecting Russia's sovereignty, and I believe any American, native, or foreign born, should be grateful for the protection of United States sovereignty."

Downs said that he stood on the principles of the Mackinac declaration adopted by the advisory council of the G. O. P. last fall.

Pridmore Hits "Colony" Thinking.

Another active Republican candidate in the 2d is William T. Pridmore, attorney who has had much experience in politics. He is even more forthright than Downs on international affairs. He has come out against the "Cecil Rhodes idea that this country never ceased to be a British colony." He asks his audiences whether they personally approve "tossing billions abroad to feed Europe and Asia while denying our returning soldiers more than a sop."

Both these candidates are opponents of racial discrimination. Downs told a 3d ward audience that it was well known Negroes were discriminated against in the army and navy.

"This matter was brought recently to the attention of Mrs. Roosevelt," he said. "She said she would take it up with the secretaries of war and the navy. She doesn't have to take so much trouble. Sometime when she is in Washington she could take it up with her husband, who for the time being is commander in chief."

Edgar Brown Is Active.

Other candidates for the nomination in the 2d are Edgar G. Brown, Negro journalist; Fred Burt of 1115 E 47th st., and Frank O'Leath of 1624 E. 56th st. Brown is a sponsor of a proposal that Secretaries Knox and Stimson be impeached for failure to place Negroes in combat services. He is also fighting for a vast Calumet harbor project.

Burt has asserted that he stands for curbing burocracy and for a return to original American ideals. He said that he was against any international police force and violently opposed to international cartels, "the cause of all our wars." O'Leath is principally interested in soldier welfare.

In the 1st district, which includes the loop, even the incumbent congressman, William L. Dawson, finds himself out of step with the war and navy departments on the discrimination issue. The only Negro congressman in the country, Dawson has no opponent for the Democratic nomination.

Hits Army Discrimination.

He has asserted that the discrimination grows out of the social setup of the army, which is maintained with the influence of "southern reactionaries."

"Our people are forbidden to fight as they want to for our country," he said. "They are relegated to work battalions, where they have no chance to become heroes. A bitter price is being paid for this system, and by its backers.

"Older men and fathers of families are being drafted for combat because fit men of our race are not given their chance. It is even possible that the war's end is farther off because of discrimination. Certainly the morale of the Negro service man is lowered."

William E. King is the organization choice of the Republicans in the 1st, and is opposed by Earl B. Dickerson, who ran for congress as a Democrat two years ago. It is King's contention that the colored soldier has no chance for greater honor under a Democratic regime.

"The voters of this district are beginning to see the futility of hoping for justice from a President who must rely for his strength on the solid south," he said. "Our canvasses show that the voters are breaking with the New Deal after 12 years of trusting its promises."

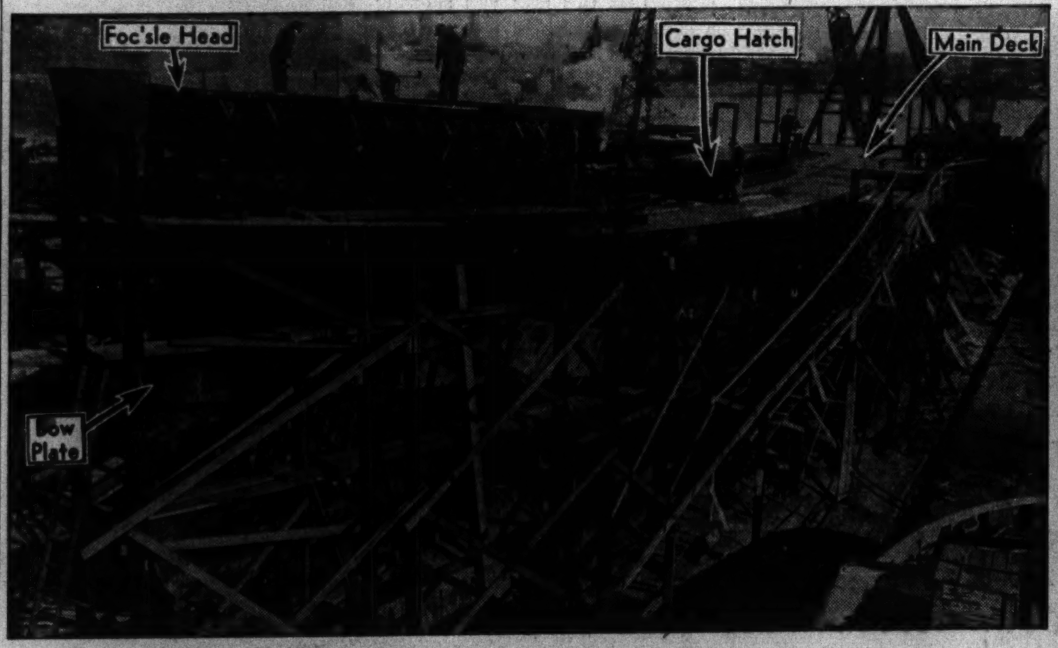
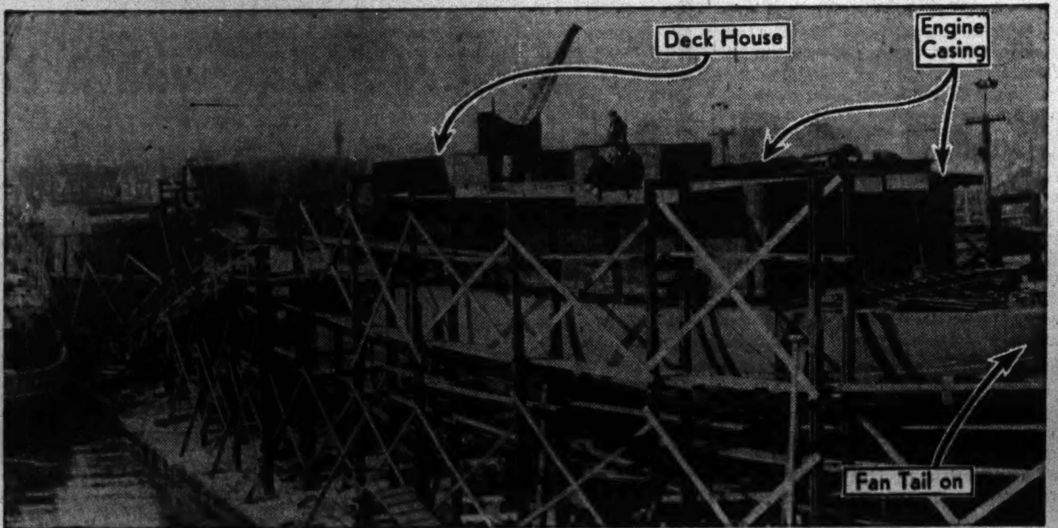
Calumet Shipyard Sends Its First Big Craft Down the Ways for the Army



With 75 per cent of the shell plating on, the bow plate in place, the cargo hatches in and the main deck on, the foc'sle head is being built on this 176 foot ocean going ship which the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company, 9367 Harbor av., is constructing for the United States army transportation corps.

Fan Tail (Upside Down)

James Jonkus, 17 W. 119th st., a weld chipper, cleans the welding on the fantail, which is prefabricated in the shipyard and swung by crane onto the stern of the ship, where it is welded into place. The fantail generally is swung into place before the deck house is erected.



All sides of the deck house are erected as units and a deck laid on top after the fantail is on. The square in the top center of the deck house is the engine casing, thru which engines will be lowered by crane into the inside of the ship. A plate will go over the top of the casing, and a smokestack will come thru, so that if new engines are needed the top plate must come off and the stack must be removed.

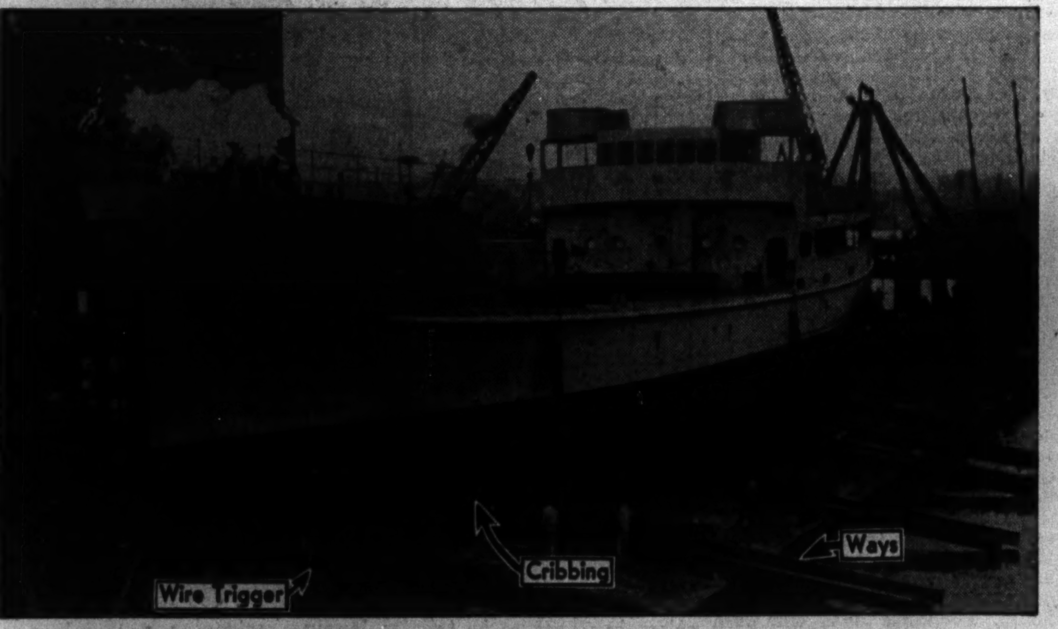
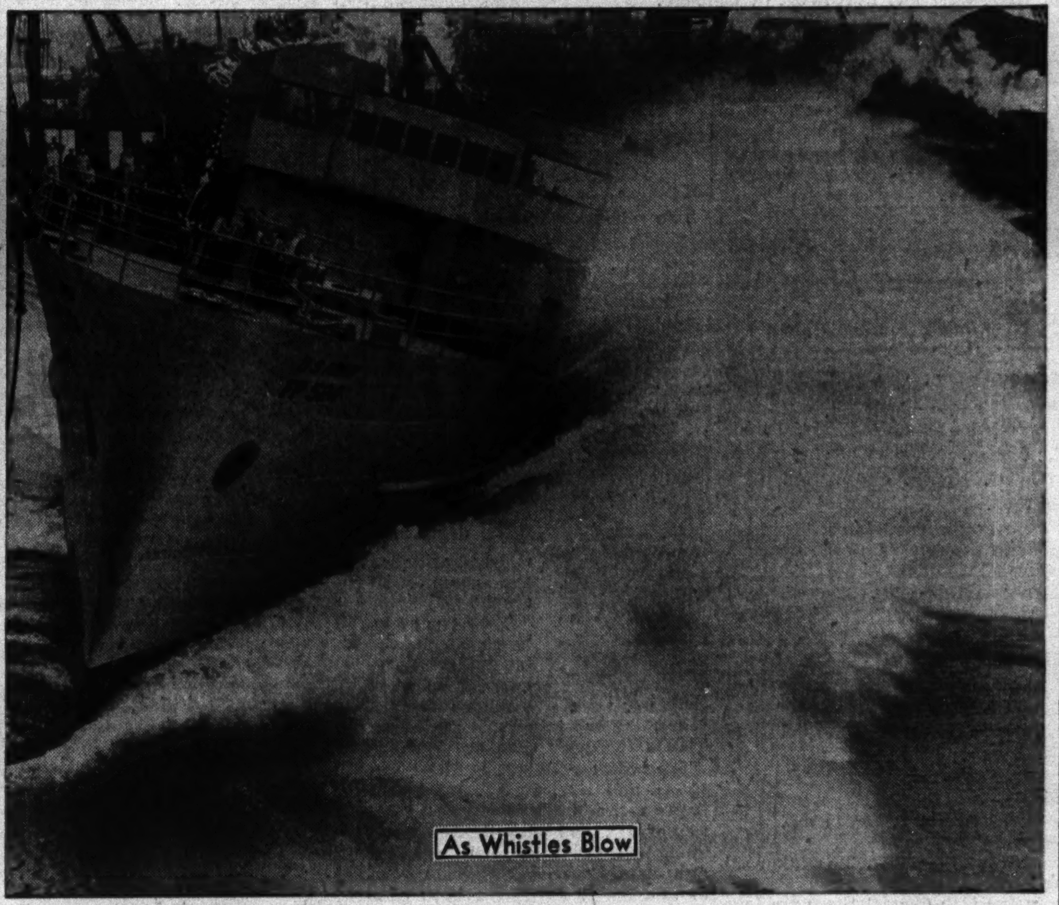
In this picture the deck house has been completed and the bridge, pilot house, and other superstructure are in place. At this stage of construction the ship is about 75 per cent completed and in two weeks will be ready for launching. Only the propellors and rudder remain to be put in place before the launching is held.

[Tribune photos by Julius Gantter.]



In another 15 minutes the cribbing and blocks will be out and tension on the trigger wires will be increased by jacks. As the cribbing and blocks are removed a painter paints parts of the ship that never have been painted. The timbers hanging from the side of the vessel are removed, every one leaves the ship, and it will soon slide down the ways into the water.



Whistles blow, employes whistle and yell as the ship, now 75 per cent completed, hits the water. Practically all work at the shipyard stops as employes knock off for a few minutes to witness a launching. Several score of guests generally are present at such times.

SEEK PROVIDENT HOSPITAL FUND FOR AFTER WAR

Will Raise $200,000 to Finance Project.

A financial campaign to meet post-war demands is being launched by Provident hospital, 426 E. 51st st., A. J. Allison, superintendent announced. The goal is $200,000. Of this amount $150,000 is expected thru solicitation and $50,000 will be donated by the Julius Rosenwald fund when the solicitatiton goal has been reached.

Dr. T. K. Lawless is chairman of the drive which is beginning on the south side and will extend thruout the city. Committees have been formed, including all groups affiliated with the hospital, and business, professional, industrial and labor groups.

Provident hospital is one of the outstanding Negro hospitals in the country. It has a bed capacity of 167 and is the only Negro hospital to be certified for a three to five year graduate training course in surgery by the American College of Surgeons. It was the first hospital in the country to offer training for Negro nurses and now has a staff of 47 graduates and 73 student nurses. Of this number, 44 are cadet nurses.

Its clinic is the second largest in the Chicago area and gives more emergency service than any other hospital in the city with the exception of the County hospital. It is affiliated with the University of Chicago for teaching purposes.

AUTHORS TO ATTEND BOOK FAIR AT GIRLS' SCHOOL TOMORROW

A book fair will be held at the Faulkner School for Girls, 4746 Dorchester av., from 1 to 5 p. m. tomorrow in the school gymnasium.

Mrs. Perry J. Ten. Hoor.

Mrs. Perry John Ten Hoor, 4937 Woodlawn av., is chairman of the committee which has established the Faulkner book shelf and is assisted by mothers who volunteer as saleswomen each school day. The walls of one room are lined with books where the mothers of the school have opened a rental library as well as the book shop.

Several colorful personalities will be present tomorrow to autograph books. Emily Kimbrough, a former student of Faulkner, co-author of "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," now being filmed in Hollywood; Dr. Max Torek, author of "Surgeon's World;" Dr. Isaac A. Abt, author of "Baby Doctor," and Dickie Tyler, star of "Tomorrow the World" will be at the school.

South Shore Church Plans Lenten Program Friday

The Woman's Federation of the South Shore Community church, 74th st. and Yates av., will sponsor a Lenten program at 8 p. m. Friday. Mrs. Ebba Lennstrum, dramatic artist, will give a dramatic interpretation of Lloyd Douglas' story, "The Robe." Vocal selections will be sung by Norman Corban, baritone.

DENTAL SURGERY DEGREES GOING TO 8 SO. SIDERS

Eight south siders will be among the 78 graduates to receive degrees of doctor of dental surgery from the Chicago College of Dental Surgery Wednesday morning. Of these graduates, 70 will be commissioned in a special ceremony to be conducted by the army and navy officials.

The Very Rev. Joseph M. Egan, president of Loyola university, will make the presentations to the graduates among which are: Warren G. Bierma, Lansing; Harold A. Black, 5320 Dorchester av.; William J. Connors, 7213 Vincennes av.; Alfred A. Gierz, 6815 Cranson av.; Robert L. Hulett, Hammond; Raymond R. Meisel, Hammond; Reinhold Schlueter, 8122 Vernon av., and John E. Sullivan, Hammond.

PRO-AMERICA THEME OF MOST IN APRIL VOTE

No-Contest Slate for Democrats.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Voting in Chicago on April 11 for delegates to represent the city's 10 congressional districts in the Democratic national convention will be strictly a matter of form.

There are 20 delegates to be chosen in the districts and there are exactly 20 names on the party list. So tightly knit is the Kelly organization that only the party wheel horses are designated to represent the city's millions of citizens when the convention goes into session.

G. O. P. Has Contests.

In contrast the Republican delegate ballot shows a battle in seven districts, the exceptions being the 5th, 8th, and 9th, where organization candidates will go in without any opposition.

Where there are fights, the independent seekers for seats at the convention are nearly all interested in a stronger and more rigid recognition of constitutional safeguards for American liberties; in other words, a return to "real Republicanism." International sentiment among the delegates is markedly absent.

All Opposed to Willkie.

There is not, so far as the G. O. P. leadership is aware, a single proponent of Wendell L. Willkie for President. There are many aspirants who are not hesitant in expressions of dislike for him and the things he represents. The same is true in downstate districts.

As an example of the general feeling, the National League of Independent Voters, which campaigns for constitutional republicanism, has endorsed five delegate candidates on the ground that the regular choices are not sufficiently representative of its views. They are James O. Koontz in the 3d district, Henry James Shelton and Walter J. Pacanowski in the 4th, Mrs. Frances S. Conlon in the 6th, and Mrs. Martha M. Krysiak in the 7th.

Lively Contest in 11th.

Perhaps the liveliest contest in the metropolitan area is in the 11th district, made up of Will, Du Page, Kane and McHenry counties. There Frank H. Reid of Aurora, who was a delegate to the 1940 convention, Alfred Johnson of St. Charles, and Frank P. Lyman of Crete are running against the organization candidates, Win G. Knoch of Naperville and Charles M. Burgess of Aurora.

In the convention of 1940 Reid jumped to the Willkie bandwagon on the second ballot, even before it became apparent that the vehicle had a band. It is now reported that Reid favors MacArthur rather than Willkie. Lyman, a chemist, says he is and will remain unpledged to any candidate.

Hellman Is Independent.

In the 1st district an independent, George Hellman, is regarded as having a good chance to win over one of the regular choices, Hobart E. Neff and M. C. Atkins. The trio are all anti-Willkie. Other candidates are Roscoe Conkling Simmons, noted orator, and former Ald. Louis B. Anderson.

Simmons said that he was running as a "straight Republican" and believed his experience as a delegate in previous conventions justified his making the race. He described himself as "not only an America Firster but also an America Only-er."

Judge Daniel P. Trude, who was a delegate in 1940, is running independently in the 2d against the organization choices, Leonard C. Reid and P. H. Moynihan, former congressman. All are strongly anti-Willkie. Judge Trude said he was not given organized support because he refused to agree to a unit rule for the Illinois delegation.

One for Internationalism.

Vandorf Gray, candidate in the 2d, is avowedly for internationalism and is promoting the candidacy of Henry J. Kaiser for President.

In the big 6th district the organization supports Judge Julius H. Miner and Seward M. Gunderson. Charles W. Bidwill, sports figure, was in the race but withdrew. Mrs. Conlon, who lives at 1938 Adams st., is a college graduate and the wife of a realtor. Her program includes "no Willkie, no bipartisan deals, no internationalism, no isms and no foreign entanglements."

Sixth—*Julius H. Miner, *Seward

SCHNEIDER SAYS G.O.P. OPPONENT IS A DEMOCRAT

Makes Charge in S. Side Assembly Seat Fight.

BY LEE SHASSERE.

The Republican race for the party's two house of representative nominations in the 13th district, which has been marked by serenity, flared into action last week when one of the candidates charged that his opponent was a dyed in the wool Democrat who sought the Democratic house nomination in the 1942 primary.

Tossing the bombshell was Edward Schneider, president of the 8th ward regular Republican organization, who charged that Bernard Goodman polled 13,769 votes in the Democratic primary April 14, 1942.

Goodman, in replying to the charge, admitted that he had made the race on the Democratic ticket, but described his move as "an effort to defeat the Ryan-Mioduski district bossism." The two referred to are Rep. John G. Ryan, 1530 E. 83d pl., and Adam S. Mioduski, 8115 South Shore dr., who was district assemblyman for many years. Both are candidates again on the Democratic ticket.

Says Goodman Sees Shift.

Schneider declared that Goodman, like other Democrats who have seen the handwriting on the wall and are anxious to get on the Republican bandwagon, is duping the voters in his present bid. He further charged that Goodman's claim to Republican support was pure fabrication.

"I have been a Republican for many years but went into the 1942 Democratic primary with the avowed intention of fighting bossism," said Goodman. "I was also a Democratic candidate with the same aim in 1940 when I received 25,000 votes in an unsuccessful bid for the house."

Schneider has received the indorsement of Elmer J. Schnackenberg, speaker of the house, who for 12 terms has held the 13th district seat to which Schneider now aspires. Schneider has indorsements from the 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 17th, and 19th wards and Calumet township regular Republican organizations.

Nelson Seeks Reëlection.

He is a veteran of World War I., belongs to the American Legion and is in the real estate and insurance business in South Chicago. He filed for Schnackenberg's post after the latter announced he would not run for reëlection. Schneider's running mate is Rep. Ragnar C. Nelson, who is seeking reëlection.

Goodman, who is 33, was rejected by the army and navy last August because of a knee injury. He is married and resides at 7241 Jeffery av. He is an air compressor engineer with the Wayne Pump company.

Another Republican candidate making a spirited race is Timothy H. Klapperich, 8026 Harper av. He is secretary and treasurer of the Realty Securities and Building company, general contractors.

His platform includes a program calling for the consolidation of all overlapping taxing bodies in Cook county, which, he said, would reduce the present 438 taxing bodies to 132 and effect a saving of 35 million dollars a year for county taxpayers.

BEVERLY HILLS LIONS TO MARK 10TH CLUB YEAR

The Beverly Hills Lions club will celebrate its 10th anniversary with a dinner-dance Wednesday evening at the Southmoor hotel, 6646 Stony Island av. John J. Slumbrick, first president of the club, was named to serve during the 10th anniversary year.

Melvin Jones, secretary-general and founder of the International Association of Lions; Arthur P. Herron, district governor, and Reginald Du Bois, deputy district governor, will attend the party.

The following members will be awarded their 10 year charter chevrons: Arthur A. Baer, S. Rudolph Davidson, Marshall E. Hill, Dr. Adrian D. Kraus, George A. Loving, Henry A. Segar, John J. Slumbrick. A five year perfect attendance pin will be awarded Dr. Robert M. Meyer, secretary of the club.

THORNTON HIGH BAND WILL GIVE CONCERT FRIDAY

Thornton Township High school band will present its 15th annual concert at 8:15 p. m. Friday in the school auditorium, Broadway and 151st st., Harvey. Part of the proceeds will be given to the Red Cross. The concert will be dedicated to men and women working in war plants in the vicinity.

L. A. Hopkins, band director, has planned a varied program of favorites and new music. Featured will be the first performance of an original arrangement for percussion ensemble consisting of three field drums, two bell parts, one tympani, and one marimba. The composer of this ensemble, Haskell Harr, will be guest conductor.

Three $25 war bonds will be given away at the concert. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the band.

ASSEMBLYSLATE MAKERS LAUNCH ACTIVE CANVASS

Seekers of Senatorial Committee Posts Listed.

Senatorial committeemen candidates have launched active campaigns designed not only to present their qualifications to voters but also to acquaint many with the single function which committeemen perform.

The senatorial committee consists of three persons elected by each district party at the state primary, which will be held this year on April 11. The committee determines the number of candidates the party in the district will nominate at the primary to run for state representative in the general election. If, by reason of death, resignation or disqualification there is a vacancy among the nominees, this is filled by senatorial committee action.

Usually Nominate One or Two.

The committee may decide to nominate one, two, and very rarely three candidates. The decision to nominate three is a real test of party strength for only three representatives from each district are elected at the general election in November.

In 1942, in Chicago's 27th district on the near west side, the Democrats appraised their vote getting ability and decided to "shoot the works." They called for three candidates to be nominated, while the Republicans decided on only one. In the November election the Democrats made a clean sweep, winning all three offices.

The Democrats have again called for three nominees in the 27th, and similar action has also been taken in the 15th.

Election Sometimes Formality.

The primary party ballot instructs voters on the number of house of representatives candidates to be nominated. Should one party committee decide upon two and the other party on only one, then the fall election is a mere formality.

Following are the candidates for senatorial committeeman in the south section of Cook county. In the 1st, 3d, 5th, and 13th districts, Democratic candidates have no opposition and are assured election, as only three candidates have filed. The asterisk [*] indicates incumbents.

LEENEY AND EAST TURN ON HEAT IN 5TH WARD RACE

Committee Rivals Increase Activity.

Campaigning in the 5th ward Republican committeeman race increased in tempo last week almost to the heat of a state office contest as Joseph P. Leeney flooded the ward with literature in his effort to unseat the present committeeman, John L. East.

Leeney is charging East with bipartisanship and claims support from the Deneen-West organization led by Roy O. West, former national committeeman, and the remnants of the faction headed by the late George F. Harding. Leeney is claiming increasing deflections from the East forces in the western part of the ward, where Negro voters predominate. He has topped all ward committeemen of the city in the amount and variety of campaign literature.

Leeney Claims Captains' Aid.

Leeney supporters claim he has been able to unite all warring party factions and that he has a majority of the active precinct captains of the ward. Orphaned at four years, Leeney ran away from an orphanage when 11 years old and has been self-supporting since. He was the protege of Harding, working as a precinct captain in Harding's old 2d ward, and moving with him to the 5th, where he later joined the East organization.

All of these activities failed to dampen the enthusiasm of an East sponsored rally held last week, which was addressed by Gov. Green, Richard J. Lyons, candidate for United States senator, and other state candidates. Music and other entertainment featured an old fashioned political meeting.

East has his organization hard at work. A Presidential poll which his workers are taking along with their ward canvass has attracted additional attention to the ward. He has the backing of the regular ward organization and has denied Leeney's claims of extensive factional support and desertion of his own captains.

6th Ward Draws Interest.

Outside attention also has been drawn to the fight in the 6th ward, where John S. Norris is opposing Oliver H. Bovik, the acting Republican committeeman. Bovik, an assistant attorney general, was named to the post after the resignation of Ward L. Weist, who had been named acting committeeman following the death of Ald. Patrick Sheridan Smith. Bovik has the regular ward organization backing.

Norris, an estimator and purchasing agent in private construction work, has been waging an aggressive speaking campaign thruout the ward. He was a Republican candidate for sanitary district trustee in 1940 and again in 1942.

POST-WAR IDEAS IN S. W. DISTRICT ARE DISCLOSED

The Southtown Planning association recently released a report of its accomplishments for 1943 and its plans for post-war development of the area bounded on the east by State st., on the west by Marshfield av., on the north by 54th st., and on the south by 79th st.

The association is an outgrowth of a study made in 1938 which disclosed that this area was showing a lack of coördinated planning evidenced by obsolete housing and street construction. To date 37 old, dilapidated buildings have been destroyed and plans are being made to control traffic thru neighborhoods.

Corporation Is Formed.

Creation of the Southtown Land and Building corporation was disclosed in the report. The corporation consists of 26 subscribers, who incorporated with a capital of $50,000, most of whom also belong to the planning association. Purpose of the corporation is to take over declining property to improve it and secure an owner who will keep it at the standard of the surrounding neighborhood.

The report also showed that the subdivision west of Damen av. and south of 75th pl., where 90 new homes are under construction, is being developed in line with plans of the association.

Will Cover 35 Acres.

When finished the development will cover 35 acres. Homes will be of five and six rooms with warm air heat, coal fired furnaces, pressed brick fronts, and side drives. The grounds of each home will be landscaped on lots from 35 to 60 feet wide. The Harry M. Quinn Building company is constructing the project.

Officers and directors of the association for 1944 are William H. McDonnell, president; Robert W. Metcalf, vice president; Frank C. Rathje, treasurer; Bernard N. Sack, secretary; Fred Henderson, executive director, and K. Ray Ballantine, Paul L. Gereke, Harry S. Himmel, Charles L. Leindecker, Thomas E. Shanahan, and Arthur E. Sharp, directors.

Air Cadet's Bride

'OLD' QUIZ KIDS TO BATTLE WITH A CRADLE CREW

Military Services Call More Radio Stars.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Five alumni of the Quiz Kids and five mere moppets will engage in a brain battle over WLS—Blue at 6:30 tonight. The graduates who are coming back to their alma mater are Jack Lucal, 17, senior at Oak Park High; Van Dyke Tiers, 17, a student at the University of Chicago; Jack Beckman, 17, who is working; Joan Bishop, 17, who has been doing USO Camp shows and Cynthia Cline, 18, a student at Northwestern.

The cradle crew they will meet: Sparky Fischman, 4; Pat Conlon, 6; Bunnie Duskin, 6; Joel Kupperman, 7, and his sister Harriet, 9.

More and more the requirements of the military services are making themselves felt on network programs. Red Skelton, Norris Goff [Abner of Lum and Abner], Nelson Olmsted, and Ralph Edwards of Truth or Consequences all have passed their physicals. Among those who are in 1-A are Dennis Day, Jack Benny's tenor; Bob Crosby, Harry James, Percy Faith, and Sammy Kaye, all radio orchestra leaders, and Ed Prentiss who plays Capt. Midnight.

Chet Lauck [Lum] plans to carry on without Goff; John Nesbitt will take over the Harry James periods with his Passing Parade show. Replacement for Skelton and Edwards are reported likely so that their shows can continue.

Eddie Cantor and Ed [Archie] Gardner are reported looking for sponsors. . . There is a report that when Jack Benny leaves his present sponsor at the end of this season that Ed Wynn will be the replacement. Benny will keep that 6 p. m. spot, however. . . William Powell and Deanna Durbin are being teamed for a summer radio series. Dick Todd, radio singer, will soon start on an overseas tour. . . You Can Write a Song, featuring Lew Brown and Fred Koots, songsmiths, is in the audition stage. . . Gracie Fields probably will be back on the air with a 30 minute show.

JOHN CORIGLIANO IN BEETHOVEN CONCERTO TODAY

Beethoven's violin concerto in D major is to be played by John Corigliano as soloist with the New York Philharmonic orchestra during its program over WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. today. Corigliano is concertmaster of the orchestra.

After the solo number, the orchestra, under the direction of Artur Rodzinski, will offer Richard Strauss' "Thus Spake Zarathustra."

HOME REPAIRS NOW MAY SAVE BIG JOB LATER

Mildew Deterrents Due After War.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

There are many improvements we must put off until after the war due to unobtainable or restricted articles, but a "stitch in war time" when it comes to necessary painting and ordinary repair work is a "stitch" which the government not only permits but definitely encourages as a conservation measure.

Altho the situation with respect to some building products, such as steel, hardware, electrical and plumbing equipment, and lumber, remains critical, there are no restrictions on decorating and painting, insulating, or reroofing, or on repairs to brick and masonry construction.

Releases Contractors.

If we get this work started many contractors will be free for other projects when the release of materials now hard to get makes possible the start of new civilian construction.

Russel G. Creviston, general chairman of the post-war committee of the producers' council, issued a recent statement to this effect and also stressed the desirability of planning post-war jobs of the types which are not practical at present.

Poor Future for Mildew.

Of interest to home owners who have had mildew troubles is a statement that the war mildewcides may be incorporated into all house paints, interior as wall as exterior.

Important use is being made of mildew resistant protective coatings for war uses, but as far as civilian uses are concerned mildewproofers are in a position similar to that in which windshield wipers, self-starters, and other automobile accessories were 25 years ago.

After the war it appears that mildewcides may be incorporated into all house paints, interior as well as exterior, just as automobiles are now completely equipped and vitamins are included in milk, bread, and other foods.

FOUR FREEDOMS SYMPHONY ON MUTUAL TONIGHT

Robert Russell Bennett's latest symphony, "The Four Freedoms," based on the painting of Norman Rockwell, will highlight the concert of the Cleveland Symphony orchestra on W-G-N and Mutual from 8 to 9 p. m. tonight.

The complete program follows:

SCHUBERT'S 2D SYMPHONY TO BE AIRED OVER NBC

The NBC Symphony orchestra will feature Schubert's Symphony No. 2 in B Flat Major in the broadcast over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. A Shakespeare flavor also will mark the program. The orchestra will play Castelnuovo—Tedesco's overture to "The Taming of the Shrew," and Berlioz' scherzo based on "Queen Mab." Smetana's "The Moldau" will conclude the broadcast. Arturo Toscanini will conduct.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 27

All pruning of trees, shrubs, and vines should be finished before the sap starts to rise. If the gardener is at a loss as to how to prune, he always can remove dead branches or correct branches that rub together. The surplus wood should be removed.

If there are dead plants in the hedge row it may be necessary to cut back the whole row to promote a uniform growth. Large, overgrown shrubs look bad and seldom furnish the maximum of flowers due to an excess of old wood. Such plants should be given a major operation to promote new wood to produce the best flowers.

It may be necessary to sacrifice the flowers for one year in order to bring a plant back to luxuriant growth. Shrubs need plant food and an application of commercial plant food should be made early in the spring, for new roots are forming or old roots have resumed activity.

Tuesday, March 28

Gardeners who are fortunate enough to have a hotbed should begin sowing some of the vegetable seeds for early planting, such as tomatoes, eggplant, pepper, and early cabbage. The seed will germinate rapidly and care must be taken that the frame is aired every good day to prevent the seedlings from damping off, a fungus disease that frequently kills a batch of seedlings in a single night.

Use care when watering and give fresh air. Thick sowing will bring thick seedlings and these grow so close together that extra care must be taken or they will become spindly, weak, and unsatisfactory.

Too much care cannot be given them, and it is wise to transplant them as soon as they are large enough to handle. This may be done by transplanting into flats.

Wednesday, March 29

With the coming of warm days the gardener is prone to begin gardening operations immediately, but it is best to wait until the ground is in suitable condition. Wait until the soil crumbles when squeezed by the hand or when it can be easily broken up with the spade.

Wet soil is impossible for working. Save seed by careful sowing. Sow thinly and save a lot of work. Do not undertake more than can be successfully accomplished or the garden will be poor and the crops meager.

The lawn will need attention. Reseed about the time green growths are first seen. At that time the ground is moist and by early sowing the seed germinates rapidly and the young grass makes a fine growth before hot days come.

Thursday, March 30

Paint the trellises and arbors before the plants begin to grow. Vines are usually heavy and must have substantial support if they present the best appearance. Vines are among the finest of plant materials and more should be planted.

Examine the mulching material that protects the strawberry bed and perennial borders to see that the crowns of the plants are not too heavily covered. But do not remove all the material; leave it in place to prevent late freezing and possible injury.

Before work on the lawn begins, rake off all debris that may have accumulated during the winter. Repair the fences now.

Friday, March 31

Turn over the compost heap and mix all parts thoroly to hasten decomposition. Start a new pile with the coarser portions of the mulching materials when it becomes necessary to rake it off the beds. Square the sides and leave the top depressed to catch rain water that falls.

Keeping the heap moist hastens decay. Examine the perennials and firm the soil around them. Wood ashes that have been saved during the winter should be scattered over the vegetable garden plot and borders. Chicken manure, hog manure, and sheep manure should be used sparingly, for it is very strong but effective.

Start dahlias to obtain strong cuttings. The experienced gardener probably has facilities for propagating from cuttings, but the commonest method is to divide the tubers and keep them in good condition until planting out time.

Saturday, April 1

Plant sweet peas, for they thrive in early spring and summer. Hardy nursery stock can be moved as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Do not overplant shrubs. If the soil is poor replace it with good, fresh soil, for by giving the shrubs the best possible conditions in which to grow infinitely better results will be obtained.

Examine the labels on the outdoor materials and see that they are securely in place. Do not enclose a branch with wire tightly placed around it or it will die sooner or later.

See that all tools are kept in good condition; sharpen the spade, and it is a fine thing to keep a good file at hand to sharpen the spade and hoe, as they require it. Clean all tools every night and hang them up.

[Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.]

BRUCE FOOTE GUEST ON THEATER OF AIR SYMPHONY PROGRAM

Bruce Foote, baritone, will be guest solist on the Chicago Theater of the Air Symphony hour over W-G-N at 11 o'clock tomorrow night. Foote will sing Richard Strauss' "Dream in the Twilight" and "Caecilie," and Brahms' "One Thing Befalleth the Sons of Man," and "Love Lasts for Aye." The orchestra, directed by Walter Steindel, will present Beethoven's Symphony No. 2, Debussy's "Petite Suite," Durand's "Menuet and Ballad," and Dvorak's "Overture Carnival."

CALUMET YARDS SLIDE SHIP DOWN WAYS FOR ARMY

Transportation Corps to Get 176 Foot Craft.

The dock master—the one man who can't make a mistake in building and launching a ship—stands tense, watching, as the men at the jacks increase the tension on the trigger wires, two cables which are the sole support of hundreds of tons of steel.

Suddenly his arm flashes down. Two carpenters simultaneously swing razor sharp axes against the thick manila ropes joining the trigger wires, and another ship goes sliding down the ways into the water at the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company, 9367 Harbor av.

First of a Series.

The ship which the company launched recently was the first of a series of 176 foot vessels it is building for the United States army transportation corps for use around islands with small, shallow harbors in which larger ships cannot operate.

Pictures carried in today's Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE show the progress of construction from the time the ship was 25 per cent completed until it hit the water, when it was 75 per cent completed. Two months ago the Metropolitan section carried pictures showing the construction of the ship up to the 25 per cent mark, when the vessel was "in frame" and shell plates were being welded on.

As construction progresses, all deck plates are welded on except at the stern. The bow plate, a 22 foot curved piece of steel, is swung on to the bow and welded into place. Steel ribs which forms the lines of the foc'sle head are welded on, deck plates welded on top and shell plates on the sides. Quarters for a gun crew and a general workshop will be built into the foc'sle head.

Weld Fantail On.

The fantail at the stern is meanwhile prefabricated in the ship yard. When the two cargo holds, the foc'sle head and shell plates have been completed, the fantail is swung into place by a heavy crane and welded to the body of the ship.

The deckhouse goes up just aft of the No. 2 cargo hold, and generally is built before the fantail is swung into place. The sides, front, and rear are put up as units, but partitions inside are put in singly.

A bulk deck is laid on top the deckhouse. Sticking up above the bulk deck is a square of steel which forms the engine casing. Engines will be dropped thru the casing into the bowels of the ship, and when all engines are in a funnel will lead up from the engines thru the casing. The space between the casing sides and the stack is plated, and if new motors are necessary later the stack is taken out and the top plate removed.

Bridge for Officers.

The bridge deck is laid on plates which stick up above the level of the bulk deck at the front of the deckhouse. From the bridge deck officers direct the course of the ship thru communication with the pilot house behind him. Just back of the pilot house, which has a row of windows in front and other on the sides, are the radio room and charthouse.

No work is done on the interior of the deckhouse until the ship is launched, but many steam, bilge, and ballast pipes are laid by the time the vessel reaches this stage. With twin screw propellers and rudder installed and the superstructure completed, the ship is ready to be launched.

John Servais, 10426 Ewing av., dockmaster and veteran of 15 years with the company, describes himself as the man who can't afford to make a mistake. His is the job of readying the ways, the butter boards down which the ship will slide, cribbing, jacks, and trigger wires.

As cribbing and blocks are removed a few minutes before the ship hits the water, a painter does a quick paint job on those parts of the keel which have been resting on support blocks since the keel was laid and which have never been painted.

She's Got to Be Right.

"A machinist, a welder, an electrician, any one can make a mistake but me," says Servais. "Any one else can do the job over again if he doesn't like his work, but I only get once chance and it has to be right the first time."

Work at the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company is pretty much at a temporary standstill when a launching takes place. Workmen line the decks and superstructure of other ships, the office staff turns out in force, and a number of visitors are always present.

Most of the remaining work is on the inside of the ship, installing equipment, facilities for the officers and men and machinery. Pictures of the vessel will be printed in the Metropolitan section when it is completed. Before then, however, another ship of the same type will be in the water at the ship yard. The first is the hardest. They all go faster, company officials say, when they're "over the hump" on the first one.

'Illiterate Digest' Cheers Many Yanks

Cabby and Jackie Cummings.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Cummings.

Sgt. J. A. Cummings.

Lt. Melville Cummings.

Pvt. Wilbur Cummings.

Joseph H. Cummings' "Illiterate Digest" has become a pleasant part of army life for more than 550 boys in the service. Mr. Cummings, who lives at 9429 Justine street, started writing letters to his sons in the service and as the boys were separated from their buddies, the other fellows wrote asking Mr. Cummings to write to them, too. That's how the Digest started. "Sgt. Jimmy was the first to join the army," Mr. Cummings says, "then Wilbur followed and Melville left next. Cabby, the Cummings' dog, barked her desire to do her bit for the country and now four service stars appear on the Cummings' flag."

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

John Joseph Crotty was recently promoted to fire control man 2d class in the navy. He has been in the service almost two years and is now serving somewhere in the Pacific. He is the husband of Mary Jean Crotty, 7447 Eberhart av.

John J. Crotty.

Menter J. La Reau, son of Mr. and Mrs. George La Reau, 7710 South Shore dr., recently was promoted to corporal at Rosecrans field, a base of the ferrying division air transport command at St. Joseph, Mo.

Lt. Clifford J. Milburn has been awarded the distinguished flying cross for valorous achievements during the Oct. 10 air battle over Muenster, Germany. He flew as bombardier in the Flying Fortress "Rosie's Riveters" when that ship went on and bombed the target after all other ships of her formation had been shot down. After dropping his bombs the 22 year old bombardier manned a machine gun during the prolonged air fighting in which his ship fought her way back to England—alone. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Milburn, 6424 Ellis av.

Flight Officer Edward J. Brisick, son of Mrs. Mary Centracchio, 9122 Essex av., a pilot of the 13th A. A. F., has received the bronze oak leaf cluster in lieu of the air medal. He has taken part in 36 missions in the Solomon Islands and Rabaul areas.

Corp. Gerald Angell Jr. is home from Africa on a furlough visiting his mother, Mrs. Lou Angell, 3514 Elm st., East Chicago, Ind. Corp. Angell served overseas 22 months, was wounded in action, and was awarded the Purple Heart.

Gerald Angell Jr.

Four south siders completed training and graduated from the Chanute field branch of the army air forces training command. The graduates are: Privates John J. Brady, son of Mrs. A. B. Brady, 7004 Clyde av.; Harold J. Rassel, son of Peter P. Rassel, 10310 Avenue J; Robert T. Summers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Summers, 5435 Woodlawn av.; and Francis V. Krause, son of Mrs. Geraldine Krause, 9154 Yates av.

Staff Sgt. Raymond J. Hofstra, waist gunner on an 8th air force Flying Fortress, has been awarded the air medal. This medal was awarded him for his achievements in five separate bomber combat missions over enemy occupied Europe. He is the son of Mrs. Emma Hofstra, 11022 Edbrooke av.

Charles H. Bonner, 6831 Paxton av., was awarded his wings and a commission as second lieutenant at the Stuttgart, Ark., army air field. Lt. Bonner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bonner. Prior to entering the service he was a junior metallurgist.

Charles Bonner.

Sgt. Leo Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Reed, 4611 Indiana av., recently graduated from the demolition school at Fort Benning, Ga.

Corp. Albert M. Wellnitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wellnitz, 634 E. 35th st., recently was graduated from the army air forces flexible gunnery school at Laredo army air field, Tex.

Albert Wellnitz.

Sgt. James J. Moran, 4809 Lake Park av., has been awarded the air medal. Sgt. Moran is the radio operator on the ship "Ice Cold Katie" at an 8th A. A. F. Flying Fortress base in England.

HERE'S HOW POP DOES HIS BIT TO INSTILL MORALE

'Illiterate Digest' Known on Fighting Fronts.

Three sons and a dog in the service inspired the Illiterate Digest, written and distributed by Joseph H. Cummings.

"Three years ago my son, James, entered the army, and I guess his buddies liked the letters I wrote, because after he left Fort Sill they asked me to write to them. Then two more sons, Wilbur and Melville, joined the army and the same thing happened. It was a little over a year ago that I decided to type one letter and mail mimeographed copies to all the others."

Mr. Cummings, who works in the Cook county auditor's office and lives at 9429 Justine street, has sent a letter a week to more than 550 boys in the service who have asked him to put them on his mailing list.

Receives Offer of Help.

Friends who have wanted relatives in the service to receive the letters offered to help Mr. Cummings distribute his digest and employes of the county auditor's office mail out 150 a week. The fame of the digest spread and soon the Foote Gear Machine corporation wanted 50 a week, the forest preserve district employes 25 a week, the highway county employes 75 a week, and the auditor's supply room 25 a week.

Grandpa, the family upstairs, the lady on the top floor, his sons, Jackie, 14 years old, who can hardly wait until he's 17 to join his three brothers and his dog, and Joseph [Duke], 29 years old, who has been ill for several years, and Mr. Cumming's wife, Loretta, or Mom, as she is more often referred to, have become friends of Yanks all over the world.

Pokes Fun at Himself, Too.

Mr. Cummings takes great delight in joshing all these people in his letters, and he pokes fun at himself, too. In one of his letters he wrote, "Good old grandpa; last August he was invited to christen one of our new battleships—but they say he held up the ceremonies for over three hours—he wouldn't let go of the bottle." In another letter he refers to grandpa by saying, "They tell me he was on a street car the other night and a dog bit him. I can't say where, but it was the first time he ever gave his seat to a dog."

Grandpa is Thomas E. Cummings, a retired sergeant of the south park police and formerly a captain on the fire department, where he worked at engine company 1, 214 Lomax place, for many years.

"I didn't dare show him a copy of the Digest for months for fear he'd never speak to me again. One day a relative showed him a copy and next day he phoned me and wanted to know why he wasn't on the mailing list. Once in a while he gets a little peeved, tho," Mrs. Cummings confessed.

Comments from Digest.

Typical of comments from the Illiterate Digest are the following: "Duke can't figure out why they put so many holes in Swiss cheese when it's the limburger that needs the ventilation. . . . Mother is fine. Last night she was saying it was a shame she didn't marry a clever man, as they make better husbands, but I still insist she's wrong—clever men don't become husbands."

"Jim wanted to call it Pop's Page, but I said it was too illiterate to call it anything but the Illiterate Digest," Mrs. Cummings said.

A Star for Cabby, Too.

His sons are Staff Sgt. James, 23 years old; Pvt. Wilbur [Bill], 25, a drill instructor in the air force in Tampa, Fla., and Lt. Melville, 21, all in the army. The other service star is for Cabby, a 2½ year old 150 pound English mastiff.

Melville has the distinction of having been made a second lieutenant at the age of 19 and promoted to first lieutenant at 20. He has been in three invasions: the North African, Sicilian, and Italian. He participated in 26 battles, was wounded three times, and wears the Purple Heart with two oak leaf clusters, the silver star, 26 battle stars, and three bronze stars.

Cabby, who was named after Bill's cab service in Van Nuys, Cal., where Cabby was born, is a smart dog, too. "They trained her for five weeks and after that short period she was sent overseas," Mr. Cummings boasts.

Mr. Cummings received a great many letters, a typical one was a V-mail letter from the Pacific, it said: "I would like to tell you I appreciate your Digest very much and ask that you put my name on your list. The fellows around here ask to read it before I read it myself.

"If you have any pictures would you send a few to my buddies? They're both from Chicago and enjoy your Digest almost as much as THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. That ends my note of thanks." The letter is signed Pvt. R. L. Steele.

A Bomber Bears Patty Ann's Name

A DIMPLED GIRL WITH BLUE EYES GETS AXIS' GOAT

Her Father, Plane Safe After 100 Missions.

There's a little blue-eyed, dimpled American girl the axis powers are mad at. And its all because her daddy, who's never seen her, named his bomber after her.

Sgt. James L. Keating.

The Patty Ann has returned safely, with no injury at anytime to her crew, setting a record of more than 100 missions in India, Egypt, Tunisia and Italy.

Staff Sgt. James Keating, 28, crew chief, enlisted in the air forces three years ago and has been overseas nearly two years.

Crew Insists on Name.

He was so proud of his little girl when he saw her picture that he named the bomber for her, at the insistance of the rest of the crew.

Patty Ann, 14 months old, is just as proud of her dad, and listens wide-eyed when her mother, Anne, tells her about his exploits. Sgt. Keating received a citation for his part in the African campaign.

Sends Souvenirs Home.

The Keating home at 5636 S. Honore st., is acquiring a cosmopolitan air since Sgt. Keating has been traveling around the world. He has sent his wife an Italian handmade bedspread, a sword from India, a pin from a captured Nazi soldier, piece of a German parachute, a rosary from Rome, and many other articles.

Sgt. Keating, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Keating, 6858 Oglesby ave., was a maintenance man before he enlisted.

R.O.T.C. COLONEL HOPES HE'S ONE IN ARMY SOME DAY

Highest City Rank Won by Hyde Park High Senior.

BY PATRICIA LEEDS.

Gordon C. McKeague recently was commissioned a colonel. He's just 17 years old and he's a cadet colonel, but some day hopes to be one in the regular army.

Gordon McKeague.

A senior at Hyde Park High school, he was chosen over 10,500 R. O. T. C. cadets of the 29 Chicago school units to this rank, highest in the corps. He will lead the R. O. T. C. spring parade.

Gordon has enlisted in the air corps and will enter service after graduation this June, if he misses out on an appointment to West Point. He says he has a chance to get in if the three fellows ahead of him fail their tests, "I don't suppose they will, tho," he mournfully adds.

Wants Army as a Career.

"After the war I still want to remain in the army because I plan to make it my career."

He lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert I. McKeague, 6816 Merrill av. His father has been with the American Red Cross for the last three years and has just returned from two years of service in Australia.

Gordon is vice president of the senior class and fire marshal for the school. These activities are not enough, so he has two regular jobs. On week days, after school and Saturday he works at a water filter company as an inspector. On Sundays he is a cashier at a drug store.

"In my spare time," he grinned, "I enjoy woodworking and boat sailing."

Selected by Examination.

Asked when he found time to study, the tall, handsome cadet quickly answered, "That's what my teachers want to know. I'm just average in my scholastic record." However, he was selected to his high rank in the R. O. T. C. on the basis of grades in examinations given four boys from each high school.

He has a brother, Robert, a private first class with the army military police, and a younger brother, John, who enters high school next year. "Yes, he's going to become a cadet also."

10 Others Commissioned.

McKeague and 10 staff members were commissioned in the board of education headquarters by Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics.

THIRD MEMBER OF S. W. FAMILY ENTERS SERVICE

The latest member of the John Vaci family, 6854 S. Paulina st., to enter military service is Robert, 18, who has been accepted for naval aviation V-5 pilot-officer training. His father is at Tarawa and his brother is at West Point. Robert is a freshman at the University of Illinois. He was graduated from De La Salle High school last May.

His father, John Vaci, enlisted in a naval construction battalion last March at the age of 48. He formerly was in the construction business and was appointed a warrant officer and sent to Pearl Harbor. He landed on Tarawa 24 hours after the marines and, as far as his family knows, is still there. The elder Vaci is a veteran of World War I., and was a member of the famed Rainbow division.

The eldest son, John E. Vaci, 21, is in his second year at West Point. He also attended the University of Illinois and is a graduate of De La Salle High school. Their mother, Mrs. Ann Vaci, lives at the Paulina st. address.

TRIBUNE ARTIST DODGES SHELLS TO SKETCH WAR

Marine Moves Up, Finds Sheahan at Front.

After more than a year of training in the United States and at Pacific outposts, Staff Sgt. Ward Walker, former CHICAGO TRIBUNE reporter, now a marine corps combat correspondent, has moved, with many other Chicagoland marines, into front line action against the Japs.

Sgt. Walker's orders to move up came from Lt. Charles E. Walker, 425 Franklin blvd., at a Southwest Pacific base. In company with seven other marines including Corp. Donald E. Wiley of Aurora, he went by plane to an advanced army base.

Disappointed by the ill luck that left him behind was Sgt. Tom Carson, 5427 Hyde Park blvd., combat photographer, who bade the eight-man detail good-by before they breakfasted on bacon and eggs. As the plane swept out over the Pacific, Corp. Wiley's query, "Wonder when we'll have real aggs again?" brought the crack, "The only fresh eggs we'll get will be bomber-layed."

Poker—A New Way.

Clipped of their wings, the party of marines traveled the second leg of their journey to the front on the decks of an old gray tramp freighter. Pinochle, bridge, and pay day poker—pay when you get caught—occupied the time for many, but Pvt. Charles Silzer, 3916 S. Wells st., a graduate of Englewood High school, spent his time fishing. He didn't catch anything but sagely remarked, "It isn't what you catch, it's what you might have caught. Look at that." "That" was a vicious looking shark.

News of recent Chicago happenings were at a premium on deck, Sgt. Walker reported, and as Pvt. Robert Erhart, 4254 Hazel av., joined the other Chicagoans aboard, the city's reputation as the best liberty town in the world was broadcast to soldiers and marines.

The third leg of the journey, objective of which was Cape Gloucester, New Britain, was completed on the rolling deck of a landing ship, tanks [LST]. Quarters on the ship were somewhat spacious, Sgt. Walker said, and the chow was good, one menu reading: beef stew with plenty of vegetables, bread and jam, apricot pie, and hot coffee.

Bull Sessions Prevail.

"Somewhere in the haze ahead," Sgt. Walker wrote, "lies New Britain. Some of the marines aboard are returning to their outfit, flesh wounds healed. Bull sessions are going on all over the deck with the old salts describing precisely how it feels to be bombed, shot, and to meet a bayonet charge head on. The lads are eager to the the cape. Most of them have been under way for months."

As they neared New Britain the ship was subjected to its first bombing attack. Escorts spouted flame and thunder at the target, a Jap bomber swinging low between the LST and a destroyer.

"Our own guns went into action," Sgt. Walker reported, "and the sky was threaded with streams of tracers, brilliant in their colors. The suddenness and beauty of the sight stifled fear. It wasn't until later, after the attack had missed, that stomachs shrunk and grew cold."

Band Keeps Guns at Hand.

Not typical of the previous weeks' action on the island battleground was the scene that greeted the landing marines at Cape Gloucester. Near the beach, their tommy guns within easy reach, was the outfit's band warming up on the "William Tell Overture." Playing a stellar saxophone was Corp. Philip Ziff, 5511 Gladys av.

Tales of Gary Sheahan, Tribune staff artist then doing a series of sketches in the South Pacific, are legend on New Britain, Walker reported. One marine tells of working his way cautiously up to the infantrymen during a tank drive on the Jap held airport. The troops followed the tanks as they blasted a path thru the pillboxes.

"Bullets were whining close," said the marine. "The smoke cleared a little and there, striding along between two tanks, sketching as he went, was Sheahan. He stuck with 'em right to the finish. Gray hair and all."

Sylvia Bradl Engaged

SYLVIA A. BRADL.

[Rew Hoffman.]

Mr. and Mrs. Stephan Bradl, 5227 Kimbark av., announce the engagement of their daughter, Sylvia Anne, to Corp. Joe N. Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Murray, 5227 Woodlawn av. Miss Bradl attended Mundelein college.

AGENT OBSERVES 50TH YEAR WITH FIRST EMPLOYER

With 25 million in insurance policies written, Jay H. Emerson is celebrating his 50th anniversary as a life insurance agent.

His career began when he was impressed by an insurance agent who sold his father a policy more than 50 years ago. "I thought that was a fine way to serve the public."

He worked his way thru school from the time he was 14 years old and at 19 became an agent for the New York Life. Before he was 25 he was a nationally known agent and considered among the top 200 men in a company of more than 6,000 agents.

"At that time," he recalls, "an agent frequently was confronted by signs which read, 'Peddlers, beggars, life insurance agents not allowed.'"

Now Emerson gets 60 to 75 per cent of his business without ever soliciting it.

From a year's total income of $347 in his first year, he went to a banner year in which he produced $1,750,000 of business. The largest individual policy he wrote was for $464,000, which was for a family client he had been serving for four generations. In all, he has sold the family more than a million dollars worth of insurance.

The 68 year old veteran of the business resides with his wife, Ida, at 1140 E. 46th st. He has a son, Warren, 9118 Essex av.; a daughter, Mrs. J. W. MacQueen of Alabama, and six grandchildren.

"Retire? I should say not. I'll slow down a bit—you've got to when you reach my age, but I won't quit and let myself get rusty. No sir," he asserted.

WOUNDED IN PACIFIC, MARINE HOPES TO AID WAR IN STEEL PLANT

Discharged from service after seeing action in Guadalcanal, New Caledonia, and Brisbane, Australia, marine Pvt. Kenneth G. Berggren hopes to keep fighting by returning to his old job at the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company turning out war material.

Kenneth G. Berggren.

The 26 year old marine enlisted in 1942, was a member of the combat engineers, and spent one year in the Southwest Pacific. He was given a permanent disability discharge after being blown thru the air by concussion of an enemy shell. His leg was wounded. He was awarded a Presidential citation.

Pvt. Berggren resides with his mother, Mrs. Margaret McVicker, 6145 Archer av. He is a graduate of Hyde Park High school.

LITHS WILL SEAT STATE CHAMBER OFFICERS TODAY

The Lithuanian Chamber of Commerce of Illinois will celebrate its 10th anniversary at 6 p. m. today at the Darius-Girenas American Legion hall, 4416 S. Western av. Judge Frank Donoghue of the Municipal court will install the new officers who are: Alexander K. Kumskis, president; Dr. V. S. Nares and Stanley Balzeikas, vice presidents; Dr. K. Drangelis, secretary, and J. P. Varkala, treasurer. Entertainment, furnished by Lithuanian and American radio and night club talent, will be followed by dancing.

PLAN SUMMER CURB PICKUP OF WASTE PAPER

System to Make Up Loss When Schools Close.

Planning three months ahead, the Chicago waste paper salvage committee has decided upon city-wide curb pickups to supplant salvage systems of Chicago public and parochial schools when these institutions close for summer vacations. Chicago schools, at present, are accounting for 1,000 tons of waste paper a week for use in the manufacturing of war material, said John R. Robinson, representative of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association sponsoring the waste paper campaign.

The loss of school collections during the summer months presented a serious problem to salvage officials, said Robinson. They selected the city-wide pick-up system as the most efficient way of gathering scrap paper during the expected slack. Advocating the efficiency of that system, William L. McFetridge, general chairman of the salvage committee, said:

"We are working along the line of handling the situation thru the already established agencies of waste paper salvage.

Change New York Plan.

"In New York the city authorities used city trucks to pick up the paper from pavements, then sold it direct to the mills, eliminating the collection agencies and paper stock grading companies. Thru these regular agencies the entire amount of normal waste paper salvage is obtained, and it is only fair that we take the pick up men, shops, and dealers into consideration when planning city-wide curb pickups.

McFetridge pointed out that New York, as a result of eliminating the shops, peddlers, and dealers, was able to gather only 708 tons of waste paper in a city-wide curb pickup, as against the 2,733 tons gathered last Jan. 15 in Chicago's first city-wide pickup.

Divide City in Eight Sections.

Details of the curb pickup system call for division of the city into eight sections, with collections to be taken in two adjoining sections each Saturday. These divisions, worked out by Albert H. Meisterheim of the salvage committee, list district 1 and 2 as the area from Fullerton pkwy. to Howard st.; districts 3 and 4, from Fullerton to Madison st.; districts 5 and 6, south from Madison to 63d st.; and districts 7 and 8, south of 63d to the southern city limits, 127th st. Each district will reach completely across the city, east and west.

Volunteer trucks will not be called upon to make the pickups, as was done in former city-wide curb pickups, salvage officials said. Peddlers, shops, and dealers in each section will be assigned their own territory, and confined to that territory for each pickup. Paper will be taken direct to railroad cars by shop owners and dealers, where it will be weighed and loaded. Proceeds will be given Chicago service men's centers.

Telephone Pickup Agency.

In addition to city-wide pickups, special stress will be placed on the war production board's telephone exchange pickup agency, State 8787, during the summer months, said J. E. Marcus, director of the Chicago waste paper campaign committee. Householders accumulating 50 pounds or more of waste paper are asked to telephone that agency giving their address, and a truck will call for the paper within 24 hours.

ANNUAL CONCERT OF OLD ST. PETER'S CHOIR NEXT SUNDAY

The annual sacred concert of the mixed choir of Old St. Peter's church, Polk and Clark sts., will be given at the church next Sunday at 4:30 p. m. under the direction of Vivian Abell, organist and director.

Vivian Abell.

The choir, which sings every Sunday during the noon mass, is composed of members from all parts of Chicago, who have had experience in operatic and liturgical singing.

Soloists and choristers will render compositions by Palestrina, Vittoria, Mozart, Verdi, Gounod, Tschensnokoff, and others, with the added feature of orchestral accompaniment.

FIGHT FOR G. O. P. CONVENTION SEATS

CITIZENS GROUP ENTERS CICERO SCHOOL BATTLE

Both Parties Insist They're Neutral.

BY LEWIS HUNT.

Cicero voters, whose tense contest for town offices on April 4 will be the next showdown between the two major parties to take place in the middle west, are confronted at the same time with the annual school election which, thru intervention of a powerful citizens' group, has become a momentous struggle. The school election is April 8.

School elections are nonpartisan. Both the Republican and Democratic organizations have circulated statements insisting they have no part in naming or supporting the school trustees, but indirectly each party group charges the other with contributing to the financial dilemma which at present makes school affairs a major concern in Cicero.

The school's $440,000 working cash fund is exhausted. Teachers were, in effect, paid in scrip last week and a bond issue of makeshift character was approved by the board to meet two more monthly pay days before tax money is received.

Michael J. Solar, president of the board, said he was hopeful that the tax money would restore the working fund. "I am pretty sure that everything will be all right," he said.

Select Three Candidates.

The Cicero Education council, however, is convinced that school finances are beyond recovery by means of ordinary tax receipts and that the only remedy is a change of management. Three candidates for the three vacancies to be filled have been selected by the council and it is waging a campaign for them that has aroused the interest of citizens and even has won the deference of the politicians.

The council was formed in 1940, when some members of parent-teacher groups became dissatisfied with school administration, and now includes numerous taxpayers' and civic organizations as well as the parents' clubs. Last year the council won election of one of its three candidates, Louis H. Christensen, an engineer at the Western Electric plant. He has been the means of exposing board practices objectionable to the council and a month ago he emphasized the board's failure to give a full financial statement by withdrawing from all committees until such a statement would be made.

Council States Position.

The council's position was stated by its president, Anton E. Svec, an insurance man with offices in the loop.

"We are determined to take the schools out of politics," he said, "and on behalf of the council I issue a challenge to anybody and everybody who dares to try to stand in our way. We are ready to take appropriate action against either party if the circumstances warrant. We are in this for keeps."

In its published statement, the Republican organization flatly charged the Democrats with the school muddle: "The Democratic organization of the town of Cicero is directly responsible for the deplorable financial condition of Cicero school district No. 99 thru the election of Democratic precinct captains as school board members."

Republican Statement.

Signed by Joseph E. Kral, candidate for town president, and others on the Republican ticket, the statement paid this deference to the education council:

"The schools and their management belong to the civic parent-teacher groups in Cicero and we have no intention of filing school board candidates or otherwise interfering with the best interests of the schools."

The Democratic candidate for town president, Henry J. Sandusky, who has been police magistrate many years, published a statement in which he said:

"I have always felt that neither the Republican nor Democratic organizations should take part in the school board elections. Unfortunately, during the last 25 years, both political parties have been guilty of participating in these elections.

States "Hands Off" Policy.

"During the last several years a number of fine parent-teacher associations have been organized in various sections of the community. I believe, and my running mates agree with me, that the recommendation of qualified candidates for the school board should be left entirely to these organizations."

The bond issue for teachers' pay, which is the latest board action under fire from the education council, was approved over objection of Trustee Christensen. He protested that only one investment house had been consulted and also that the rate of interest, 3¼ per cent, was excessive. The $84,000 in bonds will be issued when the indebtedness, two months' pay for teachers, has been incurred. The council points out that citizens may intervene by circulating objections and getting a referendum.

Ten candidates have filed for

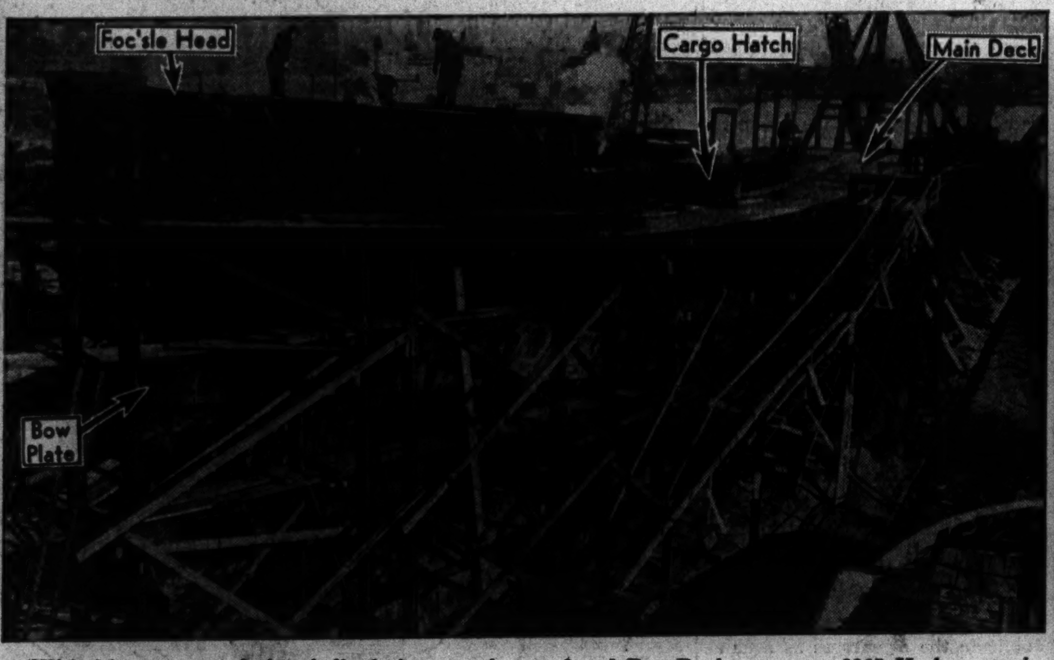
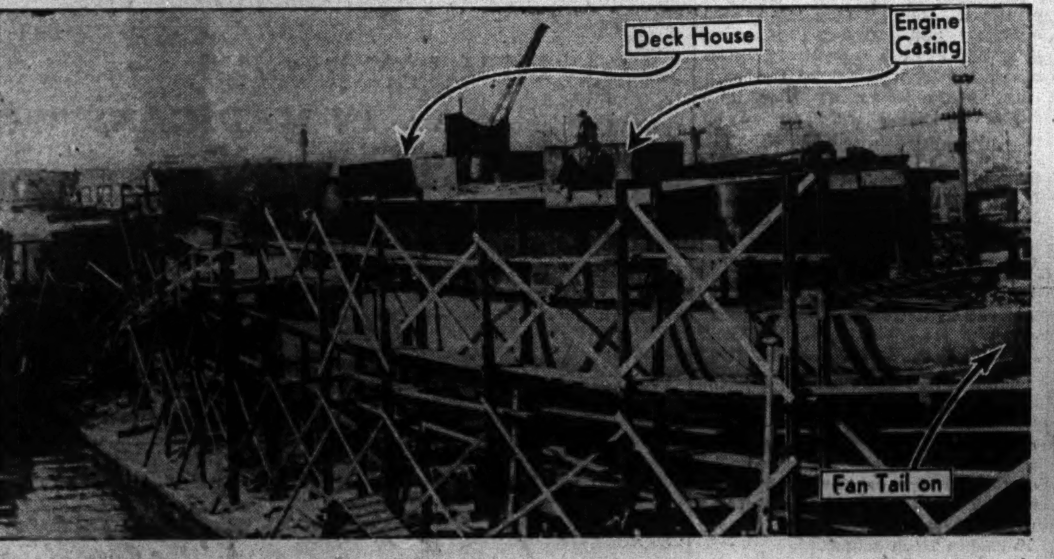
Calumet Shipyard Sends Its First Big Craft Down the Ways for the Army



With 75 per cent of the shell plating on, the bow plate in place, the cargo hatches in and the main deck on, the foc'sle head is being built on this 176 foot ocean going ship which the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company, 9367 Harbor av., is constructing for the United States army transportation corps.

Fan Tail (Upside Down)

James Jonkus, 17 W. 119th st., a weld chipper, cleans the welding on the fantail, which is prefabricated in the shipyard and swung by crane onto the stern of the ship, where it is welded into place. The fantail generally is swung into place before the deck house is erected.



All sides of the deck house are erected as units and a deck laid on top after the fantail is on. The square in the top center of the deck house is the engine casing, thru which engines will be lowered by crane into the inside of the ship. A plate will go over the top of the casing, and a smokestack will come thru, so that if new engines are needed the top plate must come off and the stack must be removed.

In this picture the deck house has been completed and the bridge, pilot house, and other superstructure are in place. At this stage of construction the ship is about 75 per cent completed and in two weeks will be ready for launching. Only the propellors and rudder remain to be put in place before the launching is held.

[Tribune photos by Julius Gantter.]

Wire Trigger
Cribbing
Ways

In another 15 minutes the cribbing and blocks will be out and tension on the trigger wires will be increased by jacks. As the cribbing and blocks are removed a painter paints parts of the ship that never have been painted. The timbers hanging from the side of the vessel are removed, every one leaves the ship, and it will soon slide down the ways into the water.

As Whistles Blow

Whistles blow, employes whistle and yell as the ship, now 75 per cent completed, hits the water. Practically all work at the shipyard stops as employes knock off for a few minutes to witness a launching. Several score of guests generally are present at such times.

COMMISSION 11 R.O.T.C. CADETS AT CEREMONY

Commissions were awarded 11 cadets of the R. O. T. C. in a recent ceremony at which Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics, presided.

GARFIELD PARK FLOWER SHOW OPENS SATURDAY

The 32d annual Easter and spring flower show at Garfield park conservatory, 300 N. Central Park av., will open Saturday. Approximately 600 Easter lilies and many other Easter time flowers will be exhibited thru April 16.

The show will be open daily from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m., William C. Blaesing, chief horticulturist of the park district, announced. Among the featured floral displays will be white calla lilies, blue, white, and pink cinerarias, five varieties of narcissus, French hydrangeas, six varieties of marigolds, genista, and 10 varieties of primroses.

Other spring time flowers will include pink, yellow, and red tulips, Dutch iris, lilac, apricot and white stocks, and astilbe.

Berwyn Woman's Club Will Entertain Husbands

Members of the Berwyn Women's club will entertain their husbands at a night meeting Friday in the club parlors. Donald Ebright, who spent six years in India, will give an illustrated lecture on "India in the Spotlight." Music will be presented by the club chorus.

PROVISO CLASS GIVING COMEDY FRIDAY NIGHT

"Ladies of the Jury," a three act comedy concerning the pandemonium which results when 11 members of a jury are swayed by the strong persuasion of the 12th, will be presented Friday night by the senior class of Proviso High school in the school auditorium.

Each personality is precisely fitted into the plot, and altho most of the action takes place in one setting, the use of such diversions as entrances and exits of an overworked policeman keep the audience interested.

HARRISON SEEKS 1,000 STUDENT WAR GARDENERS

The clean-up campaign committee at Harrison High school, 2850 24th st., has started a drive for more and better vegetables. A war garden information booth has been set up in the school hall and the committee hopes to obtain 1,000 war garden pledges. The booth will be manned by Emily Lara, 3136 16th st., who spent last summer as a volunteer farmerette, and Milan Miskovsky, 4106 21st st., who worked as a forest ranger last summer in Idaho. Esta Kaplan, 1621 S. California av., is chairman of the clean-up committee.

Vote Pay Raise for 275 on Oak Park's Pay Roll

The 275 employes on Oak Park village rolls have been voted a 10 per cent raise in salaries, retroactive to Jan. 1, Robert F. McMasters, village president, announced. The village board also petitioned the Illinois Commerce commission for a universal 10 cent fare zone which would allow transfers between the Chicago and West Towns railways and the Chicago transportation systems.

PRO-AMERICA THEME OF MOST IN APRIL VOTE

No-Contest Slate for Democrats.

Voting in Chicago on April 11 for delegates to represent the city's 10 congressional districts in the Democratic national convention will be strictly a matter of form.

There are 20 delegates to be chosen in the districts and there are exactly 20 names on the party list. So tightly knit is the Kelly organization that only the party wheel horses are designated to represent the city's millions of citizens when the convention goes into session.

G. O. P. Has Contests.

In contrast the Republican delegate ballot shows a battle in seven districts, the exceptions being the 5th, 8th, and 9th, where organization candidates will go in without any opposition.

Where there are fights, the independent seekers for seats at the convention are nearly all interested in a stronger and more rigid recognition of constitutional safeguards for American liberties; in other words, a return to "real Republicanism." International sentiment among the delegates is markedly absent.

All Opposed to Willkie.

There is not, so far as the G. O. P. leadership is aware, a single proponent of Wendell L. Willkie for President. There are many aspirants who are not hesitant in expressions of dislike for him and the things he represents. The same is true in downstate districts.

As an example of the general feeling, the National League of Independent Voters, which campaigns for constitutional republicanism, has endorsed five delegate candidates on the ground that the regular choices are not sufficiently representative of its views. They are James O. Koontz in the 3d district, Henry James Shelton and Walter J. Pacanowski in the 4th, Mrs. Frances S. Conlon in the 6th, and Mrs. Martha M. Krysiak in the 7th.

Lively Contest in 11th.

Perhaps the liveliest contest in the metropolitan area is in the 11th district, made up of Will, Du Page, Kane and McHenry counties. There Frank H. Reid of Aurora, who was a delegate to the 1940 convention, Alfred Johnson of St. Charles, and Frank P. Lyman of Crete are running against the organization candidates, Win G. Knoch of Naperville and Charles M. Burgess of Aurora.

In the convention of 1940 Reid jumped to the Willkie bandwagon on the second ballot, even before it became apparent that the vehicle had a band. It is now reported that Reid favors MacArthur rather than Willkie. Lyman, a chemist, says he is and will remain unpledged to any candidate.

Candidates in 6th District.

Organization candidates in the 6th are Judge Julius H. Miner and Seward M. Gunderson of Oak Park. Mrs. Conlon is the wife of William F. Conlon, a realtor, and lives at 1938 Adams st. She is a college graduate. Her program includes "no Willkie, no bipartisan alliances, no foreign entanglements, and no 'isms'."

Charles W. Bidwill, owner of the Chicago Cardinals football team, was a candidate in the 6th, but has withdrawn.

In the huge 7th district Mrs. Kryziak, who has had long experience politically, is pitted against William Busse and John T. Dempsey, the party nominee for state's attorney. She is a proponent of the two-party scheme of government and a return to the principles of the men who drafted the constitution. Mary E. Lahey is the fourth candidate and has the support of some of the successor organizations to the old America First group.

G. O. P. Candidates Listed.

Republican candidates for delegate in the west and northwest areas, with the organization choices marked by an asterisk, are:

Fifth—*George F. Barrett and *Samuel R. Ballis.

Eighth—*Vincent J. Pokiacki and *Florence M. Pacelli.

Democratic Aspirants.

Fifth—Peter Fosco and Adolph J. Sabath.

Sixth—Albert J. Horan and John Toman.

Seventh—Clayton F. Smith and George D. Kells.

Eighth—Joseph P. Rostenkowski and John J. Touhy.

In the 11th district four candidates are seeking seats at the Democratic convention. They are Conrad J. Wirth of Joliet, Martin Raymond O'Brien of Aurora, Samuel K. Markman of Hinsdale, and William B. McKeon of Joliet.

REP. FINUCANE SAYS OPPONENT USES 3 NAMES

Claims Toman Confuses 9th District Voters.

BY LEE SHASSERE.

Rep. William S. Finucane, candidate for single Republican house of representatives nomination in the 9th district, charged last week that Andrew Toman, one of his Republican opponents, is identified by three different names and that this mixup has resulted in much confusion among voters.

Finucane, in a talk in the 11th ward, where he is the Republican committeeman, charged that Toman is employed at a stockyards packing house under the name of Andrew Tonner. Finucane declared that Toman's right name is Andrew Tuman, but that when he left the army in World War I. his discharge papers were made out in the name of Toman, an error which Toman has never corrected.

Says Toman Disgruntled.

"I supported Toman as a Republican candidate for 9th district state senator two years ago when he was defeated by Sen. Richard J. Daley, a Democrat," said Finucane. "Toman or Tuman or Tonner—whatever his name is—is now disgruntled over his defeat and is opposing me for the house nomination."

Toman's name was challenged in a suit filed in Circuit court to keep him off the ballot as a candidate for Republican committeeman in the 12th ward.

Henry W. Harris, 3600 S. Kedzie av., thru his attorney, James W. Breen, brought suit charging that Toman used that name because it is widely known in political circles, whereas his real name is Tuman and that he is employed under the name of Tonner.

Circuit Judge Julius H. Miner denied the motion for a temporary injunction because, he said, ballots for the April 11 primary have already been put into circulation. This action leaves Committeeman Felix Kucharski opposed by Toman in the 12th. Toman resides at 3822 S. Winchester av.

Seeking Fourth Term.

The 9th district comprises parts of wards 11, 12, 13, 21, 22, and 25. Finucane claims indorsements from all the regular Republican ward organizations. He is seeking his fourth term in the house, and has been ward committeeman for 24 years. He owns a bowling alley at 63d st. and Western av.

Five other Republican candidates besides Finucane and Toman have filed for the nomination. They are Frank Dybas, 2547 S. Hillock av.; John Mackowiak, 2867 Quinn st.; M. L. Libby, 3854 S. Ashland av.; Joseph Waisnor, 3203 Green st., and Edward Schumann, 2908 Quinn st.

The two Democratic house incumbents, William J. Gormley, 3359 S. Western av., and Peter P. Jezierny, 2244 Marshall blvd., are opposed by William J. Bruzek, 2819 S. Christiana av., and Stanley Sobiszewski, 3735 S. Hermitage av.

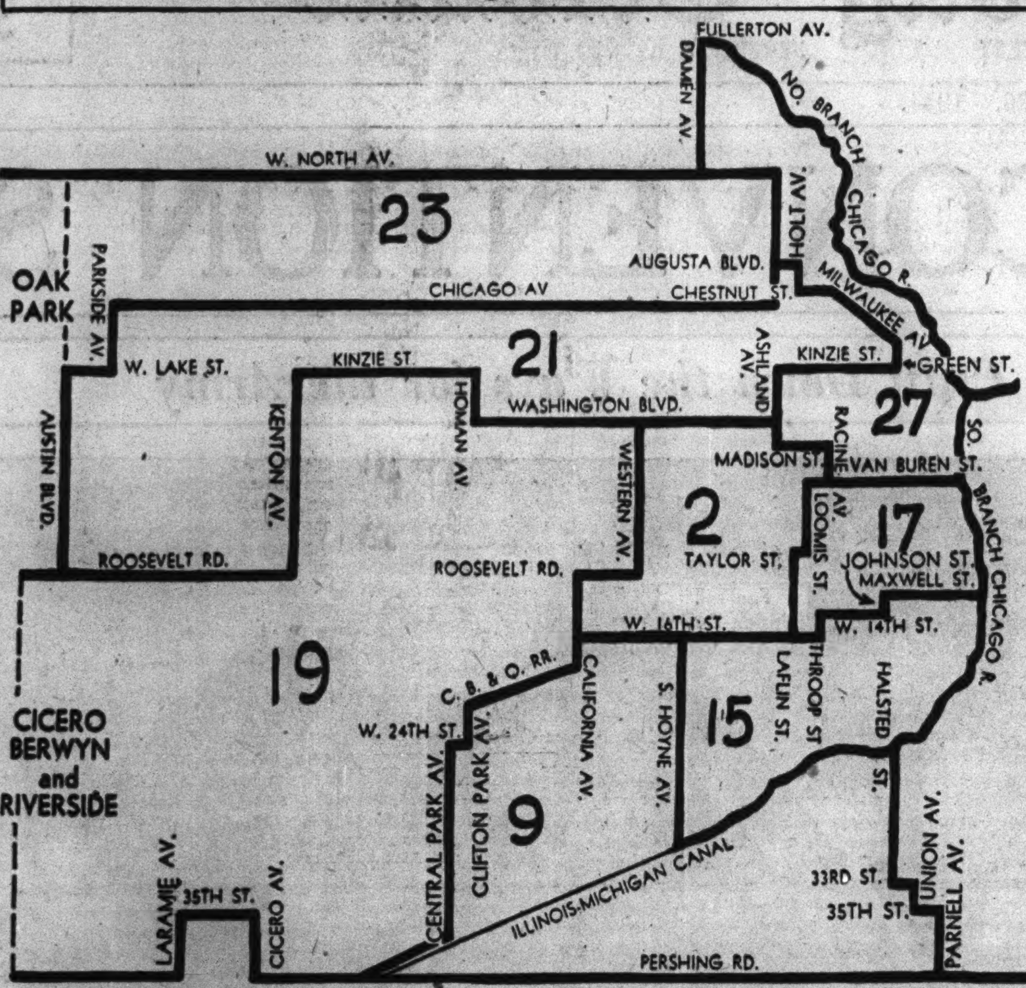
FOURTEENTH DISTRICT

Kane and Kendall Counties.

Five Republicans are seeking the party's two house nominations in the 14th, including Rep. Maud N. Peffers of Aurora. Mrs. Peffers is the widow of John M. Peffers, veteran state legislator, who served in the Illinois house from the 14th for 12 years.

Following her husband's death, Mrs. Peffers was elected to succeed him and has held office for the last six years. Other Republican candidates in the 14th are J. Lisle Laufer, Hampshire; Charles E. Jansby, St. Charles; Lawrence Swinyer, Elgin, and Harry Kelly, Elgin.

West Side Legislative Districts



West side residents will cast ballots in the April 11 primary in the legislative districts outlined in the above map. Kane and Kendall counties comprise the 14th district, and Du Page and Will counties comprise the 41st district.

ASSEMBLY SLATE MAKERS LAUNCH LIVE CAMPAIGN

Senatorial Committee Seekers Listed.

Senatorial committeemen candidates have launched active campaigns designed not only to present their qualifications to voters but also to acquaint many with the single function which committeemen perform.

The senatorial committee consists of three persons elected by each district party at the state primary, which will be held this year on April 11. The committee determines the number of candidates the party in the district will nominate at the primary to run for state representative in the general election. If, by reason of death, resignation or disqualification there is a vacancy among the nominees, this is filled by senatorial committee action.

Usually Nominate One or Two.

The committee may decide to nominate one, two, and very rarely three candidates. The decision to nominate three is a real test of party strength for only three representatives from each district are elected at the general election in November.

In 1942, in Chicago's 27th district on the near west side, the Democrats appraised their vote getting ability and decided to "shoot the works." They called for three candidates to be nominated, while the Republicans decided on only one. In the November election the Democrats made a clean sweep, winning all three offices.

The Democrats have again called for three nominees in the 27th, and similar action has also been taken in the 15th.

Following are the candidates for senatorial committeeman in the west section of Cook county. In the 7th, 17th, 21st, and 27th districts, Democratic candidates have no opposition and are assured election as only three candidates have filed. In the 15th and 17th districts, Republican candidates have no opposition. The asterisk [*] indicates incumbents.

FBI DISCOVERS FORGERIES IN 2 W. SIDE WARDS

Canvass Discloses Many False Addresses.

Clews which may lead to federal prosecution have been uncovered by federal bureau of investigation agents who were called in after nearly 1,400 forged changes of address of Republican voters in the 25th and 29th wards were uncovered last week before the board of election commissioners.

William Parrillo, 25th ward committeeman, made the first report to the board when a canvass of the registered voters disclosed that many of his precinct captains and ward organization leaders had been moved into precincts in which they did not live. Parrillo said about 900 forged changes of address were discovered in his ward.

500 Forgeries Charged.

In the adjoining 29th ward Louis J. Meyers, Republican committeeman, said a similar check had brought to light at least 500 forged changes of address.

Meyers and Parrillo said the forged names were all of workers who had signed their petitions and that, apparently, photostatic copies of the petitions had been used to duplicate the signatures as near as possible.

FBI Agents Called In.

An investigation by FBI agents called in by the board of election commissioners disclosed that most of the letters in which the forged changes had been mailed were metered at the downtown postoffice, far from either of the west side wards. Other evidence indicated the letters were mailed by less than half a dozen persons.

Parrillo is opposed for committeeman by Andrew J. Flando and John D. Svalenka. Meyers' opponents are Joseph R. Orrico and James Carroll.

SCOUT TRAINING SCHOOL HEAD TO TALK IN SUBURB

CIVIC COUNCIL SEEKING Y.M.C.A. FOR MAYWOOD

Meet Tuesday to Talk Plans with Officials.

Representatives of the State Association of Y. M. C. A.s of Illinois have accepted an invitation to attend a meeting Tuesday night of the executive board of the newly organized Community Planning council of Maywood. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Grant Hodgskiss, secretary of the council, 1712 S. 4th av., Maywood.

Possibilities of establishing a Y. M. C. A. in Maywood will be discussed by J. F. Mummery, state program secretary, and A. R. Freeman, executive of the state Y. M. C. A., and R. R. O'Brien, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Oak Park.

Cite Lack of Coördination.

Formation of the Community Planning council of Maywood was the result of various organizations believing there was a lack of a coordinating facility to bring concerted action on vital community problems.

Purposes of the council are:

To study the needs and problems of the community.

To interpret these to the citizens of the village.

To plan for constructive action to meet these needs and problems effectively.

To coördinate and facilitate the work of public and private agencies and organizations concerned with community service.

To promote mutually helpful exchange of ideas, experiences, and methods relating to these services.

At present 39 Maywood organizations are represented on the new council, which is nonpartisan, nonpolitical, and nonsectional.

WEST SIDE PALM SUNDAY RITUAL TO CROWD PEWS

The somberness of the Lenten season will give way next Sunday in west side churches to the celebration of Palm Sunday. Everywhere on the west side, congregations will join with all Christianity for morning services, marking the beginning of Holy week, to be climaxed with the celebration of Easter the following Sunday, April 9.

As the dramatic last days of Christ are relived in west side church services next week, mothers and fathers will offer fervent prayers for the safe return of their sons in uniform and hope for an early peace.

In Catholic and Episcopal churches the blessing and distribution of palms will commemorate Christ's return to Jerusalem where almost 2,000 years ago he was received joyously by throngs lining the streets of the historic city. Protestant churches of many denominations will receive members and hold baptismal services and the Lutheran churches will administer the rite of confirmation.

North Austin Lutheran church, 1500 N. Mason av., will begin its series of special pre-Easter services with a Passion Sunday worship hour at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in Moody Memorial church. Church members anticipate that the annual service will draw approximately 6,500 worshipers. The program will be dedicated to the church men and women in service. Souvenir programs in the patriotic colors and carrying the names of the church's 473 men and women in service will be presented to all who attend the service.

The three church choirs, boys, girls, and seniors, will sing and colors will be posted by the Melin-Romer American Legion post. Dr. F. W. Otterbein, pastor of North Austin church, will preach on "He Thanked God and Took Courage."

Will Confirm 85 Youths.

The three regular morning services will be held on Palm Sunday at the usual hours, 8:30, 9:45, and 11 a. m. At 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon 85 boys and girls will be confirmed by Dr. Otterbein. Holy Week communion services will be held at 8 o'clock Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights.

On Thursday communion services also will be held at 10 a. m. and on Good Friday at 4, 7, 8:15, and 9:30 p. m. Four half hour services begin on Good Friday at 6 a. m. and a longer service will be held from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m. The church will be open all day Saturday for prayer and meditation and holy communion will be held at 4 and 8 p. m.

Three masses will be said on Palm Sunday at the Church of the Epiphany, 201 S. Ashland blvd. They are scheduled for 7:30, 9:30, and 11 a. m. Blessing of the palms will follow each service. The Rev. David E. Gibson and the Rev. Joseph Higgins will take part in the 11 a. m. service.

From Monday thru Friday in Holy week masses will be said daily at 7 and 8 a. m. and from 12:10 to 12:30 p. m. A three hour service from noon to 3 p. m. will be held on Good Friday. The Very Rev. Dean Philbrook, dean of Trinity Cathedral, Davenport, Ia.

A baptismal service for children and infants will follow the morning worship hour at 11 a. m. next Sunday in First Congregational church, 1613 Washington blvd. Dr. Frederick Stamm, pastor, will preach on "Behold I Stand at the Door and Knock." Vesper services will be held at 5 p. m.

The last weekly Lenten service dinner will be held at 6:15 o'clock Tuesday night after which Dr. Stamm will talk on "The Shadow of the Cross."

Receive New Members.

New members will be received into the church at 8 o'clock Thursday night after which holy communion will follow. Quiet hour will be observed in the church from noon to 2 o'clock on Good Friday. Organ music will be played and people are invited to come for silent prayer. At 8 o'clock in the evening the united choirs of the church will sing Stainer's "Crucifixion." The choir director is Dr. Paul Vernon.

Using a Lenten theme, the Rev. Charles Hoskinson will preach on "In Search of a Kingdom" at the Palm Sunday service at 11 o'clock in Warren Congregational church, 3101 Warren blvd. The eighth annual candlelight service will be held at 7:15 o'clock Thursday night. Lighted by a single candle on the altar the church will remain in semi-darkness until the end of the service when each person will light the small candle he was given as he entered the church simultaneously with the lighting of a large cross made of 18 inch candles on the altar.

Music for the candlelight service will include many Good Friday selections by the choir. Dwight Davis will sing Wagner's "Parsifal," and a quartet composed of Jean Nichols, June Cole, Wayne Glick, and William Lee, will sing "Ballet of the Trees."

SEE NEW DEAL SUN SETTING IN TWO DISTRICTS

G.O.P. Out for Congress Seats in 4th and 6th.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Dissatisfaction with the Democratic regime in Washington is so marked that Republican candidates for congress in districts like the 4th and 6th believe they have an excellent chance to win in November. Both these districts, lying on the west and southwest sides of Chicago, have gone heavily Democratic in recent elections.

In the big 3d district, now represented by Fred E. Busbey, a Republican, a measure of dissension has grown in the Democratic ranks. Edward A. Kelly, former congressman picked by Mayor Kelly's organization, is opposed by Paul B. Saltimieras, radio station operator and a Lithuanian-American leader. Busbey has no primary opposition.

Hits Neglect of Discharged Vets.

Leo J. Kozicki, owner of a printing business at 1837 35th st., is a candidate for the G. O. P. nomination in the 4th. He lists high and complicated taxes and a policy of neglect for men released from war service as sources of much of the opposition rising against the Democrats.

"They just don't seem to care down there about the plight of discharged men," he said. "They are being inadequately rewarded. Our own congressman hasn't done anything and even is hard to find."

Martin Gorski, Democrat, is the incumbent representative in the 4th and has no primary opposition. In 1942 he won by a majority of 44,000.

Kozicki has definite views on foreign policy.

"The government ought to take care of things at home first," he said. "I am for a real Americanism."

Shelton Against Willkie.

Another G. O. P. candidate is Henry James Shelton, who is a vigorous anti-Willkieite and a promoter of Gen. MacArthur for President. Shelton said that taxes and rationing and the questionnairing of small business men had made life "too complicated." Both these candidates recalled that once in history the 4th had elected a Republican congressman and that conditions were similar now.

Saltimieras asserted that his candidacy had been received with more acclaim than he had anticipated and that Congressman Kelly, whom he dubbed a "rubber stamp for the mayor," had a real fight on his hands.

Wants World Organization.

He said that he was most interested in the necessities of service men and their families. As to foreign policy, he has an internationalist viewpoint, believing that some organization with power enough to curb national ambitions of greedy powers would be helpful in maintaining peace.

"But any such organization would be a hollow mockery from its inception if its foundation must be the rape of Poland and the Baltic states or any injustice to any nation," Saltimieras asserted.

In the 6th district, which includes several western suburbs and a large slice of the west side, the G. O. P. rivals are Marvin M. Kurth, an investigator for the Illinois state department of revenue, and Charles J. Anderson Jr., an electrical contractor. Kurth has organization support. Thomas J. O'Brien, Democrat, is unopposed.

In the tiny 5th district there are no contests. The incumbent, Adolph J. Sabath, is the Democratic choice and Max Price, garage owner, gets the Republican nomination.

West Side Congressional Districts

TRIBUNE ARTIST DODGES SHELLS TO SKETCH WAR

Marine Moves Up, Finds Sheahan at Front.

After more than a year of training in the United States and at Pacific outposts, Staff Sgt. Ward Walker, former CHICAGO TRIBUNE reporter, now a marine corps combat correspondent, has moved, with many other Chicagoland marines, into front line action against the Japs.

Sgt. Walker's orders to move up came from Lt. Charles E. Walker, 425 Franklin blvd., at a Southwest Pacific base. In company with seven other marines including Corp. Donald E. Wiley of Aurora, he went by plane to an advanced army base.

Disappointed by the ill luck that left him behind was Sgt. Tom Carson, 5427 Hyde Park blvd., combat photographer, who bade the eight-man detail good-by before they breakfasted on bacon and eggs. As the plane swept out over the Pacific, Corp. Wiley's query, "Wonder when we'll have real eggs again?" brought the crack, "The only fresh eggs we'll get will be bomber-layed."

Poker—A New Way.

Clipped of their wings, the party of marines traveled the second leg of their journey to the front on the decks of an old gray tramp freighter. Pinochle, bridge, and pay day poker —pay when you get caught—occupied the time for many, but Pvt. Charles Silzer, 3916 S. Wells st., a graduate of Englewood High school, spent his time fishing. He didn't catch anything but sagely remarked, "It isn't what you catch, it's what you might have caught. Look at that." "That" was a vicious looking shark.

News of recent Chicago happenings were at a premium on deck, Sgt. Walker reported, and as Pvt. Robert Erhart, 4254 Hazel av., joined the other Chicagoans aboard, the city's reputation as the best liberty town in the world was broadcast to soldiers and marines.

The third leg of the journey, objective of which was Cape Gloucester, New Britain, was completed on the rolling deck of a landing ship, tanks [LST]. Quarters on the ship were somewhat spacious, Sgt. Walker said.

Bull Sessions Prevail.

"Somewhere in the haze ahead," Sgt. Walker wrote, "lies New Britain. Some of the marines aboard are returning to their outfit, flesh wounds healed. Bull sessions are going on all over the deck with the old salts describing precisely how it feels to be bombed, shot, and to meet a bayonet charge head on. The lads are eager to the the cape. Most of them have been under way for months."

As they neared New Britain the ship was subjected to its first bombing attack. Escorts spouted flame and thunder at the target, a Jap bomber swinging low between the LST and a destroyer.

Band Keeps Guns at Hand.

Not typical of the previous weeks' action on the island battleground was the scene that greeted the landing marines at Cape Gloucester. Near the beach, their tommy guns within easy reach, was the outfit's band warming up on the "William Tell Overture." Playing a stellar saxophone was Corp. Philip Ziff, 5511 Gladys av.

Tales of Gary Sheahan, Tribune staff artist then doing a series of sketches in the South Pacific, are legend on New Britain, Walker reported. One marine tells of working his way cautiously up to the infantrymen during a tank drive on the Jap held airport. The troops followed the tanks as they blasted a path thru the pillboxes.

"Bullets were whining close," said the marine. "The smoke cleared a little and there, striding along between two tanks, sketching as he went, was Sheahan. He stuck with 'em right to the finish. Gray hair and all."

Four West Siders Among First on Jap Territory

Four west side marines were among the first Americans to set foot upon the Marshall Islands, the first Jap territory conquered in World War II. The four west siders were among 28 Chicagoans in the unit. They are Sgt. James E. Sauff, 4907 Huron st.; Corp. Arthur C. Glafcke, 4934 Van Buren st.; Pvt. Sheldon S. Finkelstein, 1329 S. Keeler av., and Pvt. Samuel G. Jones of Elgin.

La Grange Academy Class Plans Prom for April 14

The junior class of Nazareth academy, La Grange, will hold its annual prom Friday, April 14, at the Edgewood Valley Country club. Members of the planning committee are Joan Nelson, class president; Marilyn Nemec, chairman of the invitation committee; Gerry Koch, chairman of the orchestra committee, and Pat Winters, chairman of publicity.

Women at War

Pvt. Irene Hermaine, 3005 Cermak rd., has reported for duty with the marine corps at Camp Pendleton, Oceanside, Cal. Before enlisting in the marine corps, Pvt. Hermaine was employed at Montgomery Ward & Co.

Pvt. Beatrice Dallas, daughter of Mrs. Della Delkus, 2124 24th st., has been promoted to corporal at the Midland army air field, Tex.

Five west side girls have begun their basic training in the WACs at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. At the end of five weeks they will be assigned to an army post or sent to an army specialist school for further training. They are Pvt. Marian J. Utiger, 5518 Augusta blvd.; Pvt. Loretta J. Martin, 813 S. Flournoy St.; Pvt. Sarah Rice, 4302 Flournoy st.; Pvt. Eugenia Marciszewski, 1861 Blue Island av., and Pvt. Beatrice Schiffman, 1423 S. Karlov av.

Pvt. Lillian Masterson, daughter of Mrs. Anna Masterson, 4208 Monroe st., has completed a year of service with the WACs at Fort Bliss, Tex. She is one of 60 remaining members of the original WAC company which reported to the old cavalry post a year ago as the first group of women to serve there.

WAR VETERANS IN MAYWOOD TO GET ASSISTANCE

New Council to Aid in Rehabilitation.

Looking ahead to the time when veterans of World War II. will be returning home, the Maywood Council for Veterans Assistance, Inc., recently was formed by a patriotic and civic minded group in Maywood.

The organization, which recently received a state charter, is not intended to supplant the work now being done by veterans' organizations, but it does aim to increase the services to returning service men who may need temporary aid in their rehabilitation.

Members of Board.

Members of the board of directors and the organizations they represent are Earle S. Cromer, American Legion; Harvey F. Johnson, Proviso High school; Harvey G. Meyer, civilian defense; David W. Owen, civilian defense; O. H. Peterson, Lions club; Robert N. Sager, Greater Maywood association; John D. Senne, Rotary club; J. A. Siegler, civilian defense, and Charles E. Yunkers, Veterans of Foreign Wars. Officers are Harvey G. Meyer, president; Ray O. Williams, vice president; Arthur J. Wartha, assistant to vice president; Charles Yunkers, assistant to vice president; John Senne, vice president; Robert N. Sager, assistant to vice president; David W. Owen, vice president; Ray Davis, assistant to vice president; Earle G. Cromer, assistant to vice president; O. W. Kellberg, vice president; Stanley A. Johnson, assistant to vice president; Alvena Wickenden, secretary, Herman W. Meyn, treasurer; Victor H. Rasche, assistant secretary; O. H. Peterson, assistant treasurer; Earl Martin, auditor, and John A. L. Siegler, attorney.

Members Pay Dues.

At the organization meeting it was decided that membership in the corporation will consist of charter members with annual dues of $2 and associate members with annual dues of $5, each to receive a certificate as evidence of membership. No applications for charter members will be accepted after April 30. Charter members will be the voting members of the corporation.

Members of the membership committee from whom information may be obtained are R. N. Sager, chairman, Earle G. Cromer, Victor H. Rasche, David W. Owens, Charles E. Yunkers, O. H. Peterson, and James Kozel.

Veterans of World War I., recalling their difficulties in adjusting themselves again to civilian life, have expressed their approval of the new organization. The next meeting of the group will be held Wednesday night in the Maywood village hall.

COLLECT $2,000 IN N. LAWNDALE RED CROSS DRIVE

Seek $11,550 Goal by End of Month.

A total of $2,000 has been collected toward north Lawndale's Red Cross war fund drive, Arthur Schimmel, community chairman, announced. The community has set a goal of $11,550 to be collected by the end of the month.

Last year north Lawndale contributed $8,779.60. "We were among the top west side communities last year and we hope to do it again this year," Mr. Schimmel said.

Area chairmen have been appointed to guide the drive and representatives from the community's leading organizations have volunteered to assist in the collection.

Area Chairmen.

Mrs. Harold W. Berman, president of the Douglas Park Red Cross unit, will be in charge of the area from Fairfield av. to Kedzie av. and from Fillmore av. to Ogden av. Mrs. Rose Gold of the Lawson PTA is in charge of the territory from Kedzie av. to Independence blvd. and from Arthington st. to 16th st.

Mrs. Evelyn Espo, chairman of the Franklin Park Red Cross unit, heads the territory from Independence blvd. to Cicero av. and from Fillmore st. to 16th st. She is being assisted by Mrs. H. H. Stock of Bryant PTA and Mrs. Minnie Davis of the Polly Sedlitz Rebekah lodge.

Assist in Drive.

Others assisting in the drive are Mrs. Bess Cohen of the Lawndale B'nai B'rith lodge; Miss Sylvia Zimmer of the Lawndale B'nai B'rith junior group; Elsie Halperin, the Women's Service club, and Phil Youngerman, who will represent the industrial and business groups in the community.

Headquarters for the north Lawndale Red Cross drive is located at 1208 S. Homan av. Miss Jeanne Chenicek is secretary of the drive. Walter Powers is war fund chairman of the west side district.

CALUMET YARDS SLIDE SHIP DOWN WAYS FOR ARMY

Transportation Corps to Get 176 Foot Craft.

The dock master—the one man who can't make a mistake in building and launching a ship—stands tense, watching, as the men at the jacks increase the tension on the trigger wires, two cables which are the sole support of hundreds of tons of steel.

Suddenly his arm flashes down. Two carpenters simultaneously swing razor sharp axes against the thick manila ropes joining the trigger wires, and another ship goes sliding down the ways into the water at the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company, 9367 Harbor av.

First of a Series.

The ship which the company launched recently was the first of a series of 176 foot vessels it is building for the United States army transportation corps for use around islands with small, shallow harbors in which larger ships cannot operate.

Pictures carried in today's Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE show the progress of construction from the time the ship was 25 per cent completed until it hit the water, when it was 75 per cent completed. Two months ago the Metropolitan section carried pictures showing the construction of the ship up to the 25 per cent mark, when the vessel was "in frame" and shell plates were being welded on.

As construction progresses, all deck plates are welded on except at the stern. The bow plate, a 22 foot curved piece of steel, is swung on to the bow and welded into place. Steel ribs which forms the lines of the foc'sle head are welded on, deck plates welded on top and shell plates on the sides.

Weld Fantail On.

The fantail at the stern is meanwhile prefabricated in the ship yard. When the two cargo holds, the foc'sle head and shell plates have been completed, the fantail is swung into place by a heavy crane and welded to the body of the ship.

The deckhouse goes up just aft of the No. 2 cargo hold, and generally is built before the fantail is swung into place. The sides, front, and rear are put up as units, but partitions inside are put in singly.

A bulk deck is laid on top the deckhouse. Sticking up above the bulk deck is a square of steel which forms the engine casing. Engines will be dropped thru the casing into the bowels of the ship, and when all engines are in a funnel will lead up from the engines thru the casing. The space between the casing sides and the stack is plated, and if new motors are necessary later the stack is taken out and the top plate removed.

Bridge for Officers.

The bridge deck is laid on plates which stick up above the level of the bulk deck at the front of the deckhouse. From the bridge deck officers direct the course of the ship thru communication with the pilot house behind him. Just back of the pilot house, which has a row of windows in front and other on the sides, are the radio room and charthouse.

No work is done on the interior of the deckhouse until the ship is launched, but many steam, bilge, and ballast pipes are laid by the time the vessel reaches this stage. With twin screw propellers and rudder installed and the superstructure completed, the ship is ready to be launched.

John Servais, 10426 Ewing av., dockmaster and veteran of 15 years with the company, describes himself as the man who can't afford to make a mistake. His is the job of readying the ways, the butter boards down which the ship will slide, cribbing, jacks, and trigger wires.

As cribbing and blocks are removed a few minutes before the ship hits the water, a painter does a quick paint job on those parts of the keel which have been resting on support blocks since the keel was laid and which have never been painted.

She's Got to Be Right.

"A machinist, a welder, an electrician, any one can make a mistake but me," says Servais. "Any one else can do the job over again if he doesn't like his work, but I only get once chance and it has to be right the first time."

Most of the remaining work is on the inside of the ship, installing equipment, facilities for the officers and men and machinery. Pictures of the vessel will be printed in the Metropolitan section when it is completed. Before then, however, another ship of the same type will be in the water at the ship yard. The first is the hardest. They all go faster, company officials say, when they're "over the hump" on the first one.

WEST SIDE CLUB EXHIBITS APPEAR IN FLOWER SHOW

Annual Display Opens at Field's Tomorrow.

Many west side garden clubs are taking an active part in the 1944 Chicago Flower show which will begin tomorrow on the second floor of Marshall Field & Co. and continue thru April 8. The show takes the place of the large Chicago show which was held annually for 14 springs on Navy pier before the navy took over.

Garden clubs from Glen Ellyn, Wheaton, Elmhurst, and Downers Grove will have garden exhibits in the show. Under the direction of Mrs. J. V. Snydacker, the Wheaton club will present "Illinois in the Spring." The Elmhurst Garden club has planned a garden with a pool and the Downers Grove club will exhibit a rose garden. Mrs. Ralph G. Raymond is in charge of the Elmhurst garden and Mrs. Bertha L. Downes and Mrs. J. R. Spalding directed the work of the rose garden. Glen Ellyn gardeners worked under direction of Mrs. W. G. Kaiser for their exhibit.

Other Glen Ellyn Features.

Other exhibits by the Glen Ellyn club will include the use of flowers on a dinner table, incidental tables, and small arrangements. Mrs. J. B. Lawrence, Mrs. Paul Mehl, and Mrs. R. D. Lawrence are in charge of these exhibits.

Besides the rose garden, members of the Downers Grove club have submitted a pair of vases suitable for chapel or altar and an exhibit on small arrangements. Mrs. P. A. Moody and Mrs. W. C. Barber are in charge.

Other exhibits by the Elmhurst club include a luncheon table by Mrs. F. L. Garst and small arrangements by Mrs. Anton Sobolik. Mrs. George Naylor of the Wheaton Garden club also has worked out a setting for a Mexican table.

The Garden Club of Oak Park and River Forest will have two exhibits in the show. One will be in the period tables group for which Mrs. Adrian T. Stewart has planned a modern setting and the other is a home decoration exhibit planned by Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Albert Roos from an article in a popular magazine.

Villa Park Exhibits.

Mrs. H. A. Brown of the Woman's Garden Club of Villa Park has worked out two exhibits, one on small arrangements and one on dinner tables. The two exhibits submitted by the Maywood Garden club include a luncheon table setting and small arrangements. Mrs. W. G. McKinney and Mrs. Harry W. Ewert are chairmen of the exhibits. The Lombard Garden club, under the direction of Mrs. S. P. Griffin, has submitted a console table setting and a small arrangement feature.

Two groups from Hinsdale have been working on the 1944 spring show. Mrs. Elliott C. McIntire, Mrs. Brian M. Carpenter, and Mrs. Gerald B. Thorne of the Garden Study club of Hinsdale worked out exhibit details for incidental tables, flower arrangements in glass, and small arrangements. Exhibits from the Garden Club of Hinsdale include flower arrangements in glass, home decoration as inspired by magazines, and small arrangements. Chairmen are Mrs. R. N. Ballou, Mrs. Robert P. Gordon, Mrs. Anson Mark Jr., and Mrs. H. L. Buckler.

Arrangements by Other Clubs.

Other west side clubs and their exhibits are La Grange, pair of vases suitable for chapel or altar, Mrs. W. T. Bisbee, chairman; Riverside, home decoration as inspired by popular magazines, Mrs. Frank Peters and Mrs. Eugene Bower, chairmen; Berwyn, breakfast and dinner tables, Mrs. George Prosch, Mrs. Howard Hulett, and Mrs. Arnold Lund, chairmen, and Forest Park, small arrangements, Mrs. Helen Steers, chairman.

West side gardeners who are members of the general committee planning the show are Mrs. W. Thorpe Warren of Elmhurst, Mrs. Henry W. Shedd of River Forest, and Mrs. Raymond Knotts, Berwyn, president of the Garden Club of Illinois, Inc.

Judges from the west side will be Mrs. H. J. Bluhm of Western Springs, Mrs. Fred J. Mabrey of Glen Ellyn, Mrs. H. C. Stearn of Glen Ellyn, Mrs. Ralph Korscher of Elmhurst, and Mrs. Roos of Forest Park.

Club members from the west side who will take their turns at conducting tours during the two week show will include Mrs. Shedd, chairman; Mrs. Harvey Duvall of Glen Ellyn, Mrs. Frank Ronayne, Mrs. Loyal Nutting, and Mrs. Charles Novak, all of Oak Park; Mrs. Goodrich Q. Lewis and Mrs. Ralph Roscher of Wheaton, and Mrs. Hulett and Mrs. Kenneth Preston of Berwyn.

'OLD' QUIZ KIDS TO BATTLE WITH A CRADLE CREW

Military Services Call More Radio Stars.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Five alumni of the Quiz Kids and five mere moppets will engage in a brain battle over WLS—Blue at 6:30 tonight. The graduates who are coming back to their alma mater are Jack Lucal, 17, senior at Oak Park High; Van Dyke Tiers, 17, a student at the University of Chicago; Jack Beckman, 17, who is working; Joan Bishop, 17, who has been doing USO Camp shows and Cynthia Cline, 18, a student at Northwestern.

The cradle crew they will meet: Sparky Fischman, 4; Pat Conlon, 6; Bunnie Duskin, 6; Joel Kupperman, 7, and his sister Harriet, 9.

More and more the requirements of the military services are making themselves felt on network programs. Red Skelton, Norris Goff [Abner of Lum and Abner], Nelson Olmsted, and Ralph Edwards of Truth or Consequences all have passed their physicals. Among those who are in 1-A are Dennis Day, Jack Benny's tenor; Bob Crosby, Harry James, Percy Faith, and Sammy Kaye, all radio orchestra leaders, and Ed Prentiss who plays Capt. Midnight.

Chet Lauck [Lum] plans to carry on without Goff; John Nesbitt will take over the Harry James periods with his Passing Parade show. Replacement for Skelton and Edwards are reported likely so that their shows can continue.

Eddie Cantor and Ed [Archie] Gardner are reported looking for sponsors. . . There is a report that when Jack Benny leaves his present sponsor at the end of this season that Ed Wynn will be the replacement. Benny will keep that 6 p. m. spot, however. . . William Powell and Deanna Durbin are being teamed for a summer radio series. Dick Todd, radio singer, will soon start on an overseas tour. . . You Can Write a Song, featuring Lew Brown and Fred Koots, songsmiths, is in the audition stage. . . Gracie Fields probably will be back on the air with a 30 minute show.

The orchestra, directed by Walter Steindel, will present Beethoven's Symphony No. 2, Debussy's "Petite Suite," Durand's "Menuet and Ballad," and Dvorak's "Overture Carnival."

Profits—War Contracts Topic of Review Stand

The Northwestern Reviewing Stand will consider "Profits and War Contracts" in its broadcast over W-G-N and Mutual at 11 a. m. today. Participants will be Prof. A. R. Tebbutt, Carman G. Blough of the WPB, and James F. Lincoln of the Lincoln Electric company.

HOME REPAIRS NOW MAY SAVE BIG JOB LATER

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

There are many improvements we must put off until after the war due to unobtainable or restricted articles, but a "stitch in war time" when it comes to necessary painting and ordinary repair work is a "stitch" which the government not only permits but definitely encourages as a conservation measure.

Altho the situation with respect to some building products, such as steel, hardware, electrical and plumbing equipment, and lumber, remains critical, there are no restrictions on decorating and painting, insulating, or reroofing, or on repairs to brick and masonry construction.

Releases Contractors.

If we get this work started many contractors will be free for other projects when the release of materials now hard to get makes possible the start of new civilian construction.

Russel G. Creviston, general chairman of the post-war committee of the producers' council, issued a recent statement to this effect and also stressed the desirability of planning post-war jobs of the types which are not practical at present.

Poor Future for Mildew.

Of interest to home owners who have had mildew troubles is a statement that the war mildewcides may be incorporated into all house paints, interior as wall as exterior.

Important use is being made of mildew resistant protective coatings for war uses, but as far as civilian uses are concerned mildewproofers are in a position similar to that in which windshield wipers, self-starters, and other automobile accessories were 25 years ago.

After the war it appears that mildewcides may be incorporated into all house paints, interior as well as exterior, just as automobiles are now completely equipped and vitamins are included in milk, bread, and other foods.

JOHN CORIGLIANO IN BEETHOVEN CONCERTO TODAY

Beethoven's violin concerto in D major is to be played by John Corigliano as soloist with the New York Philharmonic orchestra during its program over WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. today. Corigliano is concertmaster of the orchestra.

After the solo number, the orchestra, under the direction of Artur Rodzinski, will offer Richard Strauss' "Thus Spake Zarathustra."

SCHUBERT'S 2D SYMPHONY TO BE AIRED OVER NBC

The NBC Symphony orchestra will feature Schubert's Symphony No. 2 in B Flat Major in the broadcast over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. A Shakespeare flavor also will mark the program. The orchestra will play Castelnuovo—Tedesco's overture to "The Taming of the Shrew," and Berlioz' scherzo based on "Queen Mab." Smetana's "The Moldau" will conclude the broadcast. Arturo Toscanini will conduct.

Dies to Speak Tonight in Reply to Winchell

Rep. Dies [D., Tex.], chairman of the house committee investigating un-American activities, will speak over WENR-Blue at 8:15 tonight. Rep. Dies will reply to Walter Winchell who has been smearing Dies and the committee. Winchell's gossip program precedes Dies at 8 p. m.

Cook PTA Tour.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 27

All pruning of trees, shrubs, and vines should be finished before the sap starts to rise. If the gardener is at a loss as to how to prune, he always can remove dead branches or correct branches that rub together. The surplus wood should be removed.

If there are dead plants in the hedge row it may be necessary to cut back the whole row to promote a uniform growth. Large, overgrown shrubs look bad and seldom furnish the maximum of flowers due to an excess of old wood. Such plants should be given a major operation to promote new wood to produce the best flowers.

Tuesday, March 28

Gardeners who are fortunate enough to have a hotbed should begin sowing some of the vegetable seeds for early planting, such as tomatoes, eggplant, pepper, and early cabbage. The seed will germinate rapidly and care must be taken that the frame is aired every good day to prevent the seedlings from damping off, a fungus disease that frequently kills a batch of seedlings in a single night.

Use care when watering and give fresh air. Thick sowing will bring thick seedlings and these grow so close together that extra care must be taken or they will become spindly, weak, and unsatisfactory.

Wednesday, March 29

With the coming of warm days the gardener is prone to begin gardening operations immediately, but it is best to wait until the ground is in suitable condition. Wait until the soil crumbles when squeezed by the hand or when it can be easily broken up with the spade.

Wet soil is impossible for working. Save seed by careful sowing. Sow thinly and save a lot of work. Do not undertake more than can be successfully accomplished or the garden will be poor and the crops meager.

Thursday, March 30

Paint the trellises and arbors before the plants begin to grow. Vines are usually heavy and must have substantial support if they present the best appearance. Vines are among the finest of plant materials and more should be planted.

Examine the mulching material that protects the strawberry bed and perennial borders to see that the crowns of the plants are not too heavily covered. But do not remove all the material; leave it in place to prevent late freezing and possible injury.

Before work on the lawn begins, rake off all debris that may have accumulated during the winter. Repair the fences now.

Friday, March 31

Turn over the compost heap and mix all parts thoroly to hasten decomposition. Start a new pile with the coarser portions of the mulching materials when it becomes necessary to rake it off the beds. Square the sides and leave the top depressed to catch rain water that falls.

Keeping the heap moist hastens decay. Examine the perennials and firm the soil around them. Wood ashes that have been saved during the winter should be scattered over the vegetable garden plot and borders. Chicken manure, hog manure, and sheep manure should be used sparingly, for it is very strong but effective.

Saturday, April 1

Plant sweet peas, for they thrive in early spring and summer. Hardy nursery stock can be moved as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Do not overplant shrubs. If the soil is poor replace it with good, fresh soil, for by giving the shrubs the best possible conditions in which to grow infinitely better results will be obtained.

Examine the labels on the outdoor materials and see that they are securely in place. Do not enclose a branch with wire tightly placed around it or it will die sooner or later.

See that all tools are kept in good condition; sharpen the spade, and it is a fine thing to keep a good file at hand to sharpen the spade and hoe, as they require it. Clean all tools every night and hang them up.

PLAN SUMMER CURB PICKUP OF WASTE PAPER

System to Make Up Loss When Schools Close.

Planning three months ahead, the Chicago waste paper salvage committee has decided upon city-wide curb pickups to supplant salvage systems of Chicago public and parochial schools when these institutions close for summer vacations. Chicago schools, at present, are accounting for 1,000 tons of waste paper a week for use in the manufacturing of war material, said John R. Robinson, representative of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association sponsoring the waste paper campaign.

The loss of school collections during the summer months presented a serious problem to salvage officials, said Robinson. They selected the city-wide pick-up system as the most efficient way of gathering scrap paper during the expected slack. Advocating the efficiency of that system, William L. McFetridge, general chairman of the salvage committee, said:

"We are working along the line of handling the situation thru the already established agencies of waste paper salvage.

Change New York Plan.

"In New York the city authorities used city trucks to pick up the paper from pavements, then sold it direct to the mills, eliminating the collection agencies and paper stock grading companies. Thru these regular agencies the entire amount of normal waste paper salvage is obtained, and it is only fair that we take the pick up men, shops, and dealers into consideration when planning city-wide curb pickups.

McFetridge pointed out that New York, as a result of eliminating the shops, peddlers, and dealers, was able to gather only 708 tons of waste paper in a city-wide curb pickup, as against the 2,733 tons gathered last Jan. 15 in Chicago's first city-wide pickup.

Divide City in Eight Sections.

Details of the curb pickup system call for division of the city into eight sections, with collections to be taken in two adjoining sections each Saturday. These divisions, worked out by Albert H. Meisterheim of the salvage committee, list district 1 and 2 as the area from Fullerton pkwy. to Howard st.; districts 3 and 4, from Fullerton to Madison st.; districts 5 and 6, south from Madison to 63d st.; and districts 7 and 8, south of 63d to the southern city limits, 127th st. Each district will reach completely across the city, east and west.

Volunteer trucks will not be called upon to make the pickups, as was done in former city-wide curb pickups, salvage officials said. Peddlers, shops, and dealers in each section will be assigned their own territory, and confined to that territory for each pickup. Paper will be taken direct to railroad cars by shop owners and dealers, where it will be weighed and loaded. Proceeds will be given Chicago service men's centers.

Telephone Pickup Agency.

In addition to city-wide pickups, special stress will be placed on the war production board's telephone exchange pickup agency, State 8787, during the summer months, said J. E. Marcus, director of the Chicago waste paper campaign committee. Householders accumulating 50 pounds or more of waste paper are asked to telephone that agency giving their address, and a truck will call for the paper within 24 hours.

ANNUAL CONCERT OF OLD ST. PETER'S CHOIR NEXT SUNDAY

Vivian Abell.

The annual sacred concert of the mixed choir of Old St. Peter's church, Polk and Clark sts., will be given at the church next Sunday at 4:30 p. m. under the direction of Vivian Abell, organist and director.

The choir, which sings every Sunday during the noon mass, is composed of members from all parts of Chicago, who have had experience in operatic and liturgical singing.

Soloists and choristers will render compositions by Palestrina, Vittoria, Mozart, Verdi, Gounod, Tschensnokoff, and others, with the added feature of orchestral accompaniment.

FIGHT FOR G. O. P. CONVENTION SEATS

CONGRESS RACE IN 7TH MOVES INTO HIGH GEAR

Kelly Machine Pick Refuses Debate.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

With the primary election little more than two weeks off, both Democratic and Republican candidates for congress in the huge 7th district have intensified their drives for votes.

Among the outstanding development last week were:

Four Republican candidates agreed to speak from the same platform in the Maine Township High.

Gross Challenge Unanswered.

Stanley T. Gross, independent Democrat, challenged his opponent, William W. Link, to a series of joint meetings, reported he got no answer and charged that Link was trying to "keep the voters in the dark as to his aims and views, if any."

The Republican Nationalist Revival committee asked the party congressional committee for the district to reconsider its indorsement of Charles H. Garland as a candidate and to substitute approval of Dr. Alfred P. Haake of Park Ridge.

Dr. Haake, in combating a report that he is a "dry," made public letters from two brewery association officials, asserting he was a friend of their industry.

Garland, who is mayor of Des Plaines; Haake, who is a former, professor of economics and a radio lecturer and longtime New Deal foe; George T. Foster, director of the Constitutional Americans organization, and Attorney Justus Mozart were the four invited to the meeting at the high school, arranged by the Republican women of Park Ridge, mainly supporters of Dr. Haake.

Charges New Deal Plot.

In a speech prepared for the occasion Garland asserted that Washington planners were in a plot deliberately to scrap constitutional government and to substitute state socialism. He also declared that President Roosevelt would have to explain to the soldiers and sailors abroad why labor was blamed for strikes while 17 bureaus set up to adjust labor disputes fought among themselves and were really responsible.

He promised to fight for lower taxes that would make it possible for industry to reconvert and furnish jobs for returning service men. Haake, who formerly was director of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers, holds similar views on private industry after the war.

Foster is an extreme nationalist and New Deal foe. Mozart is Swedish born. He was an assistant state's attorney from 1928 to 1933. He is more international in his viewpoint that the other candidates, but stresses most an expanded social security service.

Gross Not Wholly New Dealish.

Gross, who says he is "in disagreement with the administration on many issues," also is a former assistant state's attorney. He proposed to talk with Link, who is a Polish-American leader and a member of the county civil service commission, on OPA, foreign policy, taxes, and interference with private liberties.

Link, he averred, would not expose himself to questioning on issues.

"My opponent prefers to get his nomination by the usual process of machine politics," Gross said, "by handshaking and back slapping. He is an organization man and must not talk out of turn."

The Republican Revival letter to the G. O. P. committeemen of the district was signed by William J. Grace, secretary, and other officials. It stated the belief that Garland, who is an official of the Columbia Broadcasting company, would not be able to withstand pressure in Washington by the rich owners of CBS, who are "eastern internationists."

Would Resign Radio Post.

Garland's answer to this was that he was his own man, that he was running on his own volition and paying his own expenses, that he will resign his present position as commercial manager or WBBM if elected, and that all his devotion will be for the 7th district and the United States.

"I am not familiar with most of the directors of CBS," Garland added. "I owe and will owe no political or other debt to them. And since the Revival committee seems to make a point of the candidacy of Wendell Willkie. I want it understood that I am very much against Mr. Willkie."

The 7th takes in almost the entire northwest side of Chicago and nine country townships. Its population of 914,000 makes it the largest in the United States. It went Democratic by less than 2,000 in 1942. Leonard W. Schuetz, the winner, died some weeks ago and the district now has no representation in congress.

Commerce Chamber.

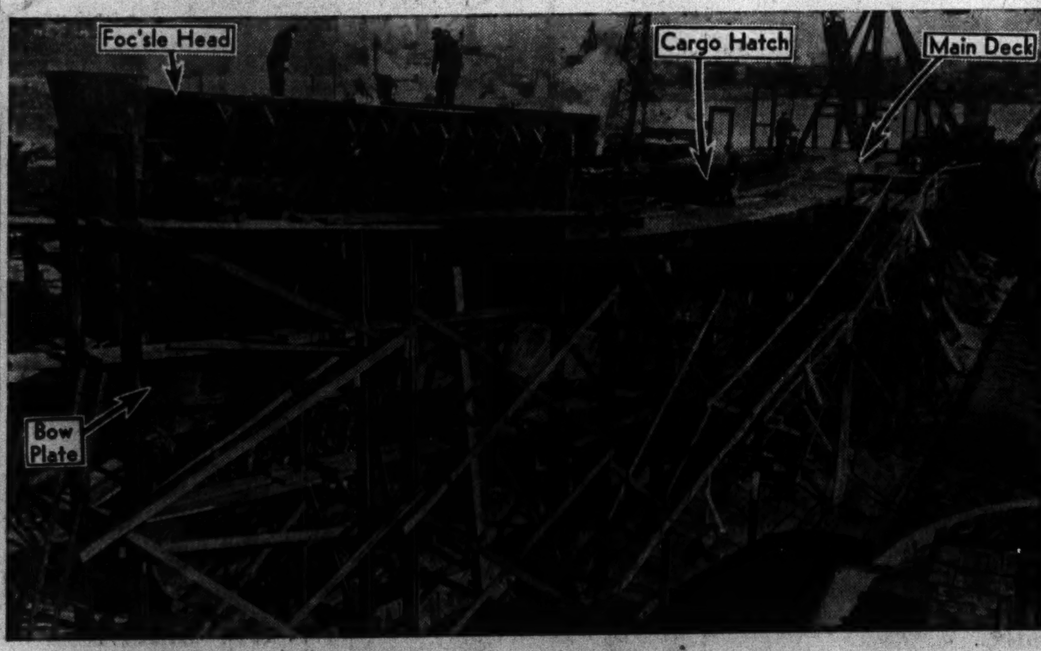
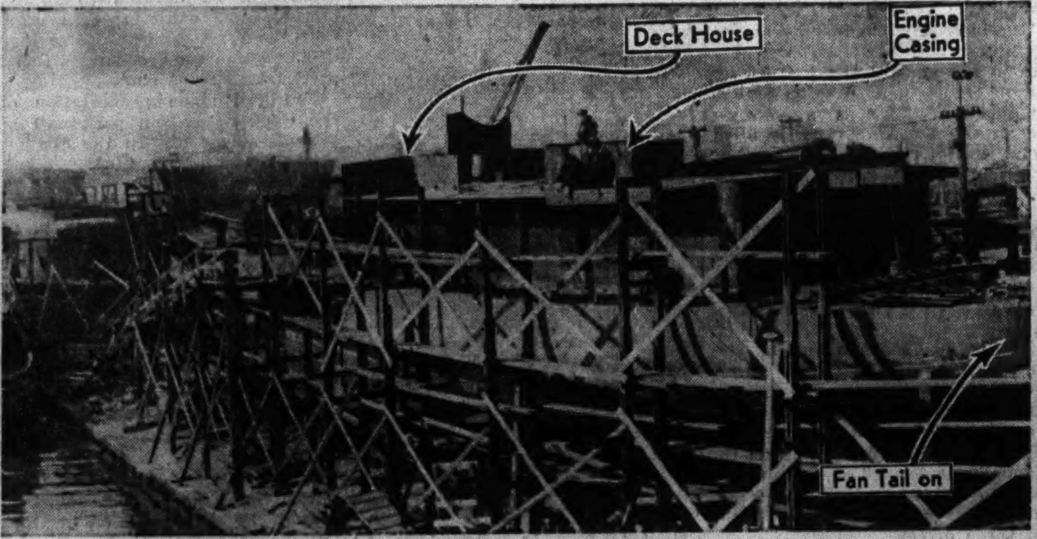
Calumet Shipyard Sends Its First Big Craft Down the Ways for the Army



With 75 per cent of the shell plating on, the bow plate in place, the cargo hatches in and the main deck on, the foc'sle head is being built on this 176 foot ocean going ship which the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company, 9367 Harbor av., is constructing for the United States army transportation corps.

Fan Tail (Upside Down)

James Jonkus, 17 W. 119th st., a weld chipper, cleans the welding on the fantail, which is prefabricated in the shipyard and swung by crane onto the stern of the ship, where it is welded into place. The fantail generally is swung into place before the deck house is erected.



All sides of the deck house are erected as units and a deck laid on top after the fantail is on. The square in the top center of the deck house is the engine casing, thru which engines will be lowered by crane into the inside of the ship. A plate will go over the top of the casing, and a smokestack will come thru, so that if new engines are needed the top plate must come off and the stack must be removed.

In this picture the deck house has been completed and the bridge, pilot house, and other superstructure are in place. At this stage of construction the ship is about 75 per cent completed and in two weeks will be ready for launching. Only the propellors and rudder remain to be put in place before the launching is held.

[Tribune photos by Julius Gantter.]

Wire Trigger
Cribbing
Ways

In another 15 minutes the cribbing and blocks will be out and tension on the trigger wires will be increased by jacks. As the cribbing and blocks are removed a painter paints parts of the ship that never have been painted. The timbers hanging from the side of the vessel are removed, every one leaves the ship, and it will soon slide down the ways into the water.

As Whistles Blow

Whistles blow, employes whistle and yell as the ship, now 75 per cent completed, hits the water. Practically all work at the shipyard stops as employes knock off for a few minutes to witness a launching. Several score of guests generally are present at such times.

PRO-AMERICA THEME OF MOST IN APRIL VOTE

No-Contest Slate for Democrats.

Voting in Chicago on April 11 for delegates to represent the city's 10 congressional districts in the Democratic national convention will be strictly a matter of form.

There are 20 delegates to be chosen in the districts and there are exactly 20 names on the party list. So tightly knit is the Kelly organization that only the party wheel horses are designated to represent the city's millions of citizens when the convention goes into session.

G. O. P. Has Contests.

In contrast the Republican delegate ballot shows a battle in seven districts, the exceptions being the 5th, 8th, and 9th, where organization candidates will go in without any opposition.

Where there are fights, the independent seekers for seats at the convention are nearly all interested in a stronger and more rigid recognition of constitutional safeguards for American liberties; in other words, a return to "real Republicanism." International sentiment among the delegates is markedly absent.

All Opposed to Willkie.

There is not, so far as the G. O. P. leadership is aware, a single proponent of Wendell L. Willkie for President. There are many aspirants who are not hesitant in expressions of dislike for him and the things he represents. The same is true in downstate districts.

As an example of the general feeling, the National League of Independent Voters, which campaigns for constitutional republicanism, has endorsed five delegate candidates on the ground that the regular choices are not sufficiently representative of its views. They are James O. Koontz in the 3d district, Henry James Shelton and Walter J. Pacanowski in the 4th, Mrs. Frances S. Conlon in the 6th, and Mrs. Martha M. Krysiak in the 7th.

Lively Contest in 11th.

Perhaps the liveliest contest in the metropolitan area is in the 11th district, made up of Will, Du Page, Kane and McHenry counties. There Frank H. Reid of Aurora, who was a delegate to the 1940 convention, Alfred Johnson of St. Charles, and Frank P. Lyman of Crete are running against the organization candidates, Win G. Knoch of Naperville and Charles M. Burgess of Aurora.

In the convention of 1940 Reid jumped to the Willkie bandwagon on the second ballot, even before it became apparent that the vehicle had a band. It is now reported that Reid favors MacArthur rather than Willkie. Lyman, a chemist, says he is and will remain unpledged to any candidate.

Candidates in 6th District.

Organization candidates in the 6th are Judge Julius H. Miner and Seward M. Gunderson of Oak Park. Mrs. Conlon is the wife of William F. Conlon, a realtor, and lives at 1938 Adams st. She is a college graduate. Her program includes "no Willkie, no bipartisan alliances, no foreign entanglements, and no 'isms'."

Charles W. Bidwill, owner of the Chicago Cardinals football team, was a candidate in the 6th, but has withdrawn.

In the huge 7th district Mrs. Kryziak, who has had long experience politically, is pitted against William Busse and John T. Dempsey, the party nominee for state's attorney. She is a proponent of the two-party scheme of government and a return to the principles of the men who drafted the constitution. Mary E. Lahey is the fourth candidate and has the support of some of the successor organizations to the old America First group.

G. O. P. Candidates Listed.

Republican candidates for delegate in the west and northwest areas, with the organization choices marked by an asterisk, are:

Fifth—*George F. Barrett and *Samuel R. Ballis.

Eighth—*Vincent J. Poklacki and *Florence M. Pacelli.

Democratic Aspirants.

Fifth—Peter Fosco and Adolph J. Sabath.

Sixth—Albert J. Horan and John Toman.

Seventh—Clayton F. Smith and George D. Kells.

In the 11th district four candidates are seeking seats at the Democratic convention. They are Conrad J. Wirth of Joliet, Martin Raymond O'Brien of Aurora, Samuel K. Markman of Hinsdale, and William B. McKeon of Joliet.

COMMISSION 11 R.O.T.C. CADETS AT CEREMONY

Commissions were awarded 11 cadets of the R. O. T. C. in a recent ceremony at which Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics, presided.

Gordon C. McKeague, 17 year old senior at Hyde Park High school, was commissioned cadet colonel and top officer of the Chicago public high school reserve officers training corps. The corps includes 29 school units and 10,500 members. McKeague is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert I. McKeague, 6816 Merrill av.

Beth Israel Sisterhood Giving Play Wednesday

The sisterhood of Temple Beth Israel has leased the Goodman theater for Wednesday evening, and at 8:30 o'clock will present "Mr. Pim Passes By." Proceeds will go toward educational activities of the congregation. Mrs. Harry Miller is chairman, and Sam Goldstein is cochairman.

War Garden Lecture.

Arthur Jackson, junior horticulturist for the Chicago park district, will lecture on war gardens at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday in Sauganash park fieldhouse.

American Women at War

Florence L. Kolb.

Stationed at Chanute field, WAC Pvt. Florence L. Kolb has been assigned to duty as personnel clerk. Pvt. Kolb, whose home is at 5871 Elston av., was a saleswoman before entering the WAC in October, 1942. She received her basic and administrative training at Daytona Beach, Fla.

At WAC day ceremonies held recently at Newport News, Va., the good conduct medal was awarded to Sgt. Ruth A. Sorenson, 5108 Byron st. A member of the transportation corps at Camp Patrick Henry, Sgt. Sorenson is on duty in the operations division in the adjutant's office. In civilian life she did general office work for the Society for Visual Education.

Verda-Mae Lowe.

Verda-Mae Lowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Lowe, 4203 N. Kedvale av., recently received her silver wings at graduation exercises for women's air force service pilots at Avenger field, Tex. Now a full fledged member of the WASPS, she will take over noncombat flying jobs for the army air forces.

Miss Lowe is a former student of Wright Junior college, Loyola university, and De Paul university. She worked as a test cell operator and calculator at an aviation plant before joining the WASPS. A flyer since 1941, she has logged nearly 150 hours of private flying time.

Pvt. Jeanne T. Wojcik, 738 N. Racine av., who recently reported for duty at the army air forces bombardier school, Big Spring, Tex., has been assigned to the photographic laboratory as a technician. An alumna of Wells High school, she has been in service since April, 1943.

25TH DISTRICT RACE LACKING CLOSE BATTLE

Party Regulars Viewed as Sure Winners.

BY LEE SHASSERE.

Political observers who enjoy a hot primary contest and who in past years have found 25th senatorial district fights to their liking, have little to whet their interest in this primary. The two Democratic candidates for the party's two nominations are unopposed, and the two Republicans with regular party support are regarded as virtual winners for the two G. O. P. positions.

The 25th senatorial district lists Rep. Jacob A. Mueller and Rep. Stanley R. Kosinski as Democratic candidates, while the two Republicans who are regarded as winners are Rep. Elroy C. Sandquist and Alden J. Cowen, secretary of the 38th ward regular Republican organization. Both have regular party support from the 12 wards in the district.

Three Other Republicans File.

Three other Republican candidates have filed. They are Matilda Elofson, 2704 N. Sawyer av.; William P. Carlsen, 4337 Roscoe st., and Charles E. Marinier, 1722 N. Merrimac av., a former state legislator from the 19th district.

Rep. Sandquist, veteran legislator from the 25th, is employed by the Bendix Aviation corporation as night foreman of tool cribs. A former automobile salesman, Sandquist became a war worker last July. His son, Elroy C. Sandquist Jr., a graduate of Annapolis naval academy, is aboard a cruiser in foreign waters. Rep. Sandquist saw action as a marine in World War I.

Cowen a War Veteran.

Cowen is also a veteran of the first World war, and is a member of Belmont Park post of the American Legion, and Indian Portage post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. He has served for many years as a Silver Skates and Golden Gloves tournament official.

Cowen made an unsuccessful bid for the legislature four years ago. He is secretary to Frank M. Kalteux, 38th ward Republican committeeman and Illinois commerce commission secretary.

FOURTEENTH DISTRICT

[Kane and Kendall counties.]

Five Republicans are seeking the party's two house nominations in the 14th, including Rep. Maud N. Peffers of Aurora. Mrs. Peffers is the widow of John M. Peffers, veteran state legislator, who served in the Illinois house from the 14th for 12 years.

Following her husband's death, Mrs. Peffers was elected to succeed him and has held office for the last six years. Other Republican candidates in the 14th are J. Lisle Laufer, Hampshire; Charles E. Jansby, St. Charles; Lawrence Swinyer, Elgin, and Harry Kelly, Elgin. The Democrats, as usual in the strong Republican 14th, will nominate only one, Rep. Leon M. Schuler of Aurora, who is unopposed.

JAMES SHAVER MADE DIRECTOR OF SCOUT CAMP

James W. Shaver.

Victor L. Alm, director of camping and activities for the Chicago Boy Scouts, announced last week that the camping committee has appointed James W. Shaver, assistant Northwest district Scout executive, as director of Camp Dan Beard for 1944.

Mr. Shaver was administrative director of the Owasippe Scout camps last season. A graduate of De Pauw and Indiana universities, he formerly directed the Longansport Youth foundation. He is a member of the Order of the Arrow, honorary Scouting fraternity, and national vice president of the Society of Philatelic Americans.

Mr. Alm reported that five Chicago council camps will open this summer. Camps James E. West and Robert Stuart, plus Beard, at Owasippe, Mich., will be open for eight weeks. Camp Kiwanis, near Willow Springs, will continue to operate as a short term, low cost camp, and the Victory Farm camp will run at Camp Fort Dearborn, on Higgins road at the Des Plaines river.

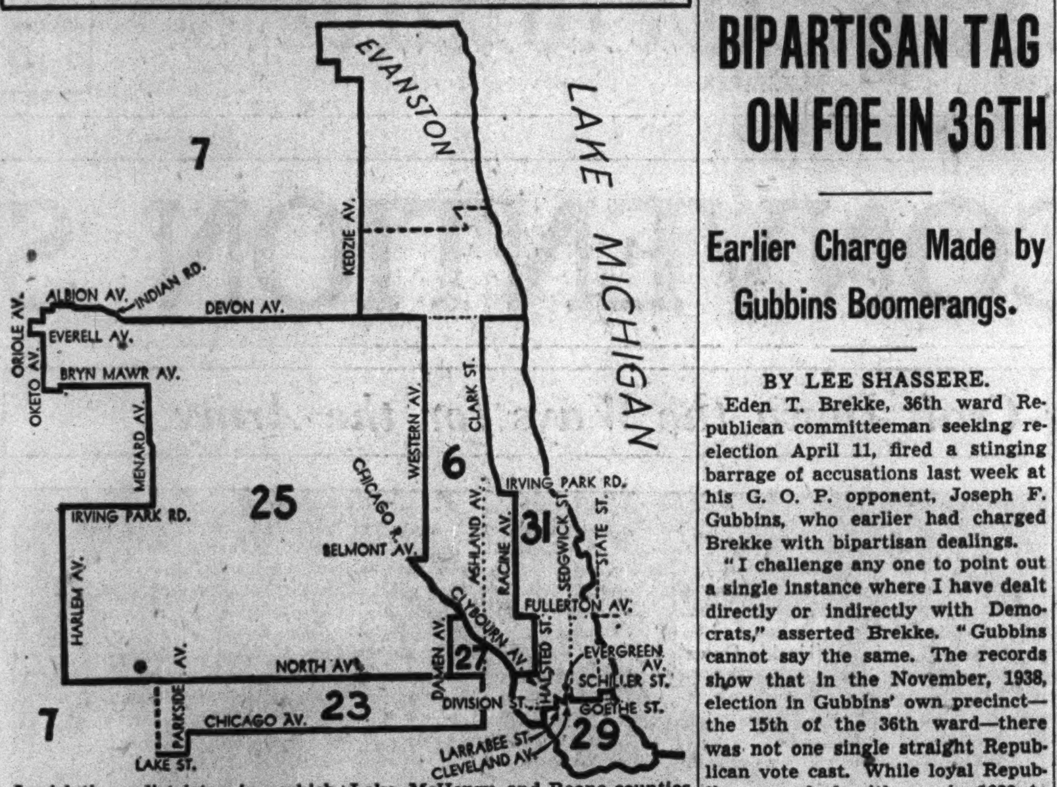
JOHN ISSEL IS 13 TIME DONOR TO RED CROSS BANK

Recent visitors at the Red Cross blood donor center, 5 N. Wabash av., included a number of northwest side residents. John Issel, 4428 N. La Porte av., donated his 13th pint. Mrs. Zenia Neumann, 4820 Pensacola av., and James Rodgers, Franklin Park, were making their 11th donations. Mrs. Ellen Olsen, 4867 Elston av.; Frank Wilke, 5119 Montrose av., and Eugenia Miloszewski, 2526 N. Francisco av., made their 10th donation.

Ninth time donors included Ethel Duff, 5416 Windsor av.; Blossom Brooks, 4503 N. Kenneth av.; Mrs. Ingeborg Sveistrup, 5726 Patterson av.; Rose Raymone, 1622 N. McVickers av.; Dorothy Loftus, 2052 Lawler av.; Frank A. Moran, 4106 Irving Park rd., and Thomas Parsons, 4104 Irving Park rd.

Donating their eighth pints of blood were Edward Buechele, 4423 N. Melvina av.; Mabel Vanlaethem, 1720 N. Karlov av.; Carmen Beers, 6060 Nickerson av., and Dr. Hans Staple, 6458 Milwaukee av. Seventh time donors were Anna Phaneuf, 5502 Barry av.; Victor Pekow, 5440 Cornelia av.; Sidney B. Motel, 3053 Wabansia av.; Esther Ulrichsen, 1847 N. Montcello av.; Helen Siems, 4266 Irving Park rd.

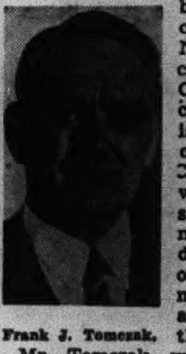
North Legislative Districts



Legislative districts in which north and northwest side voters will ballot in the April 11 election are outlined in the above map. The 7th district includes all townships outside Chicago which are not a part of the 6th, 19th, or 23d districts. Lake, McHenry, and Boone counties comprise the 8th district, while Kane and Kendall counties comprise the 14th district. Not shown is a part of the 1st district in which north siders living between the Chicago river and Roosevelt rd. will vote.

NAME TOMCZAK HEAD OF MOTOR CLUB COUNCIL

Civic Leaders Discuss Safety Projects.



Frank J. Tomczak.

Frank J. Tomczak of the Northwest Manufacturing association has been named chairman of the Northwest Area council of the Chicago Motor club. The council is composed of civic leaders from Chicago's northwest side and suburbs who meet monthly to discuss and recommend improvements in safety and traffic for the area.

Mr. Tomczak, who has participated in area council activities for many years, succeeds Judge Oscar K. Stahle of Park Ridge. New vice chairman is A. G. Lauterbach of the West Side Commerical league, who succeeds Walter H. Miller, Northwest Federation of Improvement Clubs. Reëlected secretary of the council was Vincent C. Rozycki of the Northwest Civic association and Nor'Wes'Ton congress.

Safety Projects Listed.

Recent council projects include plans for marking safety zones to eliminate pedestrian hazards on Milwaukee av. from Halsted to Division sts., grading the hill which obstructs motorists' vision at Touhy and Algonquin avs., urging repairs between the street car tracks on Lincoln av. from Lawrence to Diversey avs., and recommending widening of Wrightwood av. between Logan Square and Pulaski rd.

The state highway department has been requested to replace missing stop signs at Avondale, Kedzie, and Belmont avs., and that the intersection had been scheduled for a 16 hour traffic count to determine what type of permanent regulation would be approved.

At Council Meeting.

Attending the meeting were: Judge Oscar K. Stahle, Park Ridge; Vincent C. Rozycki, Northwest Civic association; Edward F. Boyle, Northwest Federation of Improvement Clubs; Al Darlington, Mont Clare News; Rollo E. Hoest, Wildwood Community association; Marion G. Kudlick, Near Northwest Town Community council; A. G. OLDEST SCHURZ PUPIL STUDYING ALGEBRA AT 86

Attends Night School Twice Weekly.

"You're never too old to learn." The truth of that adage is borne out in the case of August F. Kohr, 2934 N. Leavitt st., who is the oldest student ever to attend the Carl Schurz Evening school, 3601 Milwaukee av.

Altho he passed his 86th milestone on Feb. 18, Mr. Kohr may be seen every Tuesday and Thursday evening from 7:45 until 9:45 o'clock in the front row of room 224, earnestly taking part in the algebra class.

House of Correction Aid.

A supervisor of pottery at the House of Correction for 19 years, until his retirement seven years ago, Mr. Kohr had his interest in mathematics awakened thru his contact with a prisoner who was a college graduate.

Made acquainted with the value of algebra in solving practical problems, he determined to go back to school some day and learn the "mystery" of this subject. So at the start of the second semester early in February, the octogenarian enrolled at Schurz Evening school, and has been a faithful student since.

Mr. Kohr rides to school twice weekly with his granddaughter, Mrs. Francis Munson, who also is a student at Schurz. She is studying dressmaking.

Cake with Algebra Greeting.

On his recent birthday, Mr. Kohr's daughter had a party for him, complete with a birthday cake. Instead of the customary "Happy Birthday" greeting, the cake was lettered with a sugar "X plus Y = 86." "I got a kick out of that inscription," the aged school boy declared.

Mr. Kohr was born in 1858, in a small town 14 miles from Milwaukee. At that time it took two days by ox team to reach Milwaukee. In 1877, Mr. Kohr moved to Chicago, and for the last 55 years he has lived at the Leavitt st. address. Mrs. Kohr died in 1932, after they had observed their 61st wedding anniversary. Their son, a dentist, passed away several years ago.

BREKKE PLACES BIPARTISAN TAG ON FOE IN 36TH

Earlier Charge Made by Gubbins Boomerangs.

BY LEE SHASSERE.

Eden T. Brekke, 36th ward Republican committeeman seeking reelection April 11, fired a stinging barrage of accusations last week at his G. O. P. opponent, Joseph F. Gubbins, who earlier had charged Brekke with bipartisan dealings.

"I challenge any one to point out a single instance where I have dealt directly or indirectly with Democrats," asserted Brekke. "Gubbins cannot say the same. The records show that in the November, 1938, election in Gubbins' own precinct—the 15th of the 36th ward—there was not one single straight Republican vote cast. While loyal Republicans worked with me in 1939 to carry the ward for Dwight H. Green for mayor over Kelly by more than 4,000 votes, Gubbins was a boiler inspector on the city Democratic pay roll.

Aided Democratic Alderman.

Brekke further charged that in the aldermanic election of 1943, Gubbins carried his own precinct for Richard Walsh, a Democrat, against Herman M. Richter, 36th ward regular Republican organization president, by a vote of 193 for Walsh to 21 for Richter.

"Gubbins has charged that as secretary of the old Northwest park board I handled all patronage, contracts, and pay rolls, and was responsible for any mismanagement and extravagances disclosed by an auditor's report," said Brekke. "He further stated that the park board, of which he was president, met twice a month to go over reports which, he says, I submitted. He also added that the board members were unaware that any mismanagement was transpiring.

"This is the most amazing confession of neglect and inefficiency ever made by any public official. These statements brand Gubbins as utterly unfit to hold any position of public trust and confidence. It took him a long time to make this accusation, for he continued to be actively allied with me politically until 1939, a period of six years after the Northwest park board was consolidated with other city park districts," declared Brekke, adding that the charges were false along with others which had accused him of bipartisan dealings.

Gubbins Cites Figures, Too.

Meanwhile Gubbins continued to fire verbal broadsides at Brekke. In a campaign talk last week Gubbins reviewed election results during the last 10 years under the Brekke regime.

"In the 1933 aldermanic election, in a normally Republican ward, George Robinson [D.] received 10,260 votes and Thomas Jordan [R.] polled 3,216," said Gubbins.

"In 1935 Robinson received 10,090 and Leonard C. M. Johnson [R.] 2,397. In 1939 Brekke's aldermanic candidate, Thomas Flynn, received only 2,991 votes out of 24,709 cast," Gubbins concluded.

Hot Contest in 40th.

The exciting G. O. P. committeeman race in the 40th ward where Dr. Joseph C. Ross is attempting to unseat C. Herman Johnson, continued in high gear last week.

Dr. Ross has received added indorsements, the latest from Leo H. Lowitz, vice president of the Jewish American congress, and Ingolf Pedersen, Republican state central committeeman of the 25th district. Pedersen, formerly affiliated politically with Johnson, said he swung his support to Dr. Ross in what he described as a "move for party betterment." At the same time, Pedersen charged that Johnson lacked ability to lead in politics.

Edward Spone, president of the 40th ward Independent Republican club, and former vice president of Johnson's 40th ward regular Republican organization, also came out for Dr. Ross and brought the entire independent club with him.

Aided McKeone Group.

Dr. Ross also won approval of the 40th ward Republican organization, oldest G. O. P. group in the ward, formerly headed by the late John J. McKeone, ward committeeman for many years.

Johnson declared last week that his organization is far stronger than four years ago when he became committeeman. Careful selection of precinct captains and the elimination of those proved unfit for the job has resulted in one of the finest groups in the city, said Johnson.

Replying to charges made last week that he did not support George O. Ibsen, Republican candidate for ward alderman, Johnson declared that his organization not only indorsed Ibsen but contributed $600 to his campaign.

"The precincts which my organization agreed to man carried for Ibsen," said Johnson. "Dr. Ross, who was then alderman, had withdrawn as a candidate for reëlection on the pretext of illness to act as Ibsen's campaign manager. Strange to say, the precincts which he handled lost to Samuel Gurman, the Democrat, who became alderman."

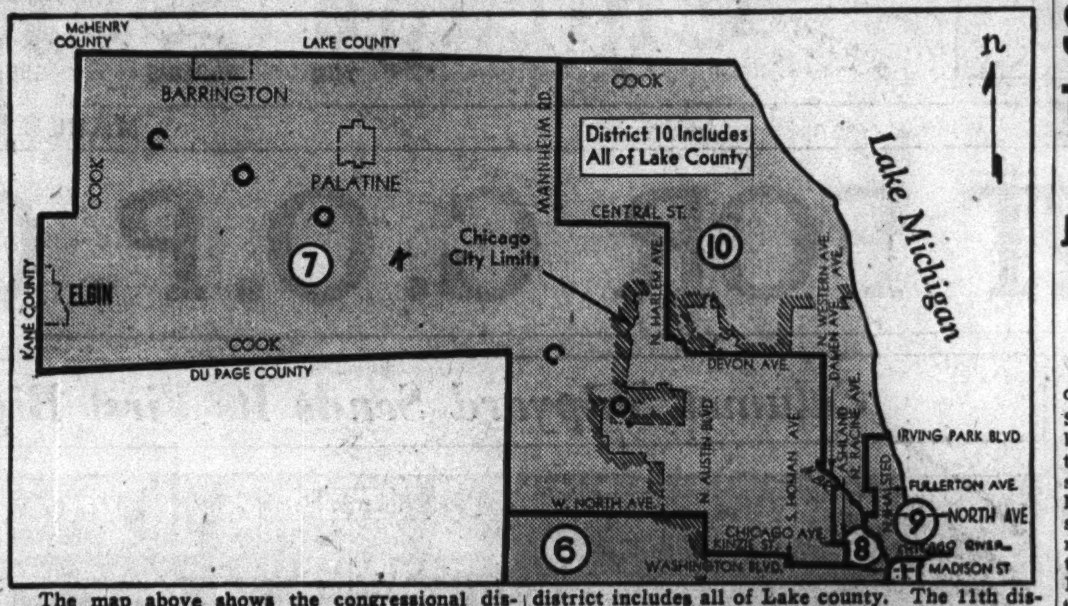
North Side Congressional Districts



The map above shows the congressional districts in Cook county in the north and northwest areas. In addition to part of Cook county, the 10th district includes all of Lake county. The 11th district, not shown, includes McHenry, Kane, Du Page, and Will counties.

ASSEMBLY SLATE MAKERS LAUNCH LIVE CAMPAIGN

Senatorial Committee Seekers Listed.

Senatorial committeemen candidates have launched active campaigns designed not only to present their qualifications to voters but also to acquaint many with the single function which committeemen perform.

The senatorial committee consists of three persons elected by each district party at the state primary, which will be held this year on April 11. The committee determines the number of candidates the party in the district will nominate at the primary to run for state representative in the general election. If, by reason of death, resignation or disqualification there is a vacancy among the nominees, this is filled by senatorial committee action.

Usually Nominate One or Two.

The committee may decide to nominate one, two, and very rarely three candidates. The decision to nominate three is a real test of party strength for only three representatives from each district are elected at the general election in November.

In 1942, in Chicago's 27th district on the near west side, the Democrats appraised their vote getting ability and decided to "shoot the works." They called for three candidates to be nominated, while the Republicans decided on only one. In the November election the Democrats made a clean sweep, winning all three offices.

Election Sometimes Formality.

The primary party ballot instructs voters on the number of house of representatives candidates to be nominated. Should one party committee decide upon two and the other party on only one, then the fall election is a mere formality.

The Democrats have again called for three nominees in the 27th, and similar action has also been taken in the 15th.

Following are the candidates for senatorial committeeman in the northwest section of Cook county. In the 7th, 21st, 25th, and 27th districts, Democratic candidates have no opposition and are assured of election, as only three candidates have filed. The asterisk [*] indicates incumbents.

HOOKING RUGS WOMAN'S WORK? JUST READ ON!

Suburbanite Makes It His Hobby.

John Berchtold.

Visitors to the home of John Berchtold in Arlington Heights frequently exclaim over a hooked rug depicting a black cat which hangs on the wall of his sun porch. Circular in shape, the rug pictures a corner of the Berchtold home, with the cat comfortably ensconced on a green rug before an open window.

The rug, woven by Mr. Berchtold, 76, presents a striking likeness of a former family pet. It is also an excellent sample of a hobby adopted by Mr. Berchtold almost a decade ago.

Becomes a Rug Maker.

Until he broke his leg and was confined to a hospital bed for 13 weeks, Mr. Berchtold looked upon hooking rugs as strictly woman's work. When a nurse showed him how to use burlap and strands of multi-colored materials to weave his own patterns, however, he became an enthusiastic rug maker.

Since then he has made scores of rugs, many of which adorn the homes of his friends and relatives. From calendars and magazine illustrations he gets many ideas for his designs, but all such pictures are freely adapted to the necessities of his craft. Before he begins to hook a rug, Mr. Berchtold nails a burlap foundation of the desired size to a large wooden board, drawing his design freehand on the material.

Here's How He Does It.

He then removes the burlap from the drawing board and stretches it on a frame. Narrow strips of cloth, in colors appropriate to the design, are then drawn thru the holes in the burlap with a rug hook to make the nubby finish which characterizes the hand-hooked rug.

Among the more elaborate of his designs is a Dutch mill stream with its water wheel in the foreground and the low roofs of houses among a lack network of branches in the background.

Until he retired in 1929 Mr. Berchtold was a tower man for the Chicago and North Western railroad. He has lived in his present home in Arlington Heights since 1919. He has one daughter, Mrs. Katherine Raulersen, who lives in Florida.

REOPEN CENTER IN WILSON PARK WITH FESTIVAL

Add New Clubrooms to Fieldhouse.

The Wilson park fieldhouse at 4630 Milwaukee av., recently redecorated and remodeled with several new clubrooms for community and park activities, will be reopened this week with a festival beginning tomorrow.

The house warming marks the end of a curtailment of social and cultural activities, prevalent since last November.

Programs in Afternoons.

Afternoons during the week's program will be devoted to games, tournaments, exhibits, demonstrations, and refreshments. Evenings will be given over to dances, social parties, and stage shows.

Featured stage presentation of the week at Wilson park will be a performance of "In the Shadow of the Swastika," by A. A. Redlane, member of the Chicago park district drama department staff. The play will be given at 8:45 p. m. Friday.

To Be in Play Cast.

In the cast of the play will be Joan Wildtraut, 4028 Kilpatrick av.; Joan Miller, 4953 Belle Plaine av.; Rosemary Imber, 5417 Leland av.; Valerie Ross, 5042 Hutchinson st.; Mary Lou Mertes, 5235 Pensacola av.; Dorothy Christoph, 4222 Laramie av., and Theresa Karjniak, 5354 Pensacola av. Coöperating community organizations include the Altrui club, Ladies of Isabella, Portage Park Woman's club, Royal Neighbors, and the Wilson Av. Improvement association.

ZIONIST YOUTH CONVENTION TO START APRIL 11

Jewish Peoples institute, 3500 Douglas blvd., will be host to the 10th national convention of Hashomer Hatzair, Zionist youth organization, which will be held from April 11 to 14. Delegates from all parts of the country will attend the three day meeting, Ruchama Shtiller, youth director of the bureau of Jewish education, announced.

The young people will discuss current problems confronting Zionism and American Jewish youth. There will be a Palestine exhibit, representing, thru graphic arts, the club activities of boys and girls between 11 and 18. Guest speakers will include Dr. Nahum Goldman, Zionist leader and chairman of the administrative committee of the World Jewish congress, and Moshe Furmansky, Palestine delegate to Hashomer Hatzair. The choral club of the Chicago chapter of Hashomer Hatzair organization will sing in both English and Hebrew.

Hashomer Hatzair is a Zionist educational youth movement. Its members play an active role in the movement for the rebirth of Hebrew culture. They also conduct a summer camp program on creative scouting, Jewish values, and on modern Palestine.

100 FORMER GIRL SCOUTS TO MARK TROOP'S JUBILEE

Join in Bethany Church Reunion Tomorrow.

Mrs. William Bender.

Celebrating the silver anniversary of Troop 11, one of the first Girl Scout groups to be established on the northwest side, more than a hundred former scouts will hold a reunion at 8 p. m. tomorrow in Bethany Presbyterian church, 1848 N. Humboldt blvd. Also present will be 33 members of the present troop, with their leaders, Miss Lillian Madsen and Mrs. William C. Bender.

Highlight of tomorrow's program will be a candle light ceremony during which Mrs. Hildegard Zimmerman, division chairman, will present the 25th anniversary purple cord to the troop. Other features of the celebration will include the presentation of new flags by the Mothers' club, the group singing of old troop songs, and the pictorial history of the troop shown on the screen.

Founded by Marshall Pupils.

Troop 11 was organized a quarter of a century ago by eight students of Marshall High school. Unable to find a leader at first, they purchased a Girl Scout manual, following its code of procedure for marching, drills, and troop activities.

Later Miss Xenia Bilhorn, now Mrs. L. P. Denoyer, became troop leader, holding the office from 1919 until 1930. The troop has met in the vicinity of Humboldt park for the last 24 years, having held their meetings in the Humbldt park boathouse, the Richard Yates school, the Jewish synogog, the Humboldt park refectory, the Esther Falkenstein settlement house, and more recently in Bethany Presbyterian church.

List of Members.

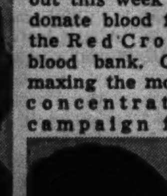
MOBILE BLOOD BANK TO VISIT NORWOOD PARK

Will Be at Fieldhouse for Five Days.

Mrs. Louise Berghouse.



Mrs. Herbert Stuke.

Receiving its fifth visit from the Red Cross mobile unit, Norwood Park will turn out this week to donate blood for the Red Cross blood bank. Climaxing the most concentrated campaign for blood donors the community has yet held, the mobile unit will be at the Norwood Park fieldhouse for five days, Tuesday thru Saturday.

Mrs. L. A. Berghouse, blood donor committee chairman, and Mrs. H. W. Sauke, canvassing chairman, have been in charge of the door-to-door campaign to sign up blood donors. Assisting in the drive have been Mrs. Gilbert L. Stadtler, vice chairman in charge of industrial registrations; Mrs. Peter I. Bukowski; Mrs. Robert W. Maser; Mrs. Kath Fetter; Mrs. Earl V. Essington; Mrs. Richard W. Stretch; Mrs. John Scheilz; Mrs. Harold Hodgson, and Frank Williams.

2,216 Pints Donated.

On its first visit to Norwood Park in November, 1942, the mobile unit secured 292 pints of blood. More than 1,000 pints of blood were donated in the first two visits of the unit. To date, 2,216 pints of blood have been donated in the four visits the unit has made to the community. Response to the current drive was so great it necessitated adding a fifth day to the visit.

In preparation for this visit, the area between Albion av. on the north, Carmen and Bryn Mawr avs. on the south, Oketo av. on the west, and Austin av. on the east, was divided into zones, with a supervisor for each. The canvass was conducted by approximately 280 women from the community, one for each block.

List Zone Supervisors.

Zone supervisors included: Mrs. Henry Perryman, 5115 N. Oak Park av.; Mrs. Emil Rothe, 6847 Foster av.; Mrs. Fred Conville, 5328 N. Oak Park av.; Mrs. Fred Philipps, 5347 N. DEDICATE WAR SHRINE TODAY IN PARK RIDGE

A detail from the American Legion will participate in the dedication of a war shrine at 11 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Episcopal church, Park Ridge.

An invitation to all persons of the community to make use of the shrine when offering their prayers for men in service is posted outside the church doors.

Each of the 133 men and women in service from St. Mary's is represented by some member of the parish at the altar at least one service each week. The Rev. John B. Hubbard, rector, says that since this plan of "a man at the altar for every man at the front" was inaugurated at the first of the year, the attendance at the early morning midweek services has increased by 400 per cent.

NEW OFFICERS ARE NAMED BY N. W. CIVIC CLUB

At the annual election of officers of the Northwest Civic association, the following were chosen for the 1944-'45 term: Ben Ogorzelec, 6541 N. Normandy av., president; Edward T. Klodzinski, 5815 N. Mason av., vice president; Frank Okon, 4945 Berenice av., recording secretary; Edward Dankowski, 5843 N. Mulligan, financial secretary; Stanley Okon, 6045 N. Mason av., sergeant at arms, and Jerome Faller, 5718 Wilson av., assistant sergeant at arms. Appointed delegates to the Nor'Wes'Ton congress are Vincent C. Rozycki and Joseph P. Winkates. Chester Latto and Ben Ogorzelec were named alternates. Ben Ogorzelec, Jerome Faller, Frank Okon, and John Ross constitute the installation committee, making arrangements for installation ceremonies.

N. W. FAITHFUL TO HAIL PALM SUNDAY RITES

Pastors to Hold Services Opening Holy Week.

Centuries old Palm Sunday services will be reënacted next week as northwest side churches commemorate the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem. At St. James Catholic church, 2418 N. Mango av., white surpliced altar boys and grade school children dressed in bright colors will carry palms and sing appropriate hymns as they march around the church in a traditional Palm Sunday procession.

Palm branches will be blessed before the 9 o'clock mass, and will be distributed later to the congregation. The pastor, the Rev. E. A. Przybylski, will officiate at the services and will preach the sermon.

Rites in Park Ridge.

At St. Mary's Episcopal church in Park Ridge, ceremonies will begin at 7:30 a. m. with holy communion. A young people's service of devotion and instruction will be held at 10 o'clock, while at 11 there will be a second communion service. At the last morning ceremonies, the Rev. John B. Hubbard, pastor, will speak on "Training for Triumph."

The choir of St. Alban's Episcopal church, Avondale and Nina avs., will participate in the annual Palm Sunday procession, to be held at 11 o'clock. Solemn benediction of palms will be held in the chancel, after which altar boys will distribute palm leaves, made in the shape of crosses, to members of the congregation. Officiating at the services will be the Rev. Jesse H. Dennis, Th. D.

Cover Statues in Purple.

At St. Ladislaus Catholic church, 5342 Roscoe st., high mass will be sung at 11:15. Palms will be blessed before this service and will be distributed during mass. At St. Ladislaus, as at all Catholic churches, statues and crucifixes will be swathed in purple, and will remain covered until noon of Holy Saturday. Services will be under the general direction of the Rev. Stanislaus Czapelski, pastor.

At St. Bartholomew's Catholic church, 4949 Patterson av., palms will be blessed at noon and distributed during the 12 o'clock mass. The Rev. J. P. Holley is pastor.

Palms also will be blessed at 12 o'clock at St. Genevieve's church, 4385 Altgeld st., and distributed during the high mass following. The Rev. T. D. Burke is rector.

Two services will be held at St. John's Episcopal church, Byron and Kostner avs. Palms, blessed at the early service, will be distributed at the 8 and 11 o'clock eucharists. The sermon, commemorating the first Palm Sunday, will be preached by the pastor, the Rev. F. H. Bowman.

Music in Sauganash.

At Sauganash Community church, 4541 Peterson av., there will be special music at the 11 o'clock service by the quartet, which includes Roy Stocker, Mrs. C. K. Richards, Miss Marilyn Palmer, and Paul Durham. The pastor, the Rev. C. K. Richards, will deliver Palm Sunday sermon on "A Date with Destiny."

Confirmation services will be held at 11 o'clock next Sunday morning at Watson Park Congregational church, 6337 Cornelia av., with the Rev. D. M. Nicol in charge. The choir will sing Hambler's "Alleluiah," under direction of Mrs. D. M. Nicol.

Wicker Park Lutheran church, 2112 LeMoyne av., will hold confirmation and reception of new members at the 11 o'clock service on Palm Sunday morning. Music by the choir will be under direction of Palm Sunday, and the sermon will be by the pastor, the Rev. Charles Venable.

A class of 30 new members will be received into the First English Lutheran church, 3062 Palmer st., and confirmation services for a class of 13 will be held at the 10:45 o'clock service Palm Sunday morning. The pastor, the Rev. Edward H. Busekros, will conduct the services.

Gym Show This Week at Independence Park

Independence park, 3945 N. Springfield av., will present a gymnasium demonstration at 8 o'clock Thursday and Friday nights. This annual show includes presentations by the boys', girls', men's and women's classes, to illustrate the type of training undergone during the winter season in the park's gymnasium.

'OLD' QUIZ KIDS TO BATTLE WITH A CRADLE CREW

Military Services Call More Radio Stars.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Five alumni of the Quiz Kids and five mere moppets will engage in a brain battle over WLS—Blue at 6:30 tonight. The graduates who are coming back to their alma mater are Jack Lucal, 17, senior at Oak Park High; Van Dyke Tiers, 17, a student at the University of Chicago; Jack Beckman, 17, who is working; Joan Bishop, 17, who has been doing USO Camp shows and Cynthia Cline, 18, a student at Northwestern.

The cradle crew they will meet: Sparky Fischman, 4; Pat Conlon, 6; Bunnie Duskin, 6; Joel Kupperman, 7, and his sister Harriet, 9.

More and more the requirements of the military services are making themselves felt on network programs. Red Skelton, Norris Goff [Abner of Lum and Abner], Nelson Olmsted, and Ralph Edwards of Truth or Consequences all have passed their physicals. Among those who are in 1-A are Dennis Day, Jack Benny's tenor; Bob Crosby, Harry James, Percy Faith, and Sammy Kaye, all radio orchestra leaders, and Ed Prentiss who plays Capt. Midnight.

Chet Lauck [Lum] plans to carry on without Goff; John Nesbitt will take over the Harry James periods with his Passing Parade show. Replacement for Skelton and Edwards are reported likely so that their shows can continue.

Eddie Cantor and Ed [Archie] Gardner are reported looking for sponsors. . . There is a report that when Jack Benny leaves his present sponsor at the end of this season that Ed Wynn will be the replacement. Benny will keep that 6 p. m. spot, however. . . William Powell and Deanna Durbin are being teamed for a summer radio series. Dick Todd, radio singer, will soon start on an overseas tour. . . You Can Write a Song, featuring Lew Brown and Fred Koots, songsmiths, is in the audition stage. . . Gracie Fields probably will be back on the air with a 30 minute show.

HOME REPAIRS NOW MAY SAVE BIG JOB LATER

Mildew Deterrent Due After War.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

There are many improvements we must put off until after the war due to unobtainable or restricted articles, but a "stitch in war time" when it comes to necessary painting and ordinary repair work is a "stitch" which the government not only permits but definitely encourages as a conservation measure.

Altho the situation with respect to some building products, such as steel, hardware, electrical and plumbing equipment, and lumber, remains critical, there are no restrictions on decorating and painting, insulating, or reroofing, or on repairs to brick and masonry construction.

If we get this work started many contractors will be free for other projects when the release of materials now hard to get makes possible the start of new civilian construction.

Russel G. Creviston, general chairman of the post-war committee of the producers' council, issued a recent statement to this effect and planning post-war jobs of the types which are not practical at present.

Of interest to home owners who have had mildew troubles is a statement that the war mildewcides may be incorporated into all house paints, interior as well as exterior.

Important use is being made of mildew resistant protective coatings for war uses, but as far as civilian uses are concerned mildewproofers are in a position similar to that in which windshield wipers, self-starters, and other automobile accessories were 25 years ago.

After the war it appears that mildewcides may be incorporated into all house paints, interior as well as exterior, just as automobiles are now completely equipped and vitamins are included in milk, bread, and other foods.

FOUR FREEDOMS SYMPHONY ON MUTUAL TONIGHT

Robert Russell Bennett's latest symphony, "The Four Freedoms," based on the painting of Norman Rockwell, will highlight the concert of the Cleveland Symphony orchestra on W-G-N and Mutual from 8 to 9 p. m. tonight.

The complete program follows:

Overture to "The Bartered Bride..Smetana
Symphony, "The Four Freedoms"..Bennett
After paintings of Norman Rockwell
Freedom of Speech
Freedom of Worship
Freedom from Want
Freedom from Fear
Overture-Fantasia, "Romeo and Juliet"
........Tchaikowsky
Waltzes, "The Emperor"..........Strauss

Dr. Frank Black will be the conductor.

Jeanne Cagney Guest on W-G-N Show Today

Jeanne Cagney, sister of Screen Star Jimmy Cagney, will visit the Green Valley, U. S. A. show to be aired over W-G-N-Mutual at 4 p. m. today. Miss Cagney enacted the role of Jimmy's sister in the film, "Yankee Doodle Dandy," and has appeared in several radio dramatizations and Broadway plays.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, March 27

All pruning of trees, shrubs, and vines should be finished before the sap starts to rise. If the gardener is at a loss as to how to prune, he always can remove dead branches or correct branches that rub together. The surplus wood should be removed.

If there are dead plants in the hedge row it may be necessary to cut back the whole row to promote a uniform growth. Large, overgrown shrubs look bad and seldom furnish the maximum of flowers due to an excess of old wood. Such plants should be given a major operation to promote new wood to produce the best flowers.

Tuesday, March 28

Gardeners who are fortunate enough to have a hotbed should begin sowing some of the vegetable seeds for early planting, such as tomatoes, eggplant, pepper, and early cabbage. The seed will germinate rapidly and care must be taken that the frame is aired every good day to prevent the seedlings from damping off, a fungus disease that frequently kills a batch of seedlings in a single night.

Use care when watering and give fresh air. Thick sowing will bring thick seedlings and these grow so close together that extra care must be taken or they will become spindly, weak, and unsatisfactory.

Wednesday, March 29

With the coming of warm days the gardener is prone to begin gardening operations immediately, but it is best to wait until the ground is in suitable condition. Wait until the soil crumbles when squeezed by the hand or when it can be easily broken up with the spade.

Wet soil is impossible for working. Save seed by careful sowing. Sow thinly and save a lot of work. Do not undertake more than can be successfully accomplished or the garden will be poor and the crops meager.

Thursday, March 30

Paint the trellises and arbors before the plants begin to grow. Vines are usually heavy and must have substantial support if they present the best appearance. Vines are among the finest of plant materials and more should be planted.

Examine the mulching material that protects the strawberry bed and perennial borders to see that the crowns of the plants are not too heavily covered. But do not remove all the material; leave it in place to prevent late freezing and possible injury.

Friday, March 31

Turn over the compost heap and mix all parts thoroly to hasten decomposition. Start a new pile with the coarser portions of the mulching materials when it becomes necessary to rake it off the beds. Square the sides and leave the top depressed to catch rain water that falls.

Keeping the heap moist hastens decay. Examine the perennials and firm the soil around them. Wood ashes that have been saved during the winter should be scattered over the vegetable garden plot and borders. Chicken manure, hog manure, and sheep manure should be used sparingly, for it is very strong but effective.

Saturday, April 1

Plant sweet peas, for they thrive in early spring and summer. Hardy nursery stock can be moved as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Do not overplant shrubs. If the soil is poor replace it with good, fresh soil, for by giving the shrubs the best possible conditions in which to grow infinitely better results will be obtained.

CALUMET YARDS SLIDE SHIP DOWN WAYS FOR ARMY

Transportation Corps to Get 176 Foot Craft.

The dock master—the one man who can't make a mistake in building and launching a ship—stands tense, watching, as the men at the jacks increase the tension on the trigger wires, two cables which are the sole support of hundreds of tons of steel.

Suddenly his arm flashes down. Two carpenters simultaneously swing razor sharp axes against the thick manila ropes joining the trigger wires, and another ship goes sliding down the ways into the water at the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company, 9367 Harbor av.

First of a Series.

The ship which the company launched recently was the first of a series of 176 foot vessels it is building for the United States army transportation corps for use around islands with small, shallow harbors in which larger ships cannot operate.

Pictures carried in today's Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE show the progress of construction from the time the ship was 25 per cent completed until it hit the water, when it was 75 per cent completed. Two months ago the Metropolitan section carried pictures showing the construction of the ship up to the 25 per cent mark, when the vessel was "in frame" and shell plates were being welded on.

As construction progresses, all deck plates are welded on except at the stern. The bow plate, a 22 foot curved piece of steel, is swung on to the bow and welded into place. Steel ribs which forms the lines of the foc'sle head are welded on, deck plates welded on top and shell plates on the sides.

Weld Fantail On.

The fantail at the stern is meanwhile prefabricated in the ship yard. When the two cargo holds, the foc'sle head and shell plates have been completed, the fantail is swung into place by a heavy crane and welded to the body of the ship.

The deckhouse goes up just aft of the No. 2 cargo hold, and generally is built before the fantail is swung into place. The sides, front, and rear are put up as units, but partitions inside are put in singly.

A bulk deck is laid on top the deckhouse. Sticking up above the bulk deck is a square of steel which forms the engine casing. Engines will be dropped thru the casing into the bowels of the ship, and when all engines are in a funnel will lead up from the engines thru the casing. The space between the casing sides and the stack is plated, and if new motors are necessary later the stack is taken out and the top plate removed.

Bridge for Officers.

The bridge deck is laid on plates which stick up above the level of the bulk deck at the front of the deckhouse. From the bridge deck officers direct the course of the ship thru communication with the pilot house behind him. Just back of the pilot house, which has a row of windows in front and other on the sides, are the radio room and charthouse.

No work is done on the interior of the deckhouse until the ship is launched, but many steam, bilge, and ballast pipes are laid by the time the vessel reaches this stage. With twin screw propellers and rudder installed and the superstructure completed, the ship is ready to be launched.

John Servais, 10426 Ewing av., dockmaster and veteran of 15 years with the company, describes himself as the man who can't afford to make a mistake. His is the job of readying the ways, the butter boards down which the ship will slide, cribbing, jacks, and trigger wires.

As cribbing and blocks are removed a few minutes before the ship hits the water, a painter does a quick paint job on those parts of the keel which have been resting on support blocks since the keel was laid and which have never been painted.

She's Got to Be Right.

"A machinist, a welder, an electrician, any one can make a mistake but me," says Servais. "Any one else can do the job over again if he doesn't like his work, but I only get once chance and it has to be right the first time."

Most of the remaining work is on the inside of the ship, installing equipment, facilities for the officers and men and machinery. Pictures of the vessel will be printed in the Metropolitan section when it is completed. Before then, however, another ship of the same type will be in the water at the ship yard. The first is the hardest. They all go faster, company officials say, when they're "over the hump" on the first one.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Joseph E. Taylor, 5126 Carmen av., was named honor man of his company upon completing recruit training at the naval training school, Farragut, Idaho. Before entering the navy he was a special policeman for the Commonwealth Edison company. His wife, Mrs. Kathleen Taylor, and their two children, Ellis, 4, and Jill, 1½, live at the Carmen av. address.

Lt. Onnie Walker Jr.

Stationed in the South Pacific area since October, 1942, Corp. Leonard C. Kuras, 2048 McLean av., was cited recently for his work with an army evacuation hospital unit. Inducted into the army in March, 1942, he trained at Fort Custer, Mich., and Fort Wood, Mo., before being sent overseas.

Le Roy Sanger, fire controlman 3d class, is on his second submarine patrol. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sanger, 5444 N. Bernard st., he enlisted in February, 1943, receiving his training at Great Lakes. After further training at Seattle, Wash., he was sent to submarine school at San Diego, Cal. A former student of Lane Technical High school, he was learning the printing business when he enlisted.

Le Roy Sanger.

Among the aviation cadets who were graduated recently at Craig field, Ala., was William J. Lutz, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman J. Lutz, 5831 N. Mulligan av. He received wings and was commissioned a second lieutenant. A graduate of Schurz High school and a former student of DePauw university, Lt. Lutz entered pilot training in April, 1943.

At Davis Monthan field, Tucson, Ariz., Sgt. John E. Frey is completing his army training for combat duty as a crew member of a B-24 Liberator bomber. Sgt. Frey entered the air corps in April, 1942, winning his wings as a radio operator-gunner. The son of Mrs. Ada T. Frey, 7339 Greenleaf av., he is a graduate of Taft High school.

Sgt. John E. Frey

At Luke field, Ariz., Donald H. Asire, son of Mrs. Ida Asire of Cary, recently completed flight training and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the army air forces. He received pre-flight training at Santa Ana, Cal., and pilot training at Tucson, Ariz., and Minter field, Cal. Lt. Asire formerly attended Farragut High school and the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Corp. Joseph Prymaczek, 4258 Cortez st., has completed two years of service in the South Pacific. His brother Frank is also in the army.

Corp. Prymaczek.

A citation and silver star were awarded Corp. Walter Moeller of Barrington for gallantry during the Italian campaign. Acting as a scout, Corp. Moeller came to an open stretch on a mountain trail which was under constant enemy artillery and machine gun fire. Altho the soldier directly in front of him was shot by an enemy sniper, Corp. Moeller crossed the trail and proceeded to the top of another mountain where enemy snipers were entrenched. Putting his radio in operation, he directed the artillery fire of his company. As a result, two tanks were destroyed and great damage inflicted on the enemy.

Corp. Moeller was graduated from Barrington High school in 1941. Before his induction he was employed by the Illinois Bell Telephone company.

After completing 50 flying missions in the Southwest Pacific, Sgt. Stanley Nieweglowski, 829 N. Rockwell st., received the distinguished flying cross and a citation for heroism. Before entering the air force troop transport squadron, he was employed in the Chicago postoffice. He was also secretary of the Home Owners' Clubs of Illinois.

The third member of his family to enter military service, Onnie E. Walker Jr., 3425 Franklin blvd., recently completed training at the marine officer candidate school and was commissioned a second lieutenant. Lt. Walker's father is a petty officer in the navy. His brother, Charles, is a first lieutenant in the marines.

Woman's Corps Gives Flag to La Grange Girls Group

During a patriotic pageant and public ceremony recently conducted by the La Grange Camp Fire Girls and Bluebirds, a silk American flag was presented the organization by Mrs. C. M. Schwab representing the Women's Relief corps. The flag and standard were accepted by Mrs. Richard C. Spohr, director of the Camp Fire Girls.

TRIBUNE ARTIST DODGES SHELLS TO SKETCH WAR

Marine Moves Up, Finds Sheahan at Front.

After more than a year of training in the United States and at Pacific outposts, Staff Sgt. Ward Walker, former CHICAGO TRIBUNE reporter, now a marine corps combat correspondent, has moved, with many other Chicagoland marines, into front line action against the Japs.

Sgt. Walker's orders to move up came from Lt. Charles E. Walker, 425 Franklin blvd., at a Southwest Pacific base. In company with seven other marines including Corp. Donald E. Wiley of Aurora, he went by plane to an advanced army base.

Disappointed by the ill luck that left him behind was Sgt. Tom Carson, 5427 Hyde Park blvd., combat photographer, who bade the eight-man detail good-by before they breakfasted on bacon and eggs. As the plane swept out over the Pacific, Corp. Wiley's query, "Wonder when we'll have real aggs again?" brought the crack, "The only fresh eggs we'll get will be bomber-layed."

Poker—A New Way.

Clipped of their wings, the party of marines traveled the second leg of their journey to the front on the decks of an old gray tramp freighter. Pinochle, bridge, and pay day poker —pay when you get caught—occupied the time for many, but Pvt. Charles Silzer, 3916 S. Wells st., a graduate of Englewood High school, spent his time fishing. He didn't catch anything but sagely remarked, "It isn't what you catch, it's what you might have caught. Look at that." "That" was a vicious looking shark.

News of recent Chicago happenings were at a premium on deck, Sgt. Walker reported, and as Pvt. Robert Erhart, 4254 Hazel av., joined the other Chicagoans aboard, the city's reputation as the best liberty town in the world was broadcast to soldiers and marines.

Band Keeps Guns at Hand.

Not typical of the previous weeks' action on the island battleground was the scene that greeted the landing marines at Cape Gloucester. Near the beach, their tommy guns within easy reach, was the outfit's band warming up on the "William Tell Overture." Playing a stellar saxophone was Corp. Philip Ziff, 5511 Gladys av.

Tales of Gary Sheahan, Tribune staff artist then doing a series of sketches in the South Pacific, are legend on New Britain, Walker reported. One marine tells of working his way cautiously up to the infantrymen during a tank drive on the Jap held airport. The troops followed the tanks as they blasted a path thru the pillboxes.

"Bullets were whining close," said the marine. "The smoke cleared a little and there, striding along between two tanks, sketching as he went, was Sheahan. He stuck with 'em right to the finish. Gray hair and all."

Winnetka Garden Clubs to Hear Soil Specialist

The four garden clubs of Winnetka will sponsor a war garden meeting at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the Winnetka Community house. The program will include Dr. J. F. Fonder, specialist on soil chemistry, plant physiology, and fertilizers, who will discuss "Feeding and Protecting Your Garden in War Time," and a motion picture, "The Farm Garden." Mrs. Will J. Kelley, chairman of the combined garden groups, will preside.

REV. T. F. NICKEL IS INSTALLED BY JEHOVAHCHURCH

The Rev. Theodore F. Nickel recently was installed as pastor of Jehovah Lutheran church, Ridgeway and Belden avs. An unusual feature of the services was that his father, the Rev. Martin Nickel, and his father-in-law, the Rev. William Roepke, delivered installation sermons.

The Rev. Mr. Nickel formerly was pastor of Emmanuel congregation of Aurora. He is a graduate of Concordia college, Milwaukee, Wis., and also studied at Chicago Luther institute, finishing his education for the ministry at Concordia seminary.

Pastor Nickel has been an active worker and lecturer in the Walther league summer camps for young people in Wisconsin. He also has served as secretary of the Upper Michigan Young People's committee of the Missouri Lutheran synod, and as member of the Chippewa valley inter-synod committee on church union.

Church Chapel Speaker.

Dr. Edmund D. Soper will give the second in a series of chapel talks, at the high school fellowship chapel service in the First Methodist church, Evanston, at 9:30 a. m. today.

NEW RECREATION CENTER AIDED BY LEYDEN PUPILS

Sell Magazines to Help Finance Project.

During the last few weeks students of Leyden Community High school have proved to the community they are willing to do their share in getting a recreation center for Franklin park.

Loyola Sachs.

The pupils have sold over $2,500 in magazine subscriptions, making a net profit of $983.55. Loyola Sachs, with a sales total of $106.50, topped all individual records.

Miss Anne Sundstrom, head of the bookkeeping department, with the help of two seniors, Dorothy Kabbe and Elaine Anderson, kept the records and did clerical work involved in the magazine drive.

Other Sales Leaders.

Other high individual sales included: Irene Antonelli, $38.50; Lorraine Pflug, $38.50; Shirley Schirehorn, $36; Marian Philip, $36; Laverne Fialka, $35; Lyle Headly, $33.50; Dean Anderson, $33; Pat Trumbull, $31.50, and Marion Lever, $31. Mrs. June Krimel's sophomore home room sold $281.50 in subscriptions.

The recreation center will be in Franklin Park, and will be open to the youth of the surrounding area. It will be student managed, with adult supervision.

The building committee is investigating sites and plans for the location of the center. On the committee are Dr. Mark Low, chairman; Mrs. Albert Little, Mrs. Floyd Wallace, E. H. Martin, A. A. Betz, John Philips, Edward McAuliff, Dorothy Starkweather, and Lois Cundiff.

List Other Committees.

Other committees include: Finance, S. W. Hersman, chairman, assisted by Raymond Kanwischer, Nick Herff, Harvey Gates, Mrs. Ed D. Stewart, Anne Seigmayer, Vilma Darken and Paul Spandikow; publicity, Irene Reilly, chairman, assisted by Miss Catheryn Mallory, Marjorie Nettleton, and Shirley Schierhorn. Jerry Mohrhusen is general chairman of all committees. H. L. Ylvisaker, school principal, will be in charge of the formation of a permanent managing committee.

All organizations in Franklin Park are supporting the recreation program. Early this month the Kiwanis club donated proceeds of their "Kiwanis Kommunity Kapers" to the recreational center fund.

78 N. W. SIDERS TO GET DEGREES FROM LOYOLA U.

The Very Rev. Joseph M. Egan, S. J., president of Loyola university, will confer the degree of doctor of dental surgery on 78 candidates from the Chicago college of dental surgery, dental division of the university, at the spring convocation Wednesday morning. A special ceremony will then be held commissioning 70 of the graduates as army and navy officers.

The convocation will be held in the Madonna Della Strada chapel on Loyola's lake shore campus, 6525 Sheridan rd., and will begin at 10 o'clock with high mass. The commencement address will be delivered by the Rev. Austin G. Schmidt, S. J., director of the Loyola University press.

Northwest side residents among the graduates include Leonard Allegretti, 1916 Race st.; Clarence A. Brandt, 5544 Berteau av.; I. Frank Brzezinski, 4333 Cortez st.; Henry W. Diamond, 1325 N. Rockwell st.; William W. Friedman, 1125 N. Richmond st.; Sam Z. Celfond, 932 N. Mozart st.; Aldo E. Gillotte, 4226 Crystal st.; Walter G. Missak, 3054 Milwaukee av.; Julius M. Leavitt, 4524 N. Mrs. Harold F. Knudsen was formerly Marion L. Krueger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Krueger, 2928 N. Newcastle av. Lt. Knudsen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Knudsen, 5743 Roscoe st. They are now at home in Yuma, Ariz., where Lt. Knudsen is stationed.

LOOKING FOR BIG TOMATO CROP? HERE'S A HELP

Prospective war gardeners desirous of bumper crops of corn, tomatoes, carrots, and other vegetables may take advantage of training classes in city gardening now being set up under auspices of the park district, the board of education, and the war garden department of the OCD.

Courses will be given in any part of the city where at least 20 persons register for instruction. Similar groups will be formed in any suburb where the local board of education sponsors the group.

Classes will be held on Monday evenings for 10 weeks, from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock. The training groups may consist of beginners in gardening or of persons with some experience who wish to improve their methods. The courses will include layout and planning of gardens, preparation of soil, planting, cultivation, and harvesting of crops.

The courses will begin tomorrow evening, or on April 3.

Those interested are asked to contact their community war garden chairman or the supervisor in the nearest park district fieldhouse.

Northwest side residents may register at any of the following parks: Edison, Norwood, Sauganash, Eugene Field, River, Gompers, Wilson, Portage, Independence.

Also, California, Kilbourn, Chopin, Shabbona, Riis, Kosciuszko, Kelvyn, Avondale, Rutherford-Sayre, Blackhawk, Hermosa, Mozart, Holstein, Humboldt, Wicker, Pulaski, and Kolmar parks.

CHICAGO DOCTOR NOW PENICILLIN CONTROLOFFICER

Maj. Julius M. Glasser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Glasser, 5723 N. Drake av., has been appointed penicillin control officer at the United States army general hospital in England.

Maj. Glasser recently attended a special course in the administration of the drug at Oxford university, conducted by Prof. H. W. Florey. In his new post the major will supervise the use of all penicillin at the hospital base.

A former Chicago doctor, Maj. Glasser conducted a private practice for 20 years before entering the service in January, 1943. He was also a member of the faculty of the Loyola university school of medicine.

OUR TOWN

TONTI council, Ladies of Isabella, will hold their annual benefit card party at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Stevens hotel. Mrs. John Bogucki, 4712 Berenice av., is chairman of the afternoon; Miss Marge Graham, 4458 N. Albany av., grand lady, and Miss Lillian Maday, 3504 N. Whipple st., philanthropic chairman. Proceeds will be used for philanthropic work, for U. S. O. activities, and for Hines hospital.

Mrs. John Bogucki.

Two northwest side residents, students at the Northwestern university school of music, have been elected members of Delta Omicron, national professional music sorority. To be eligible for membership, a student must possess a high scholastic standing and show exceptional music talent. The new members are Norma Schwarz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Schwarz, 2917 N. Richmond st., and Ruth Rosencrantz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nils Rosencrantz, 5961 Erie st.

MR. and Mrs. Max Fuchs, 3029 Ainslie st., celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary recently. Mr. Fuchs is 86 and Mrs. Fuchs is 84. They emigrated from Hungary in 1883, and have lived in Chicago since 1887. There are five children: Henry W., Sam L., Rose, Sol E., and Mrs. Hy Wasserman. They also have six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Among their grandchildren are Maj. R. E. Lee Kushner of Vidalia, La.; Lt. Louis Fuchs of Atlanta, Ga., and Leonard I. Fuchs of Chicago, who will be inducted into the army soon.

A cantata, "From Olivet to Calvary," will be presented by the First Gethsemane Lutheran church, Oakdale and Lamon avs., at 8 o'clock tonight. Soloists will be William Balhatchet, tenor, and Reid Hillyard, bass. Ramona B. Ulrich is director of the choir.

"The Evening Queen," a poem by Judith Holland of Von Steuben High school, was published in a recent issue of Senior Scholastic magazine, the American high school weekly. Miss Holland was awarded a copy of "Saplings," a book of the best student writing of previous years.

SOLDIERS WANT CHURCH ERECTED IN SPITE OF WAR

The effect that religion has on men in the overseas forces was movingly demonstrated recently in a letter received by Mrs. A. E. Ellingson, 5118 Newcastle av., from her brother, Corp. David Peterson, 26, and his buddy, Pvt. Boyd Poole, 21, now stationed in Honolulu, Hawaii.

The letter was inspired by one sent to Corp. Peterson by Mrs. Ellingson, wherein she described the situation within her church, the Norwood Heights Evangelical Congregational church. Needing a new edifice, the congregation was divided as to whether it was right or wrong to embark on a building project during war time.

The soldiers had definite opinions on what should be done. So definite, in fact, that they pooled their resources, and sent a draft for $45 for the church's building fund.

The letter, written by Pvt. Poole, arrived a few days before their contribution, and read, in part: "I read David's letter in which you wrote the particulars concerning the church. The part about it being a sin to build in war time attracted my attention, and also my indignation. God's house should come first, before war, shelter, food, or any personal comfort. A man's soul is immortal, and he receives food and blessing for his soul at the house of God. Man's body is only the house that the soul lives in in this world.

"David and I are both overseas, and both think it is a sin to put war ahead of building a church. The first fruits belong to God, and after the tithes are paid into the storehouse, then and then only should other items be considered."

A few days later the letter with the $45 contribution arrived, coupled with a note from the men apologizing because they could not contribute more. The proposed church is now in the blueprint stage, waiting for clearance and a priority assignment in Washington.

Rehearse for Spring Concert

10 N. W. SIDERS GIVEN DEGREES AT CHICAGO U.

Ten northwest side residents were among the 161 University of Chicago graduates to receive degrees at the university's 216th convocation, at which approximately one-third of the degrees were granted in absentia to students already in military service or war work.

President Robert M. Hutchins, presiding at the convocation in Rockefeller Memorial chapel, conferred the degrees. Chester Whitney Wright, professor of economics at the university, addressed the graduates on "The Responsibilities of the Citizen."

Commissioned a Lieutenant.

In addition to receiving his degree from the school of medicine at the university, Joseph Louis Fleming, 830 N. Hamlin av., was commissioned a 1st lieutenant in the army medical corps. Before going into active duty, Dr. Fleming will intern at Kings County hospital in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Lt. Adolph J. Schaps, 3564 W. Lyndale st., who went on active duty with the army air forces immediately upon graduation from the institute of meteorology of the university on Jan. 28, was the only officer to receive his bachelor degree in person. Lt. Harry M. Andersen, 6134 Byron st., who also graduated in meteorology, received his diploma in absentia.

Seven Others Win Degrees.

Other northwest side residents who received diplomas, and their degrees, include:

Bachelor degree: Romuald Anthony, 1522 N. Fairfield av.; Harold Z. Brown, 5910 N. Bernard st.; Eugene M. Geller, 3550 Lyndale av.; Miriam Greenberg, 4947 N. Albany av.; Mrs. Marie Adam Inglis, 2301 N. Albany av.; Pearl Marcus, 519 N. Troy st., and master's degree, Eleanor E. Torell, 3223 Balmoral av.

N. W. STUDENT ENDS COURSE AT THERAPY SCHOOL IN BOSTON

Phyllis Heather, a former student at Wright Junior college, recently was graduated from the Boston of Occupational Therapy after completing a war time course accelerated to meet military needs.

Phyllis Heather.

The class was the first in 26 years to complete the regular three year course in 27 months. The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. Jerome Heather, Miss Heather was graduated as president of her class.

PLAN SUMMER CURB PICKUP OF WASTE PAPER

System to Make Up Loss When Schools Close.

Planning three months ahead, the Chicago waste paper salvage committee has decided upon city-wide curb pickups to supplant salvage systems of Chicago public and parochial schools when these institutions close for summer vacations. Chicago schools, at present, are accounting for 1,000 tons of waste paper a week for use in the manufacturing of war material, said John R. Robinson, representative of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association sponsoring the waste paper campaign.

The loss of school collections during the summer months presented a serious problem to salvage officials, said Robinson. They selected the city-wide pick-up system as the most efficient way of gathering scrap paper during the expected slack. Advocating the efficiency of that system, William L. McFetridge, general chairman of the salvage committee, said:

"We are working along the line of handling the situation thru the already established agencies of waste paper salvage.

Change New York Plan.

"In New York the city authorities used city trucks to pick up the paper from pavements, then sold it direct to the mills, eliminating the collection agencies and paper stock grading companies. Thru these regular agencies the entire amount of normal waste paper salvage is obtained, and it is only fair that we take the pick up men, shops, and dealers into consideration when planning city-wide curb pickups.

McFetridge pointed out that New York, as a result of eliminating the shops, peddlers, and dealers, was able to gather only 708 tons of waste paper in a city-wide curb pickup, as against the 2,733 tons gathered last Jan. 15 in Chicago's first city-wide pickup.

Divide City in Eight Sections.

Details of the curb pickup system call for division of the city into eight sections, with collections to be taken in two adjoining sections each Saturday. These divisions, worked out by Albert H. Meisterheim of the salvage committee, list district 1 and 2 as the area from Fullerton pkwy. to Howard st.; districts 3 and 4, from Fullerton to Madison st.; districts 5 and 6, south from Madison to 63d st.; and districts 7 and 8, south of 63d to the southern city limits, 127th st. Each district will reach completely across the city, east and west.

Volunteer trucks will not be called upon to make the pickups, as was done in former city-wide curb pickups, salvage officials said. Peddlers, shops, and dealers in each section will be assigned their own territory, and confined to that territory for each pickup. Paper will be taken direct to railroad cars by shop owners and dealers, where it will be weighed and loaded. Proceeds will be given Chicago service men's centers.

Telephone Pickup Agency.

In addition to city-wide pickups, special stress will be placed on the war production board's telephone exchange pickup agency, State 8787, during the summer months, said J. E. Marcus, director of the Chicago waste paper campaign committee. Householders accumulating 50 pounds or more of waste paper are asked to telephone that agency giving their address, and a truck will call for the paper within 24 hours.

ANNUAL CONCERT OF OLD ST. PETER'S CHOIR NEXT SUNDAY

Vivian Abell.

The annual sacred concert of the mixed choir of Old St. Peter's church, Polk and Clark sts., will be given at the church next Sunday at 4:30 p. m. under the direction of Vivian Abell, organist and director.

The choir, which sings every Sunday during the noon mass, is composed of members from all parts of Chicago, who have had experience in operatic and liturgical singing.

Soloists and choristers will render compositions by Palestrina, Vittoria, Mozart, Verdi, Gounod, Tschensnokoff, and others, with the added feature of orchestral accompaniment.

FIGHT FOR G.O.P. CONVENTION SEATS

SEE NEW DEAL SUN SETTING IN TWO DISTRICTS

G. O. P. Seeks 4th, 6th Congress Seats.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Dissatisfaction with the Democratic regime in Washington is so marked that Republican candidates for congress in districts like the 4th and 6th believe they have an excellent chance to win in November. Both these districts, lying on the west and southwest sides of Chicago, have gone heavily Democratic in recent elections.

In the big 3d district, now represented by Fred E. Busbey, a Republican, a measure of dissension has grown in the Democratic ranks. Edward A. Kelly, former congressman picked by Mayor Kelly's organization, is opposed by Paul B. Saltimieras, radio station operator and a Lithuanian-American leader. Busbey has no primary opposition.

Hits Neglect of Discharged Vets.

Leo J. Kozicki, owner of a printing business at 1837 35th st., is a candidate for the G. O. P. nomination in the 4th. He lists high and complicated taxes and a policy of neglect for men released from war service as sources of much of the opposition rising against the Democrats.

"They just don't seem to care down there about the plight of discharged men," he said. "They are being inadequately rewarded. Our own congressman hasn't done anything and even is hard to find."

Martin Gorski, Democrat, is the incumbent representative in the 4th and has no primary opposition. In 1942 he won by a majority of 44,000.

Kozicki has definite views on foreign policy.

"The government ought to take care of things at home first," he said. "I am for a real Americanism."

Shelton Against Willkie.

Another G. O. P. candidate is Henry James Shelton, who is a vigorous anti-Willkieite and a promoter of Gen. MacArthur for President. Shelton said that taxes and rationing and the questionnairing of small business men had made life "too complicated." Both these candidates recalled that once in history the 4th had elected a Republican congressman and that conditions were similar now.

Saltimieras asserted that his candidacy had been received with more acclaim than he had anticipated and that Congressman Kelly, whom he dubbed a "rubber stamp for the mayor," had a real fight on his hands.

Wants World Organization.

He said that he was most interested in the necessities of service men and their families. As to foreign policy, he has an internationalist viewpoint, believing that some organization with power enough to curb national ambitions of greedy powers would be helpful in maintaining peace.

"But any such organization would be a hollow mockery from its inception if its foundation must be the rape of Poland and the Baltic states or any injustice to any nation," Saltimieras asserted.

In the 6th district, which includes several western suburbs and a large slice of the west side, the G. O. P. rivals are Marvin M. Kurth, an investigator for the Illinois state department of revenue, and Charles J. Anderson Jr., an electrical contractor. Kurth has organization support. Thomas J. O'Brien, Democrat, is unopposed.

In the tiny 5th district there are no contests. The incumbent, Adolph J. Sabath, is the Democratic choice and Max Price, garage owner, gets the Republican nomination.

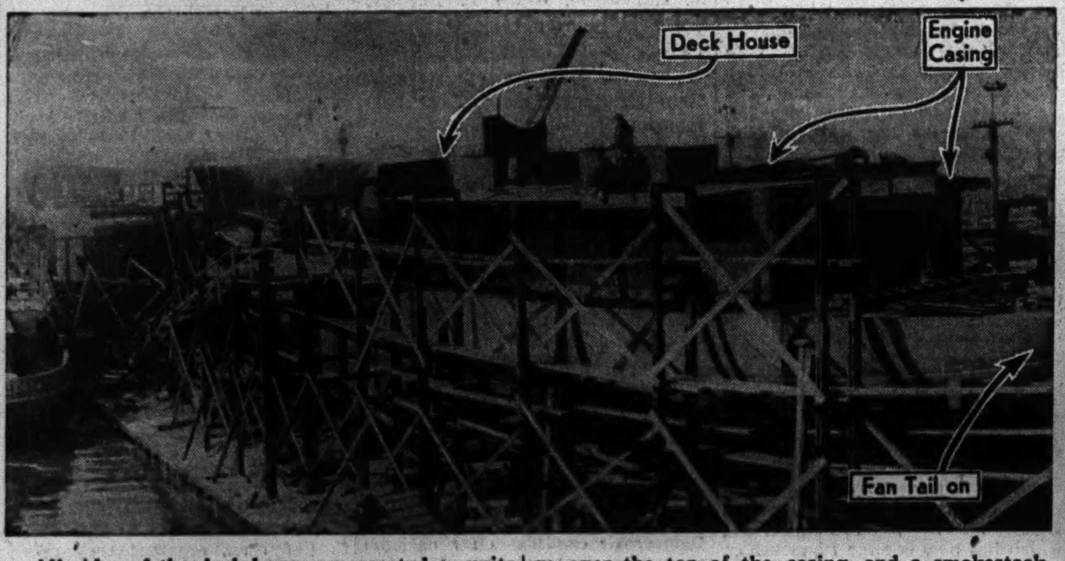
Calumet Shipyard Sends Its First Big Craft Down the Ways for the Army

Foc'sle Head
Cargo Hatch
Main Deck
Bow Plate

With 75 per cent of the shell plating on, the bow plate in place, the cargo hatches in and the main deck on, the foc'sle head is being built on this 176 foot ocean going ship which the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company, 9367 Harbor av., is constructing for the United States army transportation corps.

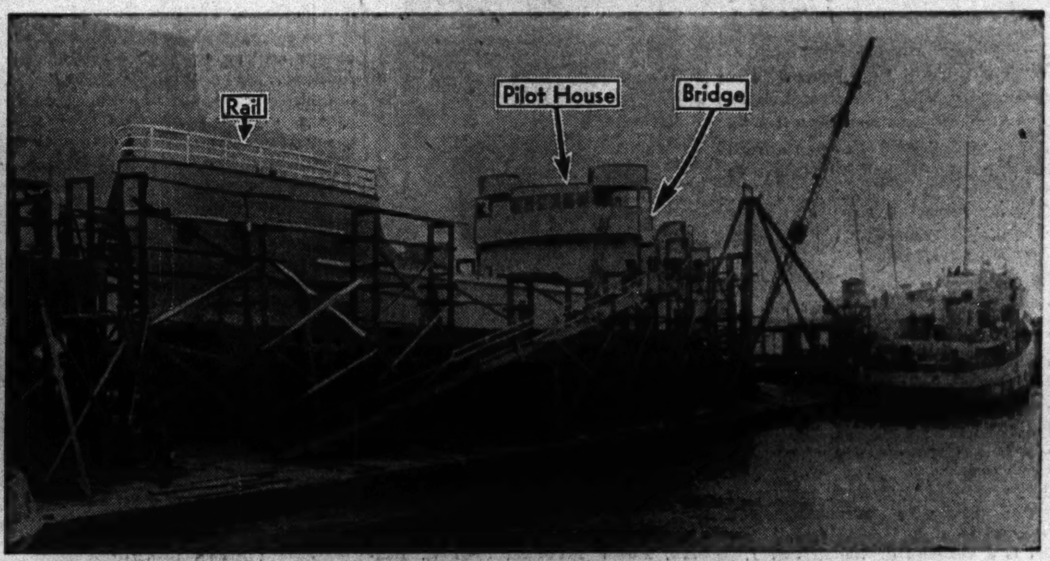
Fan Tail (Upside Down)

James Jonkus, 17 W. 119th st., a weld chipper, cleans the welding on the fantail, which is prefabricated in the shipyard and swung by crane onto the stern of the ship, where it is welded into place. The fantail generally is swung into place before the deck house is erected.



All sides of the deck house are erected as units and a deck laid on top after the fantail is on. The square in the top center of the deck house is the engine casing, thru which engines will be lowered by crane into the inside of the ship. A plate will go over the top of the casing, and a smokestack will come thru, so that if new engines are needed the top plate must come off and the stack must be removed.

(Story on page 6.)



In this picture the deck house has been completed and the bridge, pilot house, and other superstructure are in place. At this stage of construction the ship is about 75 per cent completed and in two weeks will be ready for launching. Only the propellors and rudder remain to be put in place before the launching is held.

[Tribune photos by Julius Gantter.]

Wire Trigger
Cribbing
Ways

In another 15 minutes the cribbing and blocks will be out and tension on the trigger wires will be increased by jacks. As the cribbing and blocks are removed a painter paints parts of the ship that never have been painted. The timbers hanging from the side of the vessel are removed, every one leaves the ship, and it will soon slide down the ways into the water.

As Whistles Blow

Whistles blow, employes whistle and yell as the ship, now 75 per cent completed, hits the water. Practically all work at the shipyard stops as employes knock off for a few minutes to witness a launching. Several score of guests generally are present at such times.

PRO-AMERICA THEME OF MOST IN APRIL VOTE

No-Contest Slate for Democrats.

Voting in Chicago on April 11 for delegates to represent the city's 10 congressional districts in the Democratic national convention will be strictly a matter of form.

There are 20 delegates to be chosen in the districts and there are exactly 20 names on the party list. So tightly knit is the Kelly organization that only the party wheel horses are designated to represent the city's millions of citizens when the convention goes into session.

G. O. P. Has Contests.

In contrast the Republican delegate ballot shows a battle in seven districts, the exceptions being the 5th, 8th, and 9th, where organization candidates will go in without any opposition.

Where there are fights, the independent seekers for seats at the convention are nearly all interested in a stronger and more rigid recognition of constitutional safeguards for American liberties; in other words, a return to "real Republicanism." International sentiment among the delegates is markedly absent.

All Opposed to Willkie.

There is not, so far as the G. O. P. leadership is aware, a single proponent of Wendell L. Willkie for President. There are many aspirants who are not hesitant in expressions of dislike for him and the things he represents. The same is true in downstate districts.

As an example of the general feeling, the National League of Independent Voters, which campaigns for constitutional republicanism, has endorsed five delegate candidates on the ground that the regular choices are not sufficiently representative of its views. They are James O. Koontz in the 3d district, Henry James Shelton and Walter J. Pacanowski in the 4th, Mrs. Frances S. Conlon in the 6th, and Mrs. Martha M. Krysiak in the 7th.

Lively Contest in 11th.

Perhaps the liveliest contest in the metropolitan area is in the 11th district, made up of Will, Du Page, Kane and McHenry counties. There Frank H. Reid of Aurora, who was a delegate to the 1940 convention, Alfred Johnson of St. Charles, and Frank P. Lyman of Crete are running against the organization candidates, Win G. Knoch of Naperville and Charles M. Burgess of Aurora.

In the convention of 1940 Reid jumped to the Willkie bandwagon on the second ballot, even before it became apparent that the vehicle had a band. It is now reported that Reid favors MacArthur rather than Willkie. Lyman, a chemist, says he is and will remain unpledged to any candidate.

Hellman Is Independent.

In the 1st district an independent, George Hellman, is regarded as having a good chance to win over one of the regular choices, Hobart E. Neff and M. C. Atkins. The trio are all anti-Willkie. Other candidates are Roscoe Conkling Simmons, noted orator, and former Ald. Louis B. Anderson.

Simmons said that he was running as a "straight Republican" and believed his experience as a delegate in previous conventions justified his making the race. He described himself as "not only an America Firster but also an America Only-er."

Judge Daniel P. Trude, who was a delegate in 1940, is running independently in the 2d against the organization choices, Leonard C. Reid and P. H. Moynihan, former congressman. All are strongly anti-Willkie. Judge Trude said he was not given organized support because he refused to agree to a unit rule for the Illinois delegation.

One for Internationalism.

Vandorf Gray, candidate in the 2d, is avowedly for internationalism and is promoting the candidacy of Henry J. Kaiser for President.

In the big 6th district the organization supports Judge Julius H. Miner and Seward M. Gunderson. Charles W. Bidwill, sports figure, was in the race but withdrew. Mrs. Conlon, who lives at 1938 Adams st., is a college graduate and the wife of a realtor. Her program includes "no Willkie, no bipartisan deals, no internationalism, no isms and no foreign entanglements."

First—*Hobart E. Neff, Roscoe Conkling Simmons, *M. C. Atkins, Louis B. Anderson, and George Hellman.

Third—*William H. Reid, *John Mackler, and James O. Koontz.

Sixth—*Julius H. Miner, *Seward

KELLY HIGH WINS WPB CITATION IN PAPER CAMPAIGN

School Leads in Race for New Honors.

Kelly High school, 4136 S. California av., was awarded a citation last week by the war production board for collecting 121,000 pounds of waste paper in one day in the campaign sponsored by the Chicago Newspaper Publishers association.

Kelly led all schools in Illinois and ranked second in the United States in last year's scrap metal drive, when its students collected 311,315 pounds. It is now leading in the race for national honors in the paper drive.

Nelson Signs Award.

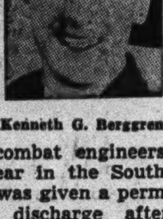
The award was presented by John G. Sheldon, executive secretary of the war production board in behalf of Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the WPB. The certificate was signed by Mr. Nelson.

Mrs. May C. Allen, principal, received the citation for the school. Mr. George F. Cassell, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of high schools, also was present. Two student leaders of the Kelly waste paper collection program represented the student body at the presentation. They were Shirley Stringer, 2618 Montgomery av., student manager of the paper drive, and Gerald Leider, 2807 W. 38th st.

Collects 11,000 Pounds.

Leider gathered 11,000 pounds of paper with the help of James Charnas, 2913 W. 38th st.; Roy La Flamme, 2918 W. 38th st., and Tom Langdon, 2913 Pershing rd. The boys, all members of the R. O. T. C., rented a horse and wagon to make their collections.

WOUNDED IN PACIFIC, MARINE HOPES TO AID WAR IN STEEL PLANT



Kenneth G. Berggren.

Discharged from service after seeing action in Guadalcanal, New Caledonia, and Brisbane, Australia, marine Pvt. Kenneth G. Berggren hopes to keep fighting by returning to his old job at the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company turning out war material.

The 26 year old marine enlisted in 1942, was a member of the combat engineers, and spent one year in the Southwest Pacific. He was given a permanent disability discharge after being blown thru the air by concussion of an enemy shell. His leg was wounded. He was awarded a Presidential citation.

Pvt. Berggren resides with his mother, Mrs. Margaret McVicker, 6145 Archer av. He is a graduate of Hyde Park High school.

AUBURN PARKERS MAKE PLANS FOR 'DRY NIGHT CLUB'

Fifteen hundred questionnaires were sent to young people in the vicinity of the Auburn Park Y. M. C. A. recently asking them if they would care to take part in the activities of a "Dry Night Club," a proposed gathering place for boys and girls of the neighborhood.

For several weeks a group of boys and girls have been meeting regularly in the Y. M. C. A. to plan their own location for good times. They hope to find a vacant store and are soliciting parents to serve as hosts and hostesses when the club is open. It is planned to serve sandwiches and soft drinks, and dances may be held twice a week.

FINUCANE SAYS HIS OPPONENT USES 3 NAMES

Declares Toman Listing Confuses Voters.

BY LEE SHASSERE.

Rep. William S. Finucane, who is a candidate for the single Republican house of representatives nomination in the 9th district, charged last week that Andrew Toman, one of his Republican opponents, is identified by three different names and that this mixup has resulted in much confusion among voters.

Finucane, in a talk in the 11th ward, where he is Republican committeeman, charged that Toman is employed at a stockyards packing house under the name of Andrew Tonner. Finucane declared that Toman's right name is Andrew Tuman, but that when he left the army in World War I. his discharge papers were made out in the name of Toman, an error which Toman has never corrected.

Recalls Former Support.

"I supported Toman as a Republican candidate for 9th district state senator two years ago when he was defeated by Sen. Richard J. Daley, a Democrat," said Finucane. "Toman, or Tuman, or Tonner—whatever his name is—is now disgruntled over his defeat and is opposing me for the house nomination."

Toman's name was challenged in a suit filed last week in Circuit court to keep him off the ballot as a candidate for Republican committeeman in the 12th ward.

Henry H. Harris, 3600 S. Kedzie av., thru his attorney, James W. Breen, brought suit charging that Toman used that name because it is widely known in political circles, whereas his real name is Tuman and that he is employed under the name of Tonner.

Circuit Judge Julius H. Miner denied the motion for a temporary injunction because, he said, ballots for the April 11 primary have already been put into circulation. This action leaves Committeeman Felix Kucharski opposed by Toman in the 12th. Toman resides at 3822 S. Winchester av.

Finucane Seeks 4th Term.

The 9th district comprises parts of wards 11, 12, 13, 21, 22, and 25. Finucane claims indorsements from all the regular Republican ward organizations. He is seeking his fourth term in the house, and has served as ward committeeman for 24 years. He owns a bowling alley at 63d st. and Western av.

Five other Republican candidates besides Finucane and Toman have filed for the nomination. They are Frank Dybas, 2547 S. Hillock av.; John Mackowiak, 2867 S. Quinn st.; M. L. Libby, 3854 S. Ashland av.; Joseph Waisnor, 3203 S. Green st., and Edward Schumann, 2908 S. Quinn st.

The two Democratic house incumbents, William J. Gormley, 3359 S. Western av., and Peter P. Jezierny, 2244 Marshall blvd., are opposed by William J. Bruzek, 2819 S. Christiana av., and Stanley Sobiszewski, 3735 S. Hermitage av.

THIRTEENTH DISTRICT

[Wards 7, 8, 9, and 10, and parts of wards 6, 17, and 19; also that part of Calumet township lying outside Chicago.]

The Republican race for the party's two house of representative nominations in the 13th, which has been marked by serenity, flared into action last week when one of the candidates charged that his opponent was a dyed in the wool Democrat who sought the Democratic house nomination in the 1942 primary.

Tossing the bombshell was Edward Schneider, president of the 8th ward regular Republican organization, who charged that Bernard Goodman polled 13,769 votes in the Democratic primary April 14, 1942.

Goodman Explains Action.

Goodman, in replying to the charge, admitted that he had made the race on the Democratic ticket, but described his move as "an effort to defeat the Ryan-Mioduski district bossism." The two referred to are Rep. John G. Ryan [D.], 1530 E. 83d pl., and Adam S. Mioduski, 8115 South Shore dr., who was in the legislature for many years. Both are candidates again on the Democratic ticket.

"I have been a Republican for many years but entered the 1942 Democratic primary with the avowed intention of fighting bossism," said Goodman. "I was also a Democratic candidate with the same aim in 1940 when I received 25,000 votes in an unsuccessful bid for the legislature."

THIRD MEMBER OF S. W. FAMILY ENTERS SERVICE

The latest member of the John Vaci family, 6854 S. Paulina st., to enter military service is Robert, 18, who has been accepted for naval aviation V-5 pilot-officer training. His father is at Tarawa and his brother is at West Point. Robert is a freshman at the University of Illinois. He was graduated from De La Salle High school last May.

His father, John Vaci, enlisted in a naval construction battalion last March at the age of 48. He formerly was in the construction business and was appointed a warrant officer and sent to Pearl Harbor. He landed on Tarawa 24 hours after the marines and, as far as his family knows, is still there. The elder Vaci is a veteran of World War I., and was a member of the famed Rainbow division.

The eldest son, John E. Vaci, 21, is in his second year at West Point. He also attended the University of Illinois and is a graduate of De La Salle High school. Their mother, Mrs. Ann Vaci, lives at the Paulina st. address.

ASSEMBLYSLATE MAKERS LAUNCH ACTIVE CANVASS

Seekers of Senatorial Committee Posts Listed.

Senatorial committeemen candidates have launched active campaigns designed not only to present their qualifications to voters but also to acquaint many with the single function which committeemen perform.

The senatorial committee consists of three persons elected by each district party at the state primary, which will be held this year on April 11. The committee determines the number of candidates the party in the district will nominate at the primary to run for state representative in the general election. If, by reason of death, resignation or disqualification there is a vacancy among the nominees, this is filled by senatorial committee action.

Usually Nominate One or Two.

The committee may decide to nominate one, two, and very rarely three candidates. The decision to nominate three is a real test of party strength for only three representatives from each district are elected at the general election in November.

In 1942, in Chicago's 27th district on the near west side, the Democrats appraised their vote getting ability and decided to "shoot the works." They called for three candidates to be nominated, while the Republicans decided on only one. In the November election the Democrats made a clean sweep, winning all three offices.

The Democrats have again called for three nominees in the 27th, and similar action has also been taken in the 15th.

Election Sometimes Formality.

The primary party ballot instructs voters on the number of house of representatives candidates to be nominated. Should one party committee decide upon two and the other party on only one, then the fall election is a mere formality.

Following are the candidates for senatorial committeeman in the southwest section of Cook county. In the 3d, 7th, and 13th districts, Democratic candidates have no opposition and are assured election as only three candidates have filed. In the 4th and 11th districts, Republican candidates have no opposition. The asterisk [*] indicates incumbents.

POST-WAR IDEAS IN S. W. DISTRICT ARE DISCLOSED

Dilapidated Buildings Are Being Destroyed.

The Southtown Planning association recently released a report of its accomplishments for 1943 and its plans for post-war development of the area bounded on the east by State st., on the west by Marshfield av., on the north by 54th st., and on the south by 79th st.

The association is an outgrowth of a study made in 1938 which disclosed that this area was showing a lack of coördinated planning evidenced by obsolete housing and street construction. To date 37 old, dilapidated buildings have been destroyed and plans are being made to control traffic thru neighborhoods.

Corporation Is Formed.

Creation of the Southtown Land and Building corporation was disclosed in the report. The corporation consists of 26 subscribers, who incorporated with a capital of $50,000, most of whom also belong to the planning association. Purpose of the corporation is to take over declining property to improve it and secure an owner who will keep it at the standard of the surrounding neighborhood.

The report also showed that the subdivision west of Damen av. and south of 75th pl., where 90 new homes are under construction, is being developed in line with plans of the association.

Will Cover 35 Acres.

When finished the development will cover 35 acres. Homes will be of five and six rooms with warm air heat, coal fired furnaces, pressed brick fronts, and side drives. The grounds of each home will be landscaped on lots from 35 to 60 feet wide. The Harry M. Quinn Building company is constructing the project.

Officers and directors of the association for 1944 are William H. McDonnell, president; Robert W. Metcalf, vice president; Frank C. Rathje, treasurer; Bernard N. Sack, secretary; Fred Henderson, executive director, and K. Ray Ballantine, Paul L. Gereke, Harry S. Himmel, Charles L. Leindecker, Thomas E. Shanahan, and Arthur E. Sharp, directors.

Parents See Son, Marine Veteran, in Tribune Photo

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Newman, 5448 S. Laflin st., reported they recognized their son, Sgt. Lawrence A., 23, in a recent Rotogravure picture in THE TRIBUNE. It showed members of the 4th marine division capturing a Jap on Namur island. Sgt. Newman has been in the marines for nearly five years, having enlisted when he was 19 years old. He was in the Pearl Harbor attack and brought home the propellor of what was said to have been the first Jap plane shot down at Pearl Harbor. The propellor is on display at treasury bond center, 72 W. Adams st.

3D CLUB DISTRICT MEETS FRIDAY IN HAMILTON PARK

Dedicate Service Flag at Annual Session.

Mrs. Harold F. Wood.

Mrs. Harold F. Wood, 10502 S. Seeley av., president of the 3d District Federation of Women's Clubs, will preside at the annual meeting of the district in the Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d st. and Normal blvd. at 10 a. m. Friday. After the pledge of allegiance and the invocation a business meeting will follow. Reports will be given by Mrs. E. W. Bateson, chairman of revisions; Mrs. Henry Fuers, chairman of the nominating committee; retiring club president, groups of district chairmen, Mrs. Raymond Bohne, junior chaiman, and Mrs. Wood.

Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p. m. by the hostess clubs, and will be followed by an afternoon program including the presentation of a service flag in honor of members' son, daughters, and husbands who are in service. Mrs. C. A. Fassett of the Englewood Woman's club will make the presentation and the chorus of that club will sing a song composed by her for the presentation. Mrs. Charles W. Stigman, state chairman of war service, will speak.

Brighton Park Woman's Club.

Mrs. Theodore Johnston, 2302 W. 35th pl., public welfare and war service chairman, has planned the program to be presented before the members of the Brighton Park Woman's club on Tuesday at 1:30 p. m. in the McKinley park fieldhouse, 39th st. and Western av. Mrs. George A. McCorkle, president of the Children's Aid society, will be presented the club's annual donation of $25. Walter Wolf, assistant Red Cross fund chairman, will speak.

Englewood Woman's Club.

Tomorrow at 10:45 a. m. Mrs. John B. Haeberlin, war service chairman of the Englewood Woman's club, 6730 Wentworth av., presents Mrs. Vinton E. Sisson who will speak on "After the War—What?" Mrs. Haeberlin also will report on the work accomplished by her department.

To date this department has sold $58,029.55 worth of war bonds and stamps, the Red Cross units of the club have contributed 8,654 hours of service and the Salvation Army unit has 1,190 hours of service to its credit. One hundred scrap books made by members were delivered to service men in hospitals, and 1,000 current issues of magazines were collected and delivered to service men.

At 1:30 p. m. Mrs. Isaac Jordan, 8221 Eberhardt av., public welfare chairman, presents Rex Hogan, recently discharged from the army with a medical disability after servinig many months in the South Pacific. His program, "They Sing in the South Pacific," will include songs he sang for his comrades while overseas.

Morgan Park Woman's Club.

"What About Russia?" will be the subject of a tea table discussion before the members of the Morgan Park Woman's club, 110th st. and Bell av., tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. Mrs. Blake Smith, district international relations chairman, and Mrs. Guy Moses, district American citizenship chairman, will be the speakers. War work will be carried on from 9:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m.

Homewood Woman's Club.

Husbands of members are invited to the meeting of the Homewood Woman's club tomorrow evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Anderson. E. J. Peters will talk on "Tips to Amateur Photographers." He was a combat photographer with the army during World war I.

Hamilton Park Woman's Club.

The music department of the Hamilton Park Woman's club will present the club chorus in an Easter cantata, "Day of Resurrection," by Lincoln Hall Tuesday afternoon at the clubrooms, 72d st. and Normal blvd. The chorus is directed by Mrs. Grace Hunphrey. At 11 a. m. the literature department will present a dramatized book review of "Kate Fennigate" by Booth Tarkington with Mrs. Edward R. Walter as narrator.

Southtown Woman's Club.

The Red Cross unit and the public welfare department of the Southtown Woman's club will meet at 11 a. m. tomorrow at the Hamilton park fieldhouse, 7200 Normal blvd., to sew, knit, make scrap books, and to compile book length novels from current magazines. Mrs. Tom P. Carley, 9205 Oakley av., is war service chairman and Mrs. Arnold H. Bachman, 7738 Normal bldv., is public welfare chairman.

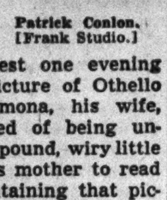
Joe Does His Part

JOE DEDO.

Joe Dedo, 3734 West 58th street, wants to bring his brothers home from the war, so he does his part in collecting scrap paper. "It's all I can do right now," says Joe, 12 year old pupil at Peck school, who has already collected one tone of scrap paper. He begins his collections at 6 a. m. and often remains on the job after school until 10 p. m. Joe's brother, Edward, 25, is a marine and his family has not heard from him for several months, leading them to believe he has been sent overseas. Two half-brothers, Edward and Chester Miergwa, are in the army and stationed in the United States.

SHAKESPEARE, TRACY ARE TOPS WITH QUIZ KID, 6

Pat Plays Actor in A. M., Sleuth at Night.



Patrick Conlon.
[Frank Studio.]

Shakespeare and Dick Tracy compete these days in the mind of Patrick Conlon, 6, of 9013 Laflin st., young member of the "Quiz Kids." Since he cannot decide which of the two he wants to emulate, Pat was decided to be an actor in the morning and a "super-sleuth" at night.

Shakespeare caught Pat's interest one evening when he saw a picture of Othello smothering Desdemona, his wife, whom he suspected of being unfaithful. Pat, a 42 pound, wiry little red head, asked his mother to read from the book containing that picture but she thought Shakespeare's "Othello" was a little deep for a 5 year old and suggested a comic book. A few nights later Pat asked for "Othello" again and Mrs. Conlon began to read the philosophic lines of the great literary master to her son believing that Pat would soon tire of them.

Best Executives.

But the next evening he asked for more of the same and continued to voice his preference for Shakespeare. Since seeing that picture in "Othello" Pat has become familiar with the plots of 17 Shakespearean plays and can identify and recite quotations from most of them. Recently at a school broadcast conference sponsored by the board of education Pat pitted his knowledge of Shakespeare's works against the similar knowledge of five radio executives. Pat won by a score of 13 to 2.

After he has learned the plot of a play, Pat recruits neighborhood school mates, assigns them parts, and for the next few afternoons the Conlon apartment resounds with improvised Shakespeare. Pat is also trying to teach Shakespeare to his sister, Sheila, a chubby little 4 year old, who usually would rather play with dolls even tho her brother constantly warns her that "you don't know anything unless you know Shakespeare."

Dick Tracy and his adventures interest Pat as much as Shakespeare. But the baby Quiz Kid has little patience with Pat Patton, Dick's assistant, whose antics on the radio version of the strip make him unworthy of association with a master sleuth such as Dick, according to young Mr. Conlon.

Pat's Right, Teacher's Wrong.

Pat's parents thought he was unusually bright but did not consider him of "Quiz Kid" caliber until after his first audition. He is very certain of facts he has learned and no one can upset his memory. On a recent program he was asked, "Who wrote 'The Little Lame Prince?'" Pat promptly answered, "Miss Mulock." That was not the name on the answer card and Pat was charged with a mistake. But Pat was sure and said so. Altho he dismissed the incident with a frown, he went straight to his bookcase when he returned home and got a copy of "The Little Lame Prince." On the cover beneath the title was printed, "By Miss Mulock."

Mrs. Colon, who was graduated from high school at the age of 14, noticed shortly after Pat was born that he seemed to be able to see at a very early age. But she assumed that she was experiencing the reaction of the average parent who usually thinks her child is brighter than the average baby.

Interest Turns to Money.

He played with rattles at 6 weeks and began talking at 5 months. By his first birthday Pat was talking in full sentences and at 15 months he could recite more than 100 poems and nursery rhymes.

Mr. Conlon, an assistant corporation counsel, and his wife are pleased over Pat's quick development but hope that he can continue his education normally with children his own age.

Pat's favorite Shakespearean plays used to be "Julius Caesar" and "Macbeth" because of the dramatic speeches in them. Lately, however, he exhibited a more practical tendency and said his favorite play "is the 'Merchant of Venice' because it's about a man with money, and I like people with money."

'OLD' QUIZ KIDS TO BATTLE WITH A CRADLE CREW

Military Services Call More Radio Stars.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Five alumni of the Quiz Kids and five mere moppets will engage in a brain battle over WLS—Blue at 6:30 tonight. The graduates who are coming back to their alma mater are Jack Lucal, 17, senior at Oak Park High; Van Dyke Tiers, 17, a student at the University of Chicago; Jack Beckman, 17, who is working; Joan Bishop, 17, who has been doing USO Camp shows and Cynthia Cline, 18, a student at Northwestern.

The cradle crew they will meet: Sparky Fischman, 4; Pat Conlon, 6; Bunnie Duskin, 6; Joel Kupperman, 7, and his sister Harriet, 9.

More and more the requirements of the military services are making themselves felt on network programs. Red Skelton, Norris Goff [Abner of Lum and Abner], Nelson Olmsted, and Ralph Edwards of Truth or Consequences all have passed their physicals. Among those who are in 1-A are Dennis Day, Jack Benny's tenor; Bob Crosby, Harry James, Percy Faith, and Sammy Kaye, all radio orchestra leaders, and Ed Prentiss who plays Capt. Midnight.

Chet Lauck [Lum] plans to carry on without Goff; John Nesbitt will take over the Harry James periods with his Passing Parade show. Replacement for Skelton and Edwards are reported likely so that their shows can continue.

Eddie Cantor and Ed [Archie] Gardner are reported looking for sponsors. . . There is a report that when Jack Benny leaves his present sponsor at the end of this season that Ed Wynn will be the replacement. Benny will keep that 6 p. m. spot, however. . . William Powell and Deanna Durbin are being teamed for a summer radio series. Dick Todd, radio singer, will soon start on an overseas tour. . . You Can Write a Song, featuring Lew Brown and Fred Koots, songsmiths, is in the audition stage. . . Gracie Fields probably will be back on the air with a 30 minute show.

BRUCE FOOTE ON THEATER OF AIR SYMPHONY HOUR

Bruce Foote, baritone, will be guest solist on the Chicago Theater of the Air Symphony hour over W-G-N at 11 o'clock tomorrow night. Foote will sing Richard Strauss' "Dream in the Twilight" and "Caecilie," and Brahms' "One Thing Befalleth the Sons of Man," and "Love Lasts for Aye." The orchestra, directed by Walter Steindel, will present Beethoven's Symphony No. 2, Debussy's "Petite Suite," Durand's "Menuet and Ballad," and Dvorak's "Overture Carnival."

Walnut High School on Citizens' Program Today

The Walnut, Ill., Community High school will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program over W-G-N at 1:30 p. m. today. Principal Cecil A Snider will speak. The Girls Glee club, led by Elizabeth A. Barclay, will sing. Philip Maxwell will add two more names to the honor roll: Harold Guither, 16, of Walnut, and Sally Chapman, 17, Hillsdale, Mich.

AIR 'NEW MOON' NEXT ON W-G-N THEATER OF AIR

Sigmund Romberg's "The New Moon," musical story of French New Orleans, will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air next Saturday night before an audience of more than 4,000 spectators in Medinah temple, Wabash av. and Ohio st. in Chicago. The production will be broadcast on W-G-N, WGNB, and the coast-to-coast Mutual network from 8 to 9 p. m. [CWT].

Marion Claire, soprano prima donna of the series, will be heard as Marianne, and Bruce Foote, baritone, will sing the role of Robert Misson.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

In the absence of Henry Weber, W-G-N's director of music, Robert Trendler will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus in the performance of Romberg's music for the operetta.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 27

All pruning of trees, shrubs, and vines should be finished before the sap starts to rise. If the gardener is at a loss as to how to prune, he always can remove dead branches or correct branches that rub together. The surplus wood should be removed.

If there are dead plants in the hedge row it may be necessary to cut back the whole row to promote a uniform growth. Large, overgrown shrubs look bad and seldom furnish the maximum of flowers due to an excess of old wood. Such plants should be given a major operation to promote new wood to produce the best flowers.

Tuesday, March 28

Gardeners who are fortunate enough to have a hotbed should begin sowing some of the vegetable seeds for early planting, such as tomatoes, eggplant, pepper, and early cabbage. The seed will germinate rapidly and care must be taken that the frame is aired every good day to prevent the seedlings from damping off, a fungus disease that frequently kills a batch of seedlings in a single night.

Use care when watering and give fresh air. Thick sowing will bring thick seedlings and these grow so close together that extra care must be taken or they will become spindly, weak, and unsatisfactory.

Too much care cannot be given them, and it is wise to transplant them as soon as they are large enough to handle. This may be done by transplanting into flats.

Wednesday, March 29

With the coming of warm days the gardener is prone to begin gardening operations immediately, but it is best to wait until the ground is in suitable condition. Wait until the soil crumbles when squeezed by the hand or when it can be easily broken up with the spade.

Wet soil is impossible for working. Save seed by careful sowing. Sow thinly and save a lot of work. Do not undertake more than can be successfully accomplished or the garden will be poor and the crops meager.

Thursday, March 30

Paint the trellises and arbors before the plants begin to grow. Vines are usually heavy and must have substantial support if they present the best appearance. Vines are among the finest of plant materials and more should be planted.

Examine the mulching material that protects the strawberry bed and perennial borders to see that the crowns of the plants are not too heavily covered. But do not remove all the material; leave it in place to prevent late freezing and possible injury.

Before work on the lawn begins, rake off all debris that may have accumulated during the winter. Repair the fences now.

Friday, March 31

Turn over the compost heap and mix all parts thoroly to hasten decomposition. Start a new pile with the coarser portions of the mulching materials when it becomes necessary to rake it off the beds. Square the sides and leave the top depressed to catch rain water that falls.

Keeping the heap moist hastens decay. Examine the perennials and firm the soil around them. Wood ashes that have been saved during the winter should be scattered over the vegetable garden plot and borders. Chicken manure, hog manure, and sheep manure should be used sparingly, for it is very strong but effective.

Saturday, April 1

Plant sweet peas, for they thrive in early spring and summer. Hardy nursery stock can be moved as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Do not overplant shrubs. If the soil is poor replace it with good, fresh soil, for by giving the shrubs the best possible conditions in which to grow infinitely better results will be obtained.

Examine the labels on the outdoor materials and see that they are securely in place. Do not enclose a branch with wire tightly placed around it or it will die sooner or later.

See that all tools are kept in good condition; sharpen the spade, and it is a fine thing to keep a good file at hand to sharpen the spade and hoe, as they require it. Clean all tools every night and hang them up.

[Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.]

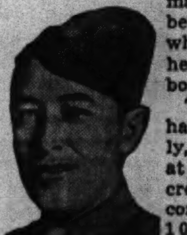
A DIMPLED GIRL WITH BLUE EYES GETS AXIS' GOAT

Her Father, Plane Safe After 100 Missions.



Sgt. James L. Keating.

There's a little blue-eyed, dimpled American girl the axis powers are mad at. And its all because her daddy, who's never seen her, named his bomber after her. The Patty Ann has returned safely, with no injury at anytime to her crew, setting a record of more than 100 missions in India, Egypt, Tunisia and Italy.

Staff Sgt. James Keating, 28, crew chief, enlisted in the air forces three years ago and has been overseas nearly two years.

Crew Insists on Name.

He was so proud of his little girl when he saw her picture that he named the bomber for her, at the insistance of the rest of the crew.

Patty Ann, 14 months old, is just as proud of her dad, and listens wide-eyed when her mother, Anne, tells her about his exploits. Sgt. Keating received a citation for his part in the African campaign.

Sends Souvenirs Home.

The Keating home at 5636 S. Honore st., is acquiring a cosmopolitan air since Sgt. Keating has been traveling around the world. He has sent his wife an Italian handmade bedspread, a sword from India, a pin from a captured Nazi soldier, piece of a German parachute, a rosary from Rome, and many other articles.

Sgt. Keating, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Keating, 6858 Oglesby ave., was a maintenance man before he enlisted.

Women at War

Ruth Edna Gintert, 5129 Harper av., is now an ensign in the WAVES, serving at the hospital at Great Lakes. She is the daughter of Mrs. Edna G. Smallery and was graduated from St. Bernard's hospital nurses' school.

Catherine Ann Murphy, 6224 S. Hermitage av., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Murphy, enlisted as a private in the marine corps women's reserve recently. Pvt. Murphy has a brother serving in the navy at Pearl Harbor. She is now stationed at Camp Lejeune, New River, N. C.

Miss Erika Nord of 6026 Kenwood av. has been appointed as a physical therapy aid in the army's medical department with the relative rank of second lieutenant. She will be assigned to duty with the army in hospitals in either this country or overseas.

Lt. Audrey J. Guyatt, 10527 Sangamon st., will attend the basic training school for nurses at Greensboro, N. C. A graduate nurse, she was selected for training as an officer-nurse attached to the air forces.

Albina L. Wilson, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Wilson, 3120 Emerald av., has been promoted to corporal in the WAC. She is a clerk in the bomb and gunnery office at the Rapid City army air base, S. D.

Corp. Dolores Rita Harrison, 7525 St. Lawrence av., now is assigned to the 2d regional headquarters of the army airways communications system here.

A Bomber Bears Patty Ann's Name

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Nicholas A. Kedo.

Nicholas A. Kedo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Kedo, 4751 S. Kedvale av., has been graduated from the army air field bombardier school, Deming, N. M. He has been commissioned a lieutenant and awarded silver bombardier wings after an 18 week course in high altitude precision bombing and navigation. He had previously completed training in aerial gunnery. Lt. Kedo attended Wilson Junior college and Tilden Technical High school.

Technical Sgt. James Leo Schneider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Schneider, 22 W. 111th st., has been awarded the good conduct medal for exemplary behavior in the air forces.

Walter Kerwin.

Naval Aviation Cadet Walter Kerwin, brother of Miss Dorothy Kerwin, 9441 S. Sacramento av., has been transferred to the naval air station in Pensacola, Fla., after primary flight training at Ottumwa, Ia. After three months of advanced flight training at Pensacola Cadet Kerwin will be awarded his wings as a naval aviator and be commissioned an ensign in the naval reserve or second lieutenant in the marine corps reserve.

Staff Sgt. Robert Miller, son of Mrs. Anna Miller, 8444 Peoria st., has been awarded his second oak leaf cluster to his air medal for "courage, coolness, and skill" displayed on his third series of five combat missions over Europe. He is a gunner on an 8th army air force Flying Fortress operating from a bomber station in England.

Pvt. Michael B. Wlazio has been promoted to corporal. He is the son of Mrs. Victoria Wlazio, 1634 W. 33d st. In the service a year and a half, he has been on duty in India for eight months with an anti-aircraft unit of the 10th United States forces operating in India and Burma.

Herbert Peterson.

Herbert H. Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Peterson, 10822 Hale av., has won the right to wear a pair of silver wings and fly a fighter plane. He was commissioned a lieutenant recently at Craig field, Selma, Ala. His training included fighter formation, ground and aerial gunnery, night flying, and high altitude missions.

J. L. McDermott.

James Leo McDermott, son of Mr. and Mrs. McDermott, 8151 Wood st., recently was appointed a lieutenant in the air corps and awarded his silver wings and the rating of pilot at Spence field, Ga. Lt. McDermott is a graduate of Calumet High school and also attended Armour Institute of Technology.

Henry C. Kaecker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kaecker, 5440 S. Loomis st., has been promoted from first lieutenant to captain. He is now the commanding officer of a group of bombardiers stationed in Italy.

HERE'S HOW POP DOES HIS BIT TO INSTILL MORALE

'Illiterate Digest' Known on Fighting Fronts.

Three sons and a dog in the service inspired the Illiterate Digest, written and distributed by Joseph H. Cummings.

"Three years ago my son, James, entered the army, and I guess his buddies liked the letters I wrote, because after he left Fort Sill they asked me to write to them. Then two more sons, Wilbur and Melville, joined the army and the same thing happened. It was a little over a year ago that I decided to type one letter and mail mimeographed copies to all the others."

Mr. Cummings, who works in the Cook county auditor's office and lives at 9429 Justine street, has sent a letter a week to more than 550 boys in the service who have asked him to put them on his mailing list.

Receives Offer of Help.

Friends who have wanted relatives in the service to receive the letters offered to help Mr. Cummings distribute his digest and employes of the county auditor's office mail out 150 a week. The fame of the digest spread and soon the Foote Gear Machine corporation wanted 50 a week, the forest preserve district employes 25 a week, the highway county employes 75 a week, and the auditor's supply room 25 a week.

Grandpa, the family upstairs, the lady on the top floor, his sons, Jackie, 14 years old, who can hardly wait until he's 17 to join his three brothers and his dog, and Joseph [Duke], 29 years old, who has been ill for several years, and Mr. Cumming's wife, Loretta, or Mom, as she is more often referred to, have become friends of Yanks all over the world.

Pokes Fun at Himself, Too.

Mr. Cummings takes great delight in joshing all these people in his letters, and he pokes fun at himself, too. In one of his letters he wrote, "Good old grandpa; last August he was invited to christen one of our new battleships—but they say he held up the ceremonies for over three hours—he wouldn't let go of the bottle." In another letter he refers to grandpa by saying, "They tell me he was on a street car the other night and a dog bit him. I can't say where, but it was the first time he ever gave his seat to a dog."

Grandpa is Thomas E. Cummings, a retired sergeant of the south park police and formerly a captain on the fire department, where he worked at engine company 1, 214 Lomax place, for many years.

"I didn't dare show him a copy of the Digest for months for fear he'd never speak to me again. One day a relative showed him a copy and next day he phoned me and wanted to know why he wasn't on the mailing list. Once in a while he gets a little peeved, tho," Mrs. Cummings confessed.

Comments from Digest.

Typical of comments from the Illiterate Digest are the following: "Duke can't figure out why they put so many holes in Swiss cheese when it's the limburger that needs the ventilation. . . . Mother is fine. Last night she was saying it was a shame she didn't marry a clever man, as they make better husbands, but I still insist she's wrong—clever men don't become husbands."

"Jim wanted to call it Pop's Page, but I said it was too illiterate to call it anything but the Illiterate Digest," Mrs. Cummings said.

A Star for Cabby, Too.

His sons are Staff Sgt. James, 23 years old; Pvt. Wilbur [Bill], 25, a drill instructor in the air force in Tampa, Fla., and Lt. Melville, 21, all in the army. The other service star is for Cabby, a 2½ year old 150 pound English mastiff.

Melville has the distinction of having been made a second lieutenant at the age of 19 and promoted to first lieutenant at 20. He has been in three invasions: the North African, Sicilian, and Italian. He participated in 26 battles, was wounded three times, and wears the Purple Heart with two oak leaf clusters, the silver star, 26 battle stars, and three bronze stars.

Cabby, who was named after Bill's cab service in Van Nuys, Cal., where Cabby was born, is a smart dog, too. "They trained her for five weeks and after that short period she was sent overseas," Mr. Cummings boasts.

'Illiterate Digest' Cheers Many Yanks

Cabby and Jackie Cummings.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Cummings.

Sgt. J. A. Cummings.

Lt. Melville Cummings.

Pvt. Wilbur Cummings.

Joseph H. Cummings' "Illiterate Digest" has become a pleasant part of army life for more than 550 boys in the service. Mr. Cummings, who lives at 9429 Justine street, started writing letters to his sons in the service and as the boys were separated from their buddies, the other fellows wrote asking Mr. Cummings to write to them, too. That's how the Digest started. "Sgt. Jimmy was the first to join the army," Mr. Cummings says, "then Wilbur followed and Melville left next. Cabby, the Cummings' dog, barked her desire to do her bit for the country and now four service stars appear on the Cummings' flag."

CALUMET YARDS SLIDE SHIP DOWN WAYS FOR ARMY

Transportation Corps to Get 176 Foot Craft.

(Pictures on page 1.)

The dock master—the one man who can't make a mistake in building and launching a ship—stands tense, watching, as the men at the jacks increase the tension on the trigger wires, two cables which are the sole support of hundreds of tons of steel.

Suddenly his arm flashes down. Two carpenters simultaneously swing razor sharp axes against the thick manila ropes joining the trigger wires, and another ship goes sliding down the ways into the water at the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company, 9367 Harbor av.

First of a Series.

The ship which the company launched recently was the first of a series of 176 foot vessels it is building for the United States army transportation corps for use around islands with small, shallow harbors in which larger ships cannot operate.

Pictures carried in today's Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE show the progress of construction from the time the ship was 25 per cent completed until it hit the water, when it was 75 per cent completed. Two months ago the Metropolitan section carried pictures showing the construction of the ship up to the 25 per cent mark, when the vessel was "in frame" and shell plates were being welded on.

As construction progresses, all deck plates are welded on except at the stern. The bow plate, a 22 foot curved piece of steel, is swung on to the bow and welded into place. Steel ribs which forms the lines of the foc'sle head are welded on, deck plates welded on top and shell plates on the sides.

Weld Fantail On.

The fantail at the stern is meanwhile prefabricated in the ship yard. When the two cargo holds, the foc'sle head and shell plates have been completed, the fantail is swung into place by a heavy crane and welded to the body of the ship.

The deckhouse goes up just aft of the No. 2 cargo hold, and generally is built before the fantail is swung into place. The sides, front, and rear are put up as units, but partitions inside are put in singly.

A bulk deck is laid on top the deckhouse. Sticking up above the bulk deck is a square of steel which forms the engine casing. Engines will be dropped thru the casing into the bowels of the ship, and when all engines are in a funnel will lead up from the engines thru the casing. The space between the casing sides and the stack is plated, and if new motors are necessary later the stack is taken out and the top plate removed.

Bridge for Officers.

The bridge deck is laid on plates which stick up above the level of the bulk deck at the front of the deckhouse. From the bridge deck officers direct the course of the ship thru communication with the pilot house behind him. Just back of the pilot house, which has a row of windows in front and other on the sides, are the radio room and charthouse.

No work is done on the interior of the deckhouse until the ship is launched, but many steam, bilge, and ballast pipes are laid by the time the vessel reaches this stage. With twin screw propellers and rudder installed and the superstructure completed, the ship is ready to be launched.

John Servais, 10426 Ewing av., dockmaster and veteran of 15 years with the company, describes himself as the man who can't afford to make a mistake. His is the job of readying the ways, the butter boards down which the ship will slide, cribbing, jacks, and trigger wires.

As cribbing and blocks are removed a few minutes before the ship hits the water, a painter does a quick paint job on those parts of the keel which have been resting on support blocks since the keel was laid and which have never been painted.

She's Got to Be Right.

"A machinist, a welder, an electrician, any one can make a mistake but me," says Servais. "Any one else can do the job over again if he doesn't like his work, but I only get once chance and it has to be right the first time."

Most of the remaining work is on the inside of the ship, installing equipment, facilities for the officers and men and machinery. Pictures of the vessel will be printed in the Metropolitan section when it is completed. Before then, however, another ship of the same type will be in the water at the ship yard. The first is the hardest. They all go faster, company officials say, when they're "over the hump" on the first one.

Cite Kelly High in Paper Drive

Mrs. May C. Allen, principal of Kelly High school accepts a citation from John G. Sheldon, executive secretary of the war production board, in recognition of her students' achievement in collecting 121,000 pounds of waste paper in one day. At the presentation, left to right, are George F. Cassell, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of high schools; Miss Shirley Stringer, student manager of the drive; Mr. Sheldon; Mrs. Allen, and Gerald Leider, who with three other students collected 11,000 pounds of paper in one day.

(Story on page 1.)

HOME REPAIRS NOW MAY SAVE BIG JOB LATER

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

There are many improvements we must put off until after the war due to unobtainable or restricted articles, but a "stitch in war time" when it comes to necessary painting and ordinary repair work is a "stitch" which the government not only permits but definitely encourages as a conservation measure.

Altho the situation with respect to some building products, such as steel, hardware, electrical and plumbing equipment, and lumber, remains critical, there are no restrictions on decorating and painting, insulating, or reroofing, or on repairs to brick and masonry construction.

If we get this work started many contractors will be free for other projects when the release of materials now hard to get makes possible the start of new civilian construction.

Russel G. Creviston, general chairman of the post-war committee of the producers' council, issued a recent statement to this effect and planning post-war jobs of the types which are not practical at present.

Of interest to home owners who have had mildew troubles is a statement that the war mildewcides may be incorporated into all house paints, interior as wall as exterior.

Important use is being made of mildew resistant protective coatings for war uses, but as far as civilian uses are concerned mildewproofers are in a position similar to that in which windshield wipers, self-starters, and other automobile accessories were 25 years ago.

After the war it appears that mildewcides may be incorporated into all house paints, interior as well as exterior, just as automobiles are now completely equipped and vitamins are included in milk, bread, and other foods.

TRIBUNE ARTIST DODGES SHELLS TO SKETCH WAR

After more than a year of training in the United States and at Pacific outposts, Staff Sgt. Ward Walker, former CHICAGO TRIBUNE reporter, now a marine corps combat correspondent, has moved, with many other Chicagoland marines, into front line action against the Japs.

Sgt. Walker's orders to move up came from Lt. Charles E. Walker, 425 Franklin blvd., at a Southwest Pacific base. In company with seven other marines including Corp. Donald E. Wiley of Aurora, he went by plane to an advanced army base.

Disappointed by the ill luck that left him behind was Sgt. Tom Carson, 5427 Hyde Park blvd., combat photographer, who bade the eight-man detail good-by before they breakfasted on bacon and eggs. As the plane swept out over the Pacific, Corp. Wiley's query, "Wonder when we'll have real aggs again?" brought the crack, "The only fresh eggs we'll get will be bomber-layed."

Poker—A New Way.

Clipped of their wings, the party of marines traveled the second leg of their journey to the front on the decks of an old gray tramp freighter. Pinochle, bridge, and pay day poker—pay when you get caught—occupied the time for many, but Pvt. Charles Silzer, 3916 S. Wells st., a graduate of Englewood High school, spent his time fishing. He didn't catch anything but sagely remarked, "It isn't what you catch, it's what you might have caught. Look at that." "That" was a vicious looking shark.

News of recent Chicago happenings were at a premium on deck, Sgt. Walker reported, and as Pvt. Robert Erhart, 4254 Hazel av., joined the other Chicagoans aboard, the city's reputation as the best liberty town in the world was broadcast to soldiers and marines.

The third leg of the journey, objective of which was Cape Gloucester, New Britain, was completed on the rolling deck of a landing ship, tanks [LST]. Quarters on the ship were somewhat spacious, Sgt. Walker said.

Band Keeps Guns at Hand.

Not typical of the previous weeks' action on the island battleground was the scene that greeted the landing marines at Cape Gloucester. Near the beach, their tommy guns within easy reach, was the outfit's band warming up on the "William Tell Overture." Playing a stellar saxophone was Corp. Philip Ziff, 5511 Gladys av.

Tales of Gary Sheahan, Tribune staff artist then doing a series of sketches in the South Pacific, are legend on New Britain, Walker reported. One marine tells of working his way cautiously up to the infantrymen during a tank drive on the Jap held airport. The troops followed the tanks as they blasted a path thru the pillboxes.

"Bullets were whining close," said the marine. "The smoke cleared a little and there, striding along between two tanks, sketching as he went, was Sheahan. He stuck with 'em right to the finish. Gray hair and all."

PLAN SUMMER CURB PICKUP OF WASTE PAPER

System to Make Up Loss When Schools Close.

Planning three months ahead, the Chicago waste paper salvage committee has decided upon city-wide curb pickups to supplant salvage systems of Chicago public and parochial schools when these institutions close for summer vacations. Chicago schools, at present, are accounting for 1,000 tons of waste paper a week for use in the manufacturing of war material, said John R. Robinson, representative of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association sponsoring the waste paper campaign.

The loss of school collections during the summer months presented a serious problem to salvage officials, said Robinson. They selected the city-wide pick-up system as the most efficient way of gathering scrap paper during the expected slack. Advocating the efficiency of that system, William L. McFetridge, general chairman of the salvage committee, said:

"We are working along the line of handling the situation thru the already established agencies of waste paper salvage.

Change New York Plan.

"In New York the city authorities used city trucks to pick up the paper from pavements, then sold it direct to the mills, eliminating the collection agencies and paper stock grading companies. Thru these regular agencies the entire amount of normal waste paper salvage is obtained, and it is only fair that we take the pick up men, shops, and dealers into consideration when planning city-wide curb pickups.

McFetridge pointed out that New York, as a result of eliminating the shops, peddlers, and dealers, was able to gather only 708 tons of waste paper in a city-wide curb pickup, as against the 2,733 tons gathered last Jan. 15 in Chicago's first city-wide pickup.

Divide City in Eight Sections.

Details of the curb pickup system call for division of the city into eight sections, with collections to be taken in two adjoining sections each Saturday. These divisions, worked out by Albert H. Meisterheim of the salvage committee, list district 1 and 2 as the area from Fullerton pkwy. to Howard st.; districts 3 and 4, from Fullerton to Madison st.; districts 5 and 6, south from Madison to 63d st.; and districts 7 and 8, south of 63d to the southern city limits, 127th st. Each district will reach completely across the city, east and west.

Volunteer trucks will not be called upon to make the pickups, as was done in former city-wide curb pickups, salvage officials said. Peddlers, shops, and dealers in each section will be assigned their own territory, and confined to that territory for each pickup. Paper will be taken direct to railroad cars by shop owners and dealers, where it will be weighed and loaded. Proceeds will be given Chicago service men's centers.

Telephone Pickup Agency.

In addition to city-wide pickups, special stress will be placed on the war production board's telephone exchange pickup agency, State 8787, during the summer months, said J. E. Marcus, director of the Chicago waste paper campaign committee. Householders accumulating 50 pounds or more of waste paper are asked to telephone that agency giving their address, and a truck will call for the paper within 24 hours.

ANNUAL CONCERT OF OLD ST. PETER'S CHOIR NEXT SUNDAY

Vivian Abell.

The annual sacred concert of the mixed choir of Old St. Peter's church, Polk and Clark sts., will be given at the church next Sunday at 4:30 p. m. under the direction of Vivian Abell, organist and director.

The choir, which sings every Sunday during the noon mass, is composed of members from all parts of Chicago, who have had experience in operatic and liturgical singing.

Soloists and choristers will render compositions by Palestrina, Vittoria, Mozart, Verdi, Gounod, Tschensnokoff, and others, with the added feature of orchestral accompaniment.

READ WHAT THE U. S. DEPARTMENT of AGRICULTURE THINKS of THIS BOOK

We quote from its publication "Soil Conservation"

"There are moments, in times such as these, when it is a tremendous relief to find a quiet corner with only one's own small affairs for company. To many Americans this book provides the means for such relief. It is designed especially for people haunted by the small-country-home dream, yet it is nonetheless valuable to the established farmer, small or big, who knows that he should check the efficiency of his farm operations frequently and in detail. The meticulous care with which the author treats the details involved in intensive farming is most unusual and commendatory. The friendly, conversational tone of the book is one of its best features.

"The author begins with a warning, by pointing out in no uncertain terms the 'tried and true ways to fail' at intensive farming. He ends his book with appendices to the number of 46, compiled as ready helps to farmers looking for tested and approved methods. In between the 'warnings' and the helps are 46 chapters dealing with practically every phase of farming the small farm for profit.

"In books for actual use as 'tools,' especially in farming, one wants proved and up-to-date facts and not fish stories. One excellent way of checking the accuracy of such books is to check the author's experience and connections. M. G. Kains has been a farmer all his life, on many different farms and under varied conditions. He is likewise a horticulturist of note and has had wide experience as editor of horticultural, agricultural, and botanical writings."

NAME______________________________

ADDRESS____________________________

CITY_______________ zone if any STATE_______________

This book may open a new life to you—a life in which you can relax, breathe fresh air and enjoy good health. A life in which you can bring up your children amidst things that are green and growing and things that are beautiful. A life of peace, free of city worries, city noises, high rents, food shortages.

FIVE ACRES AND INDEPENDENCE has done just that for a million people. More, it has brought them that security and independence which we all want and which you too can get easily. Read "FIVE ACRES"...study it. It is a sound book, written by a practical, experienced farmer who himself has made a success of farming and a success of living.

If your lifelong ambition has been to own a few acres of the good American earth, with a comfortable home to call your own...to dig your fingers into a bit of earth that is yours...to sit at a table piled high with platters of fresh country eggs, creamy butter and succulent vegetables from your own farm...to sit in the cool of the evening with your family on your own front porch, looking out over your own land, then this book is for you.

"FIVE ACRES" points the way, step by step. In its 413 information-packed pages, Farmer Kains tells you all you need to know, whether you now live in a big city, a small town, or on the land itself; whether you want a farm for a week-end haven or year 'round living. Men who have been farmers all their lives have written us that this book taught them things they never knew before. The New York Times, reviewing this great book, said: "...his detailed advice and explanation on every topic treated leave little chance for even the ignorant and unskilled person to go wrong in his farming operations if he is intelligent enough to trust his guide and follow directions." "FIVE ACRES AND INDEPENDENCE"—four words that may change your whole life. Get this book today for your family's security, for your future happiness.

FACTS ABOUT FARMER KAINS

who wrote "Five Acres"

M. G. Kains holds degrees from both Cornell University and Michigan Agricultural College, was for many years Special Crop Culturist for the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, taught horticulture and agriculture at Columbia University and Pennsylvania State College, and has been a practical farmer for over 50 years. For many years on the editorial staff of "American Agriculturist", "Poultry Tribune", and other magazines, he is the editor of 45 books in the fields of agriculture and horticulture, and author of 15 published volumes, including Grow Your Own Fruit, Propagation of Plants, Gardening Shortcuts, Food Gardens for Defense, etc.

‘The Lady and the Clown’ Opens Tomorrow Night

'Rebecca' Next Attraction on Selwyn Stage

By Claudia Cassidy.

Two new plays are on the calendar, question marks which at least give a spice of the unknown to a season made up of interminably long runs and revivals of the ancient. They are "The Lady and the Clown," which brings Estelle Winwood to the Civic theater tomorrow night, and a dramatization of Daphne du Maurier's "Rebecca," which will challenge the memory of one of the best movies ever made when it arrives at the Selwyn April 17.

Or thereabouts. "Rebecca" has been postponed innumerable times because of casting difficulties, and its present plan is to open in Cincinnati April 13 and jump to Chicago on American Theater society subscription. Victor Payne-Jennings, the producer, has the play in New York rehearsal with Diana Barrymore as the young wife, Bramwell Fletcher [her husband] as the brooding master of Manderly, and Florence Reed as the sinister Mrs. Danvers, in addition to Clarence Derwent, Margaret Bannerman, and Claude Horton. It looks like a good cast.

A play like "Rebecca" can reach the theater in one of two ways. It can turn into black browed, ludicrous and outmoded melodrama like the Luther Adler-Sylvia Sidney version of "Jane Eyre," or it can turn into brilliant melodrama, haunting and spine tingling, like "Angel Street," which played Chicago two years ago, with Miss Sidney and Victor Jory, and is still playing New York, where Mr. Jory has transferred his wife murdering attentions to Elisabeth Bergner, second of "The Two Mrs. Carrolls." On the hopeful side is the fact that the director, Mr. Derwent, last seen here as the amusing Dr. Schutzmacher in "The Doctor's Dilemma," has appeared in such first rate thrillers as "Kind Lady" and "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," and that Elfrida Derwent, his wife, did a superb job as the spectral housekeeper in our company of "Angel Street."

• • •

"The Lady and the Clown" will open cold, which frigid term means merely that it will not test its mettle on other towns before lifting its Chicago curtain. A sawdust and spangles piece by Byron Taylor, who is either a newcomer or masquerading under a new name, it goes back to the turn of the century to tell its tale of a circus. Miss Winwood plays an arrogant matriarch who despises the circus and its people and bars them from her bailiwick, only to have her daughter marry the clown. The rest of it is a tale of mixed identities, reconciliation and a gesture of atonement. With Miss Winwood in the cast are John Effrat, Mrs. William Faversham, Adrienne Moore, Vega Keane [daughter of Doris Keane] and others. John McKee is the producer and director, and the action takes place in the matriarch's home and the back yard of the circus.

• • •

"Blossom Time" is not an ancient I would willingly wipe off the theater map, tho there are times when I would trade its comedians for a plugged penny. But Schubert's music holds its freshness even in Romberg adaptations, and the story has a basic charm worth the most stagewise revival the Shuberts could lavish on a faithful public. This is no such revival, but a touring troupe that has been coining money on the road. Nevertheless, it has some new voices and they may be worth hearing. Margaret Spencer, the new Mitzi, has been a member of the Philadelphia Opera, and she sang in "Rosalinda" and in the San Francisco production of "The Rose Masque." She replaces Yola Galli, who is ill.

Ruth Gillette, the Bellabruna, is a Chicagoan, second cousin of the famed William Gillette, and once a protégé of John McCormack. She made her Broadway début in "The Passing Show of 1924," when Marion Davies and Lucille Le Sueur, later Joan Crawford, were in the cast. She has appeared in many films, from "The Great Ziegfeld" and "In Old Chicago" to the newer "Hello, 'Frisco, Hello" and "Coney Island."

Earl Covert, the Franz Schubert of the cast, first tackled the part as a voice dubbed in on the sound track. He auditioned the role for the movies, but Nils Asther got it. They just used Mr. Covert's baritone. He also has ghosted songs for Fernand Gravet, Randolph Scott and others, but he actually appears in "Heaven Can Wait." Mr. Covert is a Californian who sang with the Los Angeles light opera and grand opera troupes, and appeared at the Hollywood Bowl in Grace Moore's production of "Faust." He has sung on the air in the Hollywood Hotel and Burns and Allen shows.

• • •

Cryptic are the confusions of the English language. A "Theater Patron," irate at my review of "Abie's Irish Rose," takes surprising exception to my innocent remark, "There is something downright classic about the horrors of 'Abie,' not lightly to be improved." "Contrary to the general idea," reproves my correspondent, "I love the classics in everything, opera, music, etc." Even, apparently, in what I meant to say and what the Times' Mr. Pollack did say, classics in corn.

• • •

If Martha Graham comes to town this spring with "Deaths and Entrances," as she may, Katharine Cornell will be largely responsible. Miss Cornell considers the dancer one of America's great women, and not so long ago, when two highly praised New York performances netted Miss Graham $8, Miss Cornell did something unprecedented. She threw open her lovely Beekman place house, all white and gilt and crystal and crimson, to people who might become Graham angels. They raised $18,000 that afternoon, and went right out for more. Miss Cornell herself is on our spring horizon, with Henry Daniell in the Raymond Massey role of "Lovers and Friends," and Arthur Margetson in the Daniell role. Mr. Massey just walked on and off the night I saw the play, so he could hardly be considered a loss.

CHICAGO PLAYBILLS

OPENING:

"The Lady and the Clown," at the Civic theater tomorrow night. Play by Byron Taylor, with Estelle Winwood.

CONTINUING:

"Kiss and Tell," begins 47th week at the Harris. Comedy by F. Hugh Herbert, with Katharine Warren, Clay Clement, and Patricia Kirkland.

"Tomorrow the World," begins 21st week at the Selwyn. Play by James Gow and Arnaud d'Usseau, with Elissa Landi, Paul McGrath, Dickie Tyler, and Joan Shepard.

"Oklahoma!" begins 20th week at the Erlanger. Musical play with book and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein II., music by Richard Rodgers; with Evelyn Wyckoff, Harry Stockwell, Walter Donahue, David Burns, and Pamela Britton.

"Unexpected Honeymoon," begins 19th week at the Great Northern. Farce comedy by Barry Connors, with John Connor.

"Something for the Boys," begins fifth and final week at the Civic Opera house. Michael Todd production of musical play with music by Cole Porter and book by Dorothy and Herbert Fields, starring Joan Blondell.

"Abie's Irish Rose," begins second week at the Studebaker. Revival of comedy by Anne Nichols, with Donald Brian and Robert Leonard.

COMING:

"Blossom Time," to the Blackstone, Sunday, April 2. Revival of operetta by Sigmund Romberg, with Earl Covert, Margaret Spencer, and William Marel.

"Rebecca," to the Selwyn, Monday, April 17. Dramatization of novel by Daphne Du Maurier, with Diana Barrymore, Bramwell Fletcher, and Florence Reed.

Drama Notes

Altho Helen Hayes will close "Harriet's" New York engagement next Saturday night, "The Cherry Orchard" has had a reprieve. Eva Le Gallienne leaves the cast Saturday to undergo an operation, but Margaret Webster, her co-director in Chekhov, will take over the role. Miss Webster recently relinquished her part in "Othello" to Edith King. All three plays are listed to come to Chicago next season.

• • •

John Golden's newest production, "I'll Be Seein' You," is getting good reports in tryout; and New York will see it about April 11. This is George Seaton's play once called "Out of This World," which changed its name in deference to what happened to a play by that name in Chicago. In the cast are Elizabeth Patterson, Harry Carey, and Pat O'Malley.

• • •

The Actors Order of Friendship, founded in 1849, was dissolved last week by permission of the New York Supreme court. A forerunner of Equity, the organization aided actors in distress for many years. Some years ago the New York lodge decided not to admit new members, and the Philadelphia group vanished, so the seven survivors got together to drink a last toast to their motto, "Honor, union, and justice." Their seal and charter have been turned over to the Actors Fund of America. Members over the years have included Edwin Booth, John Drew, Otis Skinner, Lawrence Barrett, and many more.

• • •

Bertha Powell of the cast of "Carmen Jones," will play the Negro maid turned war worker in the company of "Decision" designed for Chicago. Others listed are James Todd, John Paul, and Alice Ann Baker.

• • •

While there's a waltz to whistle, you can't down the Strausses. Robert Stolz, a contemporary writer in three-quarter time, is at work on the score of "Mr. Strauss Goes to Boston," a tale of the conquering Johann on American tour.

• • •

"The Voice of the Turtle" is making a generous gesture toward men and women in service by playing a week for them at New York's Morosco, starting June 26, just after the play closes to the public to give Margaret Sullavan a vacation. Miss Sullavan, Elliott Nugent, and Audrey Christie are donating their services, John Van Druten is giving his royalties, Louis Lotito the use of the house, and Alfred de Liagre is paying stage hands, electricians, and ushers. The Red Cross will distribute tickets.

• • •

The Jack and Jill Players, at 180 E. Delaware pl., will present their final performance of "Moor Born" this afternoon at 4 o'clock. There will be a matinee of the fantasy for children, "Mr. and Mrs. Vinegar," Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

THE BUILDING OF JALNA

a New Novel

By

MAZO DE LA ROCHE

(Copyright: 1944: By Mazo de la Roche.)

ADELINE thought that never, never in her life had she seen anything so beautiful as "The Bohemian Girl." The romance of it tranfigured her mind as moonlight a stained glass window. And the music! Words and tunes possessed her, making her feel like one in a dream. As she hung on Philip's arm on the way out of the Drury Lane the ground seemed unsubstantial beneath her feet, the crowd about her to be floating like herself.

She looked into his face to discover what was his expression. She had glimpsed her own in one of the great gilt framed mirrors, and had been well pleased by its rapt expression. She half expected to see Philip wearing the same look. But in truth he looked just as he had when they had entered the opera house. Pleased to be there, well satisfied with himself and with her, glad to be back in London once more. She pressed his arm and his red lips parted in a smile. He turned his head and looked at her. As he looked, his bright blue eyes widened a little in pride.

Was there another anywhere to equal her, he wondered. Her coloring alone made people turn their heads to look after her; the hair thick and waving, of the deepest auburn that could, in sunlight, flame to red; the skin of marble and roses, the changeful brown eyes with black lashes. But, if her coloring had been undistinguished, her proud and daring features, her arched brows, aqueline nose and mobile, laughing mouth, would have warranted his fine favor.

There was a clatter of horses' hoofs on the cobbles. Private carriages were drawn up in a glittering row. Adeline looked longingly at these but she and Philip must wait for a cab. They pressed forward to the curb, his mind still occupied in guarding her crinoline.

Philip had found a four wheeler. Now he determinedly pushed Adeline toward it. The driver scrambled down from his perch and threw open the door.

The crowded streets, the bright lights, were intoxicating to them after their years in India. She indeed had never known London, for County Meath had been her home and Dublin the great city of her girlhood. She had danced her way thru several seasons there but, in spite of her grace and beauty, she had had the ill luck of attracting the least desirable of the young men. They had been all too attractive and she had wasted good time in flirtations with them. Then her cousin, Judith, married to an officer stationed at Jalna, in India, had invited Adeline to visit her and Adeline had gladly gone. She felt cramped in Ireland and she had quarreled with her father who was even more high tempered and domineering than herself. The cause of their quarrel was a legacy left her by a great aunt. Her father had always been a favorite of this aunt and he had confidently looked forward to inheriting her fortune. It was not large but, in his present circumstances seemed munificent. Now he bitterly regretted that he had named a daughter after his aunt. That had been the mischief. That, and Adeline's blandishments!

On her part Adeline had been sure that, if she stayed in Ireland, her father would somehow get the money out of her. The only way to preserve her fortune was to accept Judith's invitation to India. And in Judith's house she met Philip Whiteoak, an officer in the Hussars. Each was charmed, fascinated by the other. After a few meetings they were passionately in love. Yet beyond the fire and passion of their love there was true metal. In the not infrequent dissensions of their married life they always knew they were made for each other, that no one else could possibly fill the other's place — or even approach that place. To Philip, other women seemed simple, even shallow, as compared to Adeline. For him there was significance in her every gesture. The intimacy of their companionship never failed to exhilarate him. There was excitement in the thought that he could eventually control her, no matter what her defiance.

Adeline delighted in Philip's stalwart good looks, the clear freshness of his complexion which years in India had not succeeded in damaging, the ardent expression of his daring blue eyes, the boyish curve of his lips. Was there ever a better figure than his, she often wondered, so broad in the shoulders, the back so flat, yet hips narrow! She disliked hair on a man's face and allowed him no more than a finger's breadth of golden whisker in front of each ear. If he had more, she would refuse to kiss him. But, far above his looks, she rejoiced in his power over her, his English reliability, the mystery of his silences. She in her Celtic suppleness must reach out and draw him back to her.

• • •

Their wedding had never been equaled in the Indian military station. She had been 22, he ten years older, a captain in the Hussars. He got along well with his men who would do anything for him, but there was often a feeling of tension between him and his colonel. Philip was not the man to knuckle under with a good grace. He had an indestructible feeling that he was always in the right and the fact that he generally was, only made matters the worse. When he opposed others Adeline was always on his side. When he opposed her she could see how wrong headed and stubborn he could be.

Her cousin, Judith, two years older than herself, had advised her to order as magnificent a trousseau as possible from Dublin because, as she said, it would certainly be the last thing she would ever get out of her father. So she and Adeline had spent happy days in preparing lists for Lady Honoria's guidance in shopping. She never had been able to deny her children anything and now she in her turn had spent happy weeks creating a bustle in the Dublin shops. What her daughter had not thought of, she did, and it took a formidable array of boxes to contain the trousseau. That trousseau created a sensation in Jalna.

The young pair settled down to lead as glittering an existence as the military station afforded. No entertainment was complete without them. They were so gay; their wine was the best; their horses and their clothes the handsomest in the station.

It had been a shock to them when they discovered that Adeline was going to have a child. They did not want children. They were sufficient to themselves and not only that children born in India were often delicate and always had to be sent home for their education. These partings with children were a melancholy side to Anglo-Indian life. Adeline was horrified at what she would have to go thru. The fact that her mother had had 16 children meant nothing to her. She felt as tho she were the first woman in the world to face that ordeal. And it had been a great ordeal — a slow and difficult birth and an aftermath of weakness and dejection. The infant did not thrive and filled the house with its wailing. What a change from their happy carefree years!

• • •

A stay in the hills had done Adeline little good. It had seemed that she would sink into invalidism. All this anxiety affected Philip's temper. He had a violent quarrel with his colonel. He began to feel that the hand of fate was against him. He began also to feel a longing for a more open, less restricted life. His thoughts turned toward the new world. He had an uncle, an officer stationed in Quebec, who had written him letters overflowing with praise of the life there.

Philip wondered if the Canadian climate would suit Adeline. He asked the opinion of the doctor who declared that nowhere on earth would she find more bracing air or a climate better suited to her condition. When Philip spoke of this to Adeline he quite expected her to be repelled by the thought of such a change. To leave a life so full of color for the simplicity of the new world would surely be more than she could face. But Adeline surprised him by delighting in the prospect of the adventure.

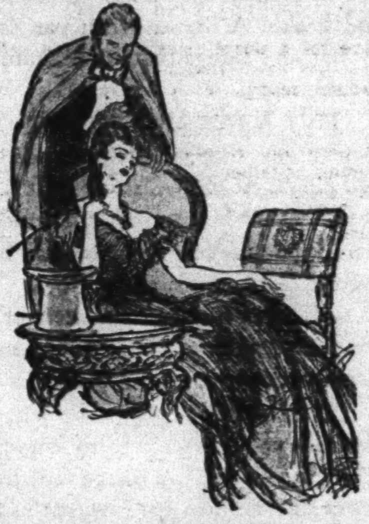
Even with Adeline's consent Philip hesitated to make the plunge. But while he hesitated his uncle died in Quebec, leaving him a considerable property there.

"Now it's all settled!" Adeline had cried. "Nothing can hinder us!"

So Philip sold his commission, his horses and polo ponies and Adeline sold the furniture of the bungalow, keeping only certain things precious to her to remind her of India—the beautiful painted leather furniture of her bedroom, a brass bound cabinet and chest, some silken embroldery, carved jade and ivory ornaments. With these she would make a show in Quebec.

They set sail from Bombay with their infant daughter Augusta and the ayah who had cared for her since her birth. The ayah was terrified at the thought of crossing the great seas to the other side of the world but she so loved little Augusta that she was willing to go anywhere with her. The most important of the party, in his opinion, was Adeline's parrot, an intelligent and healthy young bird, a fluent talker, and brilliant of plumage. He was a contradiction to the belief that gray parrots are the best talkers for he enunciated clearly and had an ample tho sometimes profane vocabularly. He loved only Adeline and permitted only her to caress him. She had named him Bonaparte. She had a sly admiration for the little corporal.

The journey from India to England had seemed endless. Yet on the whole it was not unpleasant. They were setting out toward a new life. There were a number of congenial people on board and among these the Whiteoaks were the most sought after. The weather was fair and Adeline's health improved during the voyage. They had arrived in time for Christmas.



"I'm so transported I could die!"

They had spent the holiday season with Philip's elder brother who had inherited the family estate in Gloucestershire where the Whiteoaks had lived for several generations. But the season had not been entirely festive. The house of Cotswold was 200 years old and its situation, tho beautiful in the summer, was at that season of the year rather bleak.

Philip's brother, an austere man of 42, was annoyed with him for leaving the army. He thought he was throwing away his chance of advancement for the doubtful felicity of life in a crude young country. He did not like or trust Adeline. He thought the black haired infant Augusta, with her languid dark eyes, looked like a Spaniard rather than a Whiteoak. He disliked the soft voiced, veiled ayah, always gliding mysteriously about the place.

• • •

One important reason why the visit had not been very successful was the condition of the only child of the house, a handsome fair boy who had lately been sent home from Rugby suffering from St. Vitus dance. He was adored by his parents and their anxiety over him was such that they could think of little else. Their eyes were continually on him and when he would give one of his sudden twitches of the head or convulsions of the features, they would turn to each other with looks of the gravest concern. This was irritating to Philip and Adeline.

The one taste the brothers had in common was hunting. One day Philip lamed, thru rather reckless riding, a favorite hunter of Charles' and high words brought the visit to a rather abrupt end.

The young couple were not sorry to leave. They had had quite enough of the Cotswolds in winter and of staying with a carping elder brother. From these they went to a different household, the home of Philip's only sister, Augusta, for whom the baby was named. She was married to the dean of a cathedral in a southwestern county, a man considerably older than herself, a bookworm, and hater of change and confusion. They were a happy couple for Augusta spent her days in devotion to him and he gave her her own way in everything. She looked like Philip but was softer and less handsome. She had a happy nature and her one sorrow was her childlessness. She had looked forward eagerly to the coming of her little namesake but disappointment lay in store for her. Baby Augusta was so shy that she could hardly bear to go beyond her ayah's arms. And the ayah selfishly encouraged her in this. She wanted her charge to love no one but her. And she clung to the child with a fierce possessive love.

This was terribly disappointing to Philip's sister. Still she hoped to overcome the little one's shrinking as the days went on. What she really had in mind was to keep the child with her when its parents went on to Quebec. She knew that she could persuade the dean to let her do this. Heretofore, she had set her love on little Stephen Whiteoak. But he was the apple of his parents' eye. He never could, in the slightest degree, be hers. Besides she had always wanted a little girl to love. To her the baby's black hair and eyes, her sallow skin, were romantic and alluring.

"How do you suppose they came by her?" she asked her husband. "Philip, with his pink cheeks—Adeline, with her auburn hair and creamy complexion!"

"Better ask that rajah she's always raving about," observed the dean. "He might be able to tell you."

His wife looked at him in horror. In all their married life he had never before made such a ribald remark. And that about her own brother's wife!

"Well," said the dean, in self-defense, "look at that magnificent ruby ring he gave her!"

"Frederick!" she cried, still more horrified, "you are not in earnest, are you?"

"Of course not," he answered, in a mollifying tone. "Can't you take a joke?" But he added, "Then why did the rajah give her the ring? I can see that Philip didn't like it."

"The rajah gave her the ring because she saved the life of his son. They were out riding together when the boy's horse bolted. It was a beautiful Arab steed and it bolted."

The dean gave what was nearer to a grin than a smile. "And Adeline was a beautiful Irish hussy and she caught the Arab steed and saved the rajah's heir," he said.

"Frederick, I think you're horrid!" she exclaimed and left him to his own sinister musings.

• • •

It was Adeline's idea to have their portraits painted while they were in England. They might never have another such opportunity. Certainly they would never be handsomer than they were at this time. Above all, she must have a real portrait, no mere daguerreotype would do, of Philip in all the glory of his uniform of an officer of Hussars. To Hussars and to the Buffs the Whiteoak family had, in times past supplied many a fine officer but never, in Adeline's mind, one so dashing, so noble looking as Philip.

The idea was agreeable to Philip, too, tho the amount he had to hand over to the artist was rather staggering. But his work was fashionable, especially among the military class. Probably his portraits of Philip and Adeline were the most successful of his career. It was a heartbreak to him that they were to be taken out of England before they could be exhibited at the academy. He did, however, give a large party to show them in his studio, at which the young couple had been present. This had been the night before they had seen "The Bohemian Girl."

The idea of owning portraits of themselves in their prime had not been all that was in Adeline's mind when she suggested this extravagance. She knew that it would entail many weeks in London for the sittings and she was determined to have as pleasurable a time as possible while in England. There had been three sittings before going to Gloucestershire and two visits of a fortnight each, since then. This was their last. Tomorrow they were to return to the quiet cathedral town. Adeline threw herself into a stuffed velvet chair in the hotel bedroom and exclaimed, dramatically——

"I'm so transported I could die!"

"You feel too much," returned Philip. "It would be better if you took things coolly, as I do." He looked at her anxiously. Then added: "You are quite pale. I shall ring for a glass of stout and some biscuits for you."

"No. Not stout! Champagne! Nothing so prosaic as stout after that divine opera. O, never shall I forget this night! We shall sometimes come back, shan't we?" she asked.

"Of course we shall. I'll engage to bring you back every second or third year. We are not going to bury ourselves in the wilds. And don't forget New York. We shall visit it, too."

She threw her arms about his neck and gave him a swift kiss.

"My angel," she said. "If I had not been able to go out with you tonight I would want to throw myself out of that window."

They drew apart and stood in decorous attitudes as the manservant reappeared with the refreshments. He laid a snowy cloth on an oval marble topped table and then set out several bottles of stout, biscuits and cheese, a cold pigeon pie for Philip, and a small bowl of hot beef extract for Adeline.

"How good it looks!" she exclaimed, when they were alone. "Do you know, I'm getting my appetite again! D'ye think I dare eat some of that cheddar cheese? I do love cheese!"

"What expressions you use! You love me and you love cheese! I suppose there's no difference in your affection."

She laughed. "You old silly!" Then she pressed her hands to her sides. "But really, Philip, you will have to unlace me before I attempt to eat or I shall have room for nothing but a biscuit."

• • •

As he helped her with the intricate fastenings of her dress he said seriously, "I cannot help thinking that this tight lacing is all wrong. In fact the doctor on shipboard told me that it is responsible for many of the difficult births."

"Very well," she declared, "when we are in Canada I shall leave off my stays and go about like a sack tied in the middle. Picture me in the wilds! I am on a hunting expedition. I have just trapped or shot a deer, a beaver, or something of the sort. I am on my way home with my quarry slung over my shoulder. Suddenly I am conscious of some slight discomfort. I recall the fact that I am enciente. Possibly my hour has come. I find a convenient spot beneath an olive tree——"

"They don't have 'em there."

"Very well. Any tree will do. I make myself comfortable. I give birth to the child, with scarcely a moan. I place it in my petticoat. I resume the burden of the deer or beaver on my back. I return home. I cast my quarry at your feet and my infant on your knee. 'By the way,' I remark, 'there's a son and heir for you!'"

"Egad! That's the way to do it." He struggled with the hooks and eyes. "There — my pet! Out you step."

He stood watching her with an air half expressive, half coaxing, while she drew on a violet velvet dressing gown and divested her wrists of her bracelets. As she seated herself at the table she gave a little laugh of complete satisfaction. Her eyes swept across the viands.

"How hungry I am!" she declared. "And how good everything looks! I must have some of that cheese. I adore it!"

"There you go again!" he said, cutting a wedge from the cheese for her. "You adore food! You adore me! What's the difference?"

"I said nothing whatever about adoring you," she returned, putting her teeth into the cheese. She laughed like a giddy young girl.

Even in These Turbulent Times You Can Achieve CREATIVE HAPPINESS

In Anchors to Windward, Stewart Edward White, distinguished American writer and thinker shows how to attain the four things that bring peace of mind to any man or woman. They are: STABILITY, SERENITY, EAGERNESS, UNFOLDMENT. No rigid system of living is required, no ascetic discipline. Mr. White shows how you can take conscious charge of hitherto unconscious processes. To a world torn by grief, Mr. White's book should come as a great and healing gift. $2.00

Conquistadores and Aztecs Are Background of Romance

"THE HEART OF JADE," by Salvador de Madariaga. [Creative Age Press, $3.]

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht.

Not content with his other distinctions, Madariaga has here produced a vast historical novel in the grand manner. It will be classified as a tale of the fall of Montezuma; actually, it is the mystic love story of the Aztec princess, Xuchitl and the noble Don Alonso Manrique, who meet and love in dreams, long before destiny brings the Sapnish-Jewish-Moorish grandee to the New World in the train of Cortés.

Tho his book is immensely learned, Madariaga has not actually attempted a historical reconstruction; his spirit is both modern and highly romantic. Like Xuchitl's father, King Nezahualpilli of Tetzuco [and unlike D. H. Lawrence], he can contemplate Aztec horrors without losing his head over them; indeed, tho his book has its lusty, and even its savage, aspects, it is noble in its aspirations and deeply Christian in its spirit; in this sense, it might, indeed, be called an answer to "The Plumed Serpent."

• • •

Characters, incidents, and adventures tread upon one another's heels so rapidly that the reader finds it difficult to keep them all in mind; there is enough material here for a dozen novels. The author has used what his publishers happily describe as a contrapuntal technique; alternate chapters describe the lives and environments of hero and heroine before their coming together. This makes, at last, for a coalescence as impressive as D. W. Griffith's in "Intolerance."

Romanticism is, I think, right for this book; the strictly historical method had better be reserved for more familiar periods. Learning in fiction is rather like science in poetry; a conception must, as it were, have domiciliated itself in the reader's mind before it can be filled with the emotional significance that art requires.

• • •

Even as "The Heart of Jade" stands, some readers will see the Aztec chapters as largely a collection of impossible names. For this reason perhaps, the first part of the book has less emotional appeal than one might have expected, despite the nobility of both hero and heroine. This trouble does not appear in the Spanish portion, and I think no reader can fail to be held by the breathless adventures of Xuchitl and Alonso, once their lives have been joined.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock.

A PAIR of Pauls were the featured attractions at the Sherman hotel Wednesday noon at the annual award luncheon of the Friends of American Writers. . . . Both are young, both are writers, both are westerners, and both are prize winners. . . . One of them, Paul Engle, Iowa poet and CHICAGO TRIBUNE book critic, gave the principal talk. . . . The other, Paul Hughes, author of "Retreat from Rostov," wasn't able to be there, but sent a message. . . . He was featured because he won this year's award for the best work by a deserving young author. [The prize was a $250 war bond and $500 in cash.]

• • •

Mr. Engle captured the 1942 prize with his book of poems, "West of Midnight." [Like "Retreat from Rostov," it was published by Random House.] . . . Like his poetry, his speech was full of sparkling observations, couched in sparkling phraseology. . . . A few samples: "Where is there another organization that gets together and decrees: 'What does a writer need? A bronze tablet? A bust? No. Money!'" . . . "A poet doesn't want to live in an ivory tower. He wants to communicate something worth while to somebody worth while. He is trying to give passionate utterance to thoughts by means of words put together in a clean and marvelous way." . . . "The men and women who write books are seeking to heighten your lives. They are not getting away from life; they are very much inside it. They are dealing with humanity. Today, when the mind of man is concerned largely with destruction, anything dealing with humanity becomes of incalculably greater value than in times of peace."

Paul Hughes.

• • •

Mr. Hughes, a native of Oklahoma, is now living in Arizona. . . . "Retreat from Rostov" was his first novel; he hopes to write many more. . . . As was pointed out at the luncheon by David Appel, this year's award by a midwestern group went to a southwesterner for a historical novel about Russia.

The annual $50 award to Poetry magazine was accepted by Peter De Vries. . . . Among those who made brief talks were Phyllis Whitney, Vincent Starrett, A. C. Spectorsky, Joseph Brandt, James Crowder, Lucille Pittman Leech, and the conductor of this column. . . . Others presented to the big audience included Dorothy Sparks, whose first novel, "Nothing as Before," will be published next month by Harper, and Stewart Holbrook, author of "Burning an Empire."

THE MURDER CHART

By Drexel Drake.

ENTRY.	PERFORMANCE.	PAYOFF.
"FIRE WILL FREEZE," by Margaret Millar. [Random House, $2.]	Driver abandons busload of human oddities in Quebec wilds. They find refuge in an old chateau, but night of sleepless terror and murder follows doubtful welcome by batty hostess.	Here's a tale to give you chuckles and creeps in well balanced portions. Brilliant assemblage of caricatures, effervescent dialog, hair-raising atmosphere, and mysterious episodes in swift order.
"THE NARROW CELL," by Dale Clark. [Lippincott, $2.]	Murder of Catherine Hope, enigmatic spinster, had been in San Diego's unsolved crime records six years, but Lt. Kenmore found the answer in 49 hours when sequel of new deaths proved trap for killer.	Keenly contrived puzzler, slowed down a bit by overabundant detail. Story holds interest, aided by unique feminine characterizations. Smart detection.
"DEAR DEAD MOTHER-IN-LAW," by Katharine Hill. [Dutton, $2.]	The surprise is that, Mrs. Mullins, essentially adept at antagonizing people generally as well as her son-in-law, survived for the opening of this story. The puzzle is, who conked her with a bottle during a bridge party.	Vulnerable personality of victim established a bit precipitately, but tale is entertaining for readers who enjoy pernicious perversity. Investigation turns up diverting morsels.

Prayers Suggested to Guide Decisions

"BEFORE MAKING IMPORTANT DECISIONS," by Roger W. Babson. [Lippincott, $1.]

Statistician Babson cogently defends the thesis that the major decisions of important executives would be more satisfactory to the executives' companies and more beneficial to the public—especially where a moral problem is involved—if the decision were preceded by unhurried communion with God and self in a quiet church. He campaigns for extension of this custom in all faiths, and for arrangements to keep more Protestant churches open at fixed hours for solitary prayer and contemplation.

Three Concerts on Symphony Orchestra's Schedule

on the Aisle

by Claudia Cassidy

Opera Rally on April 23 Turns Into an Operatic Concert

THE opera rally has turned into an operatic concert, at the Civic Opera house Sunday afternoon, April 23, to stir up interest in and raise money for the Chicago Opera season of 1944-'45. Twelve singers will donate their services, but what 12, man knoweth not. The announcement discreetly says they will be selected from a list of 36 stars who may be available for that date. That means, more precisely, the best 12 the management can finagle from the casts of "Mignon," "The Masked Ball," "Carmen," "Tosca," and "Parsifal," the Metropolitan productions in closest juxtaposition to the concert. The speech making is more definite, as are the prices of $1 to $3. Fausto Cleva, new artistic director of Chicago Opera, will make his bow, and Edward Johnson, general manager of the Metropolitan, will speak on the future of opera in the United States.

The future of Mr. Johnson's own opera recently was made considerably cozier by public donation of more than $300,000. One of the donors writes from Milwaukee to deplore the absence of George Szell from the orchestra pit when "Tannhäuser" is sung there April 20, and I'm pretty sure he would take his money back if he could get it. Others will deplore the withdrawal of Bruna Castagna from the Chicago list. Irra Petina, last here in "The Waltz King," will replace her as Maddalena in "Rigoletto," and Margaret Harshaw takes over the major role of Amneris in "Aïda." Miss Harshaw is regarded as a singer with a future by officials of the Met, but Chicago may consider $5.50 a high price to find out. I believe she is one of the radio audition winners, sometimes known as the paint can girls, because of the product sold by the sponsor. However, it seems to make no difference how many stars are struck from the casts. Chicago is opera starved, and the sale for that brief two weeks is a cash bread line after famine.

Shostakovich's Eighth Symphony.

Here, for your scrapbook, is the opening of Dimitri Shostakovich's Eighth symphony, which will have the radio public all ears next Sunday afternoon when Artur Rodzinski and the New York Philharmonic show CBS what it got for the $10,000 paid for the first American performance rights. The prolific young Russian has demolished classic notions of genius starving in a garret—in fact, CBS was trying to buy those rights so long ago Shostakovich shrugged his shoulders and said to Larry Lesueur, "I have only two notes on paper now. For all I know I may have to tear them up and start again." So you might say CBS paid $5,000 a note. At any rate, Shostakovich finally finished his "Attack Symphony" in salute to the 25th anniversary of the revolution. Moscow cheered it last November.

Swastikas and Oriental Rugs.

When the shoe of war was on the other foot and the Nazis took over the Tyrol, they wanted every Austrian home to fly the swastika. Different Austrians had different ways of handling it. Baron von Trapp, whose melodious family comes to sing at Orchestra hall this afternoon, simply did not hang one out. When the local Gestapo came to inquire about the oversight the baron said he did not have the money to buy a flag. The next day the Gestapo sent a big silk one. Again they came to call, wanting to know why their gift was not waving in the Tyrolean breeze. The baron said he was sorry, but it just didn't harmonize with the house. When the Gestapo intimated that the Nazi ideal was to beautify all homes with their crooked cross, the baron said, "Ah, if it's beauty you want, we will be very glad to hang out one of our nice oriental rugs." That is one of the reasons why the Trapps now live on a 600 acre farm in Vermont, where they built a big Tyrolean style farmhouse, still minus the swastika. So many people have enjoyed their singing of old folk and church music and their playing of ancient instruments that the farmhouse is gradually turning into a summer school and music center.

A Horowitz Onslaught.

Missing Horowitz's concert for "Able's Irish Rose" was one of those comical calamities sometimes visited on the heads of those who can't

Only 1 Guest Soloist Listed for the Week

Three concerts are on the week's schedule of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Hans Lange conducts both the Tuesday matinee and the Thursday-Friday concerts. On Tuesday his soloist again will be Joseph Szigeti, the Hungarian violinist, who will be heard in both Mozart's Concerto in A major [Köchel 219] and Chausson's "Poème." Mr. Lange opens the program with Handel's Concerto Grosso No. 5, in D major, opus 6, which has appeared in the orchestra's repertoire only once previously, and closes with a suite from De Falla's ballet, "El Amor Brujo," not played before by the orchestra.

The Thursday-Friday program will be minus a soloist, unless John Weicher, who will play the extensive violin obbligato in Richard Strauss' "Ein Heldenleben," be considered as such. The first half of the program lists the symphonic prolog to the opera "Francois Villon," by Albert Noelte, professor of composition at Northwestern university—a work which was played by the Civic orchestra in 1940 but which is new to the Chicago Symphony—and Elgar's "Enigma" Variations, opus 36.

Désiré Defauw will conduct the "Pop" concert Saturday afternoon at 2, the first half of which will be broadcast by NBC. The broadcast portion will consist of orchestral fragments from Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe" and Sibelius' Second Symphony. The remainder of the program lists Stravinsky's "Petrouchka" suite and the overture to Wagner's "Flying Dutchman."

Marian Anderson, contralto, will sing the following program at her second and last recital of the season at the Civic opera house this afternoon at 3:30: Haydn's "She Never Told Her Love" and "Piercing Eyes"; Beethoven's "Vom Tode" and "Neue Liebe, Neues Leben"; "Befreit," "Geduld," "Morgen," and "Cäcilie" by Richard Strauss; the prayer from Wagner's "Rienzi"; "Nell" and "Dans les ruines d'une Abbayea" by Fauré; Ravel's Vocalise; "O Mistress Mine" and "Blow, Blow Thou Winter Wind" by Roger Quilter, and four Negro spirituals—"Lead Me to de Watah," "Heav'n, Heav'n," "Crucifixion," and "Honor, Honor."

SINGS TODAY

Marian Anderson, who will sing her second recital of the season at the Civic Opera house today at 3:30.

• • •

The Trapp Family Singers, which includes Baroness Maria von Trapp, her seven daughters and the family priest and conductor, Franz Wasner, will make their initial Chicago appearance at Orchestra hall this afternoon at 3. The program is divided between vocal selections and instrumental music for the virginal and recorders. In the former category there are compositions by Vittoria, Lotti, Mozart, Purcell, Stefani, Father Wasner, and a group of folk songs of various nations. Instrumental works by Byrd, Handel, and Wagner will be performed by various types of recorder ensembles with virginal accompaniment.

The Chicago Piano Symhony will give its second concert of the season under the direction of Antoinette Rich at Orchestra hall Monday at 8:15. The "All Girl" and "Youth" divisions of the organization will present the program, which includes Liszt's "Les Preludes," Mendelssohn's "Spinning Song," "Anitra's Dance" by Grieg, and other arrangements. The soloists will be Virginia Duffy, soprano, and three pianists: Genevieve Aleksunas, 14; Leo Treitler, 12, and Robert Shumann Dickey, 10.

• • •

Nelson Eddy, Hollywood baritone, will give a recital in the Civic Opera house on Sunday, April 9, at 8:15.

'Citizens of Tomorrow' Salutes Outstanding Youth

129th Program Will Be Aired This Afternoon

By the Rev. John Evans.

The 129th program of "Citizens of Tomorrow," the Chicago Tribune's half-hour youth program, recorded last Wednesday at the Community High school, Walnut, Ill., will be broadcast over W-G-N at 1:30 this afternoon.

This program, inaugurated in April, 1940, is designed to focus adult attention on the achievements of high school pupils, outside the realm of athletics, to the end that the scholastic and intellectual attainments of young people thruout Chicagoland may be duly recognized.

To date more than 90,000 teen age boys and girls have attended 128 broadcasts to watch 256 of their number named to the "Citizens Honor Roll" and to hear addresses by school principals. The radio council of the board of education has assisted with advice in preparation of the programs.

Each program is preceded by a presentation of the colors, singing the Star Spangled Banner, and by the oath of allegiance to the flag. The principal of the particular school involved then briefly outlines that school's war work and the preliminary portion concludes with the comedy "Jimmy and Jerry," played by professional radio actors.

• • •

Philip Maxwell, as master of ceremonies and "principal" of the radio broadcasts, conducts the news quiz. Six students are selected to compete in tests of their knowledge of current affairs and teamed up as three boys and three girls. Those who survive the quiz get $5 each in war stamps, the losers get $1 in war stamps. Answers to the questions invariably are animated, calling forth an audience applause which has a decibel rating that compares favorably with any sponsored network production.

Added to the honor roll each week are the names of two students outstanding for their leadership, scholarship, and character, one from the school saluted, the other from another high school within the five-state area surrounding Chicago. Their several achievements are commented upon by Mr. Maxwell.

The "Citizens of Tomorrow" troupe comprises Mr. Maxwell, Morrison Wood, producer; Jane Anderson, pianist; Harry Creighton, announcer; Beryl Vaughan and Wayne Dickinson, comedy team. With its engineers and one sound effects man the troupe has traveled more than 3,000 miles since October, 1942, when recording at the schools was started owing to transportation regulations, using one W-G-N mobile unit to prepare this program which is put on the air every Sunday afternoon thruout the academic year.

The University of Chicago has acquired from the Newberry library the East Asiatic collection assembled by the late Dr. Berthold Laufer. This was announced yesterday by John A. Wilson, director of the Oriental institute, where the collection, comprising 1,216 works in 21,403 volumes, will be re-housed in the Far Eastern library.

"The importance of the newly added materials," said Mr. Wilson, "lies in the range of the territory covered. The Tibetan and Mongol manuscripts are particularly rare and important, as the Tibetan monks preserved a valued literature of a proud past."

Two incunabula printed in the Sung dynasty antedate by 300 years the first printed book in Europe. The earlier is a collection of poems and essays by Liu Tsung-yuan, 773-819 A. D., of the T'ang dynasty. The collection is noted for its philosophical and religious literature, which includes editions of Confucius with commentaries, and the Kanjur, a Tibetan version of Buddhist sacred writings.

Fights for the Camera Not Like Ring Variety

Hollywood—Ring fighting is one thing. And there Edgar Kennedy used to shine as amateur heavyweight champ of the Pacific coast. But a contest staged for the movies is something else again, for each blow is blueprinted. "Slow Burn" and Lee Trent, with whom he was staging a fight for "Radio Rampage," forgot the blueprints. Result: Kennedy got a cut lip.

ON THE AISLE

make up their minds between theater and music. But I was amused to hear that after the onslaught of the Prokofieff Sonata the piano was out of tune for the rest of the performance. That was nothing. When Horowitz played the sonata at the Maurice Cottles [Mrs. Cottle is Gitta Gradova] some weeks ago, he broke two strings on the piano, and an innocent bysitter fell off his chair. Somehow, the whole thing reminds me of the old Rubinstein cartoon, which shows him assaulting a piano that cringes in terror on sagging legs that just can't take it any longer. Some one said Horowitz ought to have two pianos at recitals, but just hauling one around the country costs him from $10,000 to $15,000 a season. That unidentified encore, by the way, turned out to be David Guion's "Harmonica Player," from "Alley Tunes."

"Silly Girl."

Have you read "Silly Girl," Angna Enters' beautifully designed and illustrated book of personal remembrance [Houghton Mifflin, $3.50]? She might so easily have followed "First Person Plural" by calling this one "Third Person Singular." For it has a kind of mesmerized self-absorption in its literal reporting of the fantastic tale of a girl who nearly starved to death on the unpredictable path to fame. It will delight her special public, and will illuminate a good many things for those who have found her both provocative and provoking. She says, and you [I mean I] believe it, "The stage was not to her [that third person singular at work] a glamorous frame to exhibit her person, but, from the first, a tangible medium of expression, as tho the canvas of the ground cloth was the equivalent of a stretched canvas placed on an easel." That's the difference between exhibitionism and acting.

Lewis Books Good Mental Fare in Lent

"THE SCREWTAPE LETTERS," by C. S. Lewis. [Macmillan, $1.50.]
"CHRISTIAN BEHAVIOR," by C. S. Lewis. [Macmillan, $1.]
"THE CASE FOR CHRISTIANITY," by C. S. Lewis. [Macmillan, $1.]
"THE PROBLEM OF PAIN," by C. S. Lewis. [Macmillan, $1.50.]

Reviewed by Arthur Bergholz.

It is fitting in this Lenten season to bring again to the reader's attention the works of C. L. Lewis. There was no more outstanding piece of publishing in 1943 than the publication of the books listed above. Of them, "The Screwtape Letters" is well on its way in the minds of critic and reader alike to being considered a classic. Its remarkably original and penetrating intelligent interpretation of the religious experience in our time has universal appeal.

The letters themselves are an aesthetic blend of ingenious form and illuminating reflection. Screwtape is an important personage in the hierarchy of hell writing to his nephew Wormwood, a junior devil on earth commissioned to divert an ordinary individual from his Christian ways. It is Screwtape's task to play Goebbels to Wormwood, instructing him in propagandistic devices whereby the hapless victim is always giving himself the wrong reasons and values for his behaviour.

• • •

Screwtape's diabolism is superfiendish in its conception. He is not interested in the uses of climacteric wickedness and temptation. Rather his skill is directed in showing Wormwood that he need only use the guile, the self-deceiving rationalizations, the feckless resolutions, the meretricious compromises with which his victim is prone to meet the contingencies of his daily life. Then and then only is Wormwood likely to obscure from his victim the resources of goodness which are a vital part of his nature.

C. S. Lewis depicts with consummate wit, humor, and satire the contending forces of good and evil. He makes no appeal to doctrine as such. He has no need for a private vocabulary to make his point. The particular grace of his writing is that he establishes rapport with his reader on grounds with which the reader himself is thoroly familiar, his own experiences and his own capacities of self-awareness.

In contrast to "The Screwtape Letters," the works, "Christian Behaviour," "The Case for Christianity," and "The Problem of Pain," present the evidence and the reflections thereon which serve as a basis for what Lewis is saying in the letters themselves. These works present the argument for accepting some form of Christian doctrine.

• • •

"Christian Behaviour" is a persuasive exposition of Christian morality as summarized in the four cardinal and the three theological virtues. "The Case for Christianity" endeavors to give the universal ground upon which Christianity as a way of life rests. Here Lewis is primarily interested in showing that our behavior is premised on a moral imperative transcendently given and so given can only be acted upon in terms of a faith in a God who has our interests at heart.

"The Problem of Pain," a more extended work than the above two, tries to get at the root matters which perplex the individual when he tries to reflect on the religious experience. Lewis sets forth a coherent and meaningful method whereby such a perplexed individual can understand the role of pain, the paradox of good and evil emanating from one God, and the place of our troubled finite lives in the scheme of things.

This in substance is the way C. S. Lewis appeared to the reader in 1943. Many thousands have already discovered him and have become an endless source of word of mouth advertising of his excellencies. This review will have served its seasonal purpose if its attracts new readers.

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

HENDRIK WILLEM VAN LOON'S death closed one of the most colorful literary lives in America. . . . He was by nature and architecturally one of the biggest men any one ever met—big hearted as he was a giant in stature. . . . He looked as if he should be painted by one of the old Dutch masters. . . . He never, after almost a lifetime in America, lost a faint trace of his Holland accent. . . . I have countless memories of him, all ones that I am sure he would rather I would be thinking about this moment than about his death, for he was a man of life and never one to dwell upon mourning. . . . But there are two which are most characteristic of his generosity, wit and artistic talent.

Strategically Placed.

One time when he was in Chicago between trains I took him to the Arts club for luncheon. . . . That was before the club had moved to the river's edge and while it was still in the North Wrigley building. . . . As we left my office he pulled out of his pocket a marvelous small black enameled watch which was enclosed in its own case when not in use—the kind of thing that in the lush days an admirer would have had designed and made especially by a jeweler in the Rue de la Paix. . . . I admired it, as no one could help doing. . . . "If this had not been given to me by a dear friend, I would give it to you, Fanny," he said, and then I remembered how unsafe it was for any one ever to admire anything that he had, for he would be liable to present it, even to a perfect stranger. . . . He was generosity itself in lots of ways. . . . I was, of course, covered with embarrassment at not having remembered his propensity to give away his possessions [the only thing he never parted with was his box of water color paints, especially designed to fit into his vest pocket].

As we went into the Wrigley building we passed a handsome jewelry shop. . . . On the second floor was an impressive fur shop. . . . With a twinkle in his eye, he said, "I never saw a more strategically placed club for a lady to invite a gentleman to lunch."

On the Back of a Menu.

The gentleman had invited the lady—the ladies, that is—to dinner one evening in Paris. . . . There were, besides me, Edna Ferber and a girl neither of us knew. . . . Hendrik Van Loon took us to Voisin, one of the great restaurants of Paris. . . . Above the banquettes the walls were lined with mirrors. . . . Edna Ferber sat so that her back and half-profile were reflected in the mirror which Mr. Van Loon faced.

We had a marvelous dinner, Hendrik ordered the best of the vintage wines which the famous cellar offered, out came his fountain pen, and, while he was talking, he began drawing something on the back of the menu. . . . We paid no attention to him, for we all knew that what he was drawing he would either show us when it was finished or he wouldn't, and conversation about the matter wouldn't change his intent in the slightest. . . . So we went on talking and soon noticed that our waiter was doing an inordinate amount of hovering. . . . Soon he was joined by the wine waiter. . . . Then a waiter from a neighboring table made a third onlooker. . . . When the little box of paints came out and he began coloring the drawing there was great chatter among the waiters. . . . It was a miracle what Monsieur was doing. . . . But it was not possible, said another. . . . The third, not to be outdone, countered with the French equivalent of "But definitely."

A Beautiful Portrait.

Then one of the waiters, before we had a chance to look at it at all, took the menu out of Monsieur's hand and went to summon the head waiter himself. . . . When that august gentleman, who had become a past master in magnificently snubbing the great and the rich, the titled and the lowly alike in the grand manner, arrived, he was, to our astonishment, radiating smiles as a fireworks pinwheel radiates sparks. . . . We had been wondering if it was some venal crime which Hendrik had committed in maiming the menu. . . . The head waiter wanted a largesse which he valued much more than the mere lavish tip which he knew would be his. . . . He wanted to keep the menu, for on it there was the most beautiful little portrait of Miss Ferber's back and of Voisin's decor.

In payment for the work of art Mr. Van Loon was personally invited to have dinner the next evening on the house . . . and the half bottle of rare Burgundy which we had not consumed would, the head waiter said, be waiting for the maestro. . . . And he was a maestro with that pen and that little box of paints. . . . His books, all lavishly illustrated by himself, prove that he had fun with them even when he used them for work.

He Gave Us Laughter.

Irvin Cobb was another of our fabulous literary figures, and another man who would be the last to want to have anything sad recalled about him. . . . When I read of his untimely death [tho he, too, had been ill for too long to make his death a shock to his close friends] I thought, as every one must have, of the laughter he had given the world. . . . And of a special laugh which he had given me.

One Sunday afternoon when I was in New York the Cobbs were having a large cocktail party and, as used to happen in those days, if 50 were invited, sometimes 500 turned up. . . . Irvin Cobb's publisher was going to the party and assured me that I would be welcomed with huzzahs. . . . And I was, because there never was a more cordial host than Irvin Cobb. . . . He plied me with his famous Kentucky white mule. . . . I got a kick out of the party without the mule's help. . . . He took me around and introduced me to every one, even to those he didn't know himself. . . . I went home feeling like a member of the family recently returned from an around the world cruise.

When Traffic Stopped.

The next day, walking down 5th av., I espied Mr. Irvin Cobb going along like a sloop in a heavy sea. . . . He was pretty bulky in those days and needed a lot of room on a sidewalk. . . . When I stopped in front of him, traffic stopped too. . . . He looked at me with happy recognition. "Well, if it isn't little Fanny Butcher from Chicago," he said. "I haven't seen you in a month of Sundays." . . . I let it go at that until I was about to leave, after we had settled our separate universes. . . . "The last Sunday I saw you was yesterday," I said, meanly, and I'll never forget his aghast look as I gayly said good-by.

Well, that's the kind of good-by, a gay one, that he gave life.

Der Fuehrer
BY KONRAD HEIDEN

☛ With deep human understanding, DER FUEHRER tells you just how the wheels go round within the Nazi autocrats. Here you will see Hitler rehearsing important interviews before Hess, 'the human tuning fork.' You will see a modest industrious Himmler who regards mass murder statistically.

☛ The book goes deeper than this. It shows you the relation between the unbalanced, neurotic rulers of Germany and the German soil from which they grew. It is more than biography and more than history. It is a deft, absorbing and successful search for the fundamental factors on which society rests. It is a deliberate, unshrinking analysis of the weakness which can cherish the sinister madness of Nazi government.

☛ The enormous breadth of information, the sound structure of its philosophical thought, will inevitably make this book a factor in the planning of war and peace. Those who read it will know that they have touched the innermost spring of destiny. $3.00

HEART DISEASE IS CURABLE

says Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

- Seven things the doctor does when he examines you for heart trouble.
- Under what conditions may heart sufferers marry?
- Must a heart ailment cause you to give up smoking?
- What kind of heart disease constitutes 90% of the trouble under age 40?
- Why no two kinds of heart trouble are alike.
- The real way to keep fit after 40.

. . . and many other facts that all intelligent men and women want to know about their hearts.

HERE is a readable, non-technical book about heart trouble by a well-known practicing physician. It is a reassuring message to those who know they have heart trouble; an encouragement to those who mistakenly believe they have weak hearts; and a warning to those who might be subject to heart attacks.

Dr. Steincrohn makes it clear to millions of America's heart sufferers (whether real or imagined) that being told you have a heart ailment no longer means: "How long have I got to live?"

He shows you 8 ways to avoid heart trouble if you are in your forties; the 18 most common symptoms of heart trouble, and how to recognize them; the 9 different types of heart disease which you may have, or think you have, and numerous other facts you should know about the hardest-working organ in your body.

"Written for the Laity—Any individual, well or ill, should find much wise counsel. . . . Heart disease needs to be better understood. . . . This book may be read to advantage by one and all."—Connecticut State Medical Journal.

"This is the book to put into the hands o that relative of yours who thinks she has heart trouble. . . . It is optimistic, non-technical, and packed with information."—Book of the Month Club News.

"Dr. Steincrohn was not writing for the profession . . . he was thinking of Mr. and Mrs. Average American . . . and a good job he does of it, too. . . . He has written a book to allay fear and overcome superstition."—Hartford Courant.

Politician's Viewpoint of France's Fall

"TRIUMPH OF TREASON," by Pierre Cot. [Ziff-Davis, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Walter Simmons.

Pierre Cot.

Pierre Cot is one of the sorry little men who clawed and scrambled for power during the last 10 years of the third French republic. His country, unfortunately, had not a single first rate man in public life during that decade. Cot was better than most. At least he was not hypnotized into inaction by Germany's growing might. He tried to get his country ready.

Cot was a professional politician who rode into power in 1936 with the Popular Front, France's version of the New Deal. "We set about reorganizing the nation's collective life," he observes briskly in this long [432 page], deviously reasoned, interesting book. "A purifying breath passed over the face of France."

• • •

Political opponents of the Popular Front [an alliance of liberals and Communists] thought somewhat differently about the "purifying breath," it is sad to report. During this period of bitter economic strife the sitdown strike flowered in all its beauty. The Popular Front outdealt the New Deal, churning up so much dissension and class warfare that many Frenchmen began to look favorably upon fascism.

Whether these "wicked" men—to borrow an adjective from Cot—were traitors for resisting by the means in their power the appropriation of their property is something for history to decide. Certainly no nation ever entered the hour of her trial in such a state of disunity.

Altho concededly partisan, this eye witness account is the first made available by any responsible French official, and is therefore of high importance. Fair minded readers will admit that Cot makes many good points. His analysis of Marshal Petain's two years [1934-'35] as minister of war is devastating. He cuts the ground from under the burlesque Riom trial, showing that the army under its befuddled commanders used only 45 per cent of available first line planes, 55 per cent of the tanks, and 45 per cent of the anti-aircraft guns in the defense of France.

• • •

This is absorbing testimony, in spite of its wordiness, its repetitions, and its occasionally warped reasoning. It is a chronicle of stupidity, complacency, blindness, and incredibly cheap politics, but the historian must have it at his elbow when writing the definitive story of France's last pitiful years.

Humanities Needed in Post-war Plans

"THE HUMANITIES AFTER THE WAR," edited by Norman Foerster. [Princeton University Press, $1.50.]

"PLANETARY DEMOCRACY," by Oliver L. Reiser and Blodwen Davies. [Creative Age, $2.]

The humanities are more and more occupying the minds of those who seriously consider the fate of the world after the war. That we may avoid the errors that led to World War II., the seven writers whose sketches are collected in "The Humanities After the War" call for recognition of the high place the humanities must hold when the need for emphasis on science is past. We must avoid, they say, the "perfection of means and confusion of aims" that marked the period following World War I.

"Planetary Democracy" has nothing to do with Jules Verne, altho to the average reader it might as well. The authors, with good intent, go to great lengths to show the future value of scientific humanism. There probably are some whose minds will find inspiring significance in this book. WILL DAVIDSON.

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

THE turtle dwells 'twixt plated decks, and Ogden Nash's account of the phenomenon, with other remarkable revelations, is now available in the "Ogden Nash Pocket Book," at a quarter. If the publisher had not sent me a copy, I should certainly have bought one at the nearest elevated station.

How many, many things, wonderfully true, yet only vaguely surmised until the appearance of Mr. Nash, have been forever fixed in the mind by this admirable philosopher! Such as that "barmaids are diviner than mermaids," and that "bankers are just like anybody else, except richer." Before Mr. Nash came upon the scene, parents no doubt realized that "a bit of talcum is always walcum," but it is not of record that any of them said so courageously in print. His discovery that too much affection "leads to breaches of promise if you go lavishing it around on red hot momise," is now common knowledge; but who before Mr. Nash had pointed it out in just that way? His opening lines in the present volume contain a lesson for us all; to wit:

It is better in the long run to possess an abcess or a tumor
Than to possess a sense of humor.

Mr. Nash seems to have been around for a long time; yet it was only some 15 years ago, I think, that Tennyson lovers were stopped in their tracks by these memorable early lines of a new poet communing with himself:

I sit in an office at 244 Madison avenue
And say to myself you have a responsible job, havenue?

We are accustomed to him now, and perhaps the time has come to attempt a critical appraisal of his work. I venture to think it very much like itself and agreeably unlike the work of Petrarch and Camoëns, with which it has never been compared.

Unsentimental Poet.

So much for Mr. Nash, who is an established personality and doesn't need my praise. Richard Kirk may not need it either, but I should like to record my pleasure in his delightful volume of verse, "Short Measures," published by Tulane university to celebrate his long service in the English department of that school. Discriminating collectors have long cherished five little books, privately and semi-privately printed, containing specimens of his lapidary genius; they will welcome this first collected edition of some of the best epigrams of our time. There is little sentimental nonsense about Mr. Kirk, and much wry wisdom. Witness his cautious lines to his inamorata:

Since you are beautiful and mine,
And since possessiveness is not
As cool as water, but like wine
Fevers the brain already hot,
Dearest, tho by no fixed design,
I may exaggerate somewhat.

However, there is no cynicism in his philosphy. Here is his "Song of Contentment," which I like as well as anything in the book:

The world's a far, far better place
Than all too many people think,
Who never tarry in their race
To kiss a girl or take a drink.

He is most devastating, I think, in his couplets. Here, in "Truthful Answer," if lovers of St. Vincent will forgive me, is all—well, nearly all—of Edna Millay in two lines:

Will you miss me when I'm gone?
Off and on, off and on.

The philosopher's view of himself, in retrospect, is amused and unromantic; thus:

As I reread my youth's despairing rhyme,
I see I must have suffered in my time.

Of a hurrying traveler he inquires:

What's your destination?
Another filling station?

And if any more spacious observation has been better compressed into two lines, I haven't seen it.

I have refrained from quoting a number of cracks at book collectors and critics because they would have given too much pleasure to my friends.

Some Literary Spoofings.

Two of the happiest and most innocent spoofs of literature, I remind the Newberry library, which is collecting the indiscretions of midwest writers, I hope, as a side issue of its larger project, have been associated with Chicago. In the '80s and '90s of the last century, as Charles H. Dennis has recalled, two masters of the art were settled here in the persons of Eugene Field and Franklin H. Head. Field's spoofs were largely confined to his famous newspaper column, from which incautious readers learned surprising details of the lives of public heroes; but Head's contribution was more strictly literary. In 1886 he published a slim volume in wrappers, "Shakespeare's Insomnia," which is still treasured by collectors. To maintain the thesis that writers express in their works their own sentiments and emotions, he brought together a large number of passages from Shakespeare, indicating that the great man slept badly, then presented overwhelming documentary evidence—all manufactured by himself—that there was good reason for the affliction. Many readers accepted the revelation as gospel, and for a time the "new Shakespeare correspondence" was eagerly sought by visitors to the British museum.

The second item I have in mind is a long poem, "The Last Pagan," published in 1917, by Prof. James Westfall Thompson of the University of Chicago, thru the Chicago Literary club. Outfitted with all the devices of scholarship—notes, references, glossary, appendices, bibliography, and a voluminous historical introduction—it purported to be Prof. Thompson's translation of mediaeval manuscript, discovered by him in Montpellier, in France. So expert was the hoax that the work might easily have been accepted at face value—i. e., as what it purported to be—had not the professor calmly admitted authorship as soon as the question came up. In its own right, "The Last Pagan" is a delightful echo of Matthew Arnold in the stanzas of FitzGerald's "Omar Khayyam."

Every Act in Rio Cabana's Revue a Stellar One

Joan Merrill, Jerry Bergen Highlight Bill

By Will Davidson.

Believe it not, if you prefer, but the Rio Cabana has almost too much talent for its current show. Not that I regret the presence of a solidly entertaining group of acts. Not at all. That's the all too infrequently answered prayer of the cafe goer. It merely happens that the talent in this Rio show is so good that it is difficult to arrange a program that will do justice for all.

Lei Lan Toy. [Korman photo.]

Item by item, there's Joan Merrill, the star, who is one of the finest singers in the business. She has a highly appealing voice and a good presentation. She can swing from "Yodeling Jive" to the lachrimose "How Did He Look?" with no letdown of effect.

There is Jerry Bergen, one of the funniest men in the world. His pantomime is classic. When he dozes off during an orchestral interlude of his violin solo he is the essence of pathetic, warm hearted, ridiculous humanity. His bewildered collaboration with husky Allegro, who is quite a singer in her own right, is joyful.

Then there are the Chadwickes, who bring to the ballroom dance team field a breathtaking series of maneuvers, expertly done. They are show stoppers. There is, also, Lyda Sue, an acrobatic dancer of definite quality. Pretty, supple and unafraid, she is a flash act of high caliber.

But what to do? You have to put Joan in the final spot, and Lyda Sue is a very valuable opening feature. So you don't follow a dance act with a dance act, and that leaves second spot to Jerry Bergen. A very bad spot for him, indeed, for he deserves more time, a better audience buildup. I can well imagine Producer Sammy Rose's headache over this impasse.

It's a very good show, tho. Terry O'Donnell does the m. c. chores politely, and the Rio Rita girls appear in flashy costumes. They were pretty badly lost on opening night, but no doubt have learned their routines by now. Crawford Price, miniature dancer-singer, emceed their opening number, "Memory Lane." Eddie Fens carries on.

• • •

The bistro buds are burgeoning still. The Palmer House, revelling in the business drummed up by its favorite character, Hildegarde, is hoping fondly that its April 6 show, starring Larry Adler and Carmen Cavallaro's band, and featuring Mario and Floria, Camilla Lane, Ladd Lyon and the Abbott dancers, will be a successful follow-up. There should be no worry about that—the new show certainly has talent.

The Bismarck unhappily finds itself forced to part with the beautiful Talia after next Saturday. She goes to the Wedgewood room of the Waldorf Astoria in New York, her best break to date. No replacement has been announced. But up in the Tavern room on April 7 they will unveil Eddy Cramer, violinist, and his orchestra. He will replace the long run and popular Armand Buisseret. And down in the Bismarck Inn they have installed Henri Kublick and his protean symphonichord. It imitates about a dozen instruments.

Friday is the day the Latin Quarter brings in Hannah Williams for a limited engagement. The current show is still talent packed despite Buddy Lester's departure to the navy. Connie Russell's elegant songs, the matchless entertainment of Day, Dawn and Dusk, Val Irving's comedy, and most recently the sparkling and suave dancing of those Chicago favorites, Mack Lathrop and Virginia Lee, combine with the dazzling production numbers staged by Dorothy Hild [who is doing the sort of work that should make some veteran producers search their souls and see if they haven't been resting on dusty laurels]. Irv Kostel's wide awake music is a perennial strong feature, too.

The Panther room of the Hotel Sherman has by now installed Teddy Powell's band, and as a reliefer, Hot Lips Page.

The Edgewater Beach now has a show featuring Dawn and Russell, dancers, and Phil Kinsman, baritone, with the Dorothy Dorben girls and Eddy Oliver's orchestra. On April 8 Miss Dorben will open her annual springtime blossom festival revue.

The Aragon will have a double header Easter party, with departing Eddy Howard co-featured with incoming Eddie Stone, now fronting Buddy Franklin's orchestra. The Trianon will do the same, featuring current Lawrence Welk, with returning Don Reid.

• • •

Current attraction at the Blackhawk is Del Courtney, a national favorite. The show includes increasingly popular Hermann Leopoldi, Viennese song caricaturist, and the Toy sisters—two beautiful and talented Chinese dancers. . . . George Olsen has come back to Chicago and now is starring in the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel. Singers Judith Blair and Marshall Gill are featured. The Stevens has renamed the beloved old Continental room the "Park Row," and is featuring it as a quiet, beautiful restaurant.

War Comedy Divides N. Y. Drama Critics

By John Chapman.

NEW YORK [Special].—The next-to-best thing about the eagerly expected "Jacobowsky and the Colonel" is that it has made things nice and unfriendly. The best thing is the acting of a Viennese, Oscar Karlweis, whose only other appearance here was in "Rosalinda."

A difference of opinion is a helpful thing anywhere, and in the theater it makes for good dirty fun. Reviewers were divided on "Jacobowsky," with one of the gentlemen swooning with pleasure, several saying they could take it or leave it, and the rest saying they didn't want any. The World Telegram's Burton Rascoe got quite shirty over Tyrone Power's French wife, Annabella, who has the leading feminine role. Burton started off by saying "an incredibly talentless actress made me so spiritually ill that . . ."

Well, that made the Theater Guild and Jack Skirball, associate producers of "Jacobowsky," mad. They bought special space in the Rascoe paper the next day proclaiming the virtues of Annabella and quoting 15 critics, including those of the Washington Post, Washington Star, Boston Herald, Boston American, and Philadelphia Inquirer, all of whom thought Annabella was pretty cute.

It made Annabella, herself, mad. Next day she figured if Rascoe was ill he'd better have something to fix him up, so she sent him the biggest bottle of castor oil she could find in a drug store. The stage season, which up to now has been so polite it's painful, is at last taking on some character.

• • •

"Jacobowsky and the Colonel" is a handsome big production with several sets by Stewart Chaney. It concerns six days of June, 1940, when the Nazis are invading France. In a Paris hotel cellar we find a proprietress, various French characters, Col. Stjerbinsky of the Polish cavalry, the colonel's personal sergeant, and a little wandering Jew named S. L. Jacobowsky—pronounced Yakobowsky.

• • •

The Nazis are at the gates of Paris and it is necessary for the colonel to get away from there—not from fear, for he is a haughty, self-approving fellow, but because he has some "papers" vital to the Polish government in exile in London. Jacobowsky offers to get him out if the colonel will take him along—but Jacobowsky is just one of the little people and the colonel ignores him even when he's listening to him.

The little man is undaunted, for things have been against him all his life. He has fled from Poland to Vienna, Vienna to Prague, Prague to Paris, and now he must be on the move again—to America this time, he hopes. Adversity, the necessity for always having to fight and scheme for the little he has got, has made Jacobowsky very intelligent, very resourceful and—because it's the best way to get along—extremely likable. Shrugging off the colonel's rude hauteur, he goes out and buys one of the last automobiles in Paris. The colonel grandly accepts the machine and reluctantly accepts Jacobowsky's company.

• • •

With the sergeant, off they go—but not directly southwest to the colonel's rendezvous with an English speedboat at St. Jean de Luz. They have to go northwest into German territory first, to pick up the colonel's girl.

The best comedy in the play ensues. The girl finds Jacobowsky ingratiating and enjoys his wit. This makes the humorless colonel furious, for he can't say anything to make the girl laugh. It matters not that Jacobowsky has talked gasoline out of French cops, food out of hungry people; the colonel must fight a pistol duel to bolster his lagging self-esteem. It is a funny scene, the start of this duel, since Jacobowsky has removed the cartridges from the guns.

At this point the first of the Germans walk in. Jacobowsky easily talks everybody's way out of this jam, and soon the expedition is headed south again. When, after suitable adventures, they arrive at the rendezvous, they learn that the English rescue boat will take only two—and they now are five: Jacobowsky, the colonel, the girl, the sergeant, and the French waif they've picked up. And here is the least believable, most undramatic scene in the play.

• • •

With German patrols approaching and not a minute to lose, the colonel, Jacobowsky, and the girl argue about who should go. Jacobowsky is chosen, for, the colonel realizes, a wily head like his will fight well for Poland. The girl says "I'll be waiting" [the scene is something like the parting of Michele Morgan and Paul Henreid in the movie, "Joan of Paris"], the boat moves off, the child sleeps, and the sergeant sits down and plays "La Marseillaise" on a mouth organ.

A Little About the Movies on City's Screens

"Three Russian Girls." Working as a Russian Red Cross nurse, Natasha, played by Anna Sten, falls in love with Kent Smith, an American pilot. The film displays the fighting spirit of the Russian women. Oriental.

• • •

"Lifeboat." Following a ship's sinking, an oddly assorted group of survivors, live nightmarish days and nights together in a lifeboat. It stars Tallulah Bankhead and has a supporting cast of William Bendix, Mary Anderson, and Walter Slezak. Apollo.

• • •

"Lost Angel." A tale of wee Margaret O'Brien, a foundling, who has been selected by a group of scientists to be their subject for experiments on scientific methods to raise children. Margaret, however, finds her own way to live and worms herself into the hearts of James Craig and Marsha Hunt. Chicago.

• • •

"Tender Comrade." A film for and about women, relates how four girls, their husbands in the service, work and live together. Ginger Rogers is the star, and there are flashbacks of her life before the war with her husband Robert Ryan. Ruth Hussey and Kim Hunter also are in the cast. Palace.

• • •

"The Lady and the Monster." A psychological drama concerning a doctor who preserved a functioning brain after death. The film has weird settings, an eerie atmosphere and suspense. Its stars are Vera Hruba Ralston, Richard Arlen, and Eric Von Stroheim. Woods.

• • •

"Jane Eyre." Jane Eyre [Joan Fontaine], Edward Rochester [Orson Welles] and towering Thornfield hall come to life from Charlotte Bronte's widely read novel. Little Margaret O'Brien also is in the cast. United Artists.

• • •

• • •

"Government Girl." Gay is the story about an efficient secretary portrayed by Olivia De Havilland and her towering boss, Sonny Tufts, in the packed city of Washington, D. C. Anne Shirley and Jess Barker also add to the swirling drama. Grand.

• • •

"The Song of Bernadette." This is the story of Bernadette Soubirous, a peasant girl in old France, who saw a vision in a grotto near her home. The news stirs the town and upon investigation it is found that the water in the grotto is a healing cure for the sick. Jennifer Jones heads the cast. State-Lake.

• • •

"The Return of the Vampire." A horror picture starring Bela Lugosi and Frieda Inescort. A vampire, dead for more than 20 years, arises during an air blitz and is once more on the loose to spread his terror. Garrick.

• • •

"The Purple Heart." Tracing the history of the Purple Heart from its founding by George Washington, the story is carried up to the present war and tells of the heroic Tokio flyers as prisoners of the Japs. Roosevelt.

• • •

WHIT BURNETT

This is a book about the human spirit ... a book of stories, by half a hundred of the greatest authors of our age, whose inward vision and intensity explore the secret places of man's soul. They are stories in whose resurgent faith you will find, in full measure, true inspiration and release.

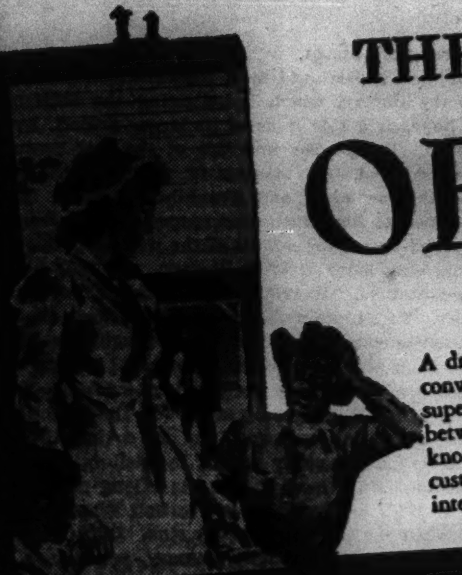
A STORY PRESS BOOK. $3.00

A rousing novel of the high, hard plains where weaklings have no place

by the author of JUBAL TROOP

THE BOWL OF BRASS

By Paul I. Wellman



A dramatic novel of the days when tough men fought to convert the old cattle-empires into farming land ... the superbly told story of a family caught in the vortex of a feud between two mushroom towns. The author of JUBAL TROOP knows the plains as few men know them, and the land, its customs and its people here come alive with a reality and intensity certain to make this his most popular novel. $2.75

USSR

THE STORY OF SOVIET RUSSIA

How and why the USSR came to its present stature is the theme of this new book by the one man best qualified to tell the epic story. Beginning with the causes, meaning and aims of the Soviet Revolution, Walter Duranty unfolds Russia's heroic development down to the present moment.

Twenty-six years of a drama without parallel in history are given their proper setting in the light of concrete facts. Much of this drama Mr. Duranty witnessed during his years as a correspondent in Russia. His history has the vivid exactness of a participant, the brilliant interpretation of an informed student.

How a Wandering
Beggar Healed a War-Torn World..

IN THE BLACK, STORMY DAYS OF THE 13TH CENTURY the civilized world was a boiling cauldron of bitter struggles and clashing ideals. Times were much as they are today. Men's hearts were inflamed with hate; their hands busy with the weapons and machines of war.

But through this time of blackness there walked a man spreading the light of a strange ideal that he held aloft like a torch. A small, tattered grey man who lived off beggar's fare, but spoke of a glorious life that soared free above the sorrows of earthly striving. His name was Francis of Assisi. His life and his ideal have been the inspiration for this great new historical novel. At your bookstore, $3.00.

Bodmer Book on Language Is Exciting

"THE LOOM OF LANGUAGE," by Frederick Bodmer. [Norton, $3.75.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle.

Whether you have an interest only in the native language you speak, or whether you have an additional interest in any language spoken anywhere else in the world, this book will inform and excite you.

The author begins with the origin of the alphabet, and if you think that is a dull subject, then I urge you to read the chapter devoted to it. The illustrations of the compared alphabets, ancient and modern, are surprisingly good and show great ingenuity in tracing resemblances. Bodmer then shows the method and reason for organizing letters into words and words into sentences, analyzes the Teutonic and Latin influences on English, and urges an international language based on the root words commonest to modern languages.

• • •

He concludes with a section called the "Language Museum." In it he collects the basic words in nine languages and compares them with the same words in English. This is the first time, to my knowledge, that a basic English vocabulary has been matched with an equally basic vocabulary in so many other languages.

The result is of extraordinary interest. "Arm" is identical in English, Swedish, Danish, Dutch, and German. The only word of nearly the same form in English, French, Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian is "mule," which may mean something so dreadful it is probably best not to look too deeply.

Some of the facts turned up by Bodmer are of special interest. The Teutonic remnants in Spanish refer to war and feudal custom; Russian has no possessive verb "to have"; in Vienna one says Guten Morgen only on arriving at a place, but in Berlin one may say it when leaving.

• • •

There are other stories worth repeating, like the finding of the Rosetta stone, which gave the key to the ancient Egyptian language, by a Frenchman serving with Napoleon in Egypt. For these you will have to read the book yourself.

I have only one criticism: The author should have taken his own advice about the beauty of fair simplicity in writing. Too often the style is heavy beyond need, as when Bodmer says that a language purged of its "redundant word forms would take its place unobtrusively in a program of general elementary instruction in semantics and etymology." I must recommend to the author a careful reading of his own book.

Troubled Waters of Broadway Are Full of Odd Fish

"NEVER WHISTLE IN A DRESSING ROOM," by Maurice Zolotow. [Dutton, $2.75.]

Broadway and its tributary side streets form a human river system which drains one of the wackiest, most variegated lands in the world. It is the land of show business. Explorer of this turbulent river is Maurice Zolotow. He has trudged along the banks, waded thru quiet sloughs and chattering rapids, fishing, dredging, and in more than one sense of the word, panning.

He comes up with Broadway Rose, the fabulous panhandler; with Duke Ellington, the Duke of Hot; with Jack White, who made a success by insulting his night club customers; with Columnist Hy Gardner, who discovered that in one year he spent $138.25 checking his $3.75 hat and thereupon gave up wearing hats. Most of Zolotow's sketches have appeared in magazines; but they are high entertainment. He finds in his zany subjects more genuine, if slightly cockeyed, humanity than Lucius Beebe ever did in his "platinum pavilions of pish posh." WILL DAVIDSON.

Small Company Encouraged by Selection of Book Club

By Harry Hansen.

New York.

WHEN a book club chooses a novel for distribution even the most experienced publisher is pleased, for it means immediate payment of a fairly large sum and the prospect that the book so chosen will be in general demand. But when "Blessed Are the Meek," by Zofia Kossak, was chosen, the response in the office of the publisher was enthusiastic. This is published by Roy Publishers, a little house organized in New York by the Kisters, man and wife, who used to own a large publishing house in Warsaw. Trying to establish themselves anew with limited means in the United States, they have issued a few books, all worthy of publication, and hoped for a rainbow. When "Blessed Are the Meek" was chosen Mrs. Kister was in the middle west selling books. She was very tired and when talking with her husband over the telephone from Indianapolis suggested that this piece of luck ought to permit her to return home, to which he agreed.

"We were so happy about the choice," said Mrs. Kister, "that we sent the news to Poland by radio. The author lives in Warsaw and her husband is in a concentration camp; we don't know much about him, except that he is alive. We decided to devote some of the money we will receive from this sale to the translation of American books into Polish, for distribution in Poland. We are going to publish the Stettinius book about lend-lease, the history of the United States by Allan Nevins, a book of extracts from American writings and a book on post-war plans. First we will make editions of 5,000 copies. Can we get them into Poland, you ask? O, yes, the books will get in somehow." Mrs. Kister said this quietly and confidently.

Scribner-Collier Party.

Maxwell Perkins has a big name in the publishing world, but few people see him. He is the quiet, calm editor for Charles Scribner's Sons. He was F. Scott Fitzgerald's editor and Thomas Wolfe's, and his acceptance of "This Side of Paradise" took courage, but it put the house of John Galsworthy firmly on the side of the moderns. The other day two Scribner authors, Kyle Crichton and Robert Gessner, decided to give a cocktail party for Mr. Perkins. It was held in Crichton's apartment in 66th st., a relic of the days of marble opulence which must have ghosts of railway presidents and investment executives parading the staircases. Mr. Crichton, however, has no conservative views. He is the author of a novel, "The Proud People," while Mr. Gessner has just written another novel about Benedict Arnold, "Treason." Mr. Crichton is an editor of Collier's and at one time was an editor of Scribner's. So the place was full of Scribner and Collier people. I saw Edward Bernays, Bernard Sobel, Donald Ogden Stewart, Whitney Darrow, William Weber, George Seldes, John McCaffrey, Herbert Asbury, Eugene Meyer, Charles Scribner, and many others.

William Allen White Memorial.

New York City, which usually forgets people who have died, seems to be doing a bit more thinking than usual about the deaths of a number of authors: William Allen White, Irvin S. Cobb, Hendrik van Loon, James Boyd, Joseph Lincoln, and John W. Thomason. Usually it leaves memorials to the families, but in this instance associates and organizations have paid respect to the dead. But however deeply the loss of these men is felt, there is nothing doleful about the memorials.

I have already mentioned here the meeting held by the editors of the Book of the Month club; this organization has now published a booklet about William Allen White, which bears a smiling, happy portrait of the editor on the title page. Other illustrations show him in Emporia and New York. In addition to articles by Henry S. Canby and Dorothy Canfield there is a description by Harry Scherman of the telegraphic correspondence he carried on with White, in which White expressed himself with characteristic frankness about books under consideration. Reporting on a book that bewildered him he wired: "As I read I thought, 'Well, maybe this is symbolism,' but I got to thinking, 'No, this is alcoholism.' My final conclusion is that it is gibberish."

Of another book he wrote: "The decorative writing of first half makes it pretty terrible. I mean those lugged-in and pinned-on metaphors, similes and tropes which are like pimento strips on a salad or paper panties on a mutton chop." Of another he wrote: "The adulteries become too monotonous after the first half dozen. They are repetitious and one longs somehow for good, vigorous criminal assault and battery."

"Life Was Interesting."

Irvin S. Cobb got into the talk of the town not by dying but by writing that amusing letter for posthumous publication. That will be reprinted for many years. When Hendrik van Loon wrote a friend, "It must be fine to go like that," he meant the spirit in the letter, for Cobb had been ill a long time. Van Loon had been warned to slow down because of his heart and had given up his public activities; in the end he went without warning, just as Alexander Woollcott did. A few weeks ago he wrote a friend about his enforced vacation and remarked that his life had not been happy, but very interesting, and then he fell back on German, as he so often did, to express his idea in a phrase: "Es war am Ende doch verdammt interessant." This reminds me of the reservation in the 1944 New Year's greeting he sent me, written on one of his drawings: "I wish you a tolerably happy New Year," said he. The publishing world paid tribute to him at his funeral; he had books with about five publishers and all were represented. He was buried on a sunny hill in Old Greenwich, a town founded before the American Revolution and not to be confused with the modern Greenwich in which all the bankers live.

I used to see James Boyd at lunch when he was up from the Carolinas; lately he had been doing work in Princeton. We both ate at the same long table in a midtown club. He told me that the editors of the Rivers of America series had been trying to get him to write a book on the Cape Fear river and I urged him to do it, but he was reluctant to start. He wrote sparingly, but everything he did had fine workmanship. I asked him why he did not write more historical novels and he described his theory to me. "After all, an author has only one real story in him," he said, "and all of his books are variations of that one. I don't want to repeat myself too much." He was the conscious artist, not the writer who must fill reams of paper or explode. In this he was the opposite of Hendrik van Loon, to whom writing was as natural as breathing.

CHICAGO Movies SUBURBAN

Notes of Music and Musicians

By Albert Goldberg

The Apollo Musical club will give its second concert of the season at Orchestra hall Wednesday at 8:15 with Edgar Nelson directing and members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra furnishing the accompaniments. Two choral works will be presented, Dvorak's "Stabat Mater" and Brahms' "A German Requiem." Soloists will be Florence Edwards, soprano; Ruth Heizer, contralto; Ralph Nylund, tenor, and Bruce Foote, baritone.

Current Music News

The long awaited American premiere of Dimitri Shostakovich's Eighth symphony, will take place in a broadcast by the New York Philharmonic conducted by Artur Rodzinski next Sunday afternoon, April 2, at 2. The score was brought to this country last month by Bill Downs, CBS correspondent, on his return from Moscow. The world premiere of the symphony took place in Moscow last Nov. 4. Shostakovich already is at work on his Ninth symphony, which, together with the Seventh and Eighth, is planned as a trilogy of war and peace. Mr. Downs reports that in Russia the Seventh is known as "The Retreat," the Eighth as "The Attack," and the Ninth as "Victory."

• • •

In honor of the 70th birthday of Arnold Schönberg, the magazine Modern Music in its forthcoming issue will devote three articles to that much discussed modernist, in addition to three sketches, two of them self-portraits. Ernest Krenek will write of Schonberg's 12 tone system, Lou Harrison will review his latest works, including the piano concerto, and Kurt List will analyze the composer's new "Ode to Napoleon," scheduled for performance next fall.

• • •

The choir of the Evangelical Lutheran church, Belmont and Greenview avs., will present "The Reproaches on Good Friday" [Improperia] by Tomás Luis de Victoria and "The Passion According to St. John" by Heinrich Schuetz tonight at 7:45. The presentation of the Schuetz work is said to be the first in the middle west since 1899.

• • •

The Chicago Symphonique orchestra, under the direction of Sarah Louise Bates, will give its second concert in Curtiss hall tonight at 8:15. David Moll, a member of the first violin section of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will play Mozart's Concerto No. 4, in D major, and orchestral selections include the overture to Gluck's "Iphigenia in Aulis," Schubert's Unfinished Symphony and the waltz from Tschaikowsky's "Sleeping Beauty."

• • •

The date of the fourth Composers concert sponsored by the music department of the University of Chicago at Mandel hall, has been changed from April 7 to April 14, at 8. Compositions of Aaron Copland, Remi Gassmann, and Virgil Thomson will be presented. The composers will participate, assisted by the University Chamber orchestra under Hans Lange's direction, Janet Fairbank, soprano; Edmund Kurtz, cellist, and five instrumentalists from the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

"LIFEBOAT"

Talullah Bankhead plays the feminine lead in "Lifeboat." The film also features William Bendix, John Hodiak and Walter Slezak. At the Apollo.

BOOK NEWS AND REVIEWS

Huron First in Series of Lake History

"LAKE HURON," by Fred Landon. [Bobbs-Merrill, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst.

It is good news that at last the Great Lakes are to be the subject of a series of books by an accomplished group of historians. To a host of readers the "American Lakes Series" should make known in a new measure the drama and romance, the beauty and significance of the world's greatest fresh water seas.

Mr. Landon's "Lake Huron" is a happy volume to inaugurate the series, and it sets an impressive standard in the writing of historical narrative. Huron was the first of the lakes to be discovered by Europeans, and the first to be navigated by the canoes and bateaux of the French explorers, traders, and priests.

• • •

It is a curious fact that the French found the lakes midway in their extent—first looking over the wide waters of Georgian bay—and that they pressed on to the uttermost shores of Lake Superior and Lake Michigan before learning of the existence of Lakes Erie and Ontario. So Lake Huron has a longer history than Massachusetts. In the three and a half centuries of Mr. Landon's chronicle the blue waters carry a romantic sequence of craft, from the birch canoe of the Indians to the 600 foot freighters of today.

There are many memorable scenes and episodes in this richly laden book. No reader will forget the sketch of Mackinac Island with the white houses against the forest, the St. Clair river with its busy commerce thru three centuries, the historic port of Collingwood, and the lonely shores of Manitoulin Island.

• • •

Here is history warmed by love of the land and the water. More of Lake Huron lies in Canada than in the United States, and it is fitting that a Canadian historian should have told this story. He brings to it a sweeping breadth of view and a living sense of history. And he makes it an absorbing narrative.

How Life Looked to a Small Girl in a Mining Town

"LATCHSTRING OUT," by Skulda V. Banér. [Houghton Mifflin, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil.

Full of lusty, big hearted Swedish men and talkative, gregarious Swedish women, this story of a small girl's life in a mining town of upper Michigan in the early 1900s is as charming and moving a picture of the lives of simple people as one will encounter in years of reading.

One can almost smell the coffee eternally cooking or warming on the stove, and taste the flavor of the sprits [a kind of Swedish cookie] which they devoured with their coffee at all hours, as page after page recounts how the narrow village world looked to a little girl steeped in Swedish culture by a father who was a poet and newspaper editor.

Dancing and song, as well as broad Swedish humor, with now and then a touch of the sadness that often sweeps like a wind driven mist across the Scandinavian nature, are expressed in writing that often achieves beauty and is always endearing. Perhaps in her next book the author will use this technique for something more substantial than this autobiographical work, which is just a little too episodic and formless, and depends too much on its material for its interest.

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Charles Collins.

THE literary backgrounds of the war on the Russian front will presently include, we feel, a famous shrine of horror stories—nothing less than the castle of Count Dracula, in the wildest part of the Carpathian mountains. The German occupation of Hungary was partly motived, perhaps, by the desire to hold this place on the Borgo pass, for Hitler ought to have been born there. The Russian pressure on Bessarabia should soon come within howling distance of the vampires and werewolves in Dracula's preserves.

• • •

See the description of the location of this horrendous chateau in Bram Stoker's classic of supernatural shudders, which was written in 1897:

"I find that the district he named is in the extreme east of the country, just on the borders of three states—Transylvania, Moldavia, and Bukovina—in the midst of the Carpathian mountains; one of the wildest and least known portions of Europe." Bessarabia is a close neighbor to these provinces of modern Rumania, and Dracula's attendant vampires are, no doubt, in a high state of excitement as the war approaches their domain.

• • •

"Dracula," as book, play, and movie, was the parent of the present trend toward horror in literary entertainment. Its author was too busy, as business manager of Henry Irving's theatrical enterprises to be a copious producer of fiction, and his few lesser works have been quite forgotten. But "Dracula," a veritable textbook on vampirism and lycanthropy, is a towering monument in the field of fiendish fantasy. Incidentally, it contains the rules that should govern the burial of Hitler, who may be a reincarnation of Count Dracula: Drape a string of garlic around his neck and drive a stake thru his gizzard. It's the only way such spirits can be held down.

• • •

A collection of short stories dealing with the supernatural from the pen of an accepted tho not widely known master of the genre is among the recent reprints. This is "The Best Ghost Stories of M. R. James" [World Publishing company]. Here is a generous assortment of admirable tales, two of which, "The Mezzotint" and "The Treasure of Abbot Thomas," have been honored by inclusion in several anthologies.

Montague Rhodes James was a professional antiquarian, and his stories give delightful evidence of his scholarship. He was associated with Cambridge university for many years, and the last 18 years of his long life, which ended in 1936, were spent as provost of Eton college. The writing of ghost stories was his hobby, and, once a year, in the Christmas season, a group of Cambridge dons assembled at King's college to hear him read his latest tale of hauntings, yawning graveyards, and hellish apparitions, plausibly reported. He wrote much on learned subjects, and his fiction is represented by only five titles, published between 1905 and 1931.

• • •

"The Dictionary of Americanisms," which the University of Chicago is planning as a tailpiece to its "Dictionary of American English," is described by its author, M. M. Mathews, as follows:

"It will attempt to include every word that originated in this country, and every word to which this country gave a meaning different from its usage in its homeland." Slang that has been in use long enough to have found a more or less permanent place in the popular speech will be included.

This column hopes that "Americanisms" will give some attention to Christian names, many of which have an American flavor. For example, the name "Delos," which is not uncommon. We have never run across it as an English name. Its classic Greek origin is apparent, and its use may have started in the "Greek revival" period, which scattered the names of ancient Greek and Roman cities all over the American map.

• • •

The passage in Dickens' "American Notes" which fastens upon Cairo, Ill., the questionable honor of having been the Eden of "Martin Chuzzlewit" runs, in part, as follows:

"A dismal swamp on which the half-built houses rot away, cleared here and there for a space of a few yards, and teeming then with unwholesome vegetation in whose baleful shade the wretched wanderers who are tempted hither droop and die and lay down their bones; the hateful Mississippi circling and eddying before it and turning off on its southern course, a slimy monster hideous to behold; a hotbed of disease, an ugly sepulcher, a grave uncheered by any gleam of promise: a place without one single quality in earth or air or water to commend it: Such is this dismal Cairo."

THE JUNIOR BOOKSHELF

By Agatha L. Shea.

TITLE.	SUBJECT.	VERDICT.
"THE TANGLED WEB," by Estelle Urbahns. [Dutton, $2.]	Lin Fen, Chinese war orphan and apprentice to Chang, the master potter, was overjoyed when his master permitted him to handle the one irreplaceable teapot, which was the shop's most prized possession. Then came the accident, the shattered porcelain cover, and great grief to Lin Fen. The boy's first thought is to protect himself, but his sense of honor and his respect for his master win out, and the accident becomes not a tragedy but an opportunity.	An inspiring little story of Chinese life, emphasizing the value of honesty, courage, and sympathetic human relationships. Simply written, presenting with dignity and understanding a boy's story which adults as well as the middle graders will enjoy. Illustrated by Frank Lieberman.
"MADE IN CHINA," by Cornelia Spencer. [Knopf, $3.]	Excellent account of China's contribution to the culture and knowledge of the world with an explanatory foreword by Lin Yutang. Discusses not only the product but the spirit of the worker behind it.	One of the most valuable additions of permanent value to the Young Reader's Library. Numerous illustrations by Kurt Wiese, and beautiful photographic reproductions of bronzes and porcelains.
"CHINA'S FIRST LADY," by Helen Nicolay. [Appleton-Century, $3.]	Story of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek and her famous family's contributions to the rebuilding of China.	Author has succeeded in passing on to young readers the charm and graciousness of this able and courageous woman of our day.

GIRL STARS IN TALE OF SPIES IN POLAND

Thrills and Chills Make Tense Drama

"WHILE STILL WE LIVE," by Helen MacInnes. [Little, Brown, $2.75].

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher.

Helen MacInnes.

No book today is more exciting than a thriller of espionage and counter espionage, and nobody knows how to write such a book better than Helen MacInnes, whose "Assignment in Brittany" gave us such spine tingles. "While Still We Live" has the advantage over "Assignment in Brittany" of being longer and of having as main character a girl who takes almost as many and as hazardous chances as did Martin Hearne in the earlier novel.

Sheila Mathews, an English girl, was the posthumous daughter of a man who a generation before had helped Poland as a secret agent in the other war and had died in it. Her uncle as well as her father was in the British secret service and it was thru those contacts that Sheila found herself in a Polish village when the Germans basely attacked Poland.

• • •

Young Andrew Aleksander, who had come to London with letters to Sheila's family, fell in love with Sheila and invited her to visit his family in Poland. She had gone, unsure of her feelings for Andrew. She had stayed, sure of her feelings about his family, happy and loath to leave the first real family life that she had ever known. At the last moment, when powerful influences tried to get her out of Warsaw, she was so disgusted at the way other "foreigners" were acting about getting away that she angrily turned to an elbowing woman who carried a dog under her arm and said clearly, "Don't worry, your dog can have my place on the train." And when she was urged to get aboard the last train out of Poland, she scornfully pointed to the frantic humans and asked, "With THESE objects?" She walked out of the station and into as exciting and terrifying a series of adventures as any girl in either fact or fiction has ever encountered.

She was suspected of trafficking with the Germans and grilled by the Polish. She was mistaken for a German secret agent and had a terrific time proving her English identity. Then she became a secret agent herself and every hour was filled with suspicion and terror.

• • •

But it is not the large outline of the story but the daily, hourly tensity which thrills the reader. There are seconds upon which fate hangs. Sheila's pretended mother's name, misspoken by her questioner, is a trap which almost closes upon her, for instance, when she is posing as Anna Braun. A glance misinterpreted may bring death; an eye, unlighted in recognition, may mean life. And so skillful is Helen MacInnes in her story telling that it is not Sheila's life alone that hangs upon that thread of chance but, vicariously, the reader's. Impossible as it would be for any of us to have been Sheila, miraculously we ARE and we live 10,000 deaths and reprieves with her.

"While Still We Live" is, besides a thriller de luxe, a very moving record of Polish courage in the horrors of Warsaw, of Polish bravery in the guerrilla and underground movements, of a spirit which neither Nazi brute force nor Nazi Gestapo cleverness could kill.

Solid Significance in Vast Reach of Historical Novel

"BLESSED ARE THE MEEK," by Zofia Kossak, translated by Rulka Langer. [Roy Publishers, $3.]

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan.

This oversize novel, the April choice of one of the book clubs, will give any careful reader a vast lot of fictionized history, a subtle sense of the very real anticipation in the past of certain present day conflicts, and an impressive and meaningful, tho often too widely panoramic, narrative.

"Blessed Are the Meek" has most of the marks, the now standardized conventions, which the so-called "historical novel" has picked up in the course of its own history. It has the familiar pageantry, the broad sweep of event, the omniscient point of view, the heavy historical trimming [battle-axe and armor period], and even occasionally the hackneyed lo-and-behold manner.

• • •

Technically, it is not always a satisfying book. It may be that the constant striving for breadth, the concern about getting in dozens of characters and covering wide geographical areas, results in a kind of diffusion of effect. Or it may be that the intensive loading on of period detail impedes the story.

Whatever the cause, the narrative does often get along in jumps and spurts between rather heavily congested passages. And tho it would be unfair to apply to a novel of this kind and scope the stricter technical standards of more compact, more integrated work, still one may wish that the author had been as keen and expert in her craftsmanship as she is informed and inventive in her subject matter.

• • •

But despite its occasional heaviness the book adds up to real and solid significance. The slight figure of St. Francis of Assisi, weaving in and out of the glitter and clash of other showier figures, is without doubt the greatest single source of meaning. Yet the fine treatment of the central romance, the vigorous handling of the battle scenes in Egypt, and the general air of competent intimacy with the 13th century world all contribute to give this novel its unquestionable honest dignity.

Gentle Charles Lamb's Life Written as a Labor of Love

"CHARLES LAMB AND HIS FRIENDS," by Will D. Howe. [Bobbs-Merrill, $3.50.]

Reviewed by John Abbot Clark.

This book is truly a labor of love. But unlike so many volumes answering to this description, one does not have to labor to get thru it. It is easy reading in the best sense of the word. And it is abundantly rewarding. [The first thing we did was turn to see whether the letter to Crabb Robinson, concerning the dying Norris—"To the last he called me Charley"—was present or accounted for. And, glory be, there it was, uncut, too.]

Mr. Howe never gets in the way of his subject. In fact, the author allows Lamb and his contemporaries, as well as his later critics and biographers, so much leeway in the matter of speaking for themselves that many present day readers are liable to fall into the error of supposing that Mr. Howe has shirked his task, of supposing that he has so little to say about Lamb and his period that, instead of writing a throbbingly passionate life or an upsettingly daring and original psychological study, he has merely compiled an anthology.

• • •

Such, however, is far from the case. On almost every page Mr. Howe says much that is sharp and illuminating. The art of critical biography has, by and large, become so perverted and blown up in recent years that we are hardly able any more to recognize the genuine article when it comes along. And Mr. Howe's book is the genuine article, a wise and charming recreation of a great and good man, "presented in his relationships and in reference to his favorite interests."

Many reviewers will, no doubt, dismiss "Charles Lamb and His Friends" as a book by a dilettante for escapists. All we have to say to that is: Since when has it become a crime to escape from we all know what into a world of wit and intelligence, self-respect and humility, honor and courage, charity and compassion?

• • •

The world will never get much farther forward in justice, understanding, and brotherly love until it goes back, at least a few steps, to a man like Charles Lamb, "who earned his own living, paid his own way, was the helper, not the helped; a man who was beholden to no one, who always came with gifts in his hand, a shrewd man capable of advice, strong in council . . . who was rich in all that makes life valuable or memory sweet."

Duranty Pens Illuminating USSR History

"USSR," by Walter Duranty. [Lippincott, $3.]

Reviewed by William Shinnick.

On the first page of this book, which is a fact packed history of the soviet republics, Duranty makes the point that Russians are utterly unlike the rest of the peoples of the western world. His narrative amply supports the conclusion. And let it be said now that it is an excellent [perhaps a great] narrative and certainly the most informative and apparently impartial estimate of the Slavic folk of the blood soaked steppes, and their peculiar politics, that has yet come our way.

Duranty's all-over chart gives a definite impression of a mysterious people groping painfully toward goals they cannot see and can imagine only vaguely; a people less than 75 years out of feudal slavery, who began in 1917 to believe they had found Utopia and to conceive a mission to spread the gospel of Marxism over the world; a people simple enough to think that their doctrine would overturn in an instant democracy that had been at least 700 years in development.

• • •

Clearly, too, the author limns the politicians who cajoled, threatened, oppressed, starved, and liquidated this folk and rival politicos—the late Rasputin, Lenin, Trotsky, and the surviving strong man from Georgia.

They groped also, but not in the dark. They wanted power, and took it ruthlessly and secretly. Duranty admits that he did not understand why in 1932 [altho he was in Russia] there was a "man made famine" that caused untold suffering. In the richest farm regions all grain from the previous harvest, even the reserve for seed, was requisitioned. The world thought then that Stalin was promoting some domestic scheme.

The real explanation, according to Duranty, was that the Japs were threatening an invasion of Siberia at a time when reserves for the Red army, particularly food, were short. The great realist chief of the state, putting first things first, supplied the army at the expense of the civilians, who may have mumbled in their beards but made no effective protest. They starved humbly.

• • •

Duranty justifies, and with logic, Stalin's treason trials and the blood purge of a few years back which horrified the civilized world. An element of the logic is that Russians are not like us; another that the purge eliminated Nazi spies from sovietland.

By competently probing under the soviet skin a good reporter has come thru with a work that is as interesting as it is informative.

'Country Colic' Draws Laughter from Rural Life

"COUNTRY COLIC," by Robert Lawson. [Little, Brown, $1.75.]

Reviewed by Gail Compton.

"Cows—large ruminant mammals [blatantly that] which under favorable circumstances produce milk and cream. The cow is equipped with a rubbery nose which it licks incessantly, a loud melancholy voice, spigots from which a skilled operator can extract milk and a brain slightly larger than a salted peanut."

So begins one of the many whimsical definitions in "Country Colic: the Weeders Digest" which will tickle all those who garden for victory or kid themselves that they can really make a little money out of their farm this year.

Text and a grand series of drawings by the man who illustrated "The Story of Ferdinand," this book consists of an alphabetical definition of country living. It covers everything from airplanes to zany—defined as "one who, or that which, despite everything, continues to live in the country."

Gambling, War Work, Occupy Palm Beachers

By Thalia.

Palm Beach, Fla., Special.—I shall always think of Palm Beach as the place where I saw fabulous sums tossed about as if money were confetti and in contrast the place where I saw incomparable and permanent beauty created by money spent with taste and a generous consideration for one's fellows.

The Beach club, the most famous gambling place in America, more familiarly known as "Bradley's," is noted for its food, the best in America and the most expensive. Every day probably as many churchgoers as disciples of the gods of chance are to be found in its dining room, which, incidentally, looks more like the second class dining saloon on an ocean liner than it does like the place where hundred dollar bills have been known to dine a party of six.

Its decor is undistinguished, but what is served there is fabulous. And what goes on after luncheon or dinner is something even more fabulous. Those who come just for the food depart to work off their added tonnage on the golf course or at their favorite war work. And the real Palm Beachers, altho they might well be expected to indulge themselves in idleness, are as hard working volunteers as I have ever seen, many of them literally taking only one day "off" a week, and crowding into that day their customary seven days' ration of idleness or gayety.

• • •

It is as difficult to walk into the Beach club off the street as it is to walk into a military installation. The doorman is said to be able to recognize at sight any one who has ever crossed the threshold, and there are tales of the authorities at Bradley's knowing more about every inhabitant of Palm Beach, old or new, than any Gestapo. No year round resident of the neighborhood is allowed in the gaming rooms. But, aside from the exclusiveness of money, there is little real exclusiveness about Bradley's, altho one does see there some of the pillars of society.

The most exclusive place in Palm Beach, since the Everglades club membership has been expanded, is the Bath and Tennis club. It is far enough from the center of town to make it necessary for many of its members to use bicycles or take a bus to its Spanish gates. Some of the older people arrive in cars, but the vast parking space seems pretty empty compared to other days.

Members and their house guests go for a morning swim, either in the surf or in an enormous outdoor pool, eat a delicious lunch informally downstairs or retire to their cabanas which line the beach to dress for luncheon in the patio. The tennis courts lure the more vigorous. It is the most comfortable and exclusive swimming luxury in America, probably. But one sees more gray hair than blond or brunette. And a young civilian man is almost as rare as a hibiscus bloom in Chicago these days.

• • •

The same thing is true of Bradley's—no young men, and even more gray hairs. Since the French dyes have stopped coming over, gray hair has become necessarily more chic. I noticed on Worth avenue one day one little henna job topping a face that looked as if it might be a contour map of Switzerland. But by and large, a dosing of platinum rinse is the only color fancy the hairdressers are permitting their ageing clients to indulge in.

Those who stay at the Beach club after luncheon or dinner for the "gaming" are of two camps, the players and the onlookers. Both are under the careful eye of a gentleman strategically placed behind a grille on the balcony with a machine gun at his finger tips. The sightseers are the only ones liable

"Next time the Margaret Etter Crèche gives a party why not rent the Stadium?" one of the guests was heard to say at that organization's highly successful St. Patrick's day tea dance at the Casino. The Crèche's board has a high "batting average" for turning out successful benefits. Its record for the latest venture to raise funds for the oldest day nursery in Chicago was more than 600 tickets sold, a profit of $6,400, and a crush of smartly costumed guests which packed every inch of the smart little club. When Mrs. James Hoskins returns next week from a trip to Mexico with Mr. Hoskins, she will find a surprise awaiting her—a stunning Kelly green felt hat topped with yellow feather canaries, her daughter Jamie's share of the booty carried off that evening by guests at the party. Miss Hoskins' sister, Yvonne, wearing a fresh spring print in pink and black and a pink bandeau embroidered in black sequins, was one of the pretty young women who tied on shamrock-shaped aprons of green satin to assist at the party. The general chairman of the party, Mrs. Frank Halle, with a cluster of green orchids pinned to the shoulder of her silver spangled beige dress, heard that the award of $100 had gone to Miss Retta Carlson, who has been Mr. Halle's nurse during his recent illness.

Only 36 Days Left to Enter Tribune Fashion Contest

Amateur and professional designers have only 36 more days for executing and submitting entries in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S American Fashions contest of 1944.

The selections committee, calling attention yesterday to the approach of deadline, urged prospective entrants who have not done so previously to write at once for copies of rules and entry blanks. To be considered, entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, May 1.

Because of war time conditions which make for unpredictable delays, contestants have been given an unusually generous period of time for preparation of designs in this year's competition. This provision is now working to the advantage of designers who have not been able to enter earlier. For, altho the contest will continue for only a few more weeks, ample time yet remains for careful craftsmanship. The top grand prize might be won by a contestant who is yet to enter.

Prizes totaling $5,000 will be awarded for winning designs in the 1944 competition. There will be two grand prizes, $2,000 for first place and $1,000 for second place. Third prize will be $500, and selections awards of $50 each will be given to the best 30 designs entered.

To qualify, entries should be designs of any article or ensemble of women's outer wearing apparel.

Requests for copies of rules and entry blanks should be addressed to "American Fashions Competition, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, 435 N. Michigan av., Chicago 11, Ill."

Garden Clubs Herald Spring with Exhibits

By Irene Steyskal.

Forsythia dancing its frothy yellow ballet pageants across the windows of Michigan avenue florist shops; March winds whistling Pied Piper tunes around loop corners—these are signs of spring that point to definite events in the seasonal pattern of life in Chicago.

Tomorrow the Garden Club of Illinois' 18th annual show opens on the second floor at Marshall Field & Co. in a second "Fashions in Flowers" version adapted to the times and the setting. The two week display is planned this season on a much more comprehensive scale than last year's first presentation when exhibits were confined, for the most part, to flowers for home decorations. This year there are to be planted gardens, many classes of flower arrangements, a series of invitation tables, and there even will be concrete evidence of masculine interest in a series of six buffet tables set by men.

• • •

Excepting on the two Saturdays during the show and Good Friday, each day's schedule will carry two lectures, ranging from practical talks on vegetable gardening to suggestions for unusual flower arrangements. Garden club members will conduct tours of the exhibits at 10, 1, 3, and 4 o'clock daily, starting from the guest lounge in the 2d floor galleries.

Among the lecturers will be Mrs. Albert D. Farwell, Mrs. O. W. Dynes, Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, Mrs. Bert Schiller McDonald, Mrs. T. J. Knudson, Mrs. J. Wilson McAllister, Mrs. George S. Parker, Mrs. Clay Harkness, Mrs. John L. Troike, Mrs. George I. Martin, Mrs. Herbert Reed, Mrs. R. A. Van Lone, Mrs. W. R. Stephens, and Mrs. Ralph Kroscher.

The Lake Forest Garden club, of which Mrs. Farwell is president, is setting up a Chinese garden at the show. Mrs. Ralph Milman heads the committee taking charge of the exhibit. Mrs. John R. Baylis heads the committee planning a Mission garden for the Garden club of the South Shore, whose president is Mrs. Edgar Bogardus. A rose garden will be the Garden Club of Downers Grove exhibit, planned by Mrs. Bertha L. Downes and Mrs. J. R. Spalding. The Downers Grove group is headed by Mrs. A. S. Fagen. Mrs. Robert L. Scott Jr. heads the group planning a garden walk for the Evanston Junior League Garden club, whose president is Mrs. Chester N. Goltra.

• • •

The Wheaton Garden club's exhibit will be a bit of "Illinois in Spring" and the Elmhurst Garden club will have a garden with a pool. Mrs. Ralph M. Roscher is president of the Wheaton club and Mrs. Walter L. Ernst, of the Elmhurst group, and the exhibit chairmen for the two gardens are Mrs. J. V. Snydacker and Mrs. Ralph G. Raymond.

The two other gardens in the show are exhibits of the Glen Ellyn Garden club, of which Mrs. R. D. Robertson is president and Mrs. W. G. Kaiser, exhibit chairman, and of the Winnetka Garden club, headed by Mrs. Hal C. Kimbrough and having Mrs. A. B. Bradley as exhibit chairman.

Scores of other affiliated groups will have period, luncheon, dinner, terrace, console, breakfast, and incidental tables, breakfast trays, various types of flower arrangements and home decorations.

Mrs. Raymond Knotts is president of the state garden club.

• • •

Another of the traditional spring events among women's organizations is the Travel and Garden day of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen, which is set for Thursday, April 6. Mrs. Walgreen, who heads the travel department of the conference and Mrs. Harvey A. Bush, gardens chairman, are collaborating on plans for this Fresh from the Hills . . . . By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm . . . . What! No Almanacs!

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

I DROPPED the seed catalog in my lap and stared absently out at the late January rain dripping from the oak leaves. In my mind, I went over the things the Jedge would say when I suggested building a hot house. After nearly twenty years of marriage, I could anticipate his blistering remarks to the last word. Feeling that this was one argument he would win, I finally put away thoughts of the glamorous Giant Spanish onions that would, according to the seed catalog, grow two-pound specimens if started in the hot house. I was reaching for my pencil to write the comparatively humble Golden Globe variety on my seed order, when I saw Aunt Lizzie coming thru the front gate. I gave the fire a poke while she crossed the soggy lawn, where green grass was already showing, then opened the door.

• • •

After Aunt Lizzie had had double portions of cookies and apples from the brass bowl on the coffee table, she settled herself in an easy chair before the fireplace to dry out her long woolen skirt and flannelette petticoats and get warmth to her rheumatic knees. We talked at length of the welcome rain, how greatly it was needed for cisterns and ponds, and how good it was for pastures. Then her eye fell on my seed catalog.

"Ain't it turrible?" she asked, gloomily.

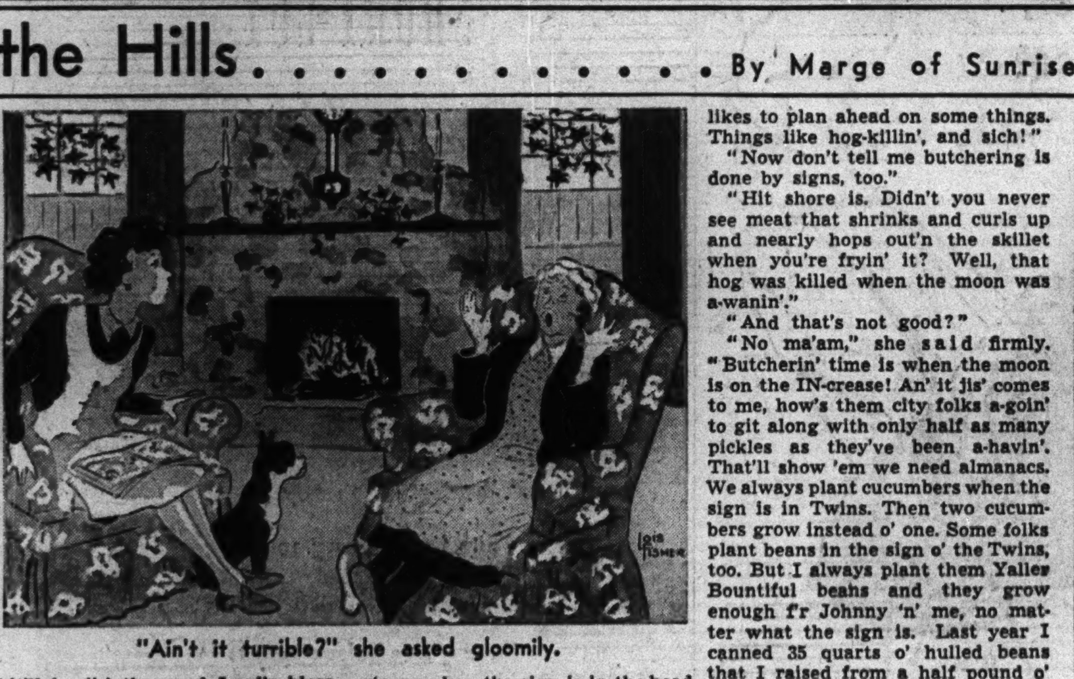
"What's terrible?" I asked.

"No almanacs!" She sighed deeply.

"O, that's all right," I said airily. "I can keep a pot holder on that nail under the kitchen window."

She ignored the remark.

"Effen we git thru the summer, hit'll be jis' the good Lord's blessing, and not that we done things right."



"Ain't it turrible?" she asked gloomily.

"Now, Aunt Lizzie! You don't mean to say we must plan our whole summer by an old fashioned almanac."

"Cain't do much o' anything without it, way I look at it. For instance, fishin'." She frowned and shook her head dolefully. "'Thout'n an almanac to tell us the sign, when're we a-goin' to know when to go fishin'."

"Aunt Lizzie, you bluffer!" I said. "Don't tell me you've gone fishing only when the sign was right."

She giggled.

"Well, o' course, if you're a-goin' fishin' jis' f'r the fun of it, hit don't make a heap sight o' difference whether you get fish 'r not! But if yo'r lip is all set f'r fish, then you'd orta go when the sign is in the head and neck. On them days, if they's a fish in the crick, he'll come up and bite yo'r hook."

"Maybe, if you go fishing often enough, you'll happen to be there when he's hungry. And he'll bite, sign or not!"

Aunt Lizzie looked at me with scorn in her bright blue eyes.

"I was jis' a-tellin' Johnny last night, I wouldn't know when t' cut his hair, 'thout'n no almanac. You always trim hair in the new o' the moon to make it grow better." She sighed again. "Like as not, all the young 'uns in the deestrict'll be a-goin' 'round with their hair all stringy and oneven, jis' on account o' no almanacs."

"But can't you just go outdoors and look at the moon?" I asked.

"Yeah! Reckon so. But a body likes to plan ahead on some things. Things like hog-killin', and sich!"

"Now don't tell me butchering is done by signs, too."

"Hit shore is. Didn't you never see meat that shrinks and curls up and nearly hops out'n the skillet when you're fryin' it? Well, that hog was killed when the moon was a-wanin'."

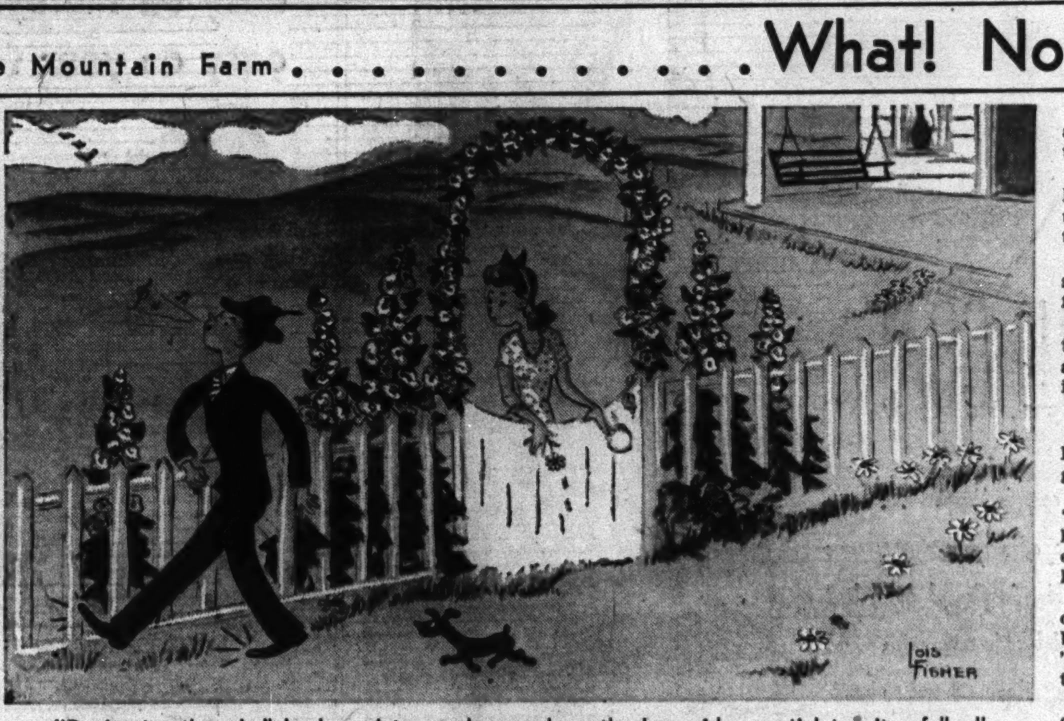
"And that's not good?"

"No ma'am," she said firmly. "Butcherin' time is when the moon is on the IN-crease! An' it jis' comes to me, how's them city folks a-goin' to git along with only half as many pickles as they've been a-havin'. That'll show 'em we need almanacs. We always plant cucumbers when the sign is in Twins. Then two cucumbers grow instead o' one. Some folks plant beans in the sign o' the Twins, too. But I always plant them Yaller Bountiful beans and they grow enough f'r Johnny 'n' me, no matter what the sign is. Last year I canned 35 quarts o' hulled beans that I raised from a half pound o' seed. 'Sides what we et green!"

• • •

"Is there a sign for potato planting?" I asked, my mind on the Irish Cobblers I had ordered.

"O, my, yes! Always plant yo'r taters in the dark o' the moon. Effen y' plant 'em in the light o' the moon, they go to vines sure as shootin'. Yep, they'll grow great big four-square stalks and little nubbin's o' taters that hain't worth grapplin'. 'Course now, some folks says to plant taters on Good Friday, and some says St. Patrick's day. Effen the moon's right, I take one o' these days, jis' to be on the safe side. Same way with pa'snips, beets, rutybagies, turnips, 'r anything that grows under the ground. They'd all orta be planted in the dark o' the moon."



"Don't give them hollyhock seed to any home where they's a girl a-wantin' to git a feller."

"What about tomatoes?"

"Git t'mater seed into the ground on St. Valentine's day. An' be sure to order Pride o' Illinois t'maters. They do best in this country. 'N' raise yo'r plants outside, so's they'll be strong an' healthy. First warm day, put some good dirt in an' ol' tub out on the south side o' the house. Then plant y'or seed in it on the day the kids is handin' out valentines. Let the plants grow there till the garden gits plowed and harried. Then transplant 'em."

She reached for a couple more cookies.

"Are there any more dates to watch for?" I asked.

"Yep," she said shortly. "First Sunday in May. That's when you plant watermelons."

"Sunday a planting day! Why, Aunt Lizzie!"

• • •

"Needn't keep you from Sunday school. Fact is, you'd orta plant watermelons early in the mornin'. It's part o' the Sign. An' another thing, carry yo'r seed to the watermelon patch in a half-bushel basket!"

"That's silly," I laughed. "Imagine lugging a handful of seed all the way to the garden in a half-bushel basket. It's utterly ridiculous."

Aunt Lizzie set her lips in a firm line. I began to hedge.

"I'm glad I saved those two half-bushel baskets in which those Florida oranges were shipped. I've been meaning to give you one." Aunt Lizzie softened visibly. I went on: "But just why must the seed be carried in a basket that size?"

"You want big watermelons, don't ye? Well, effen you carry the seeds to the garden in a half-bushel basket, them watermelons will grow so big you cain't carry one home in the same basket."

"I intend to put out a lot of watermelons this year. And another thing, I want to plant a lot of sage. I use so much . . ."

Aunt Lizzie looked as if she had caught me planning a murder.

"Hain't you never heerd?" she asked in frightened tones. "Hit's turrible bad luck to put out sage!"

I groaned and hoped some one less superstitious would plant row upon row of sage. I had a suggestion to make:

"Perhaps I can trade hollyhock seed for sage. I saved a lot last year from my nicest hollyhocks."

"Don't give them hollyhock seed to any home where they's a girl a-wantin' to git a feller," admonished Aunt Lizzie.

"Why not?"

"'Cause she jis' won't git him. Remember that ol' sayin': 'No beaux goes where hollyhocks grow.'"

"Possibly where we got the term 'wallflowers.' But golly, I hate to have bad luck associated with flowers as lovely as hollyhocks." I adore hollyhocks.

"Maybe it's good luck effen some ornery, good-f'r-nothin' feller a girl's been a-shinin' up to don't come 'round no more!" Aunt Lizzie countered mildly.

"Well, I don't want to upset any of Cupid's plans," I said, "so I'll just take my hollyhock seeds and scatter them along the edge of the orchard."

"Ain't that where you growed all them fancy gourds last year," reminded Aunt Lizzie.

"Yes, it was. And by the way, weren't they marvelous gourds! Hundreds of them, and all so different and interesting. I may not be much of a gardener, but I'll bet I'm the champion gourd grower of the Ozarks," I bragged.

Aunt Lizzie chuckled and reached for another apple.

"Yes, Margit, them gourds o' yo'r'n was the best in the deestrict. An' you know the ol' sayin' about that: 'It takes a fool to raise gourds!'"

Women's World!

Women in business reveal their world in verse and prose in Ruth MacKay's "White Collar Girl," the column devoted to their interests. For funny stories, views on men and manners, useful ideas on office routine and dress, look for this column in the women's feature pages of tomorrow's Tribune.

Gambling, War Work, Occupy Palm Beachers

to be conscious of his menacing presence, for roulette or chemin de fer or whatever is going on at the tables seems to cast a sort of hypnotic spell over the players.

In the afternoon women alone occupy most of the chairs. There are signs cordially bidding you not to occupy the chairs unless you are playing. Other signs discourage loud talking or laughter. There is a feeling of wandering around in a vacuum—physical as well as mental—as one hears only the click of the chips on the table, the croupier's almost unintelligible announcement as the little white ball drops into its fated slot, and the swish of the chips as he pulls the players' losses toward him.

• • •

When we went to see this unique Palm Beach circus, by a lucky chance for your Thalia, the two most spectacular players of the afternoon both had a connection with Chicago. One was a business woman who, thru hard work and acumen had made the money with which she was playing. The other was a widow whose husband had, rumor said, left her the fortune which he had inherited from a previous marriage.

The business woman who came to Florida for a rejuvenating rest from hard work, was that afternoon taking her sunshine under the sharp, bright lights over the roulette table, and sowing chips all over the way a gardener would plant a hit or miss flower bed. She was as certain to lose as she was to win and as sure to win as she was to lose. But the widow played otherwise, with big piles on one or two numbers. I saw her lose several thousand dollars at one table, go to another to change her luck and finally to a third, where the business woman was having her cautious fun. When the players got thru placing their bets, the table was three or four layers thick with chips and occasional greenbacks tossed onto numbers by bystanders with hunches.

• • •

The widow comes up three times a week from Pompano to gamble, I was told. She is a Viennese and speaks brokenly. She either loses or wins great sums in an afternoon's play, and if I had never gone to the Hillsboro club or tried to find out more about her, I would have had a wonderful story of how some rich refugees are spending their time and the money which they must have had planted and already in bloom in America before they left Europe. But I did go to the Hillsboro club and there I found Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Waud of Chicago and Mrs. Waud spoiled my fine story, undoubtedly true of some of the rich refugees. The widow, Mrs. Waud said, is one of the kindest and most generous of people, has given fully equipped ambulances to the services, and the last time she won at roulette, she turned over $2,000 to the Red Cross.

• • •

Money, as such, seems to lose its normal value for many in Palm Beach. You hear of a fabulous heiress losing $18,000 at Bradley's and tossing the matter off with, "O, it's all in a day's work." Hotel rooms at $42 a day are neither uncommon or ever vacant, and even in unfashionable West Palm Beach a simple hotel room is $20 a day. But on the other hand there is a canteen for service men where everything that isn't free costs a maximum of 5 cents and includes everything that the luxurious could think of to make their guests happy.

Bradley's may be a permanent institution at Palm Beach, but there are two others which I would be willing to gamble on being more permanent still—the Four Arts society and the Norton art gallery. Both hold art exhibitions and have many activities open to the public. Both are housed in beautiful and permanent quarters. The Four Arts lounge opens onto a patio and a series of lovely gardens each dedicated to a floral specialty and, in the old days, I heard, the scene of beautiful private parties by the donors of the gardens. In the center of the lounge is the model of the proposed enlargement to be built after the war.

• • •

The buildings are to be the work of Marion Wyeth, who designed the exquisite gem of a house on the ocean where the James E. Baums spend their winters. This year they have their three golden haired grandchildren with them while the children's father is in the military services.

Wyeth and King were the architects of the Norton Gallery and School of Art in West Palm Beach which was presented to the Palm Beach Art league by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Norton of Chicago. It is the loveliest small museum I ever saw, modern, but a perfect setting for exhibits of any period. It houses the permanent collection of old masters, European and American oils, water colors and sculpture which are from the private collection of the Nortons, as well as a new collection of Chinese jade carvings, unrivaled by any other museum's in this country.

Lectures, art classes, a players club and a glee club, available at nominal fees and a service men's center give West Palm Beach, as well as the members from the winter colony in Palm Beach, constant contact with the best in art. The day we were there, a loan exhibit of famous portraits from the Museum of Modern Art in New York hung on the walls of the transient gallery. Some of the portraits were very modern indeed, and made their subjects look oddly like something else remarkable about Palm Beach. Altho the ocean is practically at everybody's doorstep and the sun is as actinic in Palm Beach as it is anywhere, I have not seen one person lobster-red, and very few with deep sepia suntans. In a word, life in Palm Beach is less beachy than palmy.

Protectorate Plans Benefit on Wednesday

Next Wednesday afternoon the Protestant Woman's Protectorate and many friends interested in helping the organization in its work for elderly women in need will gather for a benefit tea in the Methodist church at 405 S. Euclid av., in Oak Park. A program reflecting the Lenten spirit will be presented by Mrs. Robert S. Houts, who will give a reading, "Bible Designed as Living Literature," and Miss Leona Farrington, coloratura soprano. Sarah Ramsay Green will appear as Miss Farrington's accompanist.

Mrs. Fred W. Waterman is president of the protectorate. Her benefit committee is composed of Mrs. W. J. Stephenson, Mrs. C. W. Learn, Mrs. Ralph Landes, Mrs. Otto H. Coellin, Mrs. Blair Latshaw, Mrs. G. W. Rindell, Mrs. Carl Dallach, Mrs. J. E. Licht, and Miss S. J. Pepper.

The Protestant Women's Service Club of Chicago, whose philanthropic work is in the juvenile field, has Wednesday, April 5, set for a luncheon and program in the Wedgwood room at Marshall Field & Co. Ernest W. Sundell will show color films of the south for the group that day.

Mrs. C. M. Austin, president of the club, has announced that the annual May breakfast of the organization will be given Wednesday, May 3, in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Friendly Aid Society to Hold Benefit Tomorrow

Mrs. Roderick Macpherson is opening her home at 4800 Kimbark av. at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning to the Friendly Aid society and member agencies for a benefit party. The arrangements committee is headed by Mrs. John T. Agar.

starred program, which will be presented in Fullerton hall of the Art institute.

The arts, crafts, and national customs of Mexico, and the fiestas that give color and gayety to life south of the border will be brought to the conference that day in motion pictures by Dr. A. B. Keeler of Mexico City. Julia Bock Harwood, who has circled the globe in her travels, will exhibit models of costumes that have attracted her interest in many lands. Norman R. Hallock, who has found more to interest the traveler in this country than elsewhere, will give a talk on "Our Heritage."

• • •

In the spirit of the season will be a lecture on "Flower Families" by Dr. Margery C. Carlson, professor in the botany department of Northwestern university, and a talk on "Common Birds in Our Gardens" by Dr. Davies Lazear, famous for his bird photography. The Polish soprano, Valerie Glowacki of the Chicago Opera company, and Don Grambsch, basso, winner in the 1943 Chicago Music festival, will have part on the program. Marjorie Elliott will play for Mr. Grambsch.

• • •

Illinois chapter of the Wild Flower Preservation society, of which Mrs. E. E. Waful is president, is gathering at 2 o'clock Wednesday at the Cordon club in the Fine Arts building for its annual election meeting and a program focused on the out of doors. The group will have as its special guest, Dr. R. M. Strong, president of the Illinois Audubon society, who will show color stills and movies of wild flowers in the Indiana dunes and northern Michigan and of gardens in the south.

A picture review of the city's memorials and monuments is promised members of the Women's Chicago Beautiful association for its luncheon meeting at noon Thursday in the Wedgwood room at Marshall Field & Co. Mrs. Frank Ahlborn, the program chairman, has arranged for Fred G. Huechling of the Chicago park district to give a talk on notable memorials and show pictures of them. Attending the luncheon as spelcal guests will be John A. Holabird, distinguished Chicago architect, and the sculptor, Frederick Hibbard. The program will include a song group by Adelaide Bradley, soprano. Mrs. Herman Lammers will preside at the meeting.

Of special interest among programs scheduled this week by Fine arts groups is that of the Chicago Drama league, presenting Martin Flavin, the playwright and novelist, in a lecture of challenging title at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. Mr. Flavin labels his talk, "The Moribund Theater —or Death at 8:30." The league has been obligated, because of its greatly increased membership, to move its major programs this season from the Arts club to the more spacious Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel, and it is at the Blackstone that Mr. Flavin will appear. Members will take over the French room of the hotel for a luncheon after his talk.

Tho claimed by California, Mr. Flavin grew up in Chicago, attending the public schools here and later the University of Chicago. There are old associates at Tribune Tower who recall that Martin Flavin supplemented an irregular income from short story writing in his early career by working for the paper, on a night job.

The league's Tournament Players produced his "Children of the Moon" at the Goodwin theater. "Children of the Moon" was the first Flavin drama to be presented on Broadway. The year was 1923. Three years later he had three plays running simultaneously in New York, "The Criminal Code," which was awarded the New York Theater Club medal, "Broken Dishes," and "Cross Roads."

"Mr. Littlejohn," published in 1940, was Mr. Flavin's first novel. Last year his "Journey in the Dark," one of 666 manuscripts entered in contest, was awarded the Harper prize of $10,000.

Alice Van Hattem to Wed Petty Officer

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Van Hattem of Normal av. have announced the engagement of their daughter, Alice, to Petty Officer Benjamin Green Jones of Frankfort, Ky., who is on duty in the Pacific. Miss Van Hattem is librarian of Hyde Park High school.

Mary Crane League Plans Benefit Apr. 17

The necessity to provide sums in increasing amounts for expanding the nursery school the Mary Crane league maintains at Hull House has put spurs to the money raising efforts of league members. The yearly budget of this nursery school, which also is an educational project, is $14,000, and a large percentage of the amount will be raised at the league's popular annual luncheon, card party, and book review to be held April 17 at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Mrs. Russell P. Baker and Mrs. H. Scott Kingwill are co-chairmen of the party, on which all nine chapters of the league are coöperating. In addition to the 200 door prizes for which the party has become famous, there will be a program prize and two merchandise certificates, one of $75, the other of $25.

• • •

A recent benefit tea dance provided funds to equip and furnish a new room that was opened to accommodate 15 to 20 new children whose mothers are in war work. Another room at Hull House also has been made available to the league to be used for the volunteer work the league does with the mothers and children once a month. This room must be furnished with tables, chairs, and cupboards for the sewing equipment and materials used to advantage by the mothers.

The nursery school was founded in 1925 by the late Jane Addams, who once made the statement "Let us know the race goes forward thru its children," and Edna Dean Baker, president of the National College of Education. The school building was given to the league by Richard T. Crane, founder of the Crane company, as a memorial to his wife, Mary Prentice Crane. Visitors from all parts of the country come to observe the work done at this model nursery school.

Jewish Clubs Plan Meetings During Week

Mrs. Max Biesenthal.
[Moffett Photo.]

Dominating the schedule planned for the week by Jewish groups is the 26th annual religion education day meeting of the Conference of Jewish Women's organizations. Delegates from the 100 member clubs and temple sisterhoods in the conference will gather at 1:45 o'clock tomorrow in the Consumers building, 220 S. State st., to hear a panel of three speakers—Dr. Louis L. Mann, Dr. Samuel M. Blumenfield, and Dr. Leo L. Honor—in a symposium discussion of "Jewish Education and the Post-War World."

Mrs. Max Biesenthal will preside, and Mrs. Bernard Shulman will serve as chairman at a question period after the discussion. Many of the conference members will attend a noon luncheon before the program.

Proceeding on the assumption that, if a better world is to emerge from the present chaos, the next generation must be educated in attitudes and outlooks for the common good, the symposium speakers will discuss the responsibilities of schools, teachers, and the community, as well as the family, toward that end.

• • •

Dr. Mann's talk will center on the child, Dr. Blumenfield's on the teacher, and Dr. Honor's on the community. Dr. Mann, rabbi of Sinai congregation, personally directs the education program of the temple. He is professor of oriental languages at the University of Chicago. Dr. Blumenfield is dean of the College of Jewish Studies. Dr. Honor is executive director of the board of Jewish education.

At Chicago section headquarters of the National Council of Jewish Women, a joint public affairs and international relations departments meeting will be held at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday, when Mrs. Dorothy Bushnell Cole will discuss Pierre Van Paasen's book, "The Forgotten Ally." Mrs. William H. Sahud, president, will conduct the meeting. The two departments are headed respectively by Mrs. Meyer Edelman and Mrs. Charles Levin.

The Chicago Woman's Aid will hold the last in a series of family relations noon breakfast meetings Tuesday, when Mrs. Evelyn Millis Duvall, director of the Association of Family Living, will be presented. Mrs. Duvall's talk is scheduled under the sprightly title, "Women Are Like That." A current events breakfast Friday will bring Dr. Henry Simon Block, lecturer in military economy at the University of Chicago's institute of military studies, to discuss problems of "Occupation and Liberation."

[Daguerre Photo.]

Chicago members of Hadassah are preparing to welcome Mrs. Raphael Tourover of Washington, D. C., national vice president of the women's Zionist organization, at an open assembly Tuesday afternoon in the Morrison hotel. An attorney, Mrs. Tourover is considered an expert in the field of patent and trade law. She practiced in the federal courts and was a special investigator for the congressional committee that exposed the Doheny and Sinclair oil scandals.

Her specialized legal knowledge facilitated action for Hadassah in the purchase and shipment of drugs, medical equipment, and food and clothing for important Palestinian projects. Chicago chapter of the organization is headed by Mrs. James H. Olshan.

Junior Hadassah is holding its second annual "spring frolic" tonight in the Morrison hotel. Serving as chairmen of the dancing party are Miss Helen Rubin and Miss Pearl Rebbe. Miss Lillian X. Frost is president of the Chicago Juniors. The party is a benefit to raise funds for the various special youth projects in Palestine to which the younger members of Hadassah contribute.

Plans for the annual "Maytime frolic" of the Jewish Big Sisters will be completed at a tea Thursday in the Standard club. The committee for the benefit is headed by Mrs. Maurice J. Weiss. Mrs. Samuel S. Hollender, president of the girl guidance organization, will meet with the board Wednesday in the Covenant club.

B. M. Z. Woman's Club Schedules Membership Tea

A membership tea, given by the B. M. Z. Woman's club at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Standard club, will bring as guest artist the book reviewer and news commentator, Mrs. Florence Bourke Ellis. The admittance requirement for each member is that she bring with her a new member.

Members and guests of the B. M. Z. junior auxiliary will gather at the same meeting place at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon to view official government movies of coast guard activities. Miss Florence Lipschitz, who arranged the program, will present Chief Boatswain's Mate A. J. Caliendo as guest speaker. Sylvia Kurtzman Lichten will preside.

Woman's Club Plans to Hold Special Meet

President's day, which will be observed Wednesday by the Chicago Woman's club, will hold a bit more than its customary significance for Mrs. Henry Barrett Chamberlin. Granted the privilege of choosing her own program, Mrs. Chamberlin has invited as guest speaker the Rev. George M. Gibson, pastor of the United Church of Hyde Park.

But Mrs. Chamberlin also will be shining in the reflected glory of her son and congratulatory messages will be the order of the day, for word just has been received that a small group of 12 men—one of them Maj. William Charles Chamberlin—was decorated for gallantry and each of the men presented by Adm. Nimitz with the navy cross. It was on the occasion of the invasion of Tarawa by the 2d marine division that Maj. Chamberlin distinguished himself by refusing medical aid, even tho wounded, until after he had waded some thousand yards from his boat to shore and assured himself that the beachhead was secured.

"The Treatment of the Minority Groups" will be the discussion theme presented by Dr. Gibson, who is chairman of the advisory board of the department of social service for the Church Federation of Greater Chicago, and administrative committee member of the Congregational union.

Msgr. Ligutti Will Speak at Sheil School

Interest at the Sheil School of Social Studies is centered this week on a visit from Msgr. Luigi G. Ligutti, founder of the famous Granger homestead project in Iowa. Msgr. Ligutti, who is the author of "Rural Roads to Security" and editor of "Land and Home," official publication of the National Catholic Rural Life conference, of which he is president, will speak at 8 o'clock Wednesday night at the school in the C. Y. O. center, 31 E. Congress st. His talk will be on "Rural Life, an Answer for America."

The Granger colony which, under Msgr. Ligutti's guidance, has lifted itself from dire poverty to a sound economic status, is one of the outstanding coöperative communities in the country. When in 1926 the priest came to Granger, he found there some 300 families, mostly of Italian and Croatian origin, whose homes were dilapidated shacks, who worked in soft coal mines in the winter and were reduced almost to starvation during long summer layoffs. Convinced that the soil held the answer to his parishioners' problem, the priest launched his experiment when in 1935 a new federal subsistence homesteads act opened an opportunity.

• • •

With the first government loan, and the aid of Rabbi Eugene Mannheimer and the Rev. Stoddard Lane, a Congregational minister of Des Moines, Ia., 50 families were installed in pleasant cottages on four acre plots, and thus was the nonsectarian homestead project started. Msgr. Ligutti helped set up coöperatives for graveling the homesteaders' roads, for the purchase of a tractor, seeds and nursery stock, and even for planting lawns and landscaping with trees and shrubs. At the end of the first year the community celebrated its anniversary with a banquet every item for which was produced on the farms, and by that time the sole Communist of the colony had forgotten his Marxist theories.

The homesteaders now own 50 cows and some 300 pigs, their coöperative bank earns standard profits, and the government is being paid back $14.75 a month by each family on its 30 year loan. At the third annual Granger fair, 59 varities of food were exhibited. Msgr. Ligutti maintains that the relief problem in the United States can be solved by proper use of the soil.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, March 25, 1896.

Dear Julia: I feel sorry to hear of the death of Thomas Hughes, English writer and statesman. Chicago has a particular interest in him because he was instrumental in starting our public library. Right after the fire of 1871 a movement headed by Hughes was begun in England to give Chicago a collection of books by British authors and over 8,000 volumes were sent. There was no place to put them and they had to be stored in a sort of tank for a time. They came from Oxford and Cambridge and from the Royal Geographical society and from publishers. Many of the books were beautifully bound in leather and autographed. Among them was a volume by Queen Victoria autographed by her royal hand, a real treasure.

Thomas Hughes.

Hughes was a friend of the laboring man and tho his efforts to help him weren't always successful, as for instance when he was a member of parliament and introduced a trades union bill which did not pass. As one of the group known as "Christian Socialists" he was important in changing some of the selfish ideas of the wealthy employers, and his influence, I believe, will not die. His writing seems to have been a hobby rather than a serious pursuit, but certainly he gave much pleasure and profit to boys of the '50s and '60s with his "Tom Brown at Rugby," in which he idealized the famous schoolmaster, Dr. Arnold. Its popularity encouraged him to continue writing, but I believe none of his other books was so widely read as his story of the great English public schools which he had attended.

His attempt to found a coöperative community in America was interesting and it should have succeeded. Hughes' mother came over with him, but his wife was unsympathetic and begged him to go back to England which he finally did, the mother remaining in "Rugby," the little town he founded in northeastern Tennessee. He never again visited this country and the Tennessee colony did not survive in the struggle for existence, the unfamiliar climate and the loss of its leader being too much for it.

The town is there still, I believe, and a library which Hughes had brought, for he loved books and even in the new world could not be without them. I read in today's paper that there are many rare volumes there—a Dickens item, which I presume collectors would love to have, and books illustrated by Kate Greenaway.

Our papers are filled just now with tragic and anxiety-provoking tales. There is a strike on in the clothing trades and as a result there is much suffering. The strikers have signified their willingness to arbitrate, and an appeal has been sent out, begging public spirited Chicagoans to try to get employers to consent to a conference as the only reasonable means of putting an end to the distressing situation. The letter asks also for money and food to relieve the suffering. O. W. Potter, president of the Commercial National bank, is treasurer of the committee. Miss Jane Addams is active in the relief work and asks that food and supplies be sent to Hull house for distribution. Among others who signed the appeal are Dr. Thomas C. Hall, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church; Mrs. Charles Henrotin, Prof. Albion W. Small of the University of Chicago; Mrs. Lydia Avery Coonley, president of the Chicago Woman's club, and Ellen Gates Starr.

Another distressing bit of news is the revelation of the large numbers of schoolboys who are smoking cigarets. Superintendent Lane is quoted as saying they are not permitted to smoke on the school grounds, but after that the parents must attend to the matter. I was surprised to find that tobacco dealers are as horrified as other people about the evil. W. F. Monroe, well known tobacco dealer, says that these boys are simply taking so much poison into their systems. The world is full of trouble.

Lovingly,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Footnotes.

The Thomas Hughes room in the Chicago Public library is named in honor of the author of "Tom Brown at Rugby." About 300 volumes of the collection sent from England after the fire are now owned by the library. Among these are the book given by Queen Victoria and some of Hughes' own writings. The library at Rugby, Tenn., still exists and is supported by the gifts of tourists.

About a Number of Things.

Many readers—too many to be listed—sent copies of "Mary of the Wild Moor." Rita Smith, 2517 N. Clark st., tells us it is an American folk song to be found in "Songs from the Hills of Vermont." . . . The Rev. E. D. Loughry, Libertyville, Ill., asks for words of a song heard in 1890, "O, doth not a meeting like this make amends?" . . . Those interested in old lithographs will enjoy seeing a number of them shown by James Harges Connelley at his "Opry House" theater, Lufkin hall, in the Kimball building, where "East Lynne" is to be given March 27 and April 15. The "Uncle Tom's Cabin" poster is especially valuable.

Advertising Club Sets Deadline for Contest Entries

Friday, April 7 has been set by the Women's Advertising Club of Chicago as the final date for entries in the Josephine Snapp competition, in which annually a silver trophy is awarded the advertising woman adjudged to have made the most outstanding contribution to advertising during the year. Presentation of the award, which was started in 1937 as a memorial to Josephine Snapp, a former president of the Chicago club and vice president of the Advertising Federation of America, will be made at a federation convention to be held at the hotel Sherman June 4 to 7.

The contest is national in scope and open to all advertising women, whether or not club or federation members. Application blanks may be obtained from the chairman of the award committee, Mrs. Prudence Allured, publisher of the Manufacturing Confectioner, 400 W. Madison st.

Arizona Rains Change Desert Color Scheme

By Ruth Dickinson.

To the resorter there will be a compensation for the weeks of rain, which still continue.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

That is, if they can bear with us until the warm days inevitably come, or inability to get transportation home forces them to stay on. Already the desert has discarded the gray, formidable appearance and is carpeted with soft green grass studded with multi-colored flowers. The rock covered mountains look more like the rolling hill country of New England than the austere cardboard mountains of the Arizona desert. Towering over the valley are the snow capped Four Peaks where the melting snows will assure an abundance of water to the farmers of the valley.

Incidentally, there's a sure way of distinguishing between the resorter and the native Arizonian. The resorter complains bitterly over the rain but every drop of rain produces a broad smile from the native-born, or residents of the valley. Water is sheer gold in Arizona, and heretofore there has been precious little of it.

I rode yesterday back into a little valley pocketed among the mountains near the Biltmore. The ground was gold with the poppy and interspersed with blue lupin, wild hyacinths, the magenta of the shy owl's clover, and infinitesimal starlike flowers of white, lavender, and yellow. There's a song of ecstasy in the hills and a few warm days soon will make us forget the winter of rain—or be grateful for it. But why do the resorters shut themselves up and play bridge at the first drop of rain instead of seeking the hidden loveliness of the desert and mountains?

This is the first year in the history of the Frederick D. Corley putting tournament at the Camelback inn that the game had to be called off because of a hail storm. Mr. Corley started the tournament in 1940 when he contributed a silver cup with the winner's name to be engraved each year, together with his score. It remains at the inn, but the winner is always given another trophy to take home as evidence of his skill.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Race of Barrington and their son, Chuck, are at the Camelback inn for Chuck's vacation from Elgin academy. William Grunow has returned to the inn for his annual visit and Mr. and Mrs. John Lord of Hinsdale are back for their third visit. Judge and Mrs. Alfar Eberhardt have just arrived at the inn for a month's visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meyers are the house guests of the Donald La Chances. Both couples were entertained by the Wilbur Smiths at a buffet supper Sunday evening at the Jokake inn. Another large cocktail and dinner party Sunday evening at the Jokake inn was given by the Raymond Rubicans of New York. The party was in the ramada by the pool, and the guests huddled in fur coats over their dinner dresses and wore overcoats with collars turned up—such is Arizona weather. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Benton, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Barton, Clarence Buddington Kelland, Mrs. Robert Wood, the Robert Lairds, the Howard Fentons, the Frank Octigans, and Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Short.

On Monday afternoon the Frank Baldwins invited their neighbors and friends at the inn to their home for cocktails in honor of Edmund J. Doering who is their house guest. Thanks to those inveterate riders, the Robert Wares and Frederick Chamberlain, a few hardy souls have braved the weather and, with Mr. Ware or Mr. Chamberlain as guides, have explored the desert even as far as the Pima reservation. Nothing daunts the spirit of the Stuart Shermans and the James Carrys and their children, who are all excellent riders. Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Cummings Jr., have just arrived at the inn and are hoping for a warm, sunny day to begin riding.

• • •

Mrs. Theodore Smith, who now makes her home in Pasadena, is expected the end of the week to visit her son and daughter-in-law, the Wilbur Smiths of Lake Forest. For the last few years the Jokake inn has been the meeting place of the Smith family from both east and west. Also later in the week the William Elliotts and their son, Lt. John Elliott of the navy will arrive for a short visit.

One of the largest gatherings of the week at the Arizona Biltmore was the farewell cocktail and dinner party Thursday evening given by Mr. and Mrs. Silas Strawn in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sturgis [Kate Bartholomay Osborne] who left the next day. Mr. and Mrs. James Offield have been joined by their son and daughter-in-law, the Wrigley Offields of Santa Monica. Mrs. Edward Ryan and her two small children, Richard and Betty, and Mrs. Adam Riffel have arrived at the Biltmore to join the Richard O'Hara party.

Anita McCahey and Betty Dubbs are continuing to get in as many flying hours as possible even tho vacationing, and are out at Sky Harbor early almost every morning. Mrs. John Landis and her daughter, Hope, are at the Biltmore where Hope is conceded to be one of the best swimmers. Mrs. John Nash Ott and Mrs. Bruce MacLeish have also returned for their annual visit. Mr. and Mrs. C. John Whipple also are vacationing at the Biltmore, lured by the splendid golf course just across the canal. Also among the new arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Conrad and their daughter, Miss Jane, Mr. and Mrs. David Bennett, Mrs. Otto Schoenwerk, Herman Waldeck, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Stone, and Mrs. Phillip Shepard and her son, Bobby.

ENGAGED

Miss Patricia Borgstrom, whose engagement to Lt. (j.g.) Alphose J. Mueller Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Mueller of Granite City, recently was announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustaf J. Borgstrom of Estes av. Miss Borgstrom was graduated from Rosary college and also attended the University of Illinois. Lt. Mueller, a graduate of Westminster college in Missouri, is serving with the navy in the Caribbean area.

Mrs. Louis Miller of S. Ridgeway av. has announced the engagement of her daughter, Beatrice, to Samuel B. Pearlman, Chicago, attorney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Pearlman. Mr. Pearlman was graduated from the Chicago Kent College of Law. June 4 has been set for the wedding date.

Army to Move Out of More Miami Hotels

After two years in uniform, Miami Beach has won an honorable discharge from the army air forces.

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.

Between April 15 and July 1 139 more hotels will be released, leaving under military occupancy only 21 of the 258 hotels taken over by the A.A.F. at the peak of the training program.

An estimated 20,000 men in khaki now at the beach will be the last of 500,000 who have bunked in $25-a-day rooms, drilled on golf courses, attended classes in theaters, night clubs, and warehouses, and had mess in swank restaurants. Present trainees will complete their courses here, but future officer candidates, enlisted men, and pre-flight aviation cadets will be assigned to the San Antonio center, where regular army facilities are available.

Thus will end a colorful chapter in the history of Miami Beach. For two years the army air forces took over virtually all facilities of the city, occupying 19,000 out of the 21,800 hotel rooms and 34 per cent of its 10,000 apartment units.

Of the 21 hotels retained, 14 will continue to house the redistribution center, providing rest and relaxation to combat veterans before their reclassification and reassignment. Five will continue as A. A. F. convalescent centers, and two are occupied by the air transport command.

Thorobred racing in greater Miami moves into its final week of the season, for Tropical Park closes its spring meet Saturday, April 8. Charity will be in the saddle these six days, for the net proceeds will be turned over to the Miami war chest, American Red Cross, National War fund, and Infantile Paralysis fund. This follows the example set by Hialeah Park, which ran four charity days at the peak of the season.

Racing figures have hit all kinds of new highs this winter. The total play for the entire 50 days of the Hialeah meet was $36,786,127, nearly $1,000,000 in excess of the previous record of 1941. The average daily wagering was $733,722, with an attendance of 9,724, up considerably per capita from the $520,166 average of 1942, when attendance averaged 11,336. The largest amount wagered on a single day's program in the history of Florida was chalked up on the last day of the Hialeah meet—$1,172,211—and the largest amount ever bet on one race in Florida was recorded the same day on the Widener handicap with $205,743, when the largest crowd of the season, 20,000 attended.

As Easter, climax of the spring season in greater Miami, approaches, the week's program holds several important events. The civic music association will present Alexander Brailowsky in piano recital tomorrow and on Tuesday and Wednesday Norman Cousins, executive editor of the Saturday Review of Literature, will lecture at the winter Institute of Arts and Sciences at the University of Miami.

Chicagoans arriving for spring visits include Mrs. Gilbert J. Thomas and her younger daughter, Deborah, who are with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Volkhardt, at their Miami Beach home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Canfield will occupy their home on Normandy Isle until late spring, and have with them her mother, Mrs. John A. Orb, also of Chicago. Mrs. Canfield and Mrs. Orb recently returned from a visit with Lt. John Canfield Jr., A. A. F., stationed at Lakeland.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa C. Fessenden have purchased a waterfront residence on Sunset Island, which they will occupy next winter season. At present they are occupying a leased home at Miami Beach.

Mrs. Edward C. Toner of Anderson, Ind., has returned to Hollywood for a second visit with Mrs. Frederick Urban, also of Anderson, after a several weeks' stay with Mr. and Mrs. James S. Pettit at Miami Beach. Mrs. Pettit is the former Mrs. Oscar S. Thompson of Anderson and Marion, Ind. Mrs. Toner is publisher of the Anderson Herald and is widely known in northern Indiana. Mrs. Pettit entertained for her at luncheon at the Surf club.

ENGAGED

Miss Jane Morrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dana E. Morrison of Kenilworth, whose engagement to Gordon Richard Blair, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde S. Blair of Evanston has been announced. Miss Morrison and her fiance are students at Northwestern university.

Illinois Art Show Back in Stevens Hotel

By Eleanor Jewett.

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts will have its spring exhibit at the Stevens hotel in April, the first exhibit to be held there since the army took over the hotel and later returned it to civilian use. Mrs. Nelly Deachman, exhibition chairman, gives the receiving dates as Thursday, April 13, and Friday, April 14, from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m., in room 563-A, Stevens hotel.

Mrs. Deachman suggests that artists bring two of their best paintings [any medium] with wire and screw eyes attached, this last to expedite hanging. A hanging fee will be charged this year for each painting hung, but there will be no other dues. The jury will meet Monday, April 17, at 10:30 a. m. The opening tea will be Sunday, April 30. Several cash prizes will be awarded at the tea to winning pictures in each medium.

The artist membership list is to be revised after the spring exhibit. If an artist has not been exhibiting with the All-Illinois since the war, but wishes his name to remain on the list, he should send $1 for mailing expenses during the year. This insures cards about the various exhibits coming direct to the artist as well as invitations to the functions sponsored by the society. Nine sales have been made since Christmas from the current All-Illinois exhibits, and some 20 artists have expressed the wish to become members. The new work will be juried on April 17, and new artists who qualify will be accepted as members. Mrs. Deachman may be reached at 1413 E. 68th st. [Dorchester 1293], Chicago, or at room 563-A, Stevens hotel.

Another announcement also concerns an annual exhibition. The Art institute, thru the trustees committee on painting and sculpture, announces that due to a broader exhibition program planned for the institute it has been decided to hold a single exhibition by American artists each year in place of the annual exhibition of American paintings and sculpture and the international water color exhibition.

The new single exhibition of each year will continue the name, "Annual American Exhibition," but one year will be composed of oil paintings and sculpture and the next of water colors and drawings. It will depend to a large extent upon the material invited to this yearly function whether or not the eliminating of one of the most important shows of the art season proves a success. The character of the other shows which are to fill the temporary galleries also is a matter which will be awaited with considerable interest. Barring a juried show increases the influence of the museum over its exhibits. Whether the inescapable limiting of kinds of paintings and sculpture shown must be chalked up to the debit or credit side of the Art institute ledger depends in great part upon how catholic a taste is in the ascendant.

• • •

The change in schedule begins with the 55th annual American exhibition of water colors and drawings which will open June 8 to continue to Aug. 20 in the east wing galleries. The jury consists of Gifford Beal, famous New York painter; Andrew Wyeth, a younger man and a brilliant painter, of Chadds Ford, Pa., and Dorothy C. Miller, curator of painting and sculpture in the Museum of Modern Art of New York. A great many of the American pictures will be on exhibit thru invitation of the Art institute. A selection of work by Mexican and a smaller selection by South American and Cuban artists also have been invited.

The outstanding exhibition for March continues to be the brilliant show at the Chicago galleries, 215 N. Michigan av., of paintings of the dunes and Jackson park by Frank V. Dudley, and decorative screens and easel paintings by Julius Moessel. Both painters have struck a new high. The work is so unusual and so thoroly fine that this is one of those rare exhibits which must be seen to be appreciated. A written comment cannot tell half the story that should be told if justice is to be done. For beautiful, sensitive, compelling painting we commend this exhibition.

Water colors by James Lechay went on view at the Findlay galleries, Michigan av. at Van Buren st. last Monday to continue thru April 20. The water colors are thin, lacking body, substance, and color. Mr. Lechay sweeps a casual brush across the paper something in the manner of the Chinese artist in his wash drawings but with little of the success that attends the oriental. If you care for cold, forlorn, hungry art, a technique that rests heavily upon suggestion and less than at all upon performance, these water colors may enthuse you. If, however, you like rich, warm, living painting—art with significance, meaning, decorative quality and body—these water colors will carry no weight. Mr. Lechay hints in one or two efforts that he knows the value of color, but the general scheme of his show is that of attenuated appeasement; he covers the surface of his paper with just enough paint to bring it into that realm where it may be framed rather than tossed into a basket.

Robert A. Zeidler is showing 18 water colors at the Little gallery, Esquire theater. They are in direct contrast to the Lechay water colors, not wraithlike in the least but spirited and challenging.

Calendar of Chicagoland Club Events

The project of the Woman's City club to help eliminate the employment of children below the legal age of 16 in bowling alleys will be the discussion theme of a civic forum of the club at 1:30 o'clock Friday. The club president, Mrs. Harry M. Mulberry, who has been active in obtaining first hand data concerning the effects of such employment on school work, will introduce as principal speaker, Walter O. Cromwell of the Juvenile Protective association. Mr. Cromwell will tell of surveys his association has made, wherein it was determined that 50 per cent of the city's bowling alleys are employing children illegally.

Mrs. H. M. Mulberry.

As a result of a recent meeting, when 18 representatives of bowling leagues, owners of alleys, and leaders of civic groups met with the club to discuss the problem, the Association of Bowling Alley Proprietors has announced a new plan for organizing boys' clubs in an effort to eliminate illegal practices. Details of this plan will be heard, and reports of individual visits to bowling alleys by club members also will be given.

Social Agency Members Hold Lecture Series

Representatives from boards of directors of Chicago's leading welfare agencies will meet at 12:15 o'clock Friday in the Georgian room of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. for the second of seven luncheon lecture conferences. The speaker will be Mrs. Faith Jones, Cook county bureau of public welfare, with "Family Welfare" as her subject.

This course of lectures, which will cover the essentials of family service, child welfare, health, recreation, and the planning and financing of Chicago's social services, was arranged by the Chicago Council of Social Agencies at the suggestion of Robert E. Kenyon Jr., president of Chase House, and a member of the board of directors of the council. Its purpose is to acquaint board members of associated agencies with the main facts in the whole broad field of social service work in order to increase the effectiveness of each participant. The final talk will deal with the responsibility of board members in the field of public relations.

Future meetings will bring before the delegates Ethel Verry of the Chicago Orphan asylum, Mrs. Babette S. Jennings of the Children's Memorial hospital, Dr. Arthur J. Todd of Northwestern university, Wilfred S. Reynolds of the council, Pierce Atwater of the Community and War fund, and Audrey M. Hayden of the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

Some of those who are attending the study course are Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams III., president of the Chicago Junior league; Mrs. John Quincy Adams Jr., John Forsythe Alexander, A. Watson Armour, Mrs. Robert A. Carr, Byron S. Harvey Jr., Mrs. Marcus A. Hirschl, Mrs. James C. Hutchins, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. George W. Overton, and Lester Selig.

Recapture "that Younger Look"

At last, comes the astonishing news every woman has hoped for! Science has now found the active, "vitalizing" substance that gives the "bloom" to pretty young skin! As this substance decreases, skins often begin to look dry and older. But now the ENDOCREME laboratories have found a counterpart of nature's secret... that replaces the substance so needed by your skin. It is called ACTIVOL*... and brought to you only in ENDOCREME. Results of its use are often remarkable. Skins look firmer, fresher... frequently take on a look of young "bloom." There's nothing else like it! Only 11½¢ a day... for this priceless ingredient. You won't be content till you've tried ENDOCREME!

Peanut Butter Is Nutritious and Versatile

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

A home economist on my staff has such a fondness for peanut butter that she's always thinking of new ways to use it in cooking, and comes in for a good deal of teasing about her peanut butter appetite. Maybe she has something there, after all, for peanut butter is plentiful—and look at its nutrition report! High quality protein, calcium, phosphorus, thiamin, riboflavin, and iron.

No better spread for sandwiches ever was invented, especially for children, who need the nutrients found in peanut butter for growth. Some mothers mix peanut butter with a little honey or molasses for sandwiches, or spread one side of the bread with peanut butter, the other with citrus marmalade [unrationed].

A spread of honey and peanut butter broiled right into the ham slice is delicious.

Peanut butter often is used in cookies, but has other dessert uses, too. For example, try apple crisp with peanut butter worked into that flour, brown sugar, and margarine. You can cut down on the amount of margarine used when peanut butter is added, for the fat content of peanuts is appreciable.

Baked apples with a peanut butter and marmalade filling are good. You may or may not care for peanut butter soup or peanut butter in salad dressing. You probably will like it in cakelike muffins, tho.

Apple Peanut Butter Muffins.

½ cup peanut butter
5 tablespoons fat
1 cup brown sugar
½ cup molasses
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup grated raw apple
2 cups enriched flour
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup raisins or chopped dates or figs

Cream peanut butter and fat. Add brown sugar and molasses. Beat until well blended. Add eggs and mix well. Add grated apples alternately with sifted dry ingredients. Stir in raisins. Fill greased muffin or cup cake pans and bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes.

A delicious and healthful sandwich filling consists of equal parts ground carrot, minced celery and finely shredded cabbage, mixed with peanut butter and mayonnaise to moisten, and salted to taste. This is best of all when watercress or lettuce is used to separate it from the bread. And a dash of minced onion doesn't come amiss.

Here's another peanut butter vegetable sandwich idea: Spread the bread with peanut butter on one side, mayonnaise on the other. Sandwich thinly sliced tomatoes between, with or without lettuce. Thinly sliced onion on the tomato slices is a good addition.

Peanut butter mixes well with piccalilli for sandwiches, too.

In a casserole of sweet potatoes, or sweet potatoes and apples, peanut butter has a wonderful opportunity for asserting its flavor. Most families like this unusual twist.

Peanut butter French dressing is good with vegetable or fruit salads. Peanut butter mayonnaise may be used with either, but often seems more suitable with fruits, particularly apples. Use a rotary beater to blend peanut butter with your favorite French dressing.

Peanut Butter Date Bars.

[Two dozen or more.]

½ cup sifted cake flour
1¼ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon allspice
¼ cup margarine
½ cup peanut butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
⅝ cup finely cut dates
½ teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour with baking powder, salt, and spices. Cream margarine and peanut butter thoroly. Add sugar gradually to beaten eggs and beat until light and deep yellow. Stir into creamed mixture. Add flour mixture, beat until blended, and add dates and vanilla. Bake in shallow, greased, wax paper lined pan at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Turn out on rack, remove paper, cool and cut into bars or strips.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson.

Miss Dorothy Du Bois Walker is the only woman on the staff of four negotiators working with the Chicago ordnance district's artillery branch. Her job is the placing and renewing of contracts for artillery items.

Miss Walker has placed contracts with war plants for a variety of war machinery, including 57 millimeter gun carriages, 155 millimeter guns, trench mortars, and fire control instruments.

Her work does not stop there, however, because she and the other three negotiators also handle production and delivery schedules, a phase of work involving conferences with officials of private industry, engineers of the district's artillery branch, lawyers from the legal branch, and fiscal branch accountants.

• • •

On war time leave from the teaching staff of New Trier High school in Winnetka, Miss Walker's field is mathematics, an educational background which has especially qualified her for her present position.

She joined the staff of Jack Benns, chief of the artillery branch, in June, 1942, when she was named assistant to the chief of the reports and statistics section of the ordnance district, the headquarters of which is at 38 S. Dearborn st. Five months later she was transferred to the artillery branch as head of the purchasing control unit.

Miss Walker was born in Piqua, O. After receiving an A. B. degree from Northwestern university and an M. A. from Stanford university, she accepted the teaching position at New Trier, where she conducted classes in plane and solid geometry, algebra, college algebra, and trigonometry.

Two women in war work recently renewed old acquaintance in the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator plant, 1135 N. Cicero av., where equipment important to precision bombing is being manufactured on war contracts.

Marken Carlson and Sigrid Moss were good friends in Finland, and came to the United States together in 1929. Shortly after their arrival they went separate ways and lost track of each other completely for 15 years.

Both eventually signed up independently for war work at Minneapolis-Honeywell and were assigned to the same department.

The Red Cross unit of the Medinah Club of Chicago, working Tuesdays and Fridays from 10 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., contributed 750 hours of work during February, bringing the total work hours of the group to 27,000, Mrs. Meyer Morton, chairman, announced this week.

Members of the unit are wives and other women in the families of Medinah club members. The group has been sewing and knitting for the Red Cross for five years, with 25 consistent workers engaged in two principal projects: garments for military hospitals and clothes for the Red Cross disaster closet.

Articles made for convalescents in military hospitals include pajamas, bathrobes, sweaters, helmets, and gloves. Clothing of all types is made for the disaster closet, the facilities of which are called upon whenever there is a flood or major fire anywhere in the nation.

The Medinah unit received an award of merit for production and quality of work during 1943.

A cream that has been designed especially for users of cake makeup contains the necessary qualities to make it both an efficient cleanser and a skin softener.

It's a world of specialization, and right in step with the trend is a new face cream dedicated to the users of cake makeup. It's a fine, thinnish sort of preparation, faintly pink and delightfully perfumed. It's contained in a perfectly plain, utilitarian jar, for the cream is the sort that can afford to depend on merit alone for sales.

That it is swift and thoro in removing cake makeup was proved to us the other day when we had a model use it to cleanse her face. She had just been in front of the camera and was wearing quite a heavy coating of cake foundation. She applied a few dabs of the cream, spread it lightly over the face and neck and then with cleansing tissue wiped it away. Every speck of makeup was removed quickly and completely. This is the sort of pentrating cleanser that acts as if it's melting away dirt and grime, leaving the complexion beautifully clean and fresh looking.

Our model was pleased with the softening effect the cream had on her skin and that was to be expected, for in addition to containing an excellent cleansing agent, the cream is rich in emollients that soothe and soften. Cake type makeup bases often are drying to the skin, and many women who use them consistently have found that they must use rich creams to counteract this effect. Wisely, the manufacturers of this new preparation have made it gently lubricating so that it comforts the dry skin, relaxing and imparting a silky finish to it.

Because the cream is such a quick and efficient cleanser-softener, we think it's fine for the working girl who has only a minimum of time to freshen her face during the middle of the day. It's not an expensive product, and budgeted beauties can afford to buy two jars, one for work and one for home use.

An article by Maurice C. Blake in a recent issue of Stamps gives an interesting postal sketch of the postal history of Boston and announces that the first known use of a Boston hand stamp occurred on Feb. 27, 1769. Until this announcement was made the earliest reported use of the hand stamp had been March 13, 1769. Boston manuscript markings were in use as late as Feb. 16, 1769, and now the gap between the use of the pen and the hand stamp has been reduced to 11 days. It is doubtful if any cover used between those dates will be located to fix the first day of use of the hand stamp more closely.

According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

When it comes to slam bidding, a lot of so-called reasoning, and visualizing of partner's holding as implied by his bids, is in essence just wishful thinking. The slam bidder, perhaps unconsciously, exaggerates the importance of an encouraging bid from across the table and gives scant attention to another bid which drastically qualifies the over-all picture. Consider this deal, which had a miserable result for two nationally known experts.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Match-point scoring.

NORTH
♠ K Q 5 2
♥ K 8
♦ Q 9 6
♣ 10 9 7 4

♦ 7 4 3
♣ Q 8 5

SOUTH
♠ A 10 8 4 3
♥ 10 9
♦ A K J 10
♣ A K

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
3 hearts [!]	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 diamonds	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 clubs	Pass	6 hearts	Pass
7 spades [!]	Dbl. [final bid]

As may be seen, it took North-South five rounds of bidding to reach a contract that was nothing short of horrible!

Reviewing the bids made by each partner, many readers may be inclined to blame North, with his "phony" two diamond response, for the final debacle. This, however, would be an unfair judgment. Expert players go in for this sort of responding with comparative regularity, i. e., if their hand is somewhat too strong for a single raise of partner's suit, and far too weak for a double raise, they equivocate with a takeout to a lower ranking suit, planning, of course, to play the eventual contract at partner's suit.

South went in for some psychic bidding on his own account when he jumped to three hearts on the next round. This, too, tho excessively "fancy," was not unsound, because South had plenty of compensation in other suits. His object in the heart jump was twofold: to discourage a heart lead against any contract he might reach and to encourage North to support hearts so that the first objective would be further assured.

Now let's skip for a moment to South's final decision—the grand slam bid. South based this on the strong spade support indicated by North's jump from four diamonds to five spades, and on the likelihood [according to South's view] that North's belated heart raise showed the ace. What South chose to overlook, however, was that North bid only three spades in response to three hearts, and that if he had held

♠ K Q x x ♥ A x ♦ Q x x x x ♣ x x

all of which South needed for a safe seven spade contract, North would have bid at least four spades, probably five or six spades, in response to the three heart jump.

This Spring's Casual Coats Are Short, Smart, Colorful

By Rea Seeger.

This spring's casual coats have a new look! Short coats, smart for night or day wear, have a distinctive flare at the back, a straight sleek front, and unexaggerated shoulders. The coats of three-quarter and seven-eighths length feature either loose silhouettes or streamlines graciously soft and subtly draped to accentuate the figure.

Full length coats have the same fitted, easy lines as the other models. Necklines are collarless but are so cut and fitted as to curve up over the neck almost like the flattering outlines of a draped dress.

Some short coats have belts at the back to control extra width contrived with folds and double plaits. These are the coats that were inspired by the swank, short officer coats. Materials and strong, clear contrast colors, as well as huge buttons, make these short length coats appealing and feminine.

You'll find dazzling white fleeces lined with scarlet, tangerine, and orange tints. Other models are lined with harmonizing colors: grass-green, strong purples, flame red, and bright carbon blue. Neutrals, like beige and gray, off white, and the pastels are abundant, but popular favorites are the coats of dramatic strong contrast. Tangerine and orange are tops!

Many of the loose, boxy coats double for daylight and evening wear. They are extremely simple, and top slim skirted costumes to perfection. These severely simple box coats are just what you need for the column slim, long dinner clothes and evening dresses. Even with pockets, such coats still look unadorned, as the pockets are cleverly inset, part of an ingenious fold or tucking motif. Patched-on pockets are taboo.

All long coats stress silhouette simplicity. Sleeves are wide, loose and long, and a few coats are detailed with vertical tucks, some with slenderizing tuxedo collars, nearly all with the collarless neckline. However, the popular, straight box coats also are available in dress length. These are ideal basic coats for any spring and summer wardrobe.

The fabrics are precious all-wools from a famous American wool manufacturer. The materials are outstanding because of the clear, vibrant colors and featherweight, smooth textures. Casual coats, the obliging models that can be worn from dawn until dark, with street, afternoon, and evening clothes, reach the peak of fashion perfection this spring.

Sketched are three flattering casual coats, part of a superb collection of all-purpose models to be found in a smart Chicago shop. For further information call Superior 0200.

Child's Sense of Touch Aids His Learning

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.].

"If Billy would only leave things alone," wailed a young mother, extricating a beautifully carved figurine from the hands of her toddling son. "He's into everything. I never can stay at one job for 10 minutes without three or four interruptions to rescue things from his prying fingers."

"I think Debby's arms are longer than those of most children," exclaimed another mother. "She can reach things which ought to be entirely out of her reach.

• • •

Did you ever stop to think that before a baby can walk or before he can even creep, four of his senses develop? While he is still little enough to be kept in one place, four of his senses help him to acquaint himself with his brand new world. His senses of sight, hearing, taste, and smell get a lot of practice. But it is only when he is able to creep and then to walk that his fifth sense—the sense of touch—can be really satisfied. Now, at last, he has the opportunity to touch, and really find out what all the things he's been looking at feel like.

The world, as a baby sees it, is a challenge to his sense of touch. He has to feel each thing to know what it is like, for he has no past experince to go by. You know from past experience that glass will feel smooth, metal heavy and cold, and cotton light and fluffy; you know from looking at an object what it will feel like, but the baby doesn't—he must touch it to find out.

• • •

For that matter, when it's an unfamiliar thing, you must, too. Just watch grownups when they're shown something new; they invariably take it into their hands, if they are at all interested. Watch yourself when you go shopping. Don't you touch just about everything you consider buying and many things you don't? You can actually see better when you touch things.

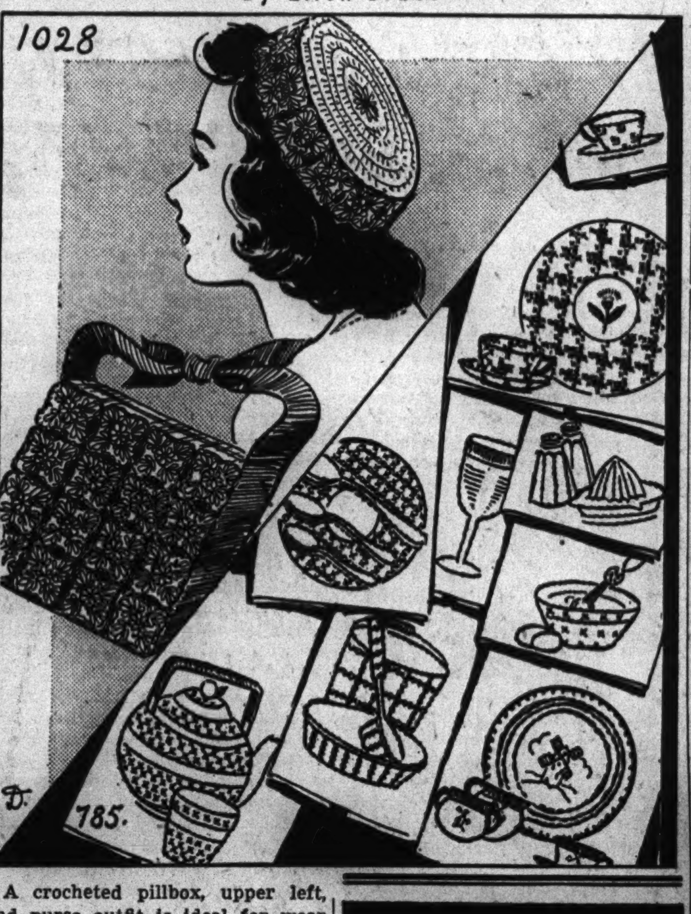
So when a mother asks, "How can I keep my child from touching things?" and I say, "Don't," she probably wonders what I'm talking about—what I mean.

Let your small son or daughter examine in his hands the articles about the house—in the living room, the kitchen [most fascinating of all], the bathroom and your bedroom when you are there, too.

If there's anything fragile or perishable, put it out of the baby's reach [really out of his reach]. But if he's interested, first let him hold it for awhile, let him run his hands over it and satisfy his natural curiosity about it.

Designs for Needlework

By Ellen Bruce



A crocheted pillbox, upper left, and purse outfit is ideal for wear with a new dressmaker suit. The hat is trimmed with medallions which match the bag. The crown may be of contrasting colors. If two colors are used for the purse, set the medallions together in an alternate arrangement to create a striking checkerboard effect.

Cross stitch embroidery on towels may be done to simulate applique work. These motifs are effective and dress up a kitchen. The needlework is simple and requires little time to do.

For instructions in crocheting the hat and bag set, No. 1028, and the hot iron transfer pattern, No. 785, send 10 cents in stamps or coin for EACH pattern, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, for EACH PATTERN, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York City.

Amazing Cough Relief, Mixed In Your Kitchen

Saves Big Dollars. No Cooking.

Yes, ma'am, right in your own kitchen, you can easily mix a cough medicine that is a wonder for quick results, and gives you about four times as much for your money. And it's no trouble—a child could do it.

You'll need a syrup. Make it by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Now get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, and pour it into a pint bottle. Then add your syrup. There you have a full pint of really remarkable medicine for coughs due to colds. It lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

You'll say this beats anything you ever tried. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases the soreness, and lets you rest at night.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

You're so pretty with a finer-textured skin... Take care of conspicuous pores with Dorothy Gray Hygienic Paste. Soothing...and so effective. $1, plus tax. Help conceal occasional pimples with Hygienic Lotion. $1.50, plus tax.

Mrs. Edward S., Sandusky, O.—We checked on our garden tools recently and found them in none too good shape for the season ahead. My husband soaked them for 12 hours in half and half motor oil and kerosene. Then he gave them a good scouring with a rag which he had soaked in the same solution and dipped into sand. From now on he greases all our metals before storing even for a short time.

Mrs. George B., Oak Park, Ill.—I have formed the habit, when canning vegetables, to put salt in the jar first, about one teaspoon to a pint of vegetable. In this way I can see the salt. When I formerly left the salting until last I often forgot it or, sadder still, salted vegetables twice.

A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting.

New York, Mar. 26th. Amazing what household helps one can pick up at the most frivolous of parties sometimes. Here are a few practical tidbits I learned in one afternoon recently . . . all of them worked for me when put to a test! ★ A pinch of alum worked into the soil of indoor plants helps make the leaves greener . . . ★ the grated rind of lemon or lemon pulp can "pinch-hit" for chopped pickle or hard-to-get capers in seafood and egg salads. ★ Creaming shortening and honey together for various desserts that call for sugar gives results that are often a new taste-treat. ★ Pour fine garden seeds into a pepper shaker and you'll get more even planting in your Victory Garden rows!

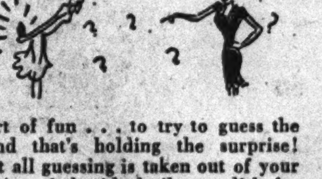
"A friend in need is a friend indeed . . ." And it isn't too much to say that LARVEX is about the greatest friend a housekeeper has at this time of the year! LARVEX comes to the housekeeper's aid with professional moth-proofing service right in the home . . . giving clothes, sofas, rugs and decorative fabrics protection against moths for a WHOLE YEAR! Just a few minutes spraying with LARVEX gives woolens POSITIVE protection against moths . . . because LARVEX penetrates the fibres and makes the cloth itself moth-proof. Moth worms would rather starve than eat LARVEX-ed materials! You'll find LARVEX at Drug and Department Stores . . . only 79c a pint, $1.19 per quart. Also in economical larger sizes — gallon and ½ gallon. It's odorless, dry cleaning won't impair its year-long moth-protection . . . and since LARVEX-ed materials are moth-proofed, there's no necessity for wrapping and storing clothes away to protect them from moths! Make a special point of asking for LARVEX this week . . . the most timely Spring BUY-LINE I know!

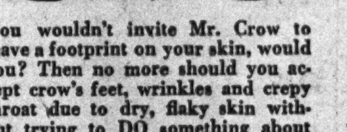
"Housewife's Treasure..."

King Midas himself would have added GOLDEN FLEECE to his treasures IF he'd been a housewife . . . 'cause as kitchen treasures go THE GOLDEN FLEECE Pot Cleaner is worth its weight in gold! No more metal slivers to fester fingers and no rust to discolor and contaminate! And like many new plastic inventions, it's here to stay, peace or war. A long-lasting, double-surfaced cloth, covered with myriads of plastic-abrasive and microscopic beads, THE GOLDEN FLEECE Pot Cleaner has plenty of what it takes to remove burned spots and difficult stains on pots and pans. Cost is only 10c at Grocery, Hardware, Department and 5 and 10c Stores—or write to The Downy Products Company, Orange, New Jersey.

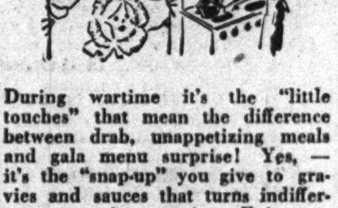
Bootery is glamourous this season . . . yet designed for wartime service. But there's more to foot-happiness than a good-looking, good-walking shoe . . . it's vital that feet FEEL comfortable IN them! And right there is where those dainty DR. SCHOLL LuPADS are so helpful! They're made to loop over the forepart of each foot and snuggle soft pads under metatarsal arches, cushioning them against shock, pressure, painful calluses and burning sensations at the ball of the foot. And they do it invisibly, for DR. SCHOLL'S LuPADS are so feather-light, they're unnoticeable,—except for the wonderful support and amazing comfort they give. Cost is $1 at Drug, Department, Notions Counter or Shoe Stores, or write to DR. SCHOLL, 213 West Schiller St., Chicago, Ill. Be sure to state your shoe size!



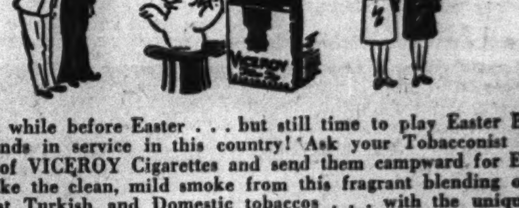
Sort of fun . . . to try to guess the hand that's holding the surprise! But all guessing is taken out of your choice of the ideal silver polish for your precious silver IF you agree that THE BEST ATTAINABLE is probably used to clean the precious silver and gold plate at Buckingham Palace. Name of it is SILVO . . . the Liquid Silver Polish that's as easy on your hands as it is on silver! It cleans in a few minutes . . . making one rub do the shining, polishing job of three with an ordinary cleaner! SILVO doesn't leave a chalky deposit in fine filigree or silver chasing. It gets in and cleans, and then gets right out again with only the lightest of rubbing necessary. Odor is pleasing, and as I said before, SILVO won't stain or roughen your hands. Ask for it at finer Department and Grocery Stores!



You wouldn't invite Mr. Crow to leave a footprint on your skin, would you? Then no more should you accept crow's feet, wrinkles and crepy throat due to dry, flaky skin without trying to DO something about it. 25 years of age is not too soon to start combating this danger! And I think you'll find the Angelus Dry Skin Creme from THE HOUSE of LOUIS PHILIPPE the most wonderful help! It has a special homogenized emollient with a lanolin base . . . is NOT heavy or greasy . . . IS smooth and delightfully fragrant! It is unexcelled for lubricating dry, roughened skin . . . and a help in improving its texture. Ask for it this week at Cosmetic Counters . . . priced at 49c and 79c a jar!



During wartime it's the "little touches" that mean the difference between drab, unappetizing meals and gala menu surprise! Yes, — it's the "snap-up" you give to gravies and sauces that turns indifferent cuts of meat into Epicurean treats . . . the piquant flavor you give fish dishes, eggs, spaghetti and other point "extenders" that makes them delicious main courses rather than unattractive substitutes! That's why I think you'll find HEINZ "57-Sauce" an indispensable ally these days . . . a wonderful seasoning that wakes up taste and peps up appetites, adding rich, tangy taste-excitement to otherwise ordinary dishes! HEINZ "57-Sauce" is a medley of SEVENTEEN rich, inviting flavors . . . blended from rare tropical and domestic fruits and vegetables and exotic spices that are aged together until just a few drops will "spruce up" delightfully the taste of your entree and salad dishes! Ask your Grocer for HEINZ "57-Sauce" this week . . . and note the very real difference this easy, quick "little touch" means to the meals you serve your family during wartime!



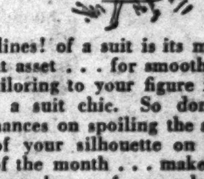
Just a short while before Easter . . . but still time to play Easter Bunny to your friends in service in this country! Ask your Tobacconist today for cartons of VICEROY Cigarettes and send them campward for Easter. Men, too, like the clean, mild smoke from this fragrant blending of the world's finest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos . . . with the unique tip that acts as a FILTER for tars, resins and other throat irritants. Ask for VICEROY Cigarettes at your Tobacconist's . . . they're popular priced!

Complexion Help...

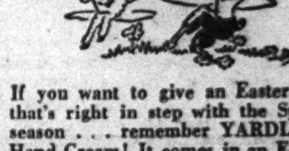
Blackheads and blemishes from external causes are always disfiguring and annoying. But this isn't a hopeless condition . . . just try the simple RESINOL care! First, cleanse skin daily and carefully with mild RESINOL Soap. Second, relieve itchy smarting of pimply spots or irritated blackheads with soothing, specially medicated RESINOL Ointment. You'll be amazed at how this hastens healing, and rewards you with a clearer complexion! Try this RESINOL Care for only 10c. Write for the Sample Kit which contains RESINOL Soap and Ointment, and a handy Hollywood Mending Kit for your precious stockings to Nancy Sasser, 271 Madison Ave., New York 16, N. Y., enclosing a dime or 10c in stamps.

Don't make the mistake of considering your Spring fashion-shopping complete until you've bought "protection" for the new frivolities you've purchased! Get a jar of 5-DAY Underarm Pads right along with the new frocks, suits and blouses you're buying. You'll be amazed at how this anti-perspirant aid can cut down on your cleaner's bills . . . how they can help you avoid stain and fading of colors that come from excessive perspiration. 5-DAY Underarm Pads come in a glass jar at Drug and Department Stores . . . cost but 55c. All you have to do is whisk ONE of the dainty pads 'neath your arms. They're ready-lotioned with a pleasantly fragrant lotion that checks perspiration from 1 to 5 days, depending on how freely you perspire. An indispensable accessory to Spring chic!

Worried about graying hair? That's natural. None of us wants to let dull, drab gray hair add unwelcome years. But there's not a reason in the world to be timid about tinting if you'll follow this BUY-LINE. Just ask your beauty operator for an ETERNOL Tint Oil Shampoo. One treatment—and your hair sings with youth-like color, gleams with highlights. Every hint of gray is banished! And without the slightest suggestion of artificiality, for ETERNOL's 21 color-controlled tints are so true and clear they rival nature's own. Easy and simple to apply, too. Use only as directed on the label. A swirl of bubbles, dewy-fresh rinses, and behold—a younger looking, prettier you! Phone your beauty shop for your ETERNOL appointment this very week. For free Booklet, S1, write to Paragon Distributing Corporation, 8 West 32nd Street, New York 1, N. Y.



The "lines" of a suit is its most important asset . . . for smooth, faultless tailoring to your figure is what makes a suit chic. So don't take any chances on spoiling the smoothness of your silhouette on certain days of the month . . . make SURE there's no chance of unseemly bulges and edges to cause you embarrassment. And you can be sure if you adopt the TAMPAX method of internal sanitary protection . . . modern, dainty and discreet! The discovery of what comfort and self-confidence TAMPAX can mean is marvelous . . . no more pins, pads or chafing . . . no more worry! TAMPAX comes in Introductory Boxes for just 20c at Drug Stores and Notion Counters . . . ask for it NOW!



If you want to give an Easter Gift that's right in step with the Spring season . . . remember YARDLEY'S Hand Cream! It comes in an Easter-pretty bottle in delicate shell-pink . . . is fragrant as spring flowers! Best of all, this delightful cream that POURS on can help solve the most stubborn hand-beauty problems . . . whether they're roughened from warwork or busily working at home tasks. YARDLEY'S Hand Cream is wonderful as a rub after the evening bath, too . . . soothing to tired feet and limbs and a wonderful help to chafed elbows. Give it as an Easter Gift with full confidence that any woman will love it . . . not a trace of stickiness . . . caressingly smooth and fragrant! You'll find YARDLEY'S Hand Cream at just 65c a bottle at finer shops everywhere!

"Tops" in Tops...

Neglected cigarettes, spilled cosmetics, "rings" from damp tumblers . . . these won't worry you if you have plate glass tops on your furniture. You can get glass tops cut to fit furniture you already have in your home. And the latest thing in buying new furniture is to buy plate glass tops for the flat-topped pieces, at the same time you buy the furniture. These handsome glass tops don't add very much to the cost of the furniture, but they give perfect protection to fine wood finishes from the very moment the new furniture enters your home. Get glass tops at your Department or Furniture Store. Or look in your telephone directory for your nearest "PITTSBURGH" Products Dealer. And ALWAYS look for the blue label saying, "Made from Genuine Pittsburgh Plate Glass" . . . it's your guide to quality glass!

Federation of Music Clubs Meets Today

Mrs. James A. Young. [Chase-Town House Photo.]

A gathering of members of 1st district of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs would be incomplete without its traditional musical program, and one has been arranged by the Evanston Music club to follow on the heels of the district's annual meeting, which opens at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Woman's City club rooms.

The group is pooling its efforts with the Woman's Club of Chinatown to send financial aid to Chinese war orphans, and discussion of plans for a campaign to raise money for this purpose will be one of the highlights of the business session. With Mrs. James Allen Young, executive chairman, presiding, reports also will be made concerning plans for the forthcoming state convention, to be held in Chicago April 30 thru May 2, and an election will be held to fill the offices of vice chairman, treasurer, and auditor.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Dean McSlay, baritone and soprano, accompanied by Mrs. Clarence Evans, will give the musical presentation. A special guest will be Mrs. Royden J. Keith, who will be making her last official visit to the district as state federation president, since she is retiring from that office in April.

Margaret Sweeney, concert harpist, will open her home at 1400 Lake Shore dr. at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening to members of the Organized Women Musicians. Instrumental duets are to be given by Miss Sweeney and Margaret Conrad, violinist, and selections also will be presented by Marion Bridgman, flutist; Jessie Buchtel, violinist, and Louise Evans, pianist.

A third musical group, the Musicians Club of Women, which is headed by Mrs. Margaret Lester, will present its 710th program Monday afternoon, April 3, in Curtiss hall of the Fine Arts building, when participating artists will include Mildred Smith Bolan, Marion Harkins, Ruth Klauber, Claire Wellman, and the accompanists, Virlyn Duerr, Mary Nielaman, and Ellen Neitz. In charge of the tea tables afterward will be Mrs. Joseph Gettrust and Mrs. Derk Vloedmann.

• • •

Mrs. Inez Hubbard Hicks.

A program of operatic songs presented by Mrs. Inez Hubbard Hicks, lyric soprano, will be a feature at 2 o'clock tea being given tomorrow by the Southern Woman's Educational alliance, whose meeting place will be the home of Mrs. John G. Williams at 1422 Judson av., Evanston. Mrs. Hicks, who is choir soloist at the Glen Ellyn Methodist church, is to be accompanied by Ella Furholmen. Afterward, Mrs. Stanley Curtis will give a dramatic presentation of the play, "Tomorrow the World."

Mrs. Samuel P. Whiteside will preside, and assisting hostesses are to be Mrs. W. M. Keeley, Mrs. C. E. L. Lipman, Mrs. Edwin E. Barthell, Mrs. R. W. Tate, Mrs. Fred W. Reed, and Mrs. Roy C. Walker.

Margaret McSweeney to Wed Petty Officer Gray

Mr. and Mrs. George W. McSweeney of Highland Park are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Louise, to First Class Petty Officer William A. Gray, U. S. N. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Quincy D. Gray of Connersville, Ind. Miss McSweeney attended the William and Mary college and is a graduate of Lake Forest college. Her fiance, who studied at the University of Indiana, is an instructor at the Great Lakes Naval Training station. April 23 is the date set for the wedding.

Rust Prevention.

A light coating of mineral oil or some other fat that is free from salt will keep rust from forming on iron frying pans or Dutch ovens.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

There's Plenty to Occupy You in Hot Springs

By Mildred Peterson.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. [Special].—Visiting this spa is like attending a 10 ring circus, with crowds everywhere you go and something to occupy your time and attention everywhere you turn.

Between taking the curative hot baths in the government owned thermal waters, attending the races at nearby Oaklawn Park, hiking in the surrounding hills [mountains to natives], fishing in the not far distant rivers and lakes, horse back riding over beautiful trails, golfing on one of the three 18 hole courses at the Hot Springs Golf and Country club, promenading down famous holly and magnolia bordered "Bath House Row," the resort's showplace, and basking in the warm sunshine, the visitor wishes for more than 24 hours in the day.

• • •

Never before since Hernando de Soto, the money mad Spaniard, hit these parts some 400 years ago has there been such activity. Every available space in the hundreds of hotels, apartments, boarding houses, lakeside cottages, tourist courts and trailer parks is occupied, with reservations piling up. The chamber of commerce and hotel managers are warning visitors not to arrive without advance reservations.

Hot Springs' business barometer, the bath house report, shows that in February, 1944, an all time record was set in the number of baths given in the 16 bathing institutions. During the month 101,100 baths were given as compared to the next highest month, which was February, 1928, when 96,203 baths were given. This does not include the thousands of baths given at the $5,000,000 Army and Navy General hospital, originally built by the government in 1884, and its annex, which is the 500 room former Eastman hotel, and several other state and municipal institutions.

• • •

During the last calendar year about 795,000 baths were given, which was an increase of about 10 per cent over the preceding year. The travel year also showed that over 185,000 persons from every state in the union and about 20 foreign countries visited this resort, which was an increase of about 8 per cent over the previous year.

Hot Springs was the only one of the 25 national parks in the United States to record an increase in tourists during the year, according to Park Supt. John W. Emmert.

Next to Arkansas, the largest number of health seekers and recreation minded travelers came from Illinois, which provided more than 29,000 in 1943. During February, 1944, 4,087 persons from Illinois came to visit these hot springs.

Colorado Springs Choir Will Sing at Easter Service

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. [Special].—A 219 voice a capella choir, nationally recognized as one of the nation's finest, will be heard on the 1944 Easter sunrise service from the Garden of the Gods on the outskirts of Colorado Springs. The service will be broadcast this year by CBS.

The choir, under the direction of Don R. Haley, and made up of students of Colorado Springs High school, won first prize in national choral contests the last two years they were held before the war, in 1937 and 1938, at Omaha and Colorado Springs.

The choir has appeared five times on the annual sunrise service here. This year the choir will sing "Salvation Is Created," by Tschesnokoff; "Send Out thy Light," by Schnetky-Aschenbrenner, and "Seven Fold Amen," by Stainer.

Mexico Continues Its Road Development Plan

MEXICO CITY.—The Republic of Mexico has spent almost $400,000,000 for highway development since 1925 and is continuing its program for a network of modern roads across the country. This year's expenditures for construction and maintenance of Mexican roads will total approximately $133,000,000.

Lodges at Illinois State Parks Open for Vacation Time

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. [Special].—The lodges at Pere Marquette and White Pines Forest state parks are now open for the vacation season, it was announced by George W. Williams, superintendent of state parks.

These lodges, including the one at Starved Rock, which is open all year, have been completely refurnished. All offer the best of accommodations and are noted for their excellent meals. Starved Rock and Pere Marquette lodges operate on the American plan and the White Pines Forest lodge on the European plan.

Park custodians put in a busy winter getting their parks ready for vacation time. This should be a good year for the parks, with the majority of Illinois people taking their vacations close to home because of travel conditions, Williams said.

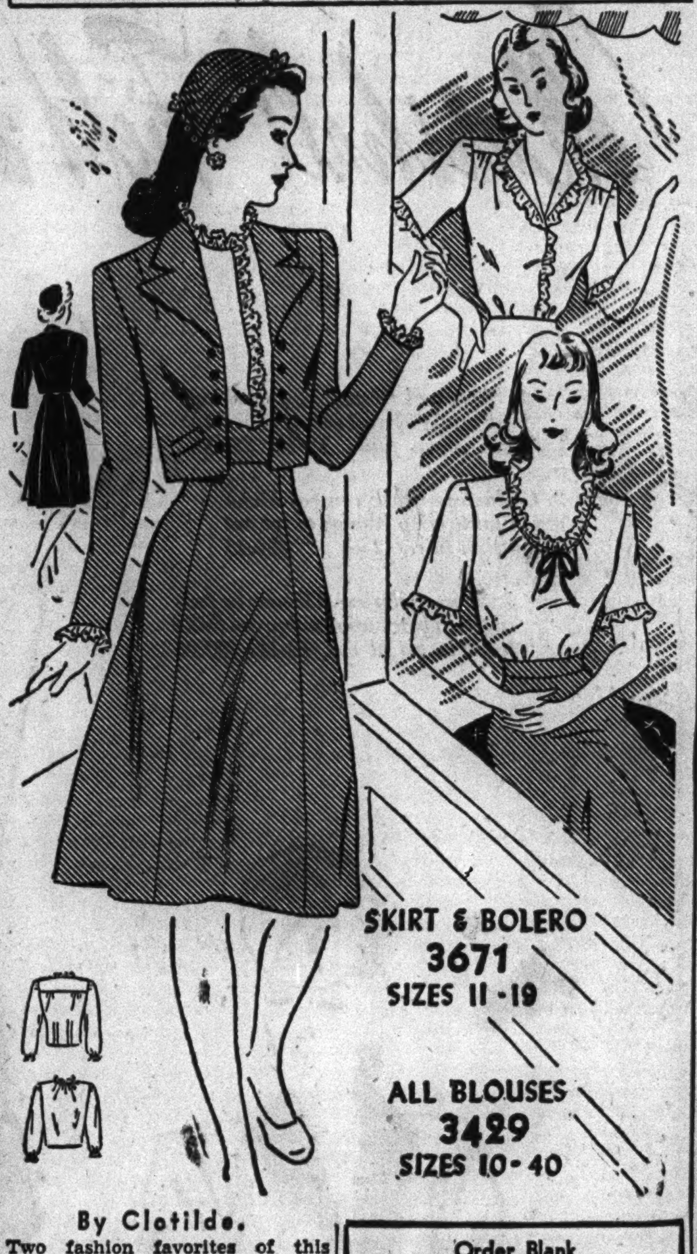
Patterns by Clotilde



By Clotilde.

Two fashion favorites of this spring are offered in sparkling versions in these two patterns. One is the slim skirted suit with the briefest possible jacket, the bolero. The other is the frilly blouse.

This suit skirt has an accommodating waistline, in that the blouse may be worn either over it or tucked into the band. The exquisite woolens being featured in the sew-your-own departments of the stores will afford many a lovely fabric and color inspiration for this design, which takes the bolero straight out of Spain, keeping it true to tradition, even to rows of tiny buttons.

The blouse pattern offers neckline variety. Have the white or pastel model with either a U at the throat or with wide lapels. Be sure to frost either version liberally with ruffling lace, or eyelet batiste.

Style No. 3671 is designed for sizes 11 to 19. Size 15 requires 2⅝ yards of 54 inch material.

Style No. 3429 is designed for sizes 10 to 40. Size 16, with short sleeves, requires 2 yards of 30 inch material for either version.

Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Linoleum Is Basis for Gay Color Scheme

By Edith Weigle.

Starting with the floor you can make your kitchen just as gay and colorful as you desire nowadays. A number of recipes for this workshop where each of us is now spending a good deal of time are worked out beautifully and are on display in a Chicago store.

For the dark kitchen follow this formula in one of the groupings: Put bright yellow marbleized linoleum on the floor and paint the walls the same hue. Use blue and white as contrasting colors in the scheme. In the display an unfinished china cabinet was painted white with the interior a bright blue, and the sides and front panels of the lower cabinet doors were covered in a delightful chintz having a butterfly pattern. The chintz was applied like wallpaper.

• • •

Here's a good method of treating the bright kitchen: Cover the floor with light green marbleized linoleum and paint the walls the same light tone. Paint the furniture white.

In the attractive little setup in the store an old fashioned piano stool, finished in white, is pulled up to a Victorian table, also white, and cushion for the stool and table cover are of a bright yellow, blue, green, and white printed cotton. Three little shelves above the table hold cook books, bottles and canisters, and on another wall is a white bird cage filled with ivy. Just to add a whimsical touch a white violin is propped against the open kitchen door.

• • •

Blue linoleum and walls are used in still another bright setup, while next to it is a kitchen grouping with walls of structural glass on which is a family bulletin board of blue linoleum.

Since your kitchen floor covering, if it's a good quality of linoleum, will last a long time it pays to select it with care for it will be the dominating factor in your color scheme. Painting the walls to match it or in tint a little lighter will make the room seem larger and more spacious.

Lady of the House

"Dig In, Advance, Mop Up!"

The house, the garden, the sewing room. Each recurring spring they're a triple challenge to the housewife and remind me of the harassed teacher who, irked by a slow spoken student, said: "Hurry it a bit; I've got to go three ways this minute." And the young man calmly asked, "May I just stand here and see you go?"

Well, we're going. Dig in, advance, mop up. If that's good tactics for the army, why won't it rout "ole debbil dirt?" I've established bridgeheads at both ends of the house in preparation for a pincers movement. If it ever really gets to the pinch I'll let you know.

Gardens are in the make. Hot beds, cold frames, seed flats and tiny window gardens in homes and offices and shops. A friend is growing her own from seed in anticipation of the predicted shortage of onion sets. New parsley is thick and ferny and early tomatoes are exuberantly sprouting in their prepared chemical growing medium. They can be had ready planted in the stores.

It's comforting to know we are all in this together. When Mary Shaw's "life seems hampered by kitchen walls and humdrum work," she finds "inspiration" in the lyric tones of a gay, pert bird whose tasks are "humble and tedious" as hers. Grace West recalls in bubbling verse how her grandmather started housevleaning in a big way with the Ides of March. Suburban Sue hangs out the family wash to the tune of the redbird's whistle; and Katharine Dignum is cheered by—

Spring Magic.

There's magic in these blustering March days
When fleets of clouds go scudding 'cross the sky,
And when the wind, unleashed, so harshly flays
The trees' bare boughs, as roughly it rides by.
The bluebird, first bright envoy on the wing,
In joyous notes pipes messages of cheer;
And boys exultant at the signs of spring
Give lusty shouts from every garden near.
But more than all this restlessness that fills
The lengthening days, of sunshine and of showers,
Enchanting beauty of the evening thrills,
Borne on the shoulders of the twilight hours;
When like a ship of fire the moon sails by Majestically o'er the sequined sky.

• • •

While Cosette Middleton works magic about the house with her scissors she fancies the tool a gay—

Conversationalist.

Pressed into action, whetted on a dream,
The cunning scissors know whereof they speak.
And given the authority, they eke
Out details while they gossip and they scheme.
They leave the windows misty-eyed in tulle
Or bright in chintz amazement, while the shelves
Behind cretonne approve themselves,
And Ancient chairs look young and plump and cool.
The scissors bear out ingenuity,
Becoming eloquent when patterns wait
For yards of gay percale to undulate
Across the table in a flowered sea—
Listen and hear their silver voice express
The eager song of the adventuress.

• • •

Carmen Carter, still eagerly looking for "wobbie" seeds, sends us an——

SOS

Seedsmen look at me askance
In a sorry sort of way,
Each time I mention "wobbie" seeds
I almost hear them say,
"Too bad her mind is slipping,
She's really quite young, too."
Please, dear lady of the house,
Now what am I to do?

[They must still be a deep, dark secret weapon of war behind the dikes of Holland, where they are said to have originated. Let's keep hunting. With all those vitamins they ought to be good.] My seedsman writes, "Whichever one is better we could get some of so that we can try it out in our gardens . . ."]

• • •

Lord Bless the Pilot.

"Lord, bless the pilot!" to myself I whisper
When the big planes go soaring by,
And I look from my low, safe window
Still wondering, "Man can fly!"

"Lord, bless the pilot!" Now if every mother
Who hears a plane and quickly looks aloft
To see the shining wings, the shapely body,
Will pray that prayer, winds surely will be soft.

"Lord, bless the pilot!" God will never tire
When those petitions swiftly rise to Him:
He watches sparrows—surely more the hero
Who soars aloft to seek creation's brim.
